

THE ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS

COMPILED

BY

BHAGAVAN DAS

(M. A., Calcutta University; D. Litt., hon. causa, Benares University; D. Litt., hon. causa, Allahabad University.)

THE KĀSHĪ VIDYĀ-PĪTHA, BENARES.

1939.

Rs. 2/- Net

Rs. 2/8/- Post free

First Edition, 1932.

Second Edition, greatly enlarged, 1939.

Publisher :—

The Kāshi-Vidyā-Pīṭha, Benares.

■ Agent :—

The Manager, The Indian Book Shop, (Theosophical Society), Benares.

The price of this book of over 700 pages, Cr.⁸Svo., cloth-bound, is Two Rupees nett, in Benares, or Two rupees and eight annas including postage, unregistered, outside Benares, in India. Sub-Agents, in other countries, may, charge up to Four shillings, or equivalents, besides postage, to cover their special expenses.

Printed by Rameshwar Pathak, at the Tara Printing Works, Benares.

FOREWORD

(to the first edition)

"The first World Conference on Education was held in San Francisco in July, 1923. Out of this Conference, the World Federation of Education Associations was born. The Constitution of the Federation provided the following article regarding Conferences. 'The World Conference shall meet in full session at such place and time as may be determined by the directors; but a meeting of sections, one in Europe, one in America, and one in Asia, may be held in the intervening years.'"¹

The first All-Asia Education Conference was held at Benares, from 26th to 30th December, 1930.

The conveners² desired the undersigned to write a paper on "The Unity of Asiatic Thought". The subject took shape in his mind as "The Essential Unity of All Religions". Asiatic thought is deeply tinged with Religion. Asia has given birth to all the great living religions. He read the paper to the Conference on December 30.

¹Foreword to the Report of The First All-Asia Education Conference.

²Through their Secretary, Shri Rāma Nārāyaṇa Mishra, then Head Master of the Central Hindī School, on the grounds and in the buildings, (donated by the Maharaja of Benares), of which, the sessions of the Conference and its Committees were held. The C. H. School was founded, in 1898, by Dr. Annie Besant and colleagues, as part of the Central Hindu College of Benares, which has now been developed, by Pt. Madan Mohan Malaviya and colleagues, into the Benares University.

Members of the audience, belonging to several religions and sects, very kindly expressed approval, and also desire for separate publication. The General Secretary¹ of the Indian Section of the Theosophical Society, generously printed and distributed free over four thousand copies of it, in a revised and enlarged form, with Theosophy in India,² the monthly organ of the I.S.T.S. It was reproduced serially in the Theosophist of Adyar, Madras, in the South, and the Vedic Magazine of the Arya Samaj, Gurukula, Kangri, near Hardwar, in the north. A brother wrote from Burma, asking consent to reprint. But the Theosophical Publishing House of Adyar had already arranged to publish it in book form.

It has been revised again, in the time left by many other distracting demands, and enlarged greatly by addition of many more parallel passages, in the hope of making it more serviceable, because of the encouragement received. Even so, a good many passages remain in a note-book, which the writer has not been able to incorporate, for lack of the needed freedom from distractions.³ There is also a rough draft of a glossary of over five hundred Arabic-Persian words, pertaining to religion, especially Islāmic Sūfī mysticism, with Samskr̥t and English equivalents, (a good many of which will be found in the book, scattered all over, but which are arranged in alphabetical order in the glossary). He wished very much to append it. But it requires careful revising and fairing, and therefore has had to be put off till more favorable times, lest the publication of the book be delayed indefinitely.⁴

¹Shri D. K. Telang.

²Since then re-named The Indian Theosophist.

³This has been done now, in the present edition.

⁴It has been put in now, with many additions.

If this book is so fortunate as to succeed in giving a taste to readers for discovering identities of thought in the great records of the deepest human experience in different languages, they will be able to see such identities at almost every step, in their further readings in such records, to their great joy, and to the perpetual expansion of their sympathetic appreciation of others.

Some learned scholars essay to prove that the religions of later birth have copied from the earlier. The question, whether it is so, may have an intellectual historical interest for the learned few. A far deeper, more vital, more human interest is possessed, and for all mankind, by the question, why they have done so, if they have copied from one another at all. Is it not because there is only One Eternal Truth for all to copy? New generations are born from old, new nations grow out of colonies from old, new lamps are lighted from old, but the Life, the Light, the Might, which is only embodied in and expressed by the ever-changing forms, is beyond them all, is common to them all, is originated by none of them, but originates them all. It is an honor and a duty to copy—if what is copied is Truth; it were a disgrace to be original—if what is originated be False. And there can be ‘originality’ in only the ‘fleeting’, therefore the False. There can be no originality in Truth; for only the Eternal can be the Truth; and it can only be, and ought to be, copied, in the large sense, diligently; there can be no ‘copy-right’ in Truth. But there is no need to ‘copy’, ‘in the small sense’. The River of Life is ever flowing; whoever feels thirsty can dip his bucket directly into it. The same Truth wells up independently in the heart of Seer after Seer, Seeker after Seeker.

While compiling the book and revising it again and again, the compiler has prayed constantly to the Great Masters of all the living Religions, Manu, Kṛṣṇa, Vyāsa, Zoroaster, Moses, Isaiah, Laotse, Confucius, Buddha, Jina, Christ, Muhammad, Nānak, and the Spiritual Hierarchy to which they all belong, for guidance of his very feeble fingers in this humble effort to serve his fellow men and women and children of all countries.

He should inform his dear readers that he has no knowledge of Arabic and but a smattering of Persian. But he has a profound conviction that Truth is one and the same, and that all the Great Lovers of Mankind cannot but have said the same true things. He has, therefore, from time to time, asked Maulavī friends to give him texts from the Qurān and the Hadīs (Sayings of the Prophet Muhammad), parallel to the Samskr̥t texts whose purport he placed before them. As the Qurān is a comparatively small-sized book, and many good Maulavīs know it by heart, they were able to supply the needed texts without much difficulty ; in some cases readily. The Persian and Ur̥dū texts are, most of them, quoted from famous and venerated Sūfī-s, like Maulānā Rūm, Hāfiz, Jāmī, Sā'dī, Farīduddīn Aṭṭār, and some others. Much helpful information about Sūfism, and many valuable Arabic and Persian texts, have been found in the excellent, very learned and very thoughtful, books of Khān Sāhib Khājā Khān (of Madras), via., Studies in Tasawwuf, The Secret of An-al-Haq, Philosophy of Islam, and The Wisdom of the Prophets. Because of the present writer's ignorance of Arabic and slight acquaintance with Persian, there are probably many mistakes in the Roman transcript and the English translations. Of course, he has based the English renderings of the Arabic texts on the explanations kindly supplied by the Maulavī friends, and on the published translations regarded as standard. Still he may have failed to be accurate. Readers learned in Arabic and Persian will kindly correct. The original texts also have been reproduced here, in Roman transcript; translations by themselves do not command complete confidence; and the work of correction by learned readers will be made easier.

The compiler shall be very happy if friends learned in their respective Scriptures will approve this kind of work and will take it up themselves. Indeed, what is very much needed is that representatives of all the great living religions, large-hearted, broad-minded, copiously-informed, philanthropically-motived, may come together in a small and active Committee, and prepare a series of graded text-books of Universal Religion, expounding the main points systematically, and illustrating them amply, for ready reference and obviation of doubts, with parallel passages, in the original, from the scriptures of the several religions. Such text-books would be authentic and authoritative, carry great weight with all communities, open their eyes to the utterly common essentials of all religions, and be introduced and studied with pleasure and profit, in private homes as well as public educational institutions, by students and readers of various ages and capacities—to the sure and certain promotion of peace on earth and good will among men.

It will make the compiler rejoice, and will repay him a thousandfold for such labor as he has been privileged to bestow upon this compilation, if Universities and other educational institutions make it their own; and issue their own editions of it at cost-price, or free, for the use of their students, after making improvements in it, by omissions or alterations, and, particularly, additions of many more parallel passages, (on the broad principles, as well as on the details of observances, rites and ceremonies, customs and practices), through the learned scholars on their staff who may be specially conversant with the subject, and who may form, in each University, a Committee of Representatives of the several Faiths, such as has been desiderated above—for where else should large hearts, broad minds, and richly stored intellects be found, if not in Universities? If a single such Committee could be formed, of members contributed by different Universities—that were best of all; its work would carry the greatest weight and be the most convincing.

The undersigned should record here his gratitude to the Theosophical Publishing House (Adyar, Madras), for having undertaken the publication of the work, on the condition of copyright limited to three years; and to the Vasanta Press, (of the Theosophical Society, Adyar, Madras) for bearing patiently with his incorrigible habit of making too many alterations and additions in the proofs—greatly aggravated in the present instance by the large use of diacritical types for the Roman transcript.

AUM ! ĀMIṆ ! AMEN !

Benares,
17-11-1932.

BHAGAVAN DAS.

A LETTER TO THE READER

as

PREFACE TO THE SECOND ~~EDITION~~.

Dear Reader,

This book is not by a scholar with any the least pretensions to accurate learning. It has been compiled by a mere seeker, a would-be servant of his kind, and, withal, one who, all his life, has been drawn from within, by inclination, towards study and thinking, and dragged from without, by circumstances, towards executive and miscellaneous work of various kinds. It is, therefore, full of manifold imperfections.

There are printing defects and mistakes, due to inefficient correction of proofs; old eyes lack keenness. Sentences are probably often dull and obscure, instead of bright and attractive; command over the language was insufficient, and ability was wanting to express difficult thought lucidly. The presentation of ideas is often discursive and inconsecutive; an old mind wanders. To many readers, many of the paragraphs, in larger type, which link up the texts quoted from the scriptures will probably give the feeling of a car running over a road strewn with boulders; unfamiliar Samskr̥t and Arabic-Persian words have been put in, too lavishly, perhaps, side by side with English equivalents. The compiler can only plead, in exculpation, that the very purpose of the book, (see pp. 67-73, 525-526, infra), is, by means of such juxtapositions of the technical words of the three most widespread living religions, Christianity, Islām, Védism (or 'Hinduism', including Buđdhism and Jainism, which use many the same Samskr̥t words), to throw into relief, the identities and similarities of their thoughts, aspirations, practices. To those who are acquainted with all the three languages, the collocations will, it is hoped, bring the pleasure of gatherings of friends from distant lands, nations, races, meeting and greeting each other with beaming smiles.

And there is much repetition. An old man, at seventy-one years of age, is weak of memory, and garrulous of speech. He forgets what he has just said ; so repeats, over and over again. But that is the way of the very old Scriptures also ! And this book is just a compilation of their utterances ; nothing else. Even the thread, on which those precious pearls are strung, is spun out of material supplied by the Scriptures themselves. There is nothing new in the book ; except, may be, error, here and there, in the interpretation of the Great Sayings. It may be said, then, that when the spiritual food is good and wholesome, it is, indeed, worth while to repeat it, day after day, even like healthy and pleasant material food. Not too often, of course ; nor in very large quantities ; for then it palls ; nor to be taken too quickly, without leisurely ‘mastication’, reflection, turning over and over in the mind, as food in the mouth ; for then it does not yield its full sweet taste, and is not duly assimilated.

There are, quite likely, errors in the translations of the many passages quoted from many Scriptures. But not many, it is hoped. The original texts, in roman, will enable the reader to rectify the errors ; himself, or with the help of friendly scholars. The versions are seldom literal. Such, word for word, done with the help of a lexicon, often ruin the real sense. The principle followed here is, that the translator should absorb the ‘spirit’ of the original ‘letter’, and reproduce that 'spirit' faithfully in the 'letter' of the new language.

The renderings have all been done in blank verse, with very rare exceptions in rhyme, here and there. It seemed that the 'emotional' constituent of religion, now the devoutness, then the solemnity, again the earnestness, or the injunctional impressiveness, and, throughout, the 'holiness', of scriptural utterances, most of which are themselves in verse or rhythmic prose—it seemed that this would be more truly reflected in verse than in prose. This too has necessitated some deviation from literality. It is trusted, nevertheless, that the intention of the original has always been correctly expressed. At times, the version has been expanded a little, in the light of the original context of the text actually quoted.

This whole attempt, to bring together parallel texts of the several scriptures, to prove identities and similarities, may, perhaps, fail to satisfy some critics, who would insist that minute differences should be at least as clearly brought out and emphasised as, if not more than, the resemblances. They would, no doubt, be quite right, from their own standpoint, and for the purposes of, accurate intellectual scholarship. The compiler's plea is that the 'intellectual' interest is not the only interest of the book; that the 'emotional' and the 'practical' interests are of at least as great concern in it; that the minute differences are already far too much stressed and acted on, to the great harm of mankind; that the resemblances are far too much ignored, to their great loss; that even intellectually, what varies with each, deserves to be regarded as of the surface, as non-Essential, and what runs through and is common to all, to be regarded as of the core and the Essence; and that, therefore, the essential points, on which all religions agree, should be given far more prominence than they have been hitherto, and be regarded as the very heart of all religions, as the very core of the Truth; on the 'democratic principle' of 'majority vote'; and for the very important and truly practical purpose of promoting mutual Good Understanding and Peace all over the earth.

There may be critics of another class, the persons of strong belief, of sincere and intense faith. They naturally feel, each, his own particular creed to be unique, 'the one and only,' the best. The wish to be thought 'original', 'the first', 'unprecedented', 'unrivalled', is a Nature-ordained and unavoidable preliminary; in all aspects of human life, instinctual, nutritive, acquisitive, conjugal, military, financial, even literary and scientific. It is so, in every course of action, where ambitious competition is involved. And where is it not? All embodied life seems to be incessant love-and-war, both concentrated in 'jealousy', of greater and lesser degree. This is patent in the worldly 'life of pursuit' of the things of the senses; it is also present, though ever diminishingly, in the 'life of renunciation,' until the very end. We may therefore say that the wish to be individually 'unique' is the first of the two main aspects, egoist-altruist, of the Duality which runs through all Life and Nature; as the wish to be Universally 'Unique', All-One, identified with All, is the second. The preliminary Egoist wish, therefore, invades the regions of Religion also, and very powerfully! "My creed is the best; and wholly original; different from all others; utterly new; nothing like it ever before; has borrowed nothing from any previous one; and is the final one too; there can never be another equally good, much less better"; even as "My race, color, caste, sex, is the best; I belong to a chosen people, a divinely privileged caste, a fundamentally superior race, a solar or lunar dynasty; my nation rules the waves; my nation is uber alles; my country has the tallest skyscrapers, the largest purse, the vastest hoard of gold, is superlative in everything; on my empire the sun never sets; I am sprung directly from the mouth of Brahmā; I am the son of the Sun"; and so on. It requires much sad experience, before such egoism comes under control; before it is recognised that, while a certain amount of competitive egoism is necessary for the growth of the young animal or the young nation, more than that amount is a hindrance, is even positively destructive; before the soul turns to genuine Altruism, patient tolerance, understanding sympathy, the Truth of All in All; before it realises that, though, no doubt, distinctions of superior and inferior, senior and junior, stronger and weaker, are facts in nature, yet that they are relative and must not be over-emphasised, that strength must not be boasted too much, nor weakness be too much despised.

No one can say that his physical body is made of matter created out of nothing, originally, for the first time, for him alone; has borrowed nothing from anyone; differs from all other matter. It is fairly obvious that each atom of every 'body' has passed through countless bodies in the past, and will pass through countless bodies in the future; though it is also true that each body is somewhat different in make-up from all others. So too, every thought, emotion, volition, of every 'mind', (or 'soul', whichever word is preferred), has passed, and will pass, through countless other minds; though also with some difference in the grouping and the manifesting; whereby each 'mind' becomes as 'distinctive' or 'individual' as each body. Let us recognise such differences, which constitute the 'personal' element or 'personality', by all means; but let us regard them as of less importance, as changing, passing, therefore non-essential; and let us recognise more fully, the 'idealities', the 'impersonal' or 'all-personal' element, and regard them as of greater importance, persisting through changes, permanent, and therefore essential. In other words, we should value, but not over-value, the 'individual', the 'personal'. We should value at least a little more, the 'universal', 'the common consciousness' belonging to all individuals; whereby 'each is for all, and all are for each'; whereby alone, social life, collective existence, the feel and fact of the unitive 'we', as distinguished from, and at the same time inclusive of, the feel and fact of separative and exclusive 'I's', is made possible.

Unhappily, most of us are at that stage of 'youth' (of mind) in evolution, in which we take greater delight in feeling 'peculiar', 'uniquely individual', 'original', than in feeling 'common', 'universal', 'eternal'. Yet the craving for the latter is there, always, in every heart. It is there, consciously, but not understandingly. No one wants to feel 'uniquely individual' in solitude, away from all fellow-creatures, 'away from the haunts of men', 'far from the madding crowd'; but wants to do so amidst other individuals; otherwise his 'peculiarity', which is wholly dependent on contra-distinction from others, would disappear. Thus does he tie himself to others unavoidably. The craving is present in every heart supra-consciously also; for the reason that every individual self is the Universal Self, and yearns in the depths of the heart, to recover consciously its forgotten and lost high status.

Of course, we must not futilely try to abolish wholly, this preliminary wish to feel separate and peculiar, in respect of religions, any more than in respect of individuals. It too has an obvious and necessary place in the evolutionary Scheme of God's Nature, the Universal Self's Nature. But we have to moderate it, reconcile it with, slowly transmute it into, its opposite; more and more. This is not impossible; rather, it too is equally ordained by that same Nature.

In the work of reconciling religions, it is very easy to avoid hurting sensitiveness on the subject of originality; by studiously eschewing all attempt to derive any one religion out of any other. It is not necessary at all to make such attempt, so far as the general public is concerned. Scholars who wish to study religions comparatively and historically, may of course do so for themselves, i.e., for their own refined recreation; and also for the enrichment of scientific knowledge regarding human psychical evolution, even as biologists trace physical evolution. But controversial propaganda should be avoided, in the interests of peace.

Also, if the task of tracing the ancestry of religions is pursued stringently and diligently, with open mind, it must obviously prove to be one without possibility of completion and termination. It will be like endeavouring to answer the question: 'Is the tree first, or the seed first?' "Veil after veil will lift, but there must be veil upon veil behind". Who can trace the atoms-and-mentations of any individual body-mind through ancestor before ancestor, up to a really first beginning? Metaphysic tells us that there can be no such absolute beginning, in the strict sense. Even if we could go right up to the beginning of our solar system, in primal nebula or invisible 'ether' or 'radiant matter', that would require to be derived from the corpus of a yet earlier system; and so on, ad infinitum. Why not then promote religious brotherhood and peace among the general public, by saying at once, what is utterly true also—that all atoms and all mentations and all religions, of all the countless generations of living beings, past, present, future, not only of this earth, but of all the orbs of heaven, (each of which has, presumably, its own types of living beings), and all visible and invisible planes of matter, are all equally derived from the Universal, Eternal, Body-Mind, Matter-Spirit, God-Nature, the One Omnipotent, Omnipresent, Omniscient Self, in whose Consciousness "all things live and move and have their being," which pervades them all?

It is better to understand, appraise, appreciate, than to ridicule, belittle, depreciate; better to see the good points more than the bad; better to see the agreements more than the differences; better to make peace than war.

Some students of comparative religion, of a tendency opposite to that which claims unique originality for the creed it favors, may say: "Since there is so much similarity, or even identity in some respects, between all, therefore, each later must have borrowed from an earlier; and, therefore, the 'democratic' test of validity, majority of votes, consensus of opinion, proffered in the book, in respect of 'religion', which test is not a test in 'science' at all, does not hold good. The consensus is not independent. We have only one vote, repeated over and over again, flowing down the river of time; and it may have been given to a falsehood in the beginning."

The reply to this would be: "Even in Science, the method of concomitant variations, used for testing the truth of hypotheses and conclusions, is only a way of proving 'unanimity' through uniformity, or, at least an overwhelming 'majority', of votes. Secondly, we have the right to ask, What is the cause of the initial falsehood, if any? And why has mankind given its vote to, and put faith in, such a falsehood; a falsehood of this particular kind ; and generation after generation ?" No sufficient answer has ever been offered to this query.

Yet again, some thinkers endeavour to explain away a religion or a philosophy by the peculiar psychological constitution of the individual who started the religion or formulated the philosophy, or by the 'environment', or 'historical accident', or 'economic', or 'geographic', or 'physiographic' circumstances. Such explanations may, no doubt, be justified in respect of variable 'peculiarities' ; which, however, ought to be regarded as 'non-essential', for the reasons mentioned before. They cannot explain the invariable fundamental 'generalities'. Also, the question arises again, and always : Why and how the peculiar individual constitutions, the historical accidents, the economic and other circumstances ?

Every law and fact requires further laws and facts to explain it ; these, yet others ; ad infinitum ; until we come to the Infinite Self, Total Consciousness (including the Sub-, Supra-, and Un-Conscious ; waking, dreaming, slumbering), Universal Mind, Anima Mundi, and to Its Will-and-Imagination ; which works by Eeonic Plan of Integration and Disintegration of Forms ; according to Its own Meta-physical (including physical) Laws of Nature. In this All-pervading All-including Mind and Its infinite Ideation, all Religion, Philosophy, Science, Law, Art, meet and merge ; and from It they all emerge ; in endless repetition. When we come to That, all questions are answered ; all doubts are set at rest ; the Final Synthesis is achieved ; the Final Peace of Mind is gained.

Without achieving such synthesis, the human world cannot attain Happiness, here or hereafter. The 'religious' and other wars of the past (see pp. 368, 559, infra), the communal riots and pogroms of the present, between Hindus and Muslims, between different castes of Hindūs, between Shīā Muslims and Sunnī Muslims, in India, (see pp. 565-566, infra), Jews and Arabs in Palestine, Jews and Germans in Germany, the vast politico-economic 'riots', wars, of the recent past, the war by Japan upon China now going on for two years and more, since July, 1937, (indeed, since 1931), the European war which started on 1st September, 1939, as the inevitable consequence of the tremendous armings of all the 'Great Powers' (see pp. 569-585, infra)—all these are due, ultimately to the lack of such Synthesis (see pp. 32-33, 478-489, 599-601, infra).

After such maniacal accumulation of murderous explosives, a war of titans is inevitable. The bursting energies forcibly imprisoned in those explosives must find release. They cannot be kept locked-up thus, for ever. The worst, most powerful, most destructive, most elementary, primary, terrible explosives are the psychical explosives, the crassly egoistic evil human passions, lust, hate, greed, pride, fear, jealousy. It is these which manufacture all the secondary material explosives. After the monstrous amassing of both has exhausted itself, now that the war has begun in Europe; after it has left the human world in ruins, in Europe, and in many other countries, (and few, scarcely excepting Russia and the two Americas, are likely to escape being slowly dragged into the maelstrom)¹; after that, the need for reconstruction will arise, and be felt acutely by the broken nations.

¹As this is being written, the papers (18th September, 1939) announce that the Russian army has also marched into Poland, "to safeguard Russian interests in eastern Europe," and "to take under their protection, the lives and property of the population in western Ukraine and western White Russia."

It is possible yet that wiser counsels may prevail, the war which has begun, may not drag in other nations, may not be fought out to the bitter end ; but cease early. May the Mystery which has fashioned and maintains the Universe ordain it so ! Thus we must pray, though from Its standpoint of Infinity, the birth and death of whole human races and civilisations can be of no greater import than the growth and destruction of ant-hills. But even if the war ceases early, new adjustments of human relations, on a world-wide scale, will be necessary. Otherwise, if conditions and causes, armaments and social structures, are left as they have been so far, the corresponding effects must follow again ; in the shape of unappeasable discords, jealousies, hatreds ; out of which, worse and worse wars must recur, inevitably, again and again ; until the armaments have all perished, in one way or another, and the war-madness has been all purged and bled-out of the body-politic of the Human Race.

For such re-adjustment, after complete dispersal and exhaustion, either by mutual sincere and far-sighted agreement, or by mutual slaughter, of this vast mass of psychical and physical explosives ; a Great Synthesis, a Comprehensive Integration, of all aspects, Spiritual and Material, Individual and Collective, of the Life of the Human Race, will be indispensable.

If the Russian experiment be thought successful, in all respects, it will naturally be imitated everywhere. If it fail, as is likely, (see pp. 619-620, infra), in important respects, because of the lack of Spiritual, 'anti-toxic', trust-breeding, sincerity-and-sympathy-producing, integrative and constructive nourishment ; then the alternative will be, (1) a Universal Religion, which will be the Head-and-Heart of all religions, will unite them all ; will provide and promote that Spiritual nourishment, in the shape of the ever-growing accumulation, and ever wider spread, of those most powerful cohesives, anti-explosives, anti-disruptives, the domestic and social affections and strong trusts; and, will also provide, as part of that Universal Religion, (2) a rational Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation, which would be in accord with all sciences, and especially with the Science of Human Nature, i. e., Psychology.

Such Universal Religion has been provided for us, by the Scriptures of the Nations; and such a Scheme of Socio-Individual Organisation, by the Védic Scriptures in particular, as fundamental part of Religion; because Religion, to justify itself, must be of help and service everywhere, must secure, for the human being, the maximum possible, of Happiness Here as well as Hereafter; (see pp. 478-516, 618-620 infra.)

Everywhere, today, the 'rulers' of the nations which are regarded as the 'Great Powers', (rulers in the shape of presidents, dictators, kings, premiers, cabinets, influential capitalist and militarist cliques and coteries), are striving to capture yet more 'power' of all kinds than they have already got; and the 'leaders' of weaker or subjugated peoples, which are struggling to win back political freedom, are striving to recover the 'power' which their predecessors have lost. But neither those 'rulers', nor these 'leaders', anywhere, (except, perhaps Russia, in a lopsided, 'half-truth', fashion, see pp. 582-583, 620, infra), are willing to think about how 'power' can and should be used, so as to Organise for Peace, systematically, each nation, each people, and thereby the whole Human Race. They are all intensely and immensely busy with Organising for War or for political struggle. 'Let us snatch power, and more power, and yet more power, first; we shall do afterwards, at our sweet will, all the thinking that it may suit us to think.' The result of this attitude is—wars, in the one case; internal dissensions, jealousies, mutual thwartings, and failures, in the other.

The 'Great Powers' possess 'Self-government'; at least each one says it does. The 'leaders', of the peoples who are struggling for freedom from subjection and serfdom, proclaim that they want 'Self-government.' But, apparently, nowhere is any real effort being made by anyone to think out and expound what exactly Self-government means, and how Self-government can be made Good-government also, at the same time; to consider and explain whether Self-government means, and should mean, 'government of the people, for the people, (a) by all the people, (which is obviously impossible), or (b) by a few of the worst of the people (who may manage, as happens not rarely, to get themselves elected by the now well-known devices of 'electioneering, racketeering, propagandising, intimidating, deceiving, gerrymandering, disciplining, gagging, grafting, hoodling, bribing, etc.,') or (c) by a few of mixed and doubtful quality, (which is the most frequent fact), or (d) by a few of the best and wisest of the people, (which is very, very, rarely the case in known history). In other words, no one who counts in the world's affairs, today, is (a) actively realising and proclaiming to the world, the fact that Self-government and Good-government can coincide only when the governing 'Self' is, not the lower and baser 'Self' of the People, but their Higher, nobler, genuinely philanthropic 'Self.' Nor is any such person (b) explaining how such government by the Higher Self, 'the kingdom of heaven on earth', may be achieved, i. e., how it may be managed that only the best and the wisest are elected. It is plainer and more self-evident than any axioms of geometry, that only good and wise laws can promote the happiness of mankind; that good and wise laws can be made and administered by only good and wise men and women, who constitute the Higher Self of the people; and that only such persons should be entrusted with powers of legislation and administration. Yet these so self-evident truths are so very difficult for mankind to learn, that it has not learnt them yet, after many thousands, probably hundreds of thousands, of years of the most bitter experience of the consequences of not acting in accord with them.

The result is that all these warring 'rulers', as much as the struggling 'leaders', actuated, not by far-sighted humanism, but by narrow and very short-sighted nationalism, or even by mean and sordid personal ambitions and motives, are wandering in the dark, 'blind leaders of the blind', causing only very grievous harm and hurt to those whom they profess to wish to help.

They cannot say that the Right Way is hidden from them. They are themselves turning their eyes away from it. The Sun of Scriptural Wisdom is flaming, and radiating Light upon it from the heavens, all the time. The rulers and leaders have only to remove from their own eyes, the thick bandages of egoism and nationalism, and put on the glasses of Humanism. They would all, then, see at once, clearly laid out for them, the Path to Peace and Prosperity for all. The Scriptures are telling us, all the time, how society can and should be Organised for Peace; how the best and wisest of the people can be recognised; how they and they alone should be elected to the places of legislative power.

Problems of 'Organising for War', and for political struggle, may seem more urgent; but, surely, in any case, they are not more important than the problem of 'Organising for Peace'. The former are passing; they are concerned with temporary means and passing aims. The latter is the Permanent Problem, concerned with the Permanent End. To the far-sighted view, it is much the more urgent also, as well as more important. For, if it is solved satisfactorily, the former will abate and disappear automatically.

Let us all, then, engage in the work of promoting: firstly, by helping to spread right knowledge on the subject; and, secondly, in every other way possible; the Organisation of the Human Race for Peace and thence Prosperity.

Dear Reader, I pray you, unless you have found, and made sure of, a better way, to read about an Ancient Way, leisurely, in this book. Endeavour is made here, albeit very imperfectly, to expound, no new way, but the Way of the Ancients, a Way which is time-tested also to some extent. If you feel satisfied that that Way is worth experimenting with, then I pray you to do all you can to spread, as widely as may be possible for you, this Essential Message of all the Scriptures, as preparation for the great Readjustment and Synthesis.

Benares,
19-9-1939.

Your respectful and sincere
Well-wisher,
BHAGAVĀN DĀS.

NOTE

ON THE TEXTS GATHERED IN THIS BOOK, AND CERTAIN OTHER MATTERS.

Eleven religions are usually regarded as living and current at present. These, proceeding from east to west, are: (2) Shintoism born in Japan; (2) Taoism (or Laotsism), and (3) Confucianism, in China; (4) Védism (or Vaidika Dharma, or Sanātana Dharma, or Arya Dharma, or Mānava Dharma, now commonly called 'Hinduism'), (5) Buddhism, (6) Jainism, and (7) Sikhism, in India; (8) Zoroastrianism (or Pārsism), in Irān (or Persia); (9) Judaism (or Hebraism, or Israelitism, or the Jewish religion), and (10) Christianity, in Palestine; (11) Islām (or Mohammedanism), in Arabia. Parallel passages have been gathered in this work from the universally recognised Scriptures, and also from some other generally and highly honored writings, of these eleven.

The well-known scriptures of Védism are the four Vēda-s with their Upanishat-s, Manu-smṛti, Gītā, Mahā-bhārata, Rāmāyaṇa, Bhāgavata, and several of the Purāṇa-s. Texts have been taken from these, principally. They are regarded as sacred and authoritative in the order mentioned. But the first four are practically of equal authority, and Manu, because of its compact conciseness, its comprehensive completeness, its high and austere tone, and its terse and clear language, is the most frequently referred to, in discussions over matters of religious practice. Védism is not connected with any one name as founder's; but the Védic socio-religious polity of India has been based, from time immemorial, on 'The Institutes, or Laws, of Manu'. Manu is regarded as the Primal Patriarch and Law-giver of the Indian Aryan; and as having embodied, in his Laws, all that substance and quintessence of the Vēda-s, which bears upon the orderly planning and conducting of individual and collective human life. The latest version of these Laws, in some 2700 couplets, is current under the name of Manu-Smṛti. It is said by critical Orientalist scholars, to be between 2000 and 2500 years old now. But all are agreed that it is based on, and includes large portions of, much earlier texts, Mānava-Dharma-Sūtra, Vṛddha-Manu, and others. These are not now extant, and are known only through quotations and references in available later works. The four Vēda-s, the Scriptures proper of Vēdism, on which Manu and all subsequent expounders base themselves, are said, by unanimous Indian tradition, to have been collected, edited, and given their present shape, by Kṛṣṇa Dvaipāyana Vyāsa, famous as Vēda-Vyāsa, some 5000 years ago, i. e., about 3100 B. C.; just before the beginning of the Kali-Yuga era. But the Orientalists say that the oldest hymns belong to about 1500 B.C. New researches and fresh findings are, however, steadily pushing the period further and further back. Vēda-Vyāsa is also the author of the Mahā-bhārata, in which Manu is often referred to and quoted from. Where excerpts are taken from works other than the seven above-mentioned, the names of these are given in full,

The scriptures of Islām, from which passages have been taken, are, principally, the Qurān and the Hadīs, in Arabic, and, in the next place, the writings of the great Sūfis, mostly in Persian. These have been already referred to in the Foreword to the first edition. The founder of Islām, the Prophet Muhammad, was born in 570 A.C., and died in 632 A.C.

Texts of Shintoism, Taoism, and Confucianism, the compiler had no access to, in the original. But there is one exception. A passage from the Analects of Confucius, transcribed in roman, was very kindly supplied by Prof. Tan Yun Shan, (see foot-note to p. 299, infra). All the others have been taken from various published English translations, of that primary scripture of Taoism, the Tao Teh King, ascribed to Lao-tse; and of the Shu King, Shi King, Analects, and other works of Confucius; many from that marvel of learned industry, Treasure-House of Living Religions, by Robert Ernest Hume, (pub: 1933, by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York and London). Like Védism, Shinto is not connected with the name of any one person as founder. Lao-tse and Kung-fu-tse, i. e., Confucius, (as also Pythagoras, of Magna Graecia), were older and younger contemporaries of the Buḍḍha. The 6th century B. C. is remarkable for a great influx of religious thought and aspiration, in many countries, far apart from each other, but, as historical and archeological research is establishing more and more clearly year by year, not without communication with each other.

Buddhist texts have been drawn, in the original Pālī, (a 'dialect' or popular form of Samskr̥ṭ), current among the people in the time of Buḍḍha, mostly from two small books, the Khuḍḍaka Pāṭha and the Dhamma-paḍa. They are collections, in Buḍḍha's own words, of his most important teachings. The Dhamma-paḍa is to Buḍḍhists what the Gṛ̥ṭā is to Védists (Hindū-s). A few texts in Samskr̥ṭ have been derived from other works, authoritative in the next degree, like those of Nāgārjuna and Asanga. The former is specially famous for his Dialogues with the Greek King Menander of the 2nd century B. C. These Dialogues are known as Milinda Panho. Of such works, the full names are given. The years of Buddha's birth and death are given variously, as 624 and 544 B. C. or 568 and 488 B. C.

Jaina texts have been derived, in the original Samskr̥t or Prākṛt, (a variant of, and contemporaneous with, Pālī), from works regarded as authoritative, whose names have been given in full, after the texts quoted. No teachings of the founder, viz., Mahāvīra Jina, also known as Vardhamāna Svāmī, (b. 599 B. C., d. 527 B. C.; or, b. 549 B. C., d. 477 B. C.), definitely known to be in his own words, are extant. The earliest collections are by Bhaḍra-bāhu, of the 4th century B. C.¹

¹A valuable text, the Jaina form of the Golden Rule, has come to hand, as this 'Note on Texts' is being written, after the Addenda have been printed off. The section on the subject, in the body of this book, (pp. 297-303), lacks in a Jaina text. Therefore, to supply that lack, the text is quoted here even though the place is not very appropriate. It belongs to one of the earliest available sacred books of the religions.

"Vayam puṇa évam āikkhāmo, évam bhāsāmo, évam parivēmo, évam pannavēmo—savvē pānā, savvē bhūyā, savvē jivā, savvē saṭṭā, na hantavvā, na pari-ghēṭṭavvā, na pari-yāveyavvā, na uddāveyavvā; āriya-vayaṇam éyam": (Āchāra-anga-sūtra, 'Samatṭa', chaṭurtha Adhyayana, Uddēśhaka dvitīya). "Tumam si nāma ṭam ch-éva jam hanṭavvam ti mannasi. Tumam si nāma ṭam ch-éva jam ajjāveyavvam ti mannasi. Tumam si nāma ṭam ch-éva jam pari-yāveyavvam ti mannasi. Tumam si nāma ṭam ch-éva jam pari-ghēṭṭavvam ti mannasi. Évam tumam si nāma ṭam ch-éva jam uddāveyavvam ti mannasi". (Ibid., 'Loga-Sāra', panchama Adhyayana, Uddēśhaka panchama).

The Samskr̥t form of the above Prākṛt is: "Vayam punah évam āchakshmahé, évam bhāshāmahé, évam pra-

Texts of Sikhism, whose tenets are practically the same as those of the Gītā, have been taken mostly rūpayāmah, évam prajñāpayāmah—Sarvé prānāh, sarvé bhūtāh, sarvé Jivāh, sarvé sattvāh, na hanṭavyāh, na ājñāpayiṭavyāh, na pari-grahīṭavyāh, na pari-tāpayiṭavyāh, na upa-droṭavyāh ; Ārya-vachanam ūtaṭ. 'Tvam asi nāma ṭaḍ éva yaḍ hanṭavyam ..yaḍ ājñāpayiṭavyam...yaṭ pari-tāpayiṭavyam...yaṭ pari-grahīṭavyam...yaḍ upa-droṭavyam iṭi manyasé.

(Thus we enjoin on you, thus do we say,
Thus we believe, thus we proclaim to all :
No living things should be slain anywhere,
Nor ordered forcibly this way or that,
Nor put in bonds, nor tortured any way,
Or treated violently otherwise ;
Because you are that same which ye would slay,
Or order here and there against his will,
Or put in prison, or subject to pain,
Or treat with violence ; ye are that same ;
The Self-same Life doth circulate in all.)

Of course this is the extreme ideal, for renunciant ascetics. It has had to be modified, in practice, for 'householders', in Jainism as in all other religions, on the incontrovertible principle, that 'Duty varies with circumstance'. An outstanding example of this, in Jaina history, is the case of King Kumāra-pāla of Gujerāt (12th century B. C.) who was a Jaina, and under the guidance of his preceptor Hēma-chandra Āchārya, almost the most famous 'doctor' of the Jaina Law, punished many offences with death strictly, and battled with and slew invaders. "Do your duty ; do it as humanely as you can"—was his interpretation of a-himsā, non-violence. Jainism expressly upholds the four (not hereditary but) vocational classes and their functions (including the defender-soldier's and the punishing judge's) ; just as does Buddhism ; only the innocent must not be hurt, much less slain ; and animal-sacrifice and animal-food are forbidden by both.

from its chief scripture, the Guru Grantha Sahab, in which are collected the hymns and teachings of the ten Sikh Gurus. Guru Nānak, the founder and first Guru, was born in 1469, fourteen years before Martin Luther; Guru Govind Singh passed away in 1708. The hymns and teachings are in a language which may be described as the Panjābī form of Hindī or Hindustānī.

Prof. R. E. Hume's remarkable book has been referred to. He tells us, in his Preface, that he has gathered in it, "3074 passages...selected...with the utmost care...(from) various alternative translations,... the total number of pages actually handled in the preparation of the volume amounting to 106,423." He has classified them into 4 Parts, sub-divided into 51 sections, without any comment of his own. Elaborate Reference Notes, Bibliography, Table of Citations, and Topical Index have been appended, which greatly facilitate use of the volume.

The subjects treated are: Part I, FAITH IN THE PERFECT GOD—(1) The One Supreme God, (2) The Divine Power and Wisdom, (3) The Divine Goodness and Wonder, (4) The Divine Omnipresence and Inner Presence, (5) Invocations and Calls to Worship, (6) Worship and Prayer, (7) Adoration and Praise, (8) Trust and Guidance, (9) Faith and Faithfulness, (10) Sin and Evil, (11) Confusion and Repentance, (12) Hope, (13) Salvation, (14) Rewards and Punishments, (15) Future Life and Immortality. Pt. II, MAN AND HIS PERFECTING—(16) What is Man?, (17) The Wise and the Foolish, (18) The Perfect Man, (19) Humility, (20) Unselfishness, (21) Self-examination and Self-Control, (22) Patience and Steadfastness, (23) Fearlessness and Courage, (24) Purity, (25) Simplicity, (26) Thought and Meditation, (27) Thankfulness, (28) Sincerity and Earnestness, (29) Truth and Truthfulness, (30) Temperance, (31) Happiness and Joy, (32) Righteousness and Virtue, (33) Duty, (34) Self-dedication and Divine Benediction. Pt. III, MAN AND HIS SOCIAL RELATIONS—(35) Anger and Hatred, (36) Work and Deeds, (37) Wealth and Prosperity, (38) Giving and Helping, (39) Justice and Judgment, (40) Obedience, (41) The Golden Rule, (42) Good for Evil, (43) Forgiveness, (44) Love, (45) Serving Others, (46) Friendship and Brotherhood, (47) Associates. (48) Home and Family Relations, (49) Peace and War, (50) Summary Duties. Pt. IV, A PROGRAM OF JOINT WORSHIP, arranged as a Responsive Reading.

Another very noteworthy book is Dr. Frank L. Riley's The Bible of Bibles, (pub: 1929, by J. F. Rowny Press, Los Angeles). The author says in his Foreword: "It is the concentrated essence of the Bibles of the world, extracted during nineteen years of study from sixty Sacred Books, dating back, according to some authorities, 13000 years". Dr. Riley has included, in his researches, Taoism, Védism, Judaism, Zoroastrianism, Buddhism, Christianity, and Islām, of the living, and the Babylonian-Chaldean, Egyptian, and the Mithraist religions, of the past. He does not seem to have dealt with Shintoism, Confucianism, Jainism, and Sikhism. He does not tell us the total number of passages he has extracted. They cover 343 pages of fine large print. A rough calculation gives 1400. These are divided into 12 chapters, which cover 387 topics, listed in a table of contents, (which is named Index), at the beginning. The chapters are: (1) God, (2) The Beneficence of God, (3) Creation, (4) The Origin and Constitution of Man, (5) The Problem of Evil, (6) The World, Matter, the Unreal, (7) The Works of the Flesh, (8) The Kingdom of Heaven, (9) The Fruits of the Spirit, (10) The Straight and Narrow Way, (11) Prayer and Healing, (12) Peace-Brotherhood-Heaven on Earth. An Introduction gives brief accounts of the sixty Bibles of the several religions studied. "A digest, or terse account, of the excerpts from the Sacred Books which appear in" each chapter, averaging about a page and a half in length, is prefixed to it.

The present writer could not make such use of Dr. Riley's book as it deserved; he came across it rather late; the absence of an alphabetical Index, and of page-references in the table of contents, hampered utilisation; preparation of copy, for the new edition of the present work, from the notes previously gathered, on the margins and pasted-in slips of a copy of the first edition,¹ was begun in January, 1939, after resigning membership of the Central Legislative Assembly of India; the first batch of copy was sent to press in March, 1939; thereafter, the compiler had not leisure and vitality to spare, nor peace of mind enough, for hunting up the originals of a score or more of translated passages, quoted in Dr. Riley's book, which appeared very relevant; for throughout that whole month, and the first week of April, a very serious communal riot, a small 'civil war', raged in Benares; between bands of Hindus and Muslims, misguided and incited by evil-minded self-seeking politico-religious misleaders, despite all the endeavours of a joint Hindu-Muslim Peace Committee, of which the present writer had been elected Chairman, to his great unhappiness and helpless worry; the riots resulted in some 50 to 60 deaths, many more cases of serious and light hurt, very many cases of arson, loot, wanton destruction of property; the Spirit of Hatred, which has been stalking more and more proudly all over the human world, since the beginning of the 20th century, made its horrible presence felt acutely thus, in Benares; and showed that the 'Forces of Good, of Light, of Truth', have to struggle longer and harder against the opposite forces, of the 'Enemy of Mankind', the 'Forces of Evil, of Darkness, of Falsehood', before the latter will be checked effectively. It is very necessary, for many workers, in all countries, to take up the task of establishing religious peace and good-will; for, from it, and not without it, will come economic and political peace and good-will.

¹The compiler should record here his gratitude to a young friend, Pandit Bhavānī Shankar, B. Sc., LL. B., (of Bareilly, U. P.) who faired out these notes neatly, and thereby very considerably lightened his labor over the preparation of copy.

The works of Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume possess not only outstanding merit in respect of scholarly industry, but are very praiseworthy for the philanthropic spirit of all-conciliating all-embracing Human Brotherhood and Solidarity which breathes all through them. Because of lack of knowledge of any European language other than English, and of very limited reading in even that, this writer has not come across any other works using a similar method; except those which will be mentioned presently. It is to be hoped there are others; for such, and many such, in every language, are greatly needed to promote Human Brotherhood, true Spiritual Liberty and Fraternity, and Material Equitability. No doubt, a number of books have been written and published, whose purpose also is liberal-minded reconciliation of creeds. A fine recent work of the kind is World-Fellowship, edited by C. F. Weller (pub: 1935, by Liveright Publishing Corporation, New York).

But its nature and method are very different. And even such works are too few.

Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume do not give any texts in original; only translations; though these are from the works of recognised scholars. The present work, in the first edition, had only about 450 parallel passages from the scriptures of the several religions; and practically none from the three indigenous religions of China and Japan, nor from the Zoroastrian Zend-Avestā. The present edition brings together 1150 passages, in round figures, and gives the originals, in roman, as well as translations, with the exceptions mentioned before.

Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume do not make it their purpose to trace out and supply any scientific and organic Scheme of Universal Religion, Religion in general, running through all religions. All the topics dealt with by them, are dealt with here too; also many others; but they are arranged in a different way; not as a collection of comparatively un-jointed parts, but as forming a system, a single organism, with all its members livingly articulated together, in accordance with the Science of Psychology. Whether the arrangement is successful or not, the reader will decide for himself. The great majority of the topics dealt with by Dr. Riley and Prof. Hume, would be assigned to the chapter on 'The Way of Devotion, or the Emotional (or Ethical) Constituent of Religion', in this work; and they do not touch many of the topics treated here in the chapters on 'The Way of Knowledge, or the Intellectual Constituent of Religion', and 'The Way of Works or the Volitional (or Actional) Constituent of Religion'; (see pp. 85-89, infra, on 'The Three Aspects of Religion').

The present work endeavours to provide, for the parallel passages, a setting of elucidative and connective comment, in the way of interpretation and illustration, so as to interlink them and make of them, all together, a continuous organic entity; a Universal Religion with a definite frame-work; not artificially eclectic, but a natural living growth; which may be readily discerned as present within the outer garments of every religion; even as the main features, the general outlines, of the human form, can be discerned in every human individual. This Scheme is based on the psychological triad of knowing, desiring, acting, (see pp. 80-90, infra).

THE EVOLUTION OF THE PRESENT WORK.

This tripartite Scheme of Religion, based on Philosophy or Metaphysic, and Psychology, is fundamental part of Indian tradition from time immemorial; (see pp. 270, 420-422, infra). It was first utilised in the new way, required by the times, some forty years ago, for the preparation of a series of Text-Books of Hinduism, for use in the Central Hindu College and School of Benares, (see footnote on p. v., supra).

The first idea was to start a Theosophical College, in accord with the three objects of the Theosophical Society (see pp. 571-572, infra), in which the students would be taught the principles of Universal Religion, and be brought up in the atmosphere of a nucleus of Universal Brotherhood. But active workers in sufficient numbers were not forthcoming from the folds of other denominations. So it was decided to begin with a 'Hindū' College, which would endeavour to liberalise and rationalise at least 'Hinduism', and re-convert it into the ancient Upanishadic ('philosophical') and Mānava ('human') Védism ('scientific religion'); and would restore to it the main characteristics of 'Universal Religion'; whereby rapprochement with the other religions inhabiting the country would be facilitated.

Very shortly after the founding of the College, the need for systematic compendious Text-Books of Hinduism was felt, inevitably, for teaching purposes. Mrs. (later Dr.) Annie Besant, "that high-souled woman"¹, "the mother of Mother India,"² "whose radiant spirit rekindled India's faith in her own ideals and destiny,"³ "the memory of the magnificent services rendered by whom to India will live as long as India lives",⁴ was President of the Board of Trustees and the Managing Committee of the Institution; and the present writer had the high privilege and great good fortune of working with her as honorary Secretary of the two bodies. "If Annie Besant had not been, Mahātmā Gāṇḍhī could not be"⁵; "if any three or four of the other great people in India were named, the sum of their achievements, the aggregate of the benefit that they had rendered to this country, would not exceed what stood unquestionably to her credit."⁶ The Board of Trustees appointed a Committee, with us two, as Chairman and Secretary, to prepare the Text-Books. They gave us general directions to the effect that the religious and ethical training, given to the students, should be of ¹This is how Prof. William James, the renowned philosopher of U.S.A., speaks of her in his famous book, Varieties of Religious Experience.

²³⁴⁵⁶These words were respectively said, in paying tribute to her, after her passing away, in September, 1933, by Dr. Alam (a Muslim), by the famous orator and poetess Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, by Mahātmā Gāṇḍhī, again by Mrs. S. Naidu, and by the Rt. Hon'ble Shri V. S. Shrinivāsa Shāstrī, P. C. (Hindūs).

“a wide, liberal, and unsectarian character,...inclusive enough to unite the most divergent forms of Hindū thought ;...must be directed to the building up of a character, pious, dutiful, strong, upright, righteous, gentle, and well-balanced—a character which will be that of a good man and a good citizen ; such as can be formed only by the fundamental principles of religion, governing the general view of life and of life's obligations. That which unites Hindū s in a common faith, must be clearly and simply taught ; all that divides them must be ignored. Lastly, care must be taken to cultivate a wide spirit of tolerance, which not only respects the differences of thought and practice among Hindū-s, but which also respects the differences of religion among non-Hindū-s, regarding all faiths with tolerance, as roads whereby men reach the Supreme.”

The Secretary placed before the Chairman, a Syllabus based on the ancient tradition as to the three parts or Constituents of Religion. She agreed. That Syllabus, with some slight later modifications, appears as the Table of Contents of the Text-Book.

The Contents, as published, are : INTRODUCTION. Pt. I, BASIC HINDU RELIGIOUS IDEAS : (ch. I) The One Existence, (2) The Many, (3) Rebirth, (4) Karma, (5) Sacrifice, (6) The Visible and Invisible Worlds. Pt. II, GENERAL HINDU RELIGIOUS RITES AND CUSTOMS, (ch. 1) The Samskāras (Sacraments), (2) Shrāddha (Obolations to the Departed), (3) Shaucham (Hygiene and Purification), (4) The Five Daily Sacrifices (Acts of Service), (5) Worship, (6) The Four Stages of Life, (Planning of the Individual Life, (7) The Caste-system (Social Organisation). Pt. III, ETHICAL TEACHINGS, (ch. 1) Ethical Science, What is it ?, (2) The Foundation of Ethics, as given by Religion, (3) Right and Wrong, (4) The Standard of Ethics, (5) Virtues and their Foundation, (6) Bliss and Emotions, (7) 'Self-Regarding' Virtues, (8) Virtues and Vices in Human Relations; those in relation to Superiors, (9) Virtues and Vices in relation to Equals, (10) Virtues and Vices in relation to Inferiors, (11) The Reaction of Virtues and Vices on each other.

With this Syllabus we set to work on "An Advanced Text-Book of Hindu Religion and Ethics", in Shrinagar (Kashmir), in the summer of 1901. The Secretary and some other members supplied Dr. Annie Besant with Samskr̥t texts; the present writer's book, The Science of the Emotions, the first edition of which was published in 1900, supplied the bulk of the material for the third part of the work. She herself gathered some texts from the English translations in the Sacred Books of the East Series; and, great worker that she was, drafted, in English, within two months, the whole of the Text-book, amounting, as subsequently printed with some additions and alterations, to over 400 pp., Cr. 8vo.

After approval by the Committee, a hundred copies of the draft were printed and sent to leaders of the Hindū community, Pandits famous for Samskr̥t learning, and heads of the principal sects, in all parts of the country; and suggestions for additions and alterations were requested. Those that were received were carefully considered by the Committee and duly incorporated. Then the Advanced Text-Book was printed off, and introduced in the College classes, in 1904. Shortly after, an Elementary Text-Book was prepared by the Chairman and the Secretary, for use in the upper School classes. This was a simplified abridgment of the Advanced; but a large number of illustrative stories from the Mahā-bhārata and the Purāṇas were added in the 3rd Part. Then a very small Catechism was drawn up by the Chairman for use in the small children's classes. All these were in use in the C. H. College and School till 1914, after which the Institution was converted into the Benares University and passed into the hands of a new and elaborately constituted management, consisting of Court, Council, Senate, Syndicate, Faculties, etc. The graded series of Text-books was welcomed all over India, after publication; translations of the Catechism were published in eleven provincial tongues; and of the Elementary also in two or three.

In 1910-1911, Dr. Annie Besant, as President of the Theosophical Society, published two small volumes, entitled The Universal Text-Book of Religion and Morals, on the lines of Part I and Part III of the Text-Books of Hindu Religion and Ethics. She says, in the Foreword, that she is doing so "at the wish of the Theosophical Convention of December, 1909;...many friends, all the world over, have helped in the collection of illustrative verses;...the book is sent out with the earnest hope that it may contribute to the recognition of the Brotherhood of Religions, and may be useful as offering the material out of which may be drawn lessons for religious and moral instruction in schools where the scholars are of different faiths." The illustrative texts are in translations, not in the original words.

The contents of Vol. I are: Introduction. (ch. 1) The Unity of God; (2) The Manifestation of God in a Universe; (3) The Great Orders of Living Beings; (4) The Incarnation of Spirit; (5) The Two Basic Laws; (6) The Three Worlds of Human Evolution;

(7) The Brotherhood of Man. Of vol. II : (1) The Object and Basis of Morality; (2) The Relation between Morality, Emotion, Virtues and Vices. (3) Classification of Virtues and Vices, (4) Virtues and Vices in Relation to Superiors, (5) Virtues and Vices in Relation to Equals; (6) Virtues and Vices in Relation to Inferiors; (7) Interaction between Virtues and Vices.

These two small books are admirably suited for the purpose intended. It is much to be regretted that they have not been circulated and used much more extensively, not been reprinted over and over again, and not been translated into all the more widely-spoken languages.

After the introduction of the Text-Books of Hinduism in the C. H. College, for six or seven years, till 1914, the Secretary of the Institution, the present writer, was also honorary Lecturer in Hindū Religion, in the College Department. With the experience gathered as such, he published a series of articles, on The Science of Religion, or the Principles of Sanātana Vaidika Dharma, in the C.H.C. Magazine, during 1914-1915. These were published as a small book with that title, in 1917. It is a sort of supplement to the Text-Books, going over the same ground, in a fresh manner, with many other Samskr̥t texts in original; more exposition of the underlying psychological principles; and greater endeavour to interlink all parts; as may be seen from the titles of the 4 chapters of the work.

These are : (1) The Nature and Constituents of Sanātana Vaidika Dharma, ('The Permanent Scientific Religion'); (2) The Jñāna-kānda, the Science and Philosophy, or the Rationalism, of Religion, (3) The Bhakti-Kānda, the Ethics and Morals, or the Mysticism, of Religion,

(4) * The Karma-Kānda, the Sociology (including Eugenics, Economics, and Politics), or the Practicalism, of Religion.

The sections of the chapters need not be repeated here. It will be noted that Part II of the Text-Book of Hindu Religions and Ethics, becomes ch. IV, and Part III becomes ch. II of the above.

In October, 1923, the Annual Provincial Political Conference (of the Indian National Congress) was held in Benares. In view of the growing tension and also riots here and there, between Hindus and Muslims, the present writer, as Chairman of the Reception Committee of the Conference, gave an address in which he stressed the Unity, in Essentials, of the two religions, and quoted parallel texts from their Scriptures, in original. The address was well received. A public-spirited friend, Shri Ghana-shyām Dās Birlā, had ten thousand copies of it printed, in Hindī as well as Urđū characters, page facing page, and distributed free all over the country. The address was subsequently incorporated in a collection of the Hindī writings of the compiler of this book, which was published in 1928, under the title of Samanvaya.

In October, 1924, a Hindu-Muslim Unity Conference was held in Delhi, in consequence of violent communal riots, engineered by political and politico-religious mis-leaders, which had been breaking out, for some time, in scores of places, all over the country.. At that Conference, the present writer proposed that a Committee should be appointed, of learned and at the same time large-hearted, broad-minded, and philanthropic, not narrow, bigoted, fanatic, representatives of all the main religions of India, i. e. eight out of the eleven mentioned at the outset of this Note ; (see also pp. 560-562, infra) ; to draw up a graded series of Text-Books of Universal Religion, with parallel passages from all Scriptures, which would be taught in all the educational institutions of India, be spread broadcast, and brought to every home in the land in every way possible. The proposal was not considered feasible. The Conference contented itself with appeals for the undefined, unexplained, word 'Unity', without any mention of the 'contents' of the word, its denotation and connotation and significance in concrete terms ; as is the case with the words 'Sva-rāj' and 'Self-government ; (see pp. xxiii-xxiv, supra, 591, infra). The communal riots have continued to grow worse and worse in India, as the politico-economic hatreds and war-'riots' in Europe, and indeed all over the world, in this 'Age of Discord', Kali-Yuga.

The next effort, of the present writer, on these lines, apart from articles in Hindī and English newspapers, was made at the All-Asia Educational Conference, at the close of 1930. The Foreword to the first edition gives the rest of the story of the genesis and developement of this work.

Two other books ought to be mentioned here, which have helped this compiler greatly in understanding something of the obscure, mysterious, puzzling legends in the Samskr̥ṭ Itihāsa-Purāṇa regarding the nature of other worlds and planes of matter, and their denizens, and the eonian course of the cyclical, cosmic, inorganic, organic, human and other involutions, evolutions, dissolutions. These matters are just touched in the present work ; because the compiler's knowledge of them is very far from sufficient ; general public is probably not deeply or scientifically interested in them ; the extant scriptures do not supply clearly intelligible and parallel passages about them ; and finally, because, though precise and correct knowledge of their details is highly important for the specialist and advanced student of what has been called 'occult science', Yoga, Sulūk, yet the features of Religion which are the vitally most important for the average human being, are those which are dealt with plainly, by all the scriptures, and therefore here, in Chs : II and III.

The two books, above referred to, are Madame H.P. Blavatsky's monumental works, Isis Unveiled (2 vols., 1500 pages), and The Secret Doctrine (latest Adyar edition, 6 vols, 2200 pages, plus a sixth volume of Indices, 500 pages). The two parts of this last work are appropriately entitled 'Cosmogenesis' and 'Anthropogenesis' respectively. They supply an immense amount of out-of-the way information about the 'dead' religions ; about the 'occult', 'super-physical', side of Religion, connected with other worlds and planes, and the 'subtle' body and 'finer' faculties latent in the normal man, but capable of being developed and made patent by 'mystic' disciplines and special 'education' ; and about the details of cosmic and human evolution, through vast aeons and cycles, (See p. 617, infra). Two passages from these two works are reproduced below. Members of the Theosophical Society, which she founded, and which now has branches in almost all civilised countries of the world, will readily see that the present work is only a popular and extended commentary on those two passages, in keeping with the second object of the T. S., (See p. 571-572, infra).

"Kapila, Orpheus, Pythagoras, Plato, Basilides, Marcian, Ammonius, and Plotinus, founded schools and sowed the germs of many a noble thought, and, disappearing, left behind them the refulgence of demigods. But the three personalities of Kṛṣṇa, Gauṭama (the Buddha), and Jesus appeared like true gods, each in his epoch, and bequeathed to humanity, three religions built on the imperishable rock of ages. That all three...have in time become adulterated, is no fault of...the noble Reformers. It is the priestly self-styled husbandmen of the 'vine of the Lord' who must be held to account by future generations. Purify the three systems of the dross of human dogmas, the pure essence remaining will be found to be identical": (Isis Unveiled, II, 536).

"Esoteric Philosophy reconciles all religions, strips every one of its outward human garments, and shows the root of each to be identical with that of every other great religion:" (The Secret Doctrine, I. 45.).

"Every Scripture inspired of God is profitable, for teaching, for reproof, for correction,
for instruction which is in righteousness,
that the man of God may be complete,
furnished completely unto every good work.

(B., 2 Timothy, 3. 16-17., THR. p. v.)

"We believe in what hath been revealed to us and revealed to you. Our God and your God is One, and to Him are we Self-surrendered." (Q., 29., 45.).

SYSTEM OF PRONUNCIATION

THE system of pronunciation followed in the Roman transcript confines itself to the simple differences. The more nice and subtle ones have not been taken account of. Thus, there are three shades of 's' in Arabic-Persian; they are all transcribed by 's' here. So four kinds of 'z,' two of 'h,' two of soft 'ṭ,' are rendered by one 'z,' one 'h,' one 'ṭ'. So two kinds of 'sh' in Samskṛt are both transcribed as 'sh'. Arabic gutturals of e, i, o, u, have also not been marked; that of 'a' has been, as a'.

Samskṛt letters are rendered as below :

a, as in similar, solar ; i.e. , the sound of u in fur, cut, shut.	au, somewhat as in how, cow.
ā, far, car.	am, like um in jump, hump, bumper.
i, fit, sit.	k, king, ken.
ī, elite ; the sound of ee in meet, feet, sheet.	kh, buckhorn, inkhorn.
u, put ; the sound of oo in foot.	g, get, gain.
ū, flute ; the sound of oo in shoot, hoot.	gh, big-horn. fog-horn, Birmingham.
ṛ, somewhat as in iron.	ng, bring, sing.
e, as in get, jet, fetch.	ch, churn, chaste.
é, as the 'a' in fate.	chh, rich-house, fetch-him.
ai, somewhat like i in might, fight, right.	j, joy, jam.
o, go.	jh, bridge-head.
	ñ, cañyon.
	t, tit, talk.
	th, get-home.

d, daughter, dame.	ph, lip-homage.
dh, madhouse.	b, bless, beam.
n, (n and d combined in a click-sound).	bh, hobhouse, abhor.
t, petit, (soft t).	m, musk.
th, think (without the sibilance).	y, yes, you.
d, there, that (minus the sibilance).	r, run.
dh, bid-him (soft d).	l, lamb.
n, nephew, niece.	v or w, win.
p, pan, pass.	sh, shine.
	s, sun, son.
	h, hand, heaven.

The special sounds of Arabic-Persian are :

kh, aspirate of k, like the German ach, or Scottish loch.	gh, guttural of g.
a', guttural of a.	f, fun.
	q, guttural of k.
	z, zephyr.

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS.

- (B.), Bible. (O. T., Old Testament, Hebrew ; O. T. and N. T., New Testament, Christian).
- (BB.), Dr. F. L. Riley's The Bible of Bibles, published in 1929, by J. F. Rowny Press, Los Angeles. (See pp. xxxii-xxxiii, supra).
- (Bh.), Bhāgavata, one of the 18 Purāṇa-s, sacred books of legends and traditional histories of the Cosmos and of the Human Race, which form part of the Scriptures of Vaidika Dharma, or Védism ('Hinduism').
- (Bu.), Buddhist Sacred Books
- (C.), Confucian Works.
- (Dh.), Dhamma-ṣaḍa, a Buddhist Scripture.
- (ERE.), Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics, in 13 vols., edited by Dr. Hastings.
- (G.), Gīṭā, i. e., Bhagavad-Gīṭā, the most widely known of the Védist Scriptures.
- (Gr.), Guru-Granthā-Sāhab, the Scripture of Sikhism.
- (H.), Hadīṣ, the Sayings of the Prophet Muhammad.
- (J.), Jaina Sacred Books.
- (Ju.), Sacred writings of Judaism, Hebraism, or the Jewish Religion, like the Talmūd or Commentaries on the O. T., and the Qabbālāh or Kabbala, a compilation of the writings of Jewish Mystics.
- (K.), Kabbala, i. e., Qabbālāh.
- (M.), Manu-Smṛiti, the oldest living law-book of the world, revered by Hindū-s like the Vēda-s.
- (Mbh.), Mahā-bhārata, the 'Great Epic' of the 'Great War' between the Pāṇḍava-s and the Kaurava-s,

- which ranks with Manu-smṛiti in Hindū estimation.
- (Q.), Qurān, often written in English as Koran; the chief Scripture of Islam or Mohammedanism.
- (R.), Rāmāyaṇa, the 'Epic' of the War of Rāma and Rāvaṇa, which is ranked, by Hindū-s, with the Mahābhārata and the Purāṇa-s. These three make up the 'Itihāsa-Purāṇa'.
- (S.), Sufi writings.
- (SBE.), Sacred Books of the East Series, edited by Max Muller.
- (Sh.), Shintoism.
- (Si.), Sikh writings, among which the Guru-Granth-Sāhib is the chief Scripture.
- (T.), The Scriptures of Taoism, among which the Tao-Teh-King of Lāo-tse is the chief.
- (THR.), Treasure-House of the Living Religions, published in 1933, by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York and London). (See pp. xxxi-xxxii, supra).
- (U.), Upaniṣad-s, the philosophical and psychological parts of the Vēda-s.
- (V.), Vēda-s; four, Rg-Vēda, Yajur-Vēda, Sāma-Vēda, Aṭharva-Vēda; the chief Scriptures of the Hindū-s.
- (Z.), Zoroastrian Scriptures; the Zend-Āvestā in particular, of which the chapters known as the Gāthā, are regarded as the direct utterance of the Prophet Zarathuṣtra.

CONTENTS

(If the reader will glance through the 600 page-headings, he will find a much fuller table of contents in them.)

	Page
Intimation that there is no copyright in the book ; and prayer to all to help in spreading the Truth of the Unity of All Religions. ...	ii
Title-page.	iii
Foreword to the first edition.	v
Letter to the Reader, as Preface to the present edition.	xi
Note on the Texts gathered in this book, and certain other matters.	xxvi
System of Pronunciation.	xlvi
List of Abbreviations.	xlviii
Table of Contents.	1
INVOCATION OF THE ONE SUPREME SPIRIT OF UNITY	1

CHAPTER I

RELIGIOUS SCIENCE AND SCIENTIFIC RELIGION	8
Asiatic Thought and European Thought.	8
The Unity underlying both.	13
The One Way to Peace on Earth.	14
Scientific Religion.	17
The Duty of Educationists.	27
The Golden Mean between the two Extremes.	33
The Duality of God's Nature.	39
The Need for Scientific Religion.	50

The Universal Religion—That in which there may be universal agreement. ...	54
Imperative Duty to teach such Universal Religion.	55
Agreement of Religions	59
The Joy of Agreement	67
The Essential and the Non-Essential	73
The Nature of Religion	77
How ascertain the Divine Will	81
The Three Aspects of Religion	85
Their Relation to Education	89

CHAPTER II

THE WAY OF KNOWLEDGE; I.E., THE INTELLECTUAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION	91
1. God and the Nature of God	91
A Great Danger of a Great Misunderstanding	132
The Many Names of the All-Pervading God, the One Self of All	138
2. Evolution, Phylogenesis, Palingenesis, Rebirth	163
3. Reward and Punishment	175
Note on Karma, Rebirths, and Evolution	190
4. Other Worlds and Planes of Being	191
5. The Law of Analogy or Correspondences	208
6. The Spiritual Hierarchy	223
7. The Goal of Life	223

CHAPTER III

THE WAY OF DEVOTION, OR THE EMOTIONAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION	270
The Way of Devotion	270
1. The Five Principal Virtues and Disciplines	271

Additional and farther-reaching Virtues	274
Control of Tongue, the Secret of all Control	281
2. Reverence for Parents, Teachers, Elders	288
3. The Golden Rule of Christ ...	297
Source of 'constituent' and 'ministrant' functions of State	297
Egoism not abolished, but made measure of Altruism, by the Rule	303
Corollaries of the Golden Rule ...	304
The Reason for the Golden Rule ...	306
Difficulties ré the Golden Rule ...	307
4. The Immortal Virtues and the Deadly Sins	317
The Two Main Sins	318
5. The Single Seed of the two Root-Sins	319
6. The One Seed of all the Virtues ...	326
7. God in Man	333
A Great Danger of a Great Misconception	348
The One Safeguard	352
The Crowning Virtue of Humility ...	356
A Reminder: 'Duty varies with Circum- stance'	370
The Mutual Balancing of Pleasure and Pain	374
Devotion to Duty	376
A Reminder: 'How ascertain Duty' ...	389
Personal and Impersonal Devotion ...	391
Who is the Final Judge	404

CHAPTER IV

THE WAY OF WORKS, OR THE VOLITIONAL CONSTITUENT OF RELIGION	420
1. Prayer
2. Repentance, Confession, Expiation ...	440
3. Discriminate Charity	444

4. The Word of God or Revelation ...	445
5. Deity enshrined and imaged ; forms of Worship ; Pilgrimage. ...	446
6. Pageants, Processions, Festivals, Lamentations, Holy-days ...	464
7. Sacraments ...	466
8. Aids to Meditation ...	467
9. Litanies and Liturgies, Fasts and Vigils ...	468
10. Pure Food and Pure Sacrifice ; Self-sacrifice vs. Other-sacrifice ...	468
11. Outer distinctive marks of Faiths ...	474
12. Houses of God ...	475
13. Calls to Prayer ...	475
14. Prayers for the Dead ...	475
15. Spiritual Relationships ; Saint and Disciple ; Priest and Parishioner. ...	475
16. Rites and Ceremonies. ...	475
17. Priests of Many Grades. ...	476
18. Hermits, Monks, and Monasteries. ...	"
19. Sects. ...	477
20. Social Structures. ...	478
The Vêdic Scheme of Social Organisation. ...	482
Fourteen Main Tetrads. ...	483
(See also Appendix A, pp. 624-628) ...
21. Similarity in Perversity, Corruption, Degeneracy, Evil Practices, also, Like Black Magic, Fanaticism, Intolerance, Pride of Superiority, etc. ...	516
The Great Truth Masked by the Great Error. ...	517
A Great Danger—of Excessive Clinging to Forms and Catchwords. ...	520
Live and Die in and for the Universal Life. ...	526

Knowledge and Devotion Sterile without Works.	529
"Follow the Spirit, not the Letter". ...	542
God's 'Eternal Memory', Omniscience, the Source of all human knowledge. ...	545
Mystic, Gnostic, Yoga, or Sulūk Disciplines and Practices.	553
CHAPTER V.
THE ONE WAY TO PEACE ON EARTH AND GOOD-WILL AMONG MEN.	558
CHAPTER VI.
EDUCATION AND THE EDUCATIONIST ...	568
Note on Practicality, False and True. ...	577
CHAPTER VII.
CONCLUSION	602
Addenda	609
Corrigenda	622
Appendix A	624
Index of Books	629
" " Sanskr̥t words	637
" " Arabic-Persian words	647
" " Subjects	658

A SUGGESTION

If the reader will please make a note, on the margin of the page, and at the line, concerned, of the page of the Addenda (pp. 609-621) on which an addition, for that page and line, is printed, before he begins reading the book, he will be sure not to miss the addition. The 'corrections' (pp. 622-623) may be made beforehand, similarly.

FURTHER ADDENDA

On p. xxviii, before line 1, insert :

Texts of Zoroastrianism have been taken from J. M. Chatterji's and A. N. Bilimoria's edition of the Gatha ; (see foot-note on p. 45).

On p. 491, after 'mazdur', in l. 26, insert :
Abul-Fazl, the famous minister of Akbar, in the Introduction (Muqaddamah) to his work, Ā'in-i-Akbarī, names these as (1) Ahl-i-qalam, 'the men of the pen', the learned, (2) Mubārizān, the 'warriors', (3) Pés̄ha-warān wa Bāzar-gānān, 'the men of trade and business' and 'the men of the market-place' (bāzār), and (4) Barza-garān wa kishā-warzān, 'peasants and tillers of the soil.' And he expressly recognises and affirms the universal vocational character of this four-fold classification. Thus: Jahāniān az chahār garoh burūn na bāshand; i. e., "No human being, in all the world, falls outside of these four classes".

No man liveth unto himself....We are all parts of one another....God hath made of one blood all nations that dwell upon the face of the earth. (Bible).

All creatures are members of the one family of God. (Qurān).

Human beings, all, are as head, arms, trunk, and legs unto one another. (Véda).

THE ESSENTIAL UNITY OF ALL RELIGIONS

Invocation of the One Supreme Spirit of Unity

AUM-ĀMĪN-AMEN

Éko Dēvah sarva-bhūṭēshu gūdhah
Sākshī chētā sarva-bhūṭ-ādhī-vāsaḥ,
Ṭam Ātma-sṭham yé-nu-pashyaṇṭi dhīrāḥ,
Ṭēshām sukham shāshvaṭam, n-étarēshām.

Sarva-vyāpī sarva-bhūṭ-āntar-Ātmā,
Ékam rūpam bahu-dhā yah karoṭi,
'am Ātma-sṭham yé-nu-pashyaṇṭi dhīrāḥ,
Ṭēshām sukham shāshvaṭam, n-étarēshām.

Niṭyo niṭyānām, Chētanash chētanānām,
Éko bahunām yo vi-ḍaḍhāṭi kāmān,
Ṭam Ātma-sṭham yé-nu-pashyaṇṭi dhīrāḥ,
Ṭēshām shāntiḥ shāshvaṭi, n-étarēshām.

Éko A-varṇo, bahu-dhā shakti-yogāḍ
Varṇān an-ékān niḥiṭ-ārṭho yo ḍaḍhāṭi,
Vi-chaiṭi ch-ānté vishvam āḍau, sa Dēvah,
Sa no budḍhyā shubhayā sam-yunakṭu. (U.)¹

(The One God hidden in all living beings,
The Living Witness biding in all hearts—

¹ Please see the foregoing 'List of Abbreviations'; also the note on the 'System of Pronunciation', as regards the use of diacritical marks and accented types.

The Wise who seek and find Him in them-Self,
To them, and None Else, is Eternal Joy.

The all-pervading Inner Self of all,
Who from His Formlessness creates all Forms—
The Wise who see that One within them-Self,
To them alone belongs Eternal Joy.

Eternity of aeons, Life of lives,
The One who all the Many's wishes sates—
The Wise who Him within them-Self behold
Theirs, and None Other's, is Eternal Peace.

The Colourless, who from His secret store
Exhaustless, countless colours draws, to paint,
Efface, repaint the worlds upon the face
Of Empty Space with Mystic Potency—
May He endow us with the lucid mind !)

Ṭurfa Bé-rangī ke dāraḍ rang-hā-é saḍ hazār !
Ṭurfa Bé-shaklī ke dāraḍ
shakl-hā-é bé-shumār !

Ba nāmé Āñ ke Ū nāmé na dāraḍ,
Ba har nāmé ke khwānī sar bar āraḍ,
Ba nāmé Āñ ke Wāhiḍ ḍar Kasīr aṣṭ,
Ke anḍar wahḍaṭ-Ash kasraṭ aṣīr aṣṭ ! (S.)

(What marvel ! that a Being Colourless
Displays a hundred thousand hues, tints, shades !
What wonder ! that a Being Void of Form
Enrobes in forms beyond all numbering !—
May we behold Him in all hues and forms !

Thus, in the name of Him who hath no name,

Yet lifts to every name an answering head,
 The name of HİM who is the Changeless One Amidst the changing Many, and within Whose Oneness all this Many is confined,
 May we begin our loving work of Peace.)

Aum ! Ṭaṭ Savitur-varéṇyam bhargo Dévasya dhīmahi, dhiyo yo nah prachodayāt. Agné !, naya su-paṭhā rāyé asmān, vishvāni, Déva !, vayunāni vidvān. Yuyodhy-asmaj-juhuraṇam énah. Bhūyishthām
 Ṭé nama-ukṭim vidhéma. (V.)

(Father of all !, may Thy supernal Light
 Inspire, illuminate, and guide our minds !
 We open them to let Thy Glory in.
 Supreme Director ! Lord of Warmth and Light,
 Of Life and Consciousness, that knowest all !
 Guide us by the Right Path to happiness,
 And give us strength and will to war against
 The sins that rage in us and lead astray !
 We bow in adoration unto Thee !)

Bismillāh-ir-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm. Al-hamḍu lillāhi Rabb-il-ālimīn ! Ar-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm ! Mālik-i-yaum-id-dīn ! Iyyāka na'buḍu, wa iyyāka nasta'in. Ihḍi-nassirāt-ul-mustaḳīm. Sirāt-allazzīna ana'mta a'laihim, ḡhair-il-magḥzub-i-a'laihim wa lā-azzālīn. Āmīn. (Q.)

(Lord of Compassion ! All praise unto Thee !
 Creator and Protector of the worlds !
 Lord God ! Beneficent and Merciful !
 Master Supreme of the great Judgment Day !
 Thee do we serve and Thee beseech for help ;
 Show us the Path on which Thy blessings rest ;
 The Straight Path ; not of those who go astray,
 On whom descend Thy wrath and punishment).

Apāno daryo jyāitīm, ā kshathrém vanghéush manangho, ashāt ā éréjush paṭho, yaéshū Mazadāo
Ahuro shaéti. (Z., Gāthās)

(Grant us long life, Great Lord !, and fortitude,
And the right mind, and show us the Straight Path,
Oe'r which Thou broodest, and which leads to Thee !)

Hear, O Lord !, my cry, give ear unto my prayer, that goeth not out of feigned lips. Hold up my goings in Thy Paths, that my footsteps slip not. Show me Thy Ways, O Lord !, teach me Thy Paths ; and lead me in Thy Truth. Thou art the God of my salvation.
Open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy Law. Quicken Thou me according to Thy word. Remove from me the way of lying. (B., O.T.)

Our Father which art in heaven !, hallowed be Thy name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil ; for Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen. (B., N.T.)

O far great Heaven ! We call Thee,
Our Father and our Mother ! (C., THR., 19.)

(Ocean of Mercy ! Ever, in our hearts,
Dwell Thou, and so illuminate our minds
That we may love, serve, worship Thee, Our God !,
Ever Thy Presence may we feel near us !
Thou art our Father, Mother, Teacher, all !
Si., Grantha, THR., 31).

DEAR FRIENDS, SISTERS, BROTHERS !

In accord with the time-old traditions of the East, let us begin our work of love thus, in the words of the venerable Scriptures of the several religions ; of the Véḍas and Upanishats, the most ancient available records of passionately yearning and deeply searching human thought ; of the Qurān, and of the Sūfis, the most poetical and beautiful exponents of that thought ; of the Zend-Āvestā, the Bible, the Guru Granth Sāhab ; begin with ardent invocation of, and fervent prayer to, the One Supreme Spirit of Life. That Supreme Spirit, out of its Unity, creates the infinite Many-ness of Nature ; and, at the same time, It imposes Its all-pervading, all-embracing, Unity upon that countless Multitude. By that Unity, It binds atoms and cells into tissues, organs, bodies ; bodies into species, genera, kingdoms ; ties these to planets ; planets to suns, in solar systems ; these to larger systems ; chains these into vast star-galaxies ; and makes of all the infinite World-process a Uni-verse. It enters into these dead dolls of bone and blood and flesh that we otherwise are, and endows us with the mind that can encompass all these countless systems. That Spirit, indeed, dwelling hidden in the hearts of all, makes it possible for these dolls to understand, and sympathize with, and help each other, in the difficulties of life. It is the One sole source of whatever Unity there is in all human thought. The realization of It alone, as eternally present, in one-Self and in all-selves, brings deathless happiness and peace, as nothing else can do. May that Universal Life and Light vivify and illuminate our hearts and minds ! May It show to us the Right Path, and give to us the firm and Righteous Will to walk on it unwavering ! Only after opening our hearts to It, may we commence all work with hope of full success !

Next, let us reverently salute the Rshis, Prophets, Buddhas, Messiahs, Nabis, Rasūls, Messengers, Avatāras, Tīrthan-karas, Arhaṭs, Gurus, the Spiritual Hierarchs of all times ; who have given Scriptures, age after age, to race after race, in order to keep alive the light of the consciousness of that Unity in the heart of humanity ; and who brood over the Human Race and guide its progress, as benevolent parent-teachers watch over children in an educational home, leading the minds and bodies of the pupils onwards, from class to upper class, along the path of ever upward evolution.

Let us also offer tribute of deep gratitude to all Societies, Associations, Leagues, Parliaments of Religions, World-Fellowships of Faiths, which have been endeavouring to hold up before the world, the need and the possibility of reviving the sincere worship of that Spirit of Unity, (1) by educating more and more clearly, through sympathetic, deep, large-hearted and open-minded, comparative study of the Sacred Books of all religions, the essential unity running through all these religions, past and present, (2) by directing attention to the need for the study of the inner nature, as much as the outer, of the human being as such, and (3) by reuniting the peoples of all countries, without distinction of creed, caste, colour, race, or sex, in a Universal Brotherhood, which alone can give sincerity and real life and fulfilment to the work of the League of Nations. Such Universal Brotherhood alone can do so, by supplying the Spiritual half of that Whole, of which the League of Nations represents only the Material (hence useless) half; by creating a League of Religions, and linking it with the League of Nations.

CHAPTE

Religious Science and Scientific Religion

ASIATIC THOUGHT AND EUROPEAN THOUGHT. It is common knowledge that Asiatic thought is eminently coloured by religion; as modern European thought is by science. All the great living religions are of Asiatic origin; also almost all the historical great dead religions. The personal, domestic, and social life of the Hindū is largely governed by the rules of what he regards as his religion. So is that of the Musalmān. So of the Jew. So of the Confucian. So was, and to a considerable extent still is, that of the Christian belonging to the Roman Catholic form of Christianity. Such also is the case with the followers of the other forms and reforms of the Vedic religion, known as the Zoroastrian, the Buddhist, the Jaina, the Sikh; though perhaps the element of ritual is less prominent, and that of ethics more, in the later of these, in accordance with the very principle of reform.¹ Laotsism is mostly a profound philosophy, the same in essence as Vedānta-Yoga and

¹ "A religion which holds possession of our lives, which directs us at each step which we take, becomes part of our own souls. Unless, in some shape or other, it prescribes a rule of conduct, it inevitably loses its hold. The Catholic System scarce leaves an hour without its stated duties; such and such forms to be gone through; such and such prayers to be repeated.

Tasawwuf; its practical side is Confucianism. Shintoism, nobly regarding man as naturally virtuous, teaches ritual mostly¹. In all these,

Night and day, morning and evening, at meals and in the intervals between meals, the Catholic is reminded of his creed by a set form. Calvinism superseded these formal observances by yet more noble practical observances. It was ever present with its behests in fixing the scale of permitted expenditure, in regulating the dress, the enjoyments, the hours of sleep and labor, sternly cutting short all idle pleasure and luxury; sternly insisting on the right performance of all practical work, the trade, the handicraft, or whatever it might be, as something for every thread and fibre of which a man would one day be called to account... Religion is the wholesome ordering of human life; the guide to furnish us with our daily duties in the round of common occupation; the lamp to light us along our road and to show us where to place our steps:" Froude, Short Studies in Great Subjects, III, pp 154, 198.

All religions endeavour, suitably to the conditions amidst which they take their birth and grow, to fulfil this ideal duty; but unfortunately, bye and bye, the custodians of each and every religion begin to do the 'ordering' too much, become over-conservative, rigid, narrow, domineering, greedy, immoral, despotic, lose elastic touch with changing times, forget the essentials, insist over-much on non-essentials, and thus corrupt the religion by their own excesses. Then 'politics' and 'science' begin to do the 'ordering', and go to perhaps even worse excesses and extremes.

¹ "There is a teaching which, if not confined to Shinto, is at least most emphasised in it, and that is the innate goodness of man... Shintoists... consistently uphold the feeling is prominent, that the human being is under the ever-present influence of Something, is always in relation with Something, which is other than what is perceptible to the outer senses ; that the life of the physical body is subordinate to the life of a Mysterious Something, the Soul, Spirit, which has a life beyond this life. Indeed, the tendency to what has been called other-worldliness has, in some communities, grown over-pronounced, even to the extent of becoming a disease.²

the theanthropic doctrine of Kan-nagara, of man being essentially divine :” Inazo Nitobe, Japan, (pub : 1931 ; The Modern World Series), p. 321.

²Incidentally, it may be noted that this excessive other-world-li-ness, (in the sense of neglect of this world), with which India is debited, (and not wholly wrongly either, by foreign as well as indigenous writers), has been prominent mostly only during those periods in which political and economic oppression and exploitation have been rampant. Subjected to cruel misery in this world, the people sought hope of relief from the next. Otherwise, India has always been sufficiently “this-world-ly” to have won the reputation of the land par excellence of silver and gold and jewels, wealth and plenty and luxury of all kinds, flowing with milk and honey, filled with corn and cotton and cattle, fruits and silk and wool, tanks and temples and palaces of stone and of marble inlaid with gems—the country whose enterprising merchants supplied, by sea as well as land, the requirements of Persia, Palestine, Egypt, and Rome, in the west, and exchanged things of art with China, Siam, Burma and Japan, in the east. Indeed, it was.

Contrary to this, in the West, advanced thought was, until very recently, cutting itself off, more and more, from all concern with the possibility of things beyond the reach of our physical senses; excepting, of course, some very meta-physical 'abstract concepts', which, somehow, indispensably constitute the very roots of the various most positive sciences, and are a perpetual reminder, to the thoughtful, of the inseparable connection between the physical and the meta-physical; concepts like the arithmetical 'one, two, three, etc., and zero'; the geometrical 'point, line, surface'; the dynamical 'force, energy, attraction, repulsion'; the physical 'atom, electron'; the chemical 'affinity'; the biological 'life'; the psychological 'ego, I, we, will, memory, expectation, space, time'; and so on. That western thought, going to the other extreme, from excess of other-worldliness to excess of this wealth and luxury, and this reputation, which led to her degradation, brought invasions, oppression, exploitation, and worse than all else, despiritualisation and demoralisation. In happier times, India's other-worldliness only illumined and softened, as with moonlight, her this-worldliness, transfigured it, filled it with reverence for God's Nature in all Its manifestations, and made her People see, not the things of the Spirit with the eyes of the flesh, but the things of the flesh with the eyes of the Spirit. To recover those days of peaceful and prosperous happiness, she must first recover her soul by realising anew the Essence of Religion and the Essential Unity of all Religions.

this-worldliness, brought about the greater disease of mind which resulted in the greatest of historical wars and continues to threaten a still worse.

To find out, then, whether there is or is not any substantial unity in Asiatic thought, we have mostly to concern ourselves with religious thought; as, if we had to investigate whether there is or is not unity in European thought, we would chiefly compare the views of those who have devoted their lives to the various branches of science, mathematical, physico-chemical, astronomical, biological, sociological.

To the cursory view, of the person of one kind of temperament, it might seem that the unity of Western scientific thought is patent; that the whole of what is known as science is a consistent body of theory and practice; that the unity of Eastern religious thought is an equally obvious myth; and that religions are born only to try to annihilate one another, and to induce their respective followers to plague and murder each other.

So, to the hasty sight of another, it would appear that, e. g., in such a vitally important science as that of medicine, doctors disagree very much; that the more expert and scientific they are, the more intensely they differ; and that radically conflicting systems of treatment kill and cure, with much the same average of results, on the whole. In the system which regards itself as most scientific and up-to-date, theories as to the nature and cause of disease, the methods of treatment, and the drugs in favour and fashion, change from year to year. In almost all other sciences, pure and applied, old views and appliances are being daily scrapped in favour of new; the greater and more rapid the scrapping, the louder the vaunt of progressiveness; even in a rock-bottom science like mathematics, self-evident axioms are now in peril of their lives from the attacks of new theories; and in sociological sciences especially, the war of ideas, of words, of "isms," is maddening and internecine.

Indeed, Science has its ritual, its etiquette, its sacrosanct formalities, its mysterious technicalities, its sanctums, its oracular pomposity and superior stand-offishness, its popish infallibility, its expertcraft, its jingoism and fanaticism, as much as Religion; its controversial animus as bitter as the odium theologicum; and, becoming religionless and Godless, it has, as the debased servant of imperialism, statecraft, ruthless diplomacy, caused far more slaughter than Religion, becoming scienceless and reasonless, and degenerating into priestcraft, has done. But all such things are the fruit, neither of true science, nor of true religion, but of the evil in human nature. That evil falsifies and misuses them both, for its own selfish purposes.

THE UNITY UNDERLYING BOTH. Here as elsewhere, the wish is father to the thought. Those who, for temperamental or other and more substantial and permanent reasons, wish to see-

Unity, will see Unity. Those who wish to see Discord, will see Discord only. Those who wish impartially to examine both sides of the question, will see both justly. They will discern the Truth, which always stands in the mean between opposite extremes; viz., the Truth of essential Unity in superficial Diversity, in religious as well as in scientific thought. Such Unity is established by the mediation of Philosophy; and the use of Philosophy, as such mediator, has begun to be recognized, more and more, latterly, by the more thoughtful and widely cultured scientists themselves, as well as by the more thoughtful religionists also. No two faces, no two bodies, no two voices, manners, gaits, are exactly similar. Even so, no two minds coincide completely. The Principle of Multiplicity in Nature sees to that. But, all the same, there is a broad general similarity too, between all human faces, figures, voices, feelings, thinkings, actings also. This alone makes it possible for human beings to understand one another, and to live together as a civilised society. The Principle of Unity, which governs Nature, is the source of such civilised association and sympathy. To recognise that Unity in the Essentials of all Religions, is to promote the cause of Civilisation.

THE ONE WAY TO PEACE ON EARTH. Those who thus discern the Truth, will always make it their duty, as lovers of the mankind of East and West alike, to do their best to maximize and glorify the Spirit of Unity, and subordinate (not abolish, which is impossible) the principle of Multiplicity to It. Such Spirit of Unity, in Europe, is witnessed by common science and culture; and, in Asia, by the fact that our brothers and sisters come from Tibet, Siam, Burma and distant China and far-off Japan, to worship the memory of the Buddha Gauṭama at the Deer-Park in Benares, (which ancient-most of living towns is the most holy place of Pilgrimage for all Hindus) and at the Temple in Buddha-Gayā; while pilgrims from all the countries of Asia, and from many parts of Africa, gather at Mecca annually, in obedience to the command of the great Prophet Muhammad.¹ The truth-seeing lovers of humanity will always work with all their might, to minimize the spirit of disunion and discord. Such spirit of discord, in Europe, has been and is proved by the Great War, and by the intense political, national, and racial jealousies and hatreds that continue there, in worse and more intense form, even after the awful bloodshed and agony of that War; and in Asia, especially in India, it is evidenced by the too well-known caste and creed dissensions, which keep it under all sorts of subjection, domination, and exploitation; whence arises, surely, great material as well as spiritual harm to the exploited, now, and to the exploiter, in the end. The best means of promoting this so desirable peace, harmony, and unity, between all countries of both East and West, between all sections of their populations, is the proving, and the bringing home to all, of Unity between Science and Religion, and between religion and religion; and, secondly, the placing, before the world, of a Religio-Scientific scheme of Social Organisation and Planned Individual Life, which will secure, for the different temperaments, and the different ages in each lifetime, appropriate occupations, and means of livelihood, and the necessities of life at least, for all. Thus only can indispensable Spiritual Bread, as well as Material Bread, be provided to all.

¹Jerusalem, Rome, Lourdes, Kiev, and other towns are similar gathering Centres of Pilgrimage for European Christians also, still.

Some persons, disgusted with religious conflict, speak hastily of abolishing religion to allay that conflict. As well kill the body to cure disease. To uproot religion successfully, they must first exterminate Pain and Death. So long as human beings experience and fear these, they will not cease to crave the consolations of religion. Also, so long as men and women are left, are encouraged, are even positively taught, to believe that religions differ, even in essentials, so long will they, as the followers of such different religions, also necessarily continue to differ, to quarrel, to fight, to shed each other's blood. If, on the contrary, they are led to see that all religions are one and the same, in essentials, they will also assuredly become one in heart, and feel their common humanity in loving Brotherhood.

SCIENTIFIC RELIGION. The bringing about, the proving, the establishing, of such union, between religion and religion, and between science and religion, in place of the conflict which has been raging between them so far, will make the beginning of a new and beneficent era, an era guided and governed by Scientific Religion and Religious Science.

The signs are hopeful. Slowly the artificial barriers are breaking down between science and science, between science and religion, between religion and religion. It is beginning to be recognized and said that sciences are not many, but that Science is one. It is to be hoped that before very long, with the help of that same completely unified science, it will soon come to be recognized that religions, too, are not many, but that Religion is one; and, finally, that Science and Religion are but different aspects of, or even only different names for, the same great body of Truth and its application which may be called the Science or Code of Life. If, formerly, every act was done in the name and under the guidance of religion, and, latterly, has tended to be done in the name of science, there is reason to hope that, in future, it may be done in the name of Spiritual or Religious Science.

History shows that new religions and their characteristic civilizations have taken birth, grown, and decayed, side by side. We may well regard the two as cause and effect. But what is regarded as the birth of a new religion, is really only a re-proclamation, and re-vivification even more, by the extra-ordinary personality, the intense fervour, 'divine fire', en-thusi-(Theos)-asm, 'God-filledness', ṭa p a s, jazbah, self-sacrifice, high heart-compelling example, of the re-proclaimer. It is a fresh declaration, in new words, and a fresh en-live-ning thereby, of the essential eternal Universal Religion; and it is made necessary by the fact that the earlier proclamation had become covered up, beyond recognition, with non-essential, lifeless, misleading, harmful formalisms.

The fresh proclamation, needed for the present time, seems likely to take the form of Scientific Religion in a pre-eminent degree. And it apparently has to be made on the somewhat socialist and democratic, rather than individualist, lines; such lines as the Oversoul of the Human Race is taking in the other departments of its vast life; that is to say, it has to be made, and, indeed, is being slowly, gradually, almost imperceptibly, made, by the large body of scientific and religious thinkers in co-operation as a whole, rather than by a single individual; though leaders are needed even by the most democratic movements.¹

¹Associations form, now and then, with such religio-scientific objects as those indicated on p. 6, supra. Unfortunately, owing to inherent human weaknesses, they repeatedly stray away from principles to personalities, from humanitarianism to sectarianism and to all the dangers and mischiefs of 'priestcraft' which that implies. They do not keep the main objects steadily in view, as beacon-light to guide all their efforts; do not work single-mindedly and whole-heartedly for the unification of the world's thought and practice in a Universal Scientific Religion, and a sincere League of all Religions as well as of all Nations. Varying the proverb, "Man proposes and God disposes", we may say, "God proposes, and Satan opposes, and, but too often, successfully disposes."

Thus some scientists are working at psychical research. Sir Oliver Lodge, venerable veteran of world-wide fame in the realm of science, has said :¹

But there is no cause for excessive regret, much less despair. Instead, there is cause for greater effort in behalf of the Impersonal, and therefore All-personal, Truth. For the Principle of Good always re-composes and re-disposes. Schisms, due to 'personalities', due to over-emphasis, with much animus, on the personal element, on meum and tuum, and consequent violent disputes between followers, as well as violent opposition by persons outside the special fold, have been the experience, in their own life-times, of Kṛṣṇa, Moses, Zoroaster, Confucius, Buddha, Christ, Muhammad, Nānak—all. This is but another proof to the peaceful and discerning eye, of 'the Unity of all Religions', instead of the opposite, in respect of such unhappy experience too! We also see plainly, that such schisms do not at once destroy all the good work of the main religion. When, bye and bye, they do succeed in undermining it wholly, then the Principle of Good brings about a re-proclamation and re-viv-al of the Fundamental Truths in new ways. The believers in and servants of Unity must therefore always keep their hearts high.

¹At Bristol, on 7 Sep., 1930.

The time will assuredly come when these avenues into unknown regions will be explored by science; and there are some who think that the time is drawing nigh when that may be expected to happen. The universe is a more spiritual entity than we thought. The real fact is that we are in the midst of a spiritual world which dominates the material. It constitutes the great and ever-present reality whose powers we are only beginning to realize. They might indeed be terrifying had we not been assured for our consolation that their tremendous energies are all controlled by a Beneficent Fatherly Power whose name is Love.

Some other older, as also more recent, declarations of faith by eminent front-rank scientists of the time may be cited.

Sir James Jeans, mathematician and astronomer, Cambridge and Princeton, secretary for many years to the Royal Society of Great Britain, says: "The Universe begins to look more like a great Thought than a great Machine." And again, "The apparent objectivity of things is due to their subsisting in the Mind...We reach...the concept of the universe as a world of pure Thought...Mind no longer appears as an accidental intruder in the realm of Matter. We are beginning to suspect that we ought rather to hail it as the creator and governor of the realm of Matter. Not, of course, our individual minds, but the Mind in which the atoms, out of which our individual minds have grown, exist as Thought." The same scientist, in The New Background of Science (1933), dealing with "the new knowledge", and surveying "the whole ground, from relativity, continuum, least interval, curved space, to quanta, wave-mechanics, waves of probability, indeterminacy and events,—all concepts which we can neither picture, imagine, nor describe", says: "The law and order which we find in the universe are most easily described and...explained in the language of idealism...At the farthest point Science has so far reached, much, and possibly all, that was not mental has disappeared, and nothing new has come in that is not mental. The final direction of change will probably be away from the materialism and strict determinism which characterised...nineteenth century physics" Again, in the last paragraphs of his book, The Mysterious Universe, (1937), he says: "The new knowledge compels us to revise our first hasty impressions...The old dualism of Mind and Matter...seems likely to disappear...through substantial Matter resolving itself into a creation and manifestation of Mind."

Prof. Eve, at p. 65 of The Great Design, a symposium edited by F. Mason (1936), says: "Most men today are engrossed in some one particular profession or occupation...It is doubtful if any group of men, except perhaps a few philosophers, is engaged in fitting together the jig-saw or patchwork puzzle of the multitudinous discoveries and theories of all our diverse branches of knowledge; thought is thus divided into water-tight compartments, between which the communications are blocked."¹

¹The philosophical, religious, and at the same time scientific principles, by means of which all possible, even contradictory-seeming, views and things were reconciled by ancient Indian Seers, and 'scientific determinist causation' as well as 'free-will' explained and combined in 'auto-matism'—these principles, of the ancient Indian thought, are attempted to be set forth in the present writer's The Science of the Self (1938; pub. by The Indian Book Shop, Benares).

Another scientist of note, Prof. Sir A. S. Eddington, has very recently confessed: "Something Unknown is doing we don't know what—that is what our theory amounts to." Elsewhere he says, "Modern physics has eliminated the notion of substance...Mind is the first and most direct thing in our experience...I regard Consciousness as fundamental. I regard Matter as derivative from Consciousness." The venerable Herbert Spencer said, towards the close of the last revised edition of his First Principles (pub. 1900, when he was eighty years of age), that his 'Unknowable' in no way conflicts with, but rather supports, religion. The Teacher-founders of the great religions have all taught, and many philosophers, ancient and modern, Western and Eastern, have perceived, that this Unknown and Unknowable, is our very Self, the all-pervading, Universal, Supreme Principle of Consciousness or Life.

The equally venerable Alfred Russel Wallace, co-discoverer with H. Spencer and Charles Darwin, of the Law of Evolution, has, in his book, Social Environment and Moral Progress, written when he was nearly ninety years of age, expressly declared his faith in Spirit as governing Matter.

In The Great Design (1934), edited by F. Mason, with an Introduction and a concluding chapter by Sir J. A. Thomson, great biologist, fourteen renowned scientists have written short articles summing up their life's researches. All agree that the world is not a soulless mechanism, and is not the work of blind chance; that there is a Mind behind the veil of Matter, give it what name we will. The scientists are: R. G. Allen, Director of Lick Observatory, astronomer; J. A. Crowther, professor of physics, University of Cambridge; A. S. Eve, professor of physics, McGill University; Baillie Willis, professor of geology, Johns Hopkins University and University of Chicago ; C. Lloyd Morgan, professor of psychology, University of Bristol ; E. W. McBride, professor of geology, Imperial College of Science, London ; C. S. Gayer, Director, Brooklyn Botanical Gardens ; H.E. Armstrong, emeritus professor of chemistry, City College, London ; M. M. Metcalf, emeritus professor of zoology, Oberlin College, and research associate, Johns Hopkins University ; Sir Oliver Lodge (born 1851), emeritus professor of physics, Oxford and Cambridge ; Sir Francis Younghusband, retired General, traveller, humanist ; D. S. Fraser-Harris, emeritus professor of physiology, Dalhousie University, Nova Scotia ; Hans Driesch, Professor of Philosophy, Leipzig ; and Sir J. A. Thomson, Emerities Professor of Natural History, Aberdeen.

The following extracts, of other famous living scientists' opinions are taken from J. T. Sunderland's article, "Is Modern Science outgrowing God ?", in The Modern Review (of Calcutta), for July, 1936.

Albert Einstein, Mathematician, world-famous originator of the Theory of Relativity : "I believe in God.. who reveals Himself in the orderly harmony of the universe. I believe that Intelligence is manifested throughout all Nature. The basis of scientific work is the conviction that the world is an ordered and comprehensible entity and not a thing of Chance."

J.B.S. Haldane, physicist, Oxford and Birmingham Universities : "The Material world, which has been taken for a world of blind Mechanism, is in reality a Spiritual world seen very partially and imperfectly. The only real world is the Spiritual world...The truth is that, not Matter, not Force, not any physical thing, but Mind, personality, is the central fact of the Universe."

Sir Arthur S. Eddington, astronomer, Cambridge : "The old atheism is gone...Religion belongs to the realm of Spirit and Mind, and cannot be shaken."

Kirtley F. Mather, geologist, Harvard : "The nearest approach we have thus far made to the Ultimate, in our analysis of Matter and of Energy, indicates that the Universal Reality is Mind."

Arthur H. Compton, physicist, Chicago University : "An examination of the evidence seems to support the view that there is no very close correspondence between brain-activity and consciousness. It seems that our thinking is partially divorced from our brain, a conclusion which suggests, though it does not prove, the possibility of consciousness after death." (As said in a theological scripture, The Mahatma Letters, p 267 : "The flame is distinct from the log of wood which serves it temporarily as fuel.")

Robert A. Millikan, physicist, Institute of Technology, Pasadena : "God is the Unifying Principle of the universe. No more sublime conception has been presented to the mind of man, than that which is presented by Evolution, when it re-presents Him as revealing Himself, through countless ages, in the age-long inbreathing of life into constituent Matter, culminating in man with his Spiritual nature and all his God-like powers."

The sentences with which Sir J. A. Thomson closes the book above referred to, viz. The Great Design, may be quoted here : "Throughout the World of Animal Life there are expressions of something akin to the Mind in ourselves. There is, from the Amoeba upwards, a stream of inner, of subjective, life; it may be only a slender rill, but sometimes it is a strong current. It includes feeling, imagining, purposing, as well as occasionally thinking. It includes the Unconscious.

Whether in the plant it dreams, or is soundly asleep, or has never awakened, who can tell us?...The omnipresence of mind in animals gives us a fellow-feeling with them. With Emerson we see 'the worm, stirring to be a man, mount through all the spires of form.' We see the growing emancipation of mind, and this gives Evolution its purpose...In a continuous process, there can be nothing in the end which was not also present in kind in the beginning; we are led from our own mind, and the story of its enfranchisement, back and back to the Supreme Mind 'without Whom there was nothing made that was made.' Facing, every day, things in the World of Life, around which our scientific fingers will not meet, what can we do but repeat what is carved on the lintel of the Biology Buildings of one of the youngest and strongest of American Universities: 'Open Thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy Law'."

The (monthly) Indian Theosophist (Benares), for April, 1937, quoting from the (daily) Leader (Allahabad) reported: "The Court of the London University, after much discussion, has recently accepted a very valuable library, of Psychical and Magical books, collected by Mr. Harry Price, from all over the world, which is almost unique, and is one of the most comprehensive of its kind. In giving it to the University, Mr. Price, long keenly interested in the subject, said he hoped to stimulate a desire on the part of University authorities for a fully equipped department of Psychical Research to be installed in the new London University Buildings...It is a fact that a number of individual scientists, in many parts of the western world, have been for years past making serious investigations of psychic phenomena, and that the Universities of Bonn, Leyden, Leipzig—to name only a few on the Continent—are taking a serious interest in the subject. It is stated that in Leyden, a recognised department dealing with psychical research is already established. If the phenomena are proved to be facts—and only the ignorant will deny their occurrence—then as facts they must be studied...The new series of evening University Extension Lectures...comprise a course of ten lectures on 'The Literature of the Occult'. They start with the main principles involved in occult study, and roam over the subject from the Egyptian 'Book of the Dead,' and medieval Chinese occult lore, to Yoga and modern spiritualism."

Thus is modern Science, which was fathered in its infancy, and persecuted in its youth, by Religion, in Europe, now endeavouring to repay the kindness, after having retributed the injury, by renovating Religion in what, let us hope, will be a finer, scientific, non-superstitious form.

With the breaking of the fences between science and religion, and by fuller scientific thought, will come the breaking of the hedges between religion and religion; then it will be possible for the artificial boundaries which now separate country from country to be obliterated, and the barriers to be cast aside which divide nation from nation in head and in heart. Then may the new civilization dawn, dreamt of by the poet and the socialist, and idealized and also practicalized by Manu; then may be realized the Parliament of Man and the Federation of the World, the Organization of the whole Human Race in one vast Joint Family and Brotherhood, of which the League of Nations is the first small, step today, and very feeble, because not yet quite sincere, not yet endowed with a soul in the shape of a League of All Religions integrated with it.

THE DUTY OF EDUCATIONISTS. Educational institutions can and ought to take a leading part in the ushering in of this new proclamation of Scientific Religion and of the consequent new era of human history.

If the daily Press reports at all correctly, at least many, if not yet all, of even the statesmen and the generals who were busiest in promoting and conducting the Great War, are now feeling that war is not a glorious business at all, but, besides being horrible, is also something very useless, senseless, mean, sordid, shabby, and shameful, altogether due to the most evil motives. A Field-Marshal of England, one of the prominent figures in the Great War, said in a public speech¹:

War as a means of settling international disputes is now more universally condemned as a failure than ever before, and every day it becomes more evident that there are really no foreign nations, but that the interests of all are so closely interwoven that if one nation suffers all will suffer to some extent. Undoubtedly, the maintenance of great and costly armaments is not the first essential measure required to prevent war. By far the most important requirement is less Jealousy and less Selfishness in the conduct of international affairs. That spirit is, we may hope, now gradually appearing, and when it is adequately forthcoming, and not till then, disarmament will follow rapidly and easily enough, and the nations will be at last on the road to peace and goodwill.

¹Sir William Robertson, at Leeds, on 10th Dec., 1930.

These are the words of a war-worn veteran of to-day. Jealousy and Selfishness are the important words in his speech. Kṛiṣṇa, who had probably more personal experience of war than even a modern Field-Marshal, said long ago that: "Lust, Hate, and Greed form the triple gateway into hell." There can be no worse hell than war.¹ In accordance with the realization of this fact, which is indeed obvious to eyes not blinded by those same evil motives, youth movements have been afoot for sometime in many western countries. They are intended to bring up the new generation in the purer moral and spiritual atmosphere of internationalist and humanist feeling, in place of nationalism. This 'nationalism,' useful while simply defensive and self-helping, and while duly subordinated to humanism, has now degenerated into something very offensive and aggressive and other-harming. Indeed it is now nothing else than vulgar bullyism on a large scale, inherently barbarous and unregenerate, and provocative of more and more murderous conflicts. Because this fact has come home to them, it is being suggested, very rightly, very wisely, by was knocked away, the peoples floundered. They recognised nothing, no power greater than themselves; there was nothing left by which to regulate their lives. They had only themselves to please. They became bored with themselves; afraid of solitude and quietness. Many became obsessed with sex; and self-indulgence made them sick. They turned to any sort of dictatorship, the stricter the better, as a relief from self. There is also the evil of the present economic system." As some western writer has said: "If God did not exist, we should have to invent Him, for our own safety." God, or belief, sincere belief, in God, is man's only saviour from mutual destruction. Fortunately Science and Philosophy are combining to show anew to man that God does exist, within him even more than without.

¹ Another soldier, Brig-General F. P. Crozier, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., trying to inaugurate a movement called The Imperial Peace Crusade, in 1929, wrote: "The World is slowly moving towards the desired goal of substitution of methods of Peace for methods of War...The future prosperity of the World depends on the formation of a World-opinion which will enable people to form a habit of always thinking in terms of Peace instead of in terms of War. Having studied the matter very closely, it is my desire to encourage and stimulate this mode of thought. Having spent most of my life in War, or preparing for war, I desire to devote the remainder of my life to the service of Peace." Miss Muriel Lester, philanthropist worker, of London, visiting India in January, 1939, spoke to press interviewers, in Calcutta, to the effect that "the present calamitous state of the world, when all the Powers are running a mad race in armament, preparing feverishly for a far worse World-War, is due to its ignoring the fact of God; that fact of God is the foundation which kept the world together. When it

influential persons in that same West, that the tone and the nature of the teaching given in schools and colleges should be changed; that war-glorification and national boasting, self-conceit, contempt and decial of other nations, and expression of triumph over them should all be eliminated from that teaching; that, instead, there should be diligently inculcated the more truly refined and civilized spirit of 'humanism,' which has begun to manifest itself in the higher thought and feeling of the best and wisest persons of all nations, as a reaction against the horror of the senseless butchery of the Great War. Moral disarmament must precede physical disarmament. War can be abolished or reduced only in direct ratio to the abolition or reduction of war-mentality. This is possible only by systematic cultivation of peace-mentality and 'organising for peace.'¹ That can be done only through diligent right education, of youth as well as the general public. Right education is the foundation of all well-being, all good.

Educational institutions should not be subservient to political jingoism. Instead, they should aspire to direct politics into the path of righteousness. The scientist-priest, the custodian of the spiritual power, ought to guide, nay, to command, and compel, the ruler-soldier, the repository of the temporal power, into the right uses of all civil, military, political power. All such institutions, therefore, should regard it as a sacred duty to help forward, to the best of their ability, this most desirable change of tone and teaching. Here comes the use of well-planned religious instruction as the most potent instrument for the moral regeneration of mankind. Humanism, inter-nationalism, inter-religionism, go together, are only aspects of each other.

¹ As regards 'Organising for Peace,' see the present writer's Ancient Solutions of Modern Problems, The Science of Social Organisation, and Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism, (Theos: Pubg: House, Adyar, Madras).

Men, according to their temperaments, may, with their head, their intellect, either admire great military heroes and conquerors of history, or condemn them as predaceous marauders and butchers; probably none will offer the reverence of their heart to them. But there are few who will not offer reverent homage, with their heart, to those truest and greatest educators of mankind, by precept and by example, whom we know as the Founders of the great Religions; who have ever reproclaimed the One Eternal Truth of the Unity of all; who have illustrated by their lives, the Beauty and the Goodness of the concomitant Love and Sympathetic Self-sacrifice of human beings for one another.

Genuine educators, who realize that it is their high spiritual duty to be the missionaries of the Supreme Spirit on this earth; who spend themselves in constant endeavour to uplift their fellowmen to the plane of righteousness, and help to usher in anew, and maintain, the era of peace on earth and goodwill among men ; such cannot do better than give to the teaching of the Essentials of Universal Religion, by example as well as by precept, a foremost place in their courses of instruction to the younger generation, and inculcate in their hearts the habit of seeking and practising 'In Essentials, in Principles, in great things—Unity ; in non-essentials, details, small and superficial things—Liberty ; in all things—Charity'.¹

¹Viscount H. Samuel, President of the British Institute of Philosophy, in his lectures, in the Senate House, Calcutta, on 9.1.1938, and in the University Buildings, Allahabad, on 15.1.1938, said ; "Bernard Shaw has declared that Civilisation needs Religion, as a matter of life and death...We all recognise that the mind of man, in our times, is confused The present generation is beset by anxieties and perils Our escape, our rescue, from these, depends upon our finding a new Synthesis between Philosophy and Science and Religion ...Philosophy, coming out of its phase of classicism, Science coming out of its phase of materialism, Religion freeing itself from its servitude to dogmas that are outworn, may join in constructing a spiritual and intellectual framework for the future...Hegel said that ideas had hands and feet. There should be some Philosophy which would guide the nations....Conflict of religions could be solved by appeal to Philosophy... The philosopher could go to the different creeds, one by one, and ask them to emphasise the common points and not the differences. Philosophy would help to bring the religions together. The World Fellowship of Faiths is working in this direction. Its first Conference was held (in Chicago, in 1933, its second) in London, in 1936, then in Oxford in 1937...We must emphasise the points of agreement between the religions, rather than the points of difference....What the world needs today, above all, is a Synthesis of Philosophy, Science, and Religion."

Vēd-ānta, 'the final knowledge', Brahma-vidyā, 'God-Science', Ātma-vidyā, 'Self-knowledge', the traditional Ancient Wisdom of India and of all countries, is just such a Synthesis. For a very brief but comprehensive presentation of it in modern terms, the reader may, if he is interested, see the present writer's The Science of the Self. The present work may also be regarded as such a Synthesis, though indirectly. Its main and direct purpose is to 'emphasise the points of agreement between the religions'.

The dining-hall of the great Feeder supplies edibles suited to all tastes; sweets for those who love sweets, salts for those who like salts, acids for those who want acids. Let all satisfy their tastes, each his own. Why quarrel with another for not having the same taste as mine, when his taste does not interfere with my enjoyment of mine? But we all have to drink water and breathe air in order to dissolve and assimilate our respective special foods. Even so are the common essentials necessary for even the due enjoyment of the separate non-essentials.

THE GOLDEN MEAN BETWEEN THE TWO EXTREMES. In the minds of some individuals, among some sections of some communities, or even perhaps in a large portion of a whole nation, there may be revolt against religion. If newspaper reports be true, the governing power in Russia has set itself to abolish religion from the face of that country. But this is sometimes denied also. It was recently reported that great masses of the people are clinging to their ikons and their churches, and refuse to part with them despite grievous persecution. The latest reports are that the Soviet Government has decided to 'let alone', to 'let be'. All this only means that revolt against religion, as commonly understood and practised, may be local and temporary, due to special causes, as reaction against priestcraft and abuse, but that permanent eschewal of Religion is impossible.

The poet complained that "the world is too much with us night and day." Thoughtful Asiatics have good reason to complain that so-called religion has been interfering with our lives, private and public, far too much. But we also see that law, and science often misapplied by law, are now trespassing excessively upon our daily life and into our very homes, from birth to death; and that almost greater horrors are being perpetrated in the names of science, art, and law, than ever were in the name of religion.

Especially is so-called 'law' much too much with us, in private as well as public life. There are far too many laws already, and more are being manufactured every day by legislators who feel they must justify their existence thus. Every human being in a 'civilized' country to-day (and the more 'civilized' it is, the more is this the case) goes about in constant fear for his pocket and his liberty, through fines and jails, if not also for his life through the gallows, as a consequence of a chance infringement of any one of a thousand local, special, general, municipal, sumptuary, social, fiscal, executive, procedural, substantive, civil, criminal, etc., laws, which envelope his life as the tentacles of an octopus its victim. And the 'public servants', ('servants' forsooth!, 'masters' and 'monarchs of all they survey' rather!), of a hundred departments of the 'benevolent' state are ever on the watch to grab a victim, with, and quite as often without, even the merest technical cause. The behaviour of the 'myrmidons of the law' is now much more arrogant and troublesome than that of the 'myrmidons of religion'. A western statistician has calculated that one out of every ten, another that one out of every seven, human beings in a country like England, passes through the clutches of one penal law or another, and pays a fine or serves a term in jail. Surely this cannot be a mark of health in a civilization. Too much religion kills God, the God in Man; enslaves him to superstition, instead of bringing him Freedom from all fear. Too much law kills peace of mind and body; enslaves man to buroaucraft and expertcraft, instead of giving him ordered liberty.

All this only means that excess of even a good thing is bad. Indeed, excess is the one sin of all sins; and the following of the middle course, the one virtue; in all the concerns of life. The way that the Buddha taught is expressly and particularly known as the Majjhima Patī-padā, the Middle Path. One of the treatises of his contemporary, Confucius, is entitled, The Doctrine of the Mean, (the actual compilation of which is ascribed by tradition to his grandson, Kung Kei). A Samskr̥t proverb says :

Āshrayēn maḍhyamām vṛttim aṭi sarvaṭiā varjayēt.

(Follow the middle course ; avoid extremes)

Kṛṣṇa expounds it thus :

N-āṭy-ashnāṭas tu yog-oṣṭi, na cha-īkāṇṭam an-ashnāṭah,
Na ch-āṭi-svapna-shīlasya, jāgrāṭo n-āṭi ch-Arjuna !

Yukt-āhāra-vihārasya yukta-cheshtasya sarvaḍā,

Yukta-svapn-āva-bodhasya yogo bhavaṭi ḍukha-hā. (G.)

(He who avoids extremes in feed and fast,
In sleep and waking, and in work and play,
He winneth yoga, balance, peace, and joy.)

Ṭasmāḍ viḍvān bhavaṭi n-āṭi-vāḍi. (U.)

Aṭi-vāḍāns-ṭiṭikshēṭa. (M.)

(The wise man ever studiously avoids Extremes in speech and act, himself ; and when Others press to extremes in heated speech,
He passes by, in quiet, answering not.)

Lao-tze says :

Continuing to fill a pail after it is full, the water will be wasted. Continuing to grind an axe after it is sharp, will wear it away. Excess of light blinds the eye. Excess of sound deafens the ear. Excess of condiments deadens the taste. He who possesses moderation is lasting and enduring. Too much is always a curse, most of all in wealth. (T., Tao Teh King.)

Confucius says :

Commit no excess ; do nothing injurious ; there are few who will not then take you for their pattern. ...The will should not be gratified to the full ;

pleasures should not be carried to excess. (C., Shi King; Li-ki.)

The Bible says :

Be not righteous over much ; neither make thyself over wise...Be not over much wicked ; neither be thou foolish. (B., Eccles.)

Give me neither poverty nor riches ; feed me with food sufficient for my wants ; lest I be full and deny thee, and say, who is Jahveh ? ; or be poor, and steal, and profane the name of my God. (B., Proverbs.)

Shintoism embodies the same principle :

It has ever insisted on ma-gokoro, by which it means freedom from inordinate passions...All appetites are natural, hence divine gifts ; and the temperate enjoyment of them is a divine power. If man oversteps the limits of moderation, he pollutes his body and mind. To be god-like is to be natural ; to be natural is to follow Nature...(i. e. to keep) within the limits set by instinct and reason...This is the fundamental conception of Due Measure. (Sh., Inazo Nitobe, Japan, 321, 32).

As the teaching of Buddha is known as the Majjhima Patipadā, so the Jaina way, taught by Mahāvira Jina, is known as the An-ék-ānta-vāda, the Doctrine and the Way of Non-ex-tremism.

Ēkēn-ākarshantī, ślaṭhayantī vastu-ṭattvam itarēṇa,
Antēṇa, jayaṭi Jamī nītir, manṭhāna-nētram iva gopī.

(AMRṬA CHANDRA SŪRI).

(E'en as the dairy-maid, pulling and slacking
The two ends of the churning-string by turns,
Churns out the golden butter from the milk,
E'en so the sage, working alternately
At both the two inevitable sides
Of every question, finds the perfect Truth.)

Muhammad enjoins the same :

Lā ta'taḍu inn-Allāhā lā yohibbul ma'taḍin. (Q.)
 (God loves not those who go beyond due bounds.)
 Khair-ul-umūrē ausaṭohā. (H.)
 (All acts are good but in the mid degree).

A Greek philosopher has said : "Strive to acquire proper balance—courage without rashness ; caution without timidity ; mercy without weakness ; justice without vindictiveness ; silence without deceit ; shrewdness without cunning ; courtesy without fawning ; firmness without obstinacy ; deliberation without dilatoriness ; patience without carelessness ; friendship without favoritism ; ambition without selfishness."

The Mahā-bhārata, Shānti-parva, ch. 70, says : "Be religious, not bigoted ; virtuous, not self-righteous ; devout, not fanatical ; gather wealth, not cruelly ; enjoy, without elation ; speak gently, not insincerely ; be brave, without boasting ; be generous, not wasteful ; give, not indiscriminately ; speak boldly, not harshly ; make friends, not with the ignoble ; fight, not with friends ; seek information, not from the unreliable ; serve your interest, without hurting others ; ask advice, not from the unwise ; praise virtues, not your own ; trust, but not the evil ; punish, not thoughtlessly ; love and guard the spouse, without jealousy ; be refined, but not supercilious ; feed delicately, not unwholesomely ; enjoy conjugal pleasure, not overmuch ; honor the worthy, not proudly ; serve, without deceit ; propitiate, without fawning ; be clever, not out of season ; be angry, not without strong cause ; be gentle, not to the mischievous ; worship Deity, without display."

Every question has two inevitable sides. Wisdom consists in reconciling the two, by just compromise between them, in accord with the requirements of time-place-circumstance.

THE DUALITY OF GOD'S NATURE. There are these two sides to every question, because :

Sarvam dvam-dva-mayam jagat.

Śarvāṇi cha dvam-dvāni. (U.)

Dvam-dvair-ayojayaṭ ch-émāh

Sukha-ḍukkhā-ḍibbhiḥ prajāh. (M.)

(The world is made of pairs of opposites ;

All things occur in pairs of two and two ;

The Maker fused Duality in all ;

Sorrow and Joy foremost of all these pairs.)

Khūlāqna min kulle shay'in zaujain. (Q.)

(I, the Supreme and Universal Self,

Have made all things in pairs of spouse and spouse).

Male and female created He them. (B.)

Ishq-bāzī mī kunaḍ bā khwēsh-tan ;

Shuḍ bahānā ḍar-miyāné marḍ o zan. (S.)

(To play at Love the better with Him-Self

He put on separate masks of man and wife.)

Sa Ēkāki n-āramata ; Sa Aṭmānam dvé-dhāpāṭayaṭ ; Paṭish cha Paṭni ch-ābhavaṭ ; āpayato

vai tāv-anyo-nyasya kāmān sarvān. (U.)

(Lonely He felt, and all unsatisfied ;

So into Two He did divide Him-Self,

To have a Play-mate ; Man and Wife He was ;

All wishes of each other they fulfil.)

Chitta-naḍī nām-obhayaṭo vāhinī ; vahaṭi kalyā-nāya, vahaṭi cha pāpāya. (Yoga-bhāshya).

(The mind-stream in two rival currents flows, Heading to virtue and to vice it goes.)

Bahr-e-ṭalkh o bahr-e-shīrīn ham-enān,

Ḍarmiyān 'shān barzakḥ-é lā-yubghiyān. (S.)

Qāyaman bil qist. (H.)

(Oceans of Sweet and Bitter surge abreast ;
Between them rests the razor-line of Rest.
The Being of Godhead rests amidst the Pairs, Maintaining even justice over all.)

Yathā shīṭ-oshṇayor madhyé
n-aiv-aushṇyam na cha shīṭatā,
Tathā sṭhīṭam paḍam shāntam,
Madhyé vai sukha-dukkhayoh. (Mbh.)

(There is a middle point, nor hot nor cold,
On the two sides of which spread cold and heat ;
So, of the Middle point, where there is Peace,
On the two sides, surge seas of Pain and Joy.)

Ichchhā-dvéssha-samutṭhéna ḍvam-ḍva-mohéna, Bhāraṭa !,
Sarva-bhūṭāni sam-moham
sargé yānti, paran-ṭapa !.

Yéshām tv-anṭa-gatam pāpam, janānām puṇya-karmaṇām,
Té ḍvam-ḍva-moha-nir-mukṭā bhajanṭé Mām ḍrdha-vraṭāh.

Nir-māna-mohāh, jiṭa-sanga-ḍoshāh,
aḍhy-āima-niṭyāh, vini-vrṭṭa-kāmāh,
ḍvam-ḍvair-vimukṭāh sukha-dukkha-sañjñair-
Gachchhantṭy-amūdhāh paḍam Avyayam Ṭaṭ. (G.)

(They only who love Me with steadfast mind
Can cross this glamour of Duality ;
And they who rise above this Dualness
They only know Me as the One Sole Truth.
Crossing beyond this ever-battling Pair
Of Joy and Sorrow, mind now Proud now Low,
Elation and Depression, they attain
The state of Peace that knows not any change.)

Nir-ḍvam-ḍvo niṭya-saṭṭva-sṭho nir-yoga-kshéma-Aṭma-vān ;
 Jñéyah sa niṭya-sannyāsī yo na ḍvéshti na kānkshaṭi ;
 Nir-ḍvam-ḍvo hī, mahā-bāho !, sukham bandhāṭ pra-muchyaté.
 Samah siddhā-va-siddhau cha,
 ḍvam-ḍvā-tīṭo vi-maṭsarah,
 Yaḍ-rchchhā-lābha-san-ṭushtah,
 krṭv-āpī na ni-badhyaté. (G.)

(Who is content with what lot brings to him,
 Who is not envious, who has passed the Pairs,
 Who in success and failure stands the same,
 His acts, being only duties, bind him not.
 Renunciation endless is his, who
 Neither desireth aught nor hateth aught.
 He who flings off the ever-wrestling Twins,
 With ease he breaketh all his bonds of soul.
 The Duads that take birth with Love-and-Hate
 Intoxicate with these all beings pass
 Into the whirlings of this wheeling world.
 They who with Virtues balance up their Vice,
 They leave them Both behind, and pass beyond
 Into the restful realm of deathless Peace.
 They who have cast aside all Pride and Fear,
 Conquered lusts of the flesh, its Loves and Hates,
 And tied their hearts to Me, the Self of All,
 They thrust aside the glamorous warring Pairs,
 Whose primal name and form is Pleasure-Pain ;
 They come to Me, the Universal Self,
 And enter into My eternal Peace).

To realise in mind, that the very nature of the world-process, of all life, of separate individuality, is necessarily, unavoidably, inevitably, a mixture of joy and sorrow, good and evil, that we cannot have gains without pains, nor pains without gains, so long as we feel identified with separate bodies ; and, thus realising, to experience and bear both joys and sorrows with 'equable' mind, with 'peace' at the heart ; and to go on discharging duties without craving for selfish recompense ; this is to transcend the Duality, "to fling off the Twins," and the three guṇa-s, triple functions of the mind, cognition, desire, action, in which the primal Duality is inherent and which in turn are inherent in that Duality.¹

Yasmin vi-ruddha-gaṭayo hy-anisham paṭaṇṭi
 Vidyā-ḍayo vi-viḍha-shakṭaya ānu-pūrvyā
 ...Tasmai sam-un-naḍḍha vi-ruddha-shakṭayē
 Namah Parasmai Purushāya Vēḍhasē. (Bh)
 (In whom opposéd Forces ever swirl
 Against each other, whirling the whole world
 Unceasingly, Him we adore in heart.)
 Prakṛtīḥ ubhaya-koti-sparshīnī ;
 Purushah madhyasthah. (Bhāva-Prakāśha).

¹An English poet has caught the idea well :

Joy and woe are woven fine,
 A clothing for the soul divine ;
 Under every grief and pine
 Runs a joy with silken twine,
 It is right it should be so ;
 Man was made for joy and woe ;
 And when this we rightly know,
 Safely through the world we go.

(WILLIAM BLAKE)

(Nature doth ever swing between Extremes, Holding the Balance, stands midway, Her God.)¹

Zarathustra says :

Aṭ tā māinyū po-uruyé Yā yémā khafenā asravāṭém manahī chā vachahī chā shya-oṭhano-ī. Hī vahyo akém chā, āos-chā huḍā-onghaho. Érésh vīshyāṭā no īṭ duzhadā-ongho.

Aṭ chā hyaṭ tā hém māinyū jasa-étém paurvīm ḍazdé ga-ém chā ajoyā-īṭīm chā. Yatha chā anghaṭ apémém anghush achishto drégvaṭām aṭ ashā-ūné vahi-shṭém mano.

Hamém ṭaṭ vahishta-chīṭ yé ūshurayé syas-chīṭ dahmabyā, kshayañs, Mazhadā Ahurā !, yéhyā mā
ā-ithīsh chīṭ dva-éthā ; hyaṭa a-énanghé drégvaṭo é-é-ānū īshyeng anghahyā. (Z., Gāthā, 30. 3, 4 ; 32. 16).²

¹“The two inscriptions on the Delphic Temple, (in Greece)—‘Nothing too much’ and ‘Know thyself’—were complementary. If you have too much of anything, you cannot know yourself....The moral equipoise—the Golden Mean—is the attainment of god-head. Freedom and restraint, the ‘Do-s’ and the ‘Don’t-s’ in the moral world, act like the centripetal and centrifugal forces in the physical, to keep a balance.” Inazo Nitobe, Ibid.

²The Samskr̥t form of these, in prose order, is :

Aṭha yau paurvyau [purāṇau] manyū yamau svaphaṇau [sva-ṭanṭrau iva] ashruyētām ṭau manasi cha vachasi cha syoṭhané [sāḍhané, karmaṇi] cha [ṣṭah].
Ṭau vahīyas [varīyas, puṇyam] cha, agham [pāpam]
cha. Anayoh su-ḍhāh [su-ḍhīh] r̥sh [r̥ṭam, saṭ, saṭyam], vīkshaṭī, no īṭ ḍur-ḍhāh [ḍur-ḍhīh].

Aṭha cha yaḍā ṭau manyū paurvīm samajasētām.
(sam-asajaṭām or sam-ajasaṭam, taḍā) gayam cha.

(These two Primordial Principles in One,
 Of Light and Darkness, Good and Ill, that seem
 Apart from one another, yet are bound Inseparably together, each to each—
 In Thought, in Word, in Action, everywhere
 Are they in operation; and the wise
 Walk on the side of Light, while the unwise
 Follow the other until they grow wise.
 These ancient Two, in mutual wrestle-play
 Give birth to Twin-Desires, high and low,
 That shape as Hate-Mentality in some,
 In others as the Better Mind of Love
 O Mighty Lord of Wisdom, Mazadā !,
 Supreme, Infinite, Universal mind !,
 Ahūrā !, thou that givest Life to all !,
 Grant me the power to control this mind,
 This Lower Mind of mine, this egoism,
 And put an end to all Duality,
 And gain the reign of One—as is desired ajyātim cha (? cf. rayim cha prāṇam cha, vāk cha prāṇah cha) dadhē (dadhaté). Yathā (yadā) cha asoh apamam (? asu-bhrtsu, jivésu up-aitām, tadā tau) drug-vaṭām (dhrug-vaṭām, droha-vaṭām) achisṭam (anishtam), ashāvaṭī (ashā-vaṭām, ? shubh-āshā-vaṭām, ushā-vaṭām, jyotiṣh-matām) vahisṭam (vasishtham, varishthām) manah āsat (āṣṭām).

Hé Kshayan Ahura Mazdā !, (? A-kshaya, asūn prāṇān rāti dadāti itī Asurah; Mahat, Buddhi-tattvam, Brhat, tam Mahantam dadhāti, itī Mahā-dhāh), samam tat chit (syāt) Vahisṭam, yat swasya dambhasya (ahamkārasya) Ishwarah chit (syam), yatra mé dvaitasya atih (itih, antah, syāt); yat énasā druga-vantah (api) asunā (prāṇéna, hrdayéna) evam éva ishyanti (ichchhanti).

Unconsciously, by e'en the graceless ones,
The evil sinners, in their heart of hearts.)¹

The fact of this all-permeating Duality is signified pre-eminently by the very Names, in opposed Pairs, given to God in Islām as well as Vaidika Dharma. He is Al-Awwal and Al-Akḥir, Ādi and Anta, First and Last, Alpha and Omega; He is Al-Bāṭin and Az-Zāhir, Avyakṭa and Vyakṭa, Inner and Outer, the Un-manifest and the Manifest, the Uni-versal Un-Conscious, Sub-Conscious, Supra-Conscious, and the Individual and Particular Conscious, the seed of the tree and the tree of the seed; He is Al-Bādī and Al-Jāmi, Srashtā and Samhartā, the Spreader-out and the Gatherer-in; He is Al-Muhiyy and Al-Mumit, Bhava and Hara, the Giver of Life and the Giver of Death; Al-Muzil and Al-Hādī, Māyī and Tāraka, the Mis-Leader, Mis-Di-Rector, Tempter, Degradar, Tester, and also the Guide, Leader, Teacher, Rector, True-Di-Rector, Cor-Rector; Al-Qaḥḥār and Ar-Razzāq, Rudra and Shiva, the Angry Overwhelmer and ¹All the Gāthā texts have been taken from the very painstaking and illuminative edition of the Gāthas, with Samskrṭ, English, Gujrāṭi translations and notes, by J. M. Chatterjee and A. N. Bilimoriya; (Cherag Office, Navsari; pub: 1932).

²The words within square brackets, in the Samskrṭ version above, have been added by the present writer, as suggestions; the English translation is a free version of that by J. M. Chatterji, but care has been taken to preserve the same sense.

the Auspicious Nourisher; Al-Ghazzāb and Al-Ghaffār, Yama and Kshamā-vān, the Punisher and the Forgiver; Al-Jabbār and Al-Karīm, Ghora and Dayālu, the Severe and the Compassionate; Al-Jalil and Al-Jamīl, Shāstā, Prabhu, Ishvara, and Maḍhu, Maḍhura, Sundara, Kānta, the Lord, Ordainer, Sovereign, Awesome, Terrible, and the Beautiful, the Beloved, the Friend of All.

The vibhūtiś, glories, guṇas, attributes, sifāt, of the Supreme are all in pairs of opposites, classifiable under the two main categories of aishvarya and mādhurya, jalālī and jamālī, lordliness and sweetness, awesomeness and beauty, majesty and mercy, sovereignty and parentity.¹

¹In the Jewish Kabala (Qabbālah), the attributes of the Supreme Being, which correspond to the types or aspects or kinds of creation, are called the ten Sephiroth, the emanations of Adam Kadmon (Ādam Qaḍīm), the Ancient Man, the Eternal and Infinite Macrocosm. The ten are: The Crown, Wisdom, Prudence, Magnificence, Severity, Beauty, Victory, Glory, Foundation, Empire. Wisdom is called Jeh or Jāh; Prudence, Jehovah; Severity, Elohīm; Magnificence, El; Victory and Glory, Sabaoth; Empire or Dominion, Adonai. Other names and aspects are mentioned, as, Sephira, the Androgyne (Arḍha-nārī-shvara, in Skt.); Hakama, Wisdom; Bīnah, Intelligence; Hesed, Mercy; Geburah or Eloha, Justice; Tiphereth, Beauty; Netzah, Firmness; Hod, Splendor; Jesod, Foundation. Hakama, Hesed,

Confucius says :

Yang and Yin, male and female, strong and weak, rigid and tender, heaven and earth, sun and Netzah are the three male Sephiroth, known as the Pillar of Mercy; Bīnah, Geburah, Hod, are feminine, and named the Pillar of Judgment; the four Sephiroth of the Centre, Kether, Tiphereth, Jesod, and Malkuth, are called the Middle Pillar. (H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, II, 205, 213, 215).

From the Zoroastrian scriptures, especially the Ahura Mazadā Yasht, the learned have made up lists of twenty, fifty-three, eighty-one, and one hundred and one, names of Ahurā Mazadā, which is the most famous name; as Allah is the most famous of the hundred names of God given in the Qurān. Some of the more eminent names are: Fraksh̥tīya, the Sustainer, (cf. Vedic Su-prksh); Avī-tanya, All-pervading, (V. Abhi-ṭanya); Vīspa-vohu, All-Good; Asha-vahishta, Supreme Truth; Khratu, Supreme Knowledge, (V. Kraṭu, Persian Khrad); Chishṭī, Supreme Wisdom or Consciousness, (V. Chit); Spāna, Supreme Holiness; Sévishta, Almighty; Avanéma, Invincible; Vīspa-hishas, All-seeing; Dātā, Creator (Skt., Dhātā); Thrātā, Preserver (Skt., Trātā); Dūrac-ḍaishṭā, Far-seeing; Spashta, Watcher; Pātā, Saviour; Znātā, All-knowing; Isc-Kshathroyotēma, Omnipotent Ruler; Vīspa-van, Conqueror of All; Vīspa-tash, Architect of the Universe; Ahurā, Lord of Life (V. Asu-rah); Mazadā, Lord of the Great Creation, Lord of Ideation and Wisdom (V. Mahat-ḍhā); and so on. These Zoroastrian names, corresponding Samskr̥t words, and English explanations, have been kindly supplied to me by Dr. Irach J. S. Taraporevala, Principal of the M. F. Cama Athorvan Institute, Anḍheri (near Bombay).

moon, thunder and lightning, wind and rain, cold and warmth, good and evil, high and low, righteousness and humaneness,...the interplay of Opposite Principles constitutes the universe¹...The final principle of an undivided One is Tai Chi, 'the great ridge-beam; out of it develope Yang and Yin.'²

Ri is reason or law, Ki is matter; the two give rise to all phenomena, physical and spiritual...There are two phases of Ki—Yin and Yo (Chinese Yang). The latter is light, positive, active, male; the former dark, negative, passive, female. All phenomena owe their origin to the action, reaction, interaction, and counter-action of these forces...Sometimes Yin is spoken of as water, Yo as fire;"³ in Skt., agnī-sho-mīyam jagat, 'the world is made of fire and water, heat and moisture.'

Laotze says :

Tao is divided into a principal Pair of Opposites, Yang and Yin. Yang is warmth, light, masculinity; also heaven. Yin is cold, darkness, femininity; also earth. From the Yang force arises Schen, the celestial

All these names, that have been given to the Supreme Spirit, the Mystery which runs the Universe, by the various scriptures, are mentioned here to draw attention to the identity of thought of all the religions, as to the attributes of that Mystery, the Eternal, Infinite, Universal Principle of all Life and Consciousness, give it what name we may.

¹Suzuki, History of Chinese Philosophy, 15, 16, (pub: 1914).

²Wilhelm and Jung, The Secret of the Golden Flower, a Chinese Book of Life (1931), 12, 13.

³Inazo Nitobe, Ibid., 345.

portion of the human soul; from the Yin force arises Kwei or Poh, the earthly part. As a micro-cosm, man is in some degree a reconciler of the Pairs of Opposites. Heaven, earth, man" (God-Nature-Man, Īshvara-Jada-Jīva) "form the three chief elements of the world, the San-tsai" (Saṃsāra, World-process).¹

The Greek philosopher Heraclitus says:

God is Day-Night, Winter-Summer, Love-Hate, War-Peace, Repletion-Want, Heat-Cold, Death-Life, Youth-Age, Waking-Sleep, Creation-Destruction.

Har kamālē rā zawālē, wa har zawālē rā kamālē.
(Persian proverb).

(Every virtue has its vice;
Every vice its virtue, too)

Subūṭ-i-shay ba zidd-i-shay. (Persian philosophical maxim).

(Each thing is proven by its opposite.)

Omnis determinatio est negatio.

(All determination is negation of the opposite.)

¹ C. G. Jung, Psychological Types, 267, quotes this from Lao-tse's Tao-te-king. He also quotes Goethe's Faust, to illustrate the familiar idea of man's dual nature, his two selves, higher and lower, altruist and egoist:

Two souls, alas!, within my bosom dwell;
The one doth hanker after love's delights,
And clings with clutching organs to the world;
The other, mightily, from earthly dust
Would mount on high to the ancestral fields.

Many other Eastern and Western poets have expressed the idea more powerfully. The Upanishads speak of dvā supārṇā..., 'two birds dwelling in this tree of life,' the human body.

Sarv-ārambhā hi doṣhēṇa

ḍhūmén-āgnir-iv-āvṛtāh. (G.)

N-āty-anṭam guṇa-vaṭ kin-chiṭ,

n-āty-anṭam doṣha-vaṭ ṭaṭhā. (Mbh.)

(As fire doth carry smoke within itself,

So every action carries a defect ;

Naught is there wholly good or wholly bad.)

Life is a perpetual choice between endless pairs of 'rival ills.' Right choice, which will, in any given time, place, and circumstance, bring most happiness and least pain, which will reconcile antagonisms, is the choice inspired by the Spirit which stands permanently in the Middle between the two extremes of Nature ; which impartially 'tastes and tests all things, and holds fast that which is good,' most good, viz., It-Self ; which always avoids excess, excessive attachments, by loves or by hates, to the objects of the senses, things other than the Universal Self. Such seems to be the teaching of all religions as well as all sciences.¹

THE NEED FOR SCIENTIFIC RELIGION. Religion is as necessary as science. As said before,² so

¹ If the reader cares to pursue the question, Why and How Duality, Trinity, etc., arise within the One ; Multiplicity in Unity ; Change within the Changeless ; he may look into the present writer's The Science of Peace, or, for briefer statement, into the second and third chapters of The Science of the Self. Endeavour is made there to expound the ancient teachings, on the subject, in the terms of modern western philosophy and psychology, as far as possible.

² See pp. 16, 34, supra.

long as human beings suffer from and fear pain and death, and look before and after, and think about such things, so long will the human heart and head demand, and will not be denied, the solace that only religion can give. When anguish wrings the heart, then we overwhelmingly realize that it shall not profit a man anything if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul. If they are not given true and scientific religion by the philanthropic and the wise, men will inevitably swallow the false and superstitious religion given to them by priestcraft.

Only those who cannot 'look before and after', cannot think, at all, about such things, as the animals, have no craving for religion. Also those who have thought very deeply and very far; examined all the before and all the after; seen all there is to see; found the Eternal Now and the Infinite Here, the Ever-present and the Omni-present, between the Before and the After; found the secret in their own Infinite Self—they also no longer crave religion. They have achieved the purpose of Religion. The perfection of Religion can alone abolish the need for it. At the present stage of human evolution, such perfected souls are not many. The vast mass of mankind feel that need acutely, intensely, perpetually. That is why Religion survives. If it decays and dies in one form, it forthwith takes a new birth.

Yas-tu mūdha-ṭamo loké,
yash-cha buddhéh param gaṭah,

Dvā-vimau sukham édhété, klishyaṭ-yaṇṭariṭo janah.

(He who is wholly dull, without a mind ;
He who has gone beyond the reach of mind,
And found that which gives being to the mind,
And is established in the Mid twixt Pairs ;
These two are well ; those restless, 'tween, are ill.)

As a western writer has observed, "mankind has one innate, irrepressible, craving, that must be satisfied....the yearning after the proof of immortality."

The end of Religion is to transcend Religion.
When the end has been found, the means are dropped :

Nis-ṭrai-guṇyé paṭhi vicharaṭo
ko viḍhiḥ ko nishédhah. (SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA).

(The soul which finds the path that goes beyond
The 'three' that bind, knowledge-desire-and-act,
It hath no further need for 'Do-s' and 'Don't-s').

Rab ras Rab shuḍ, ṭamām Rab rā Rab nīṣṭ ;

Har jā khurshéd aṣṭ, ān-jā shab nīṣṭ.

Sufi shuḍ nīṣṭ, nīṣṭ rā mazhab nīṣṭ ;

Bā Yār raṣīdah dīgar maṭlab nīṣṭ. (S.)

(Who findeth God becometh wholly God ;

And unto God there is no other God.

Where the sun shines, can there be any night ?

The 'knower' is non-est ; his lower self,

Of low desires, has been effacéd now ;

To such 'non-est', Religion is 'non-est.'

He who hath found the Loved One, hath no more Craving or need for any object left.)

If it be true, as it obviously is true, that the human heart has an ineradicable conviction that there is something beyond this life, and yearns to know about it and its relation with this life; if it be true, as it evidently is true, that science is for life, and not life for science; then surely man cannot and will not accept as final, the view that the present conflict between science and religion is incurable. Such a view means that Truth is self-contradictory, that science is not consistent in all its parts. But this cannot be. It must not be. Truth, Science, Védā, Haqīqat, Mā'rifa, Gnosis, Jñāna, (all meaning the same thing), must be all-inclusive, all-explaining, all-reconciling. Otherwise, it is not Truth. This common conviction shows forth from behind the most hostile-seeming words.

The man of modern style piques himself on eating, drinking, bathing, sleeping, dressing, housing, travelling, doing all things in short, in the name of science and law. The man of older style has been trying to do all these same things in the name of God and religion.¹ Yet the two modes are not antagonistic, not even really different. 'In the name of God' means, among other things, 'In the name of God's Nature'; and, therefore, of the laws of that Nature in all its departments, physical as well as superphysical or psychical; whereas 'in the name of science and law' means, at present, 'in the name of the laws of only the physical department of Nature as recognised and utilised in man-made law'. Science, in the limited sense of physical science, is imperfect religion, is one part of religion. Religion, in the full sense, is larger science, is the whole of science. We owe debts and duties not only to our own and our fellow-creatures' physical bodies, but also to the 'souls', the 'superphysical bodies'. The rules of religion, i. e., of the larger science, enable us, at least ought to enable us, to discharge all these wider debts and duties. They should also secure to us, all sinless joys which are rightly due to us.

Yato Abh-yudaya-Nis-shréyasa-siddhih, sa Dharmah.
(Vaishéshika Sūtra).

(Religion, Dharma, is that which brings Joy,
In the Life Here, and the Hereafter, too.)

Religion has been described as 'the command or revelation of God'. This only means, in other words, 'the laws of God's Nature,' as revealed to us by the labours, intellectual, intuitional, inspirational, of the seers and scientists of all religions and all nations. The obeying of these should obviously bring happiness in this life as well as the life beyond this life.

THE UNIVERSAL RELIGION—THAT IN WHICH THERE MAY BE UNIVERSAL AGREEMENT. We have heard of the three R's long enough. This fourth R', of genuine Universal Religion, is more important than them all, and ought to be added to them everywhere, in every school and college. But it has to be carefully discovered and ascertained first. It behoves all sincere educators to help in this work by applying the scientific method of ascertaining 'agreements amidst differences.' What are the elements common to the great living religions ? What are the agreements between them ?

We may also call that method, in terms of the democracy in vogue at present, the method of majority-rule. Those truths which all the great living religions vote for—they should be prominently taught to the younger generation.

IMPERATIVE DUTY TO TEACH SUCH UNIVERSAL RELIGION. Some people, bewildered by the rival bigotries, fanatic cries, and bitter hostilities, indulged in by misguided persons, in the name of religion, ask : What right have we to impose upon our children, such evil things, such religions as create enmity between man and man, darken and make foolish the minds, and blind the eyes, of all ? If religion were dispensable, the question might be answered readily in the negative : We have no right. But it is not dispensable, as indicated before.¹ We have therefore to answer the question by saying that we have as much right, nay, as much imperative duty, to teach religion, as we have to teach arithmetic, geography, history, science. Nay, more right and duty ; for these other things, however desirable, however useful, are not so indispensable for comfort of soul. We teach these other things to our children for their good, out of our love for them. And we try to teach what we have ascertained, by our best lights, to be good and true and useful for them. If we make mistakes, it is because we are human and liable to err. Because food now and then disagrees, we cannot stop all eating. We must make only greater efforts to ensure its healthiness of quality and quantity. So in Religion we must make the greatest efforts to ascertain what is most indubitable, most in accord with the best science, and, more than all else, is most approved and agreed in by all concerned, and most likely to promote good-will and active sympathy between all human beings. This is the very and only way to allay those dazing and amazing cries and bigotries and hostilities.

¹See pp. 16, 34, 51, supra.

Let us examine the matter in another fashion. It is indisputable that the vast majority of human beings are born into their religions, inherit them, and cling to them exactly in the same way and for the same reasons as they do to inherited property. If a new-born Muslim child and a new-born Hindū child were exchanged and brought up, the one in Hindū, the other in Muslim, surroundings, they would grow up and feel and think and behave as Hindū and as Muslim respectively, and not as Muslim and Hindū. The same would be the case if the landholder's baby were exchanged with a banker's or a peasant's. At the same time, it is equally indisputable that anyone and everyone can withdraw his faith from any religion and put it in any other, whenever he likes, can put off one and put on another at will. Yet also, the vast majority of human beings crave, indeed everyone in the secret depths of his heart somewhere yearns, for religion in its deepest sense—of contact with, assurance of, support by, refuge and rest in, the Immortal. All this clearly signifies that Religion is necessary to man; that no particular form of religion is indispensable; that there are two alternatives open to us, either to reject all religions or to accept all religions; that both are impracticable; and that, therefore, the only practical, as also the best, most satisfying, and wise course, is to sift out the elements of Essential Religion from the non-essential (though, for their time, place, and circumstances, useful) forms, of all the great particular religions extant, and feed the younger generation with those vital grains, instructing them that the husks are useful only for preserving and storing the grains in, and not for eating and assimilating.

Some others hold that the work that Religion did, or was supposed to do, in the past, and did badly, if at all, has been taken up and is now being done by Philosophy, Science, Law, and also Art, in three or four separate departments of life; and, therefore, no Religion, old, reformed, or new, is needed any longer. The reply to this is that man is not a trinity only, in three separate parts, but is essentially a Unity; something is needed to coordinate, to unify, to organise, to articulate with each other, Philosophy, Science, Law. That is Religion, 're' and 'legere', to bind together anew, again, the hearts of all to each other and back again to God, from Whom the temptations of the earth cause those hearts to stray away. Vedānta-Tasawwuf-Gnosis is all three; it is a Religion which includes the essentials of Philosophy, Science, Art; or, if we prefer it so, a Philosophy which synthesises Religion, Science, Art. We should call to mind again, here, that the latest speculation of the most renowned scientists tends to reduce all matter to atoms and super-atoms, para-m-ānus, electrons, protons, neutrons, plutons, positrons, etc.; these to electrical energy; that, finally, to Mind-force

The most passionate advocate of the utmost possible 'liberty' for the younger generation, who urges that it should be allowed to grow up according to its own 'free-will', its own 'inner promptings, inclinations, likes and dislikes', still unavoidably, helplessly, actively, teaches something to the young; and that something is necessarily what he thinks best and most useful for them to learn! The Bolsheviki Communists of Russia are teaching 'Communism' to their young, most intensively; the Fascists of Italy, 'Fascism'; the Democratists of Britain, U.S.A., France, 'Democratism'. Each, in words, professes 'liberty' for youth; but largely relies for its success, on imbuing youth with its own ideas! The element of truth, in the plea that 'the younger generation should be allowed to grow up, in liberty, freely, according to its own inner promptings, inclinations, likes and dislikes'—the truth in this, and a very important truth it is, is that, each individual of the new generation, should be not only allowed, but carefully educated and trained, for the vocation which is most in accord with its particular temperament, its likes and dislikes, its tastes and interests.¹ But over and above this special education, there should always be, for all the individuals of the new generation, the general essential cultural education in the four R's. Of course, after the new generation has attained its majority, and stands on its mental as well as physical feet, it will be at liberty to change, modify, discard, forget, replace with something else, any or every part, essential or non-essential, general or special, which it has been taught during its minority. As a fact, we see hundreds of persons changing their religions everyday; as they change their 'minds' and 'parties' and 'schools of thought', in politics, history, science, philosophy, art, etc. Indeed, the changes have become so numerous and so frequent that we have a maddening welter of 'isms' today. The reason is that, in all these departments of thought and life, clear and definite, deliberate, knowledge of the essentials, of the psychological and philosophical basic principles, the fundamental facts, laws, needs of human nature, has been largely lost sight of. To revive memory of the Essentials is the only cure everywhere.

AGREEMENT OF RELIGIONS. It has been said before that the new proclamation, of Universal Religion has to be made on 'democratic' lines,

¹ Fuller exposition of this subject is attempted in The Science of Social Organisation, by the present writer.

i. e., the lines of 'majority-rule,' speaking broadly and generally, (though not quite fully and with scientific exactitude, which will be attempted later). On these lines, those truths and practices which receive, not only the greatest number of, but unanimous, votes from the living religions, those beliefs and observances on which all are agreed, should obviously be regarded as constituting Universal Religion. That there is agreement between the great religions, that all teach the same essential truths, their promulgators themselves are all agreed. We have their clear assurances on this point.

The Upanishats say :

Gavām anēka-varṇānām

kshīrasy-āsty-ēka-varṇatā ;

Kshīra-vaṭ paśhyaṭe Jñānam,

linginas tu gavām yaṭhā. (U.)

(Cows are of many different colours, but

The milk of all is of one color, white ;

So the proclaimers who proclaim the Truth

Use many varying forms to put it in,

But yet the Truth enclosed in all is One.)

Jāma-é saḍ-rang z-ān kḥumm-é safā

Sāḍa-o yak-rang gasṭah chūn ziyā. (S.)

(Jesus put many cloths of many hues

Into one jar. and out of it they came

With all their hues washed off, all clean and white,

As seven-colored rays merge in white light.)

Kṛṣṇa says, and not once but twice :

Mama varṣm-ānu-varṣanté

manushyāh, Pārṭha !, sarvashah. (G.)

(To but One Goal are marching everywhere,
All human beings, though they may seem to walk
On paths divergent ; and that Goal is I,
The Universal Self, Self-Consciousness.)

This is "the one far-off," yet also always very near, "divine event to which the whole creation moves" perpetually. Zoroaster teaches :

And we worship the former religions of the world devoted to righteousness. (Z., Yasna, XVI. 3).

Aṭ toī anghén Saoshyāntō ɖasyūnam. (Gāthā, 48. 12).
(Even the ɖasyus, tribes uncivilised,
Will have Saoshyāntas, apostles, sent
To give them teaching and look after them).

Kung-fu-tse (Confucius) was a younger contemporary of Lao-tse. Buddha lived and taught in India, the younger sister of China, in those same days. China has adopted Buddha together with Lao-tse and Confucius as her trinity of great Teachers. Confucius says :

I only hand on ; I cannot create new things.

Buddha and Jina speak of past and future Buddhas (i. e., the Enlightened Ones) and Tīrthan-karas (i. e. 'the makers of the fords or bridges' by which men may cross safely to salvation) who reveal the same fundamental truths, again and again, for the benefit of humanity, only revivifying, confirming, enforcing them by the fire and fervour of their lives.

Is there anything whereof it may be said, See, this is new ? It hath been already of old time, which was before us...There is no new thing under the sun. (B., Eccles.)

Christ (i e., 'the anointed with Divine Wisdom') says :

I come not to destroy the law or the prophets, but to fulfil them. (B.)

The great teachers confirm, at most supplement, not supplant, one another.

Kṛṣṇa says that the teaching he is giving to Arjuna was given by Vivasvān to Manu, by Manu to Ikshvāku, and then by many Ṛshis, age after age. All is always present in the Memory of God, the Omni-scient, Omni-potent, Omnipresent Universal Self, the One Principle of all Life and Consciousness.

Muhammad (the Paigham-bar, the Rasūl, i.e., the 'message-bearer', 'sent' by the Spirit) says :

Innahū la-fī zubūr il-awwalīn ;

Le kullé qaumin hād ;

In min ummaṭīn illā khālā fī hā nazīr.

Lā nofarriqo baīnā ahaḍīm min rusuleh.

Wa mā arsalnā min qablikā mir-rasūlīn illā nūhi ilāihé annahū, lā ilāhā illā Anā, fa'-buḍūn. (Q.)

(This that I am now uttering unto you,

The Holy Qurān—it is to be found

Within the ancient Seers' writings too ;

For Teachers have been sent to every race.

Of human beings no community

Is left without a warner and a guide.

And aught of difference we do not make—

For disagreement there is none 'twixt them—

Between these Prophets. All that have been sent,

Have been so sent but One Truth to proclaim—
 “I, verily the I Al(I)-One, am God,
 There is no other God than I, [the Self,
 The Universal all-pervading Self],
 And I alone should be adored by all”.)

The Qurān makes this further quite unmistakeable :

Wa mā arsalnā mir-rasūlin bi-lessāni qaumehī.

Wa kazālika auhainā ilaika Qurānan A'rabi-yal letunzera umm-al-qorā wa man haulahā.....Wa lau ja-a'lnaho Qurānan a'jamiyal la qālū lau la fussilaṭ āyātohu. (Q.)

(Teachers are sent to each race that they may Teach it in its own tongue, so there may be
 No doubt as to the meaning in its mind.
 An Arabic Qurān is thus revealed,
 That Macca and the cities round may learn
 With ease the Truth put in the words they know.
 For had we made them in a foreign tongue
 They surely would have made objection thus—“Why have not these revealings been made clear ?”)

The obvious significance of this remarkable text is that the essentials are common to all religions: that Truth is universal and not the monopoly of any race or teacher; that non-essentials vary with time, place, and circumstance; that the same fundamental truths have been revealed by God in different scriptures, in different languages, through different persons born in different nations.

And the Prophet adds the positive counsel :
 Kul ṭā'lau elā kalemaṭin sawāim bain-anā wa
 baina-kum. (Q.)

(Let all of us ascend towards, and meet Together on, the common ground of those High truths and principles which we all hold.) (Verily, all who faithfully believe
 In God, and Day of Judgment, and do good,
 Whoe'er they be, Jews, Christians, Sabians,
 They shall have their reward from the Lord God.
 There is no fear for them, nor shall they grieve.)
 (Q., ii, 62)

Wa ṭasému ba hubba Ilāhī jamīyan, wa lā ṭafarraqu. (Q).

(Cling, all, to the strong rope of Love Divine —Love for each other, and of the One God—
 And do not think of separation ever.)

So too does the Veda enjoin on all :

Samānī va ākūtiḥ, samānā hr̥dayāni vah,
 Samānam astu vo mano, yaṭhā vah

su-sahā-saṭi.

Samānī prapā, saha vo anna-bhāgah,
 Samāné yokṭré saha vo yunajmi,
 Samyancho Agnim saparyāṭa,
 Arā nābhim iv-ābhiṭah.

San-gachchhadhvam, sam-vadaḍhvam,
 Sam vo manāmsi jānaṭam. (V.).

(Your heart, mind, object—may all these be One,
 So shall you prosper, all, and live in peace ;
 In common be your food and drink and work ;
 God harnesses you all to the same yoke ;
 The sacrificial Fire of Spirit tend
 Ye all with one intent, as spokes the nave.
 Walk ye together on the Path of Life,
 And speak ye all with voice unanimous,
 And may your minds all know the Self-Same Truth.)

Seek to be in harmony with all your neighbours ;
live in amity with your brethren. (C., Shu King.)

Be ye all like-minded, compassionate, loving as brethren, tender-hearted, humble-minded, not rendering evil for evil, or reviling for reviling, but contrariwise blessing...Be of one mind, live in peace. (B., Corinthians.) God is no respecter of persons. But in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him. (B., Acts.) There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female ; for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. (B., Galatians.)

Christianity, through the mouth of Justin the Martyr, declares :

Whatever things have been rightly said, among all men, are the property of us Christians.¹

Faqaṭ ṭafāwaṭ haī nāma hī kā
Dar asl sab éka hī hain, yāro !
Jo āb-i-sāfi ke mauj mēn haī
Usī kā jalwā habāb mēn haī.

(But the names differ, beloved !
All in Truth are only one !

In the sea-wave and the bubble Shines the lustre of one Sun !)

Rūh bā a'ql o i'lm dānaḍ zist,
Rūh rā Ṭāzī wa Tūrkī n-iṣṭ (S., ATTĀR.)

Rūh bā a'ql-aṣṭ o bā i'lmaṣṭ yār,

Rūh rā bā (Hindu o Muslim) che kār. (S., RŪMĪ)

(By loving wisdom doth the soul know life.
What has it got to do with senseless strife
Of Hindū, Muslim, Christian, Arab, Turk ?)

¹Quoted by J. E. Carpenter, The Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World.

The Vedic scriptures repeatedly reiterate that the soul has no creed, caste, color, race, or sex.

Indeed only the names, the words, differ. The thing meant is the same. Allāh means God, Akbar means greatest; Īshvara or Dēva means God, Parama or Mahā means greatest; Allāh-Akbar literally means Param-Ēshwara or Mahā-Dēva. The Zoroastrian Ahura-Mazdāo (equivalent to the Samskr̥t Asura-Mahad-dhā), also means the 'wisest' and the 'greatest' God. Rahim and Shiva both mean the (passively) Bene-volent and Merciful; Rahmān and Shaṅkara both mean the (actively) Bene-ficent. Dāsa and Abḍ both mean the servant; Qādir and Bhagavān both mean Him who is possessed of Qudrat, B h a g a, A i s h v a r y a, Might, Lordliness; Bhagavān Dās is absolutely the same as Abḍul-Qādir, the Servant of God the Almighty.

Such is a preliminary illustration of the fact that differences between religions are differences only of words, names, languages; or of non-essential superficial forms; and sometimes of emphasis, on this aspect of the Truth, or of Virtue, or of Duty, rather than another; never, of Essential Ideas. The Founders of Religions, i. e., the Re-proclaimers, in new forms, of the One Universal Religion, have laid greater stress, now on this, now on that other, aspect of the One Religion, as needed by the special times, places, circumstances, in which they lived. The essential Religion, vidyā, irfān, Wisdom, is eternal, universal, im-personal, all-personal, unchanging, in substance—like geometry ; the t a p a s, 'fire and fervour', 'blazing heart-energy', 'passionate compassion', 'ascetic glow and inspiration', of the 'magnetic personality' of each Re-proclaimer, is new, is his fresh 'personal' contribution, and gives a new form to the eternal substance.

THE JOY OF AGREEMENT. To some minds at least, the work of pursuing and discovering and clasping to their heart such agreements is a great joy, and the opposite process of dwelling upon the differences alone, a sheer pain.

Khush-tar ān bāshaḍ ke sirré ḍil-barān
Gufta āyaḍ ḍar haḍise ḍīgarān. (S.)
(It is a great delight to find One's own thought in another mind—
The secret of the Lovely One,
Disclosed in others' narration,
Giving Him meed of highest praise
In delicately worded ways).

Iṭi nānā pra-sankhyānam
ṭaṭṭvānām kavibhīh kṛṭam ;
Sarvam nyāyyam yukṭi-maṭ-ṭvāt, viḍushām kim asāmprāṭam. (Bh.)

(In varying ways the sages have described
The same unvarying and essential truths ;
There is no real conflict twixt them all ;
The knowers know the way to reconcile.)

The most beautiful face cannot see and appreciate its own beauty until it looks into a mirror. As the Sūfis say, God had to look into the mirror of Non-being, a'ḍam, a-saṭ, s h ū n y a, in order to behold and realise the infinitely varied beauties that lay hidden in Him-Self. A'yuniyaṭ-i-haqiqī, Āṭm-āḍvāiṭa-saṭṭā, the Truth of the Self's Oneness, Ownness, is realised only by means of Ghairiyaṭ-i-ēṭabārī, Itar-ābhāsa, Dvāiṭa-mithyāṭva, the Falsehood, the Illusion, of hypothetical, suppositional, Otherness, which has no real existence.

Dar āyīna gar-che khud-numāi bāshaḍ,
Paiwasta ze khwēsh-ṭan juḍāi bāshaḍ,
Khud rā ba libās-i-ghair diḍan a'jab aṣṭ,
K-īn b-ul-a'jabī kār-i-Khudāi bāshaḍ. (S).

(The vacant looking-glass doth show the Self,
Yet in that Self there is an Otherness !
Marvel ! In mask of Other to see Self ;
This shining miracle of miracles
Than God's Own Self None-Other can achieve !).

The Play, Krīḍā, Laīb and Lahw, of God is an Inter-play of love, Ishq-bāzī, Rāsa-līlā, between God's Self and His reflected image, an-Other, the same yet not the same, indeed reversed. We cannot realise the full significance of our own thoughts until we see them reflected in another mind. That is why speakers wish to be heard, authors wish to be read, artists wish to be appreciated, by others. To cognise an idea through the veil of one language only, is to see it with one eye only, as it were, from one standpoint, in one perspective only. To see it through another language also, is to see it with both eyes, from many angles of vision, through a stereoscope. A new fullness of meaning breaks out from the two sets of words, and stands forth in clear relief, almost independent of all words. Communion between two friends brought up in two different cultures, but able to realise the underlying identity of the spirit of refinement and enrichment of life, is more interesting than that between friends brought up in the same culture. It has the charm of a more diverse-sided novelty, of travel in a new country, full of friendly hospitality, with scenes, foods, drinks, dresses, manners, flowers, fragrances, as beautiful, as tasteful, as delicious, as gracious, as those of one's own, yet also different. That is why God's L-one-ly Self, to vary the mono-tony, broke forth into infinite multi-tony.

To be able to recognise the Dearest of Friends only if He is clothed in one dress and no other, is not to know the Friend at all, but only the Dress. Beloved! I will dress you in many dresses; in the kimono of Japan, the mandarin coat of China, in the ava-sīya and uṭṭariya, the golden shāta-pata, of India, in the shawls of Kashmere, in the abā and choḡhā of Persia, in the burnous of Arabia, in the multiform hats, blouses, jackets, coats, petticoats, gowns, shirts, shorts, trousers, kilts, of the several countries of Europe, in the plumes of the Amer-indian, the toga of the departed Roman, the mail of the medieval knight of Asia and Europe! Beloved! will you not be able to recognise your own True Self, your own Beautiful Face, your own Gracious Goodness, in all these disguises, when a mirror is placed before you each time your garments are changed? Beloved! you must recognise your own voice and your own meaning, surely, whether you speak in Samskr̥t, or Arabic, or Hebrew, or Greek, or Latin, or Chinese, or Japanese, or Zend, or Pāli, or Prākṛ̥t, or Gurmukhi, or any of the thousands of languages you yourself are always inventing, and forgetting from time to time, in order to fashion newer others for your Infinite Play and Pas-time!

Underneath, soaked through and through, permeating, pervading, holding fast together, all Multitude, remains ever the Unity. This is the One Fact to be remembered always.

Pots, pans, jugs, jars, tumblers, decanters, kettles are many and of many shapes; the water in them all is one. Lamps and lanterns are many and of many shapes; the light is one. Wood, coal, oil, fuels are many and of many shapes; the fire is one. Living organisms are many and of many shapes; the life in all is one. Religions are many and of many forms and formalities; the Universal Religion is One.

“In China, when strangers meet, it is the custom for each to ask his neighbour, ‘To what sublime religion do you belong?’ The first is perhaps a Confucian, the second a Taoist, the third a disciple of the Buddha. Each then begins a panegyric on the religion not his own; after which they repeat in chorus, ‘Religions are many, reason is one, we are all brothers'.¹ The critic of one temperament will exclaim, "Hypocrites!"; of another, may burst out, "Old fogeys, marionettes, idiots!"; of a third, unfortunately rarer perhaps, to-day, would say, "Just, wise, and courteous!". Experts of different sciences, of different arts, wedded and loyal and faithful each to his own favorite, can yet admire, nay, reverence, if they are real and thoughtful experts and not bumptious quacks, the same common factor of genius, skill, unremitting application, manifesting in all.

The saintly statesman, Prince Regent Shotoku of Japan, "one of the best known figures in Japanese history, for whom, when he died in 621 A. D., the old wept as if they had lost a child, and the young as if they had lost a parent," reconciled the indigenous religion Shintoism, and the newly come Buddhism and Confucianism, when conflict between the priests threatened to fill the land with dissensions, in this wise: "Shinto is the source and root of the Way, and, shot up with the sky and the earth, teaches man the primal Way; Classicism (Confucianism) is the branch and foliage of the Way, and, bursting forth with man, it teaches him the Middle Way; Buddhism is the flower and fruit of the Way, and, appearing after man's mental powers matured, teaches him the final Way. Hence, to love one in preference to another, only shows man's selfish passion....The introduction of another foreign system of faith will add a new cubit to the stature of the Nation's mind, without depriving its predecessors of their authority; indeed each new creed enlightens the old."¹

¹J. Estlin Carpenter, The Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World, p. 60.

The poet has well said :

Mockery is the fume of little hearts,
And noble manners come from noble minds.

And again,

Let knowledge grow from more to more
But more of reverence in us dwell,
For fear divine philosophy
Should shoot beyond her mark and be Procuress to the lords of hell. (TENNYSON.)

"The teaching of sects,' said Lu Shun Yan, a distinguished Buddhist scholar, 'is not different. The large-hearted man regards them as embodying the same truths. The narrow-minded man observes only their differences'....The wisdom in all ages, entering into holy souls, maketh them friends of God, and prophets".²

Ṭāfraḡā ḡar nafs-i-haiwānī buwad ;
Rūh-i-wāḡid rūh-i-insāni buwad (S.)
(Separatism, difference, exclusiveness,
Characterise at once the animal mind :
The soul of Oneness is the soul of man,
The soul of all-inclusive Sympathy,

¹Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Japan, 61, 370 (pub : 1931, The Modern World Series); and Enc. Brit., 14th edn., art : Japan, 930c.

²J.E. Carpenter, ibid, 66, 67.

Of Unity and of non-separateness.)

The Arabic-Persian word for man, insān, (from ins, uns, sympathy), means etymologically 'the friend of all,' 'the lover of his kind,' the 'gentle-man'. So the Samskr̥t word ārya (from ṛ, to go) means 'the person to whom others, when trouble befalls them, go for relief,' 'he who is approached for help'.

Sarva-bhūtéshu yen-aikam bhāvam avyayam ikshaté,
A-vi-bhaktam vi-bhaktéshu taj-jñānam sāttvikam smṛtam.
Prthaktvéna' tu yaj-jñānam nānā-bhāvān prthag-vidhān,
Vēṭṭi sarvéshu bhūtéshu
taj-jñānam vidḍhi rājasam. (G.)

Nivāraṇ-ārtham arṭinām arṭum yogyo bhavéṭ tu yah, Āryatē satātam ch-ārṭaṭh, sa Ārya ṛti kathyaté.
(Through all forms whatsoever runs One Life,
Immortal, making indivisible
All those that seem divided endlessly—
The higher, sāttvik' wisdom seeth thus.
But that which takes the separate-seeming many
As many only, separate for ever—
That sight is of the lower rājas' mind.)
(He who is worthy to go to, for help,
For persons in distress, and unto whom Such ever do resort—true Ārya, he).

THE ESSENTIAL AND THE NON-ESSENTIAL.

That all the creeds and practices, all the parts, of any religion, are not equally important, not essential, is patent. All religions themselves make distinctions between the obligatory and the optional, the mohkamāt and the mushābihāt, the niṭya and the kāmya. That duty varies with time, place, and circumstance, is also plain, and is plainly stated too in all religions.

Dēsha-kāla-nimittānām

bhedair-dharmo vibhidyatī ;

Anyo dharmah sama-sṭhasya

vishama-sṭhasya ch-āparah. (Mbh.)

(Changes of time and place and circumstance

Always cause changes in the duties too.

The law for men is one in time of peace

And quite another in calamity.)

Anyé Kr̥ṣṇa-yugé dharmās-Ṭrētāyām Dvāparé-paré,

Anyé Kali-yugé nr̥iṇām, yuga-hrāsā-nu-rūpaṭah. (M.)

(As men change character and ways of life,

So change the laws their elders make for them ;

Both vary, side by side, from age to age.

One law is for the Golden Age of Truth,

And ready 'doing' of loved Elders' words ;

Another for the Age when Sin is born ;

Yet other for the Age when equal Strife

Is waged twixt Vice and Virtue ; and a fourth

Is needed for the Time when Discord reigns).

To everything there is a season, and a time for every purpose under heaven...a time to be born and a time to die ; to plant, and to pluck up ; to kill, and to heal ; to break down, and to build up ; to weep, and to laugh ; to keep silence, and to speak ; to love, and to hate ; a time of war, and a time of peace. (B., Eccles.)

Inna-kum fī zamānin man ṭaraka min-kum

a'shra mā omera behī halaka ; summā yāṭī

zamānun man ā'mela min-hum be-a'shra

mā omera behī naja. (H., Ṭirmizī.)

(Ye now are in an age in which if ye

Shirk even one-tenth of what is ordained Ye will be ruined. After this will come
 A time when he who will do e'en one-tenth
 Of what is ordered now will be redeemed.)

The greatest of all Sūfī writers, Maulānā Jalāl-ud-dīn Rūmī, has used strong language in distinguishing between the essentials and the non-essentials, pradhāna and gaṇa amśha, asl and furū', of religion. Describing the purpose of his work, the famous Masnawī, which is accepted by the Muslim world generally as next to the Qurān itself in holiness, he says:

Man ze Qur-ān maghẓ rā bar-dāshṭam,
 Uṣṭukhān rā bar sagān anḍākṭam (S.)
 (The marrow from the Qur-ān have I drawn
 And the dry bones unto the dogs have cast.)

As regards the profound respect in which the Masnawī is held among the learned divines of Islām, a verse is current among them:

Man che goyam wasf-i-ān ā'lī janāb,
 N-ist paigam-bar walé ḍaraḍ kiṭāb.
 (How may we well describe this great soul's greatness !

He is not called a Messenger from God,
 Yet in his hands he holds a Holy Script.)

Jesus has a saying, similar to Rūmī's, about "casting pearls" before those as yet unable to appreciate them. Kṛṣṇa condemns in very plain terms those who are always harping upon outer ritual and neglecting inner wisdom.

Yām imām pushpitām vācham pra-vaḍaṇ-ya-vipash-chiṭaḥ,

Vēda-vāda-ratāh, Pārtha !,
n-ānyaḍ-ast-īti vāḍinah. (G.)

(They who are always praising Vedic rites
And ceremonies, saying there's naught else
Worth thinking of, are very foolish men.)

Even the benevolent Masters have, now and then, to use strong, almost harsh, language, when it is necessary to shake very heavy inertia !

From another standpoint, for the purpose of gradually leading on the child-soul from the in-essential to the Essential, from the symbol to the meaning, we are advised to "Give milk to babes and meat to the strong", (B.). Even Moses and Muhammad are scarcely able to look on the Nūr-i-Qāhir, 'the blinding effulgence of the Face of God wholly unveiled.' Even Arjuna trembles when his eyes are opened for the briefest instant to 'That Glory greater than a thousand suns' (Gītā), the Glory of the Universal Self, on beholding which, all small individual selfhood and self-ishness shrivel into nothingness.
Therefore,

Apsu dēvā manushyānām,
divi dēvā manishinām,
Bālānām kāshtha-loshtéshu,
budhasy-Ātmani Dēvaṭā. (Purāṇa.)

(Child-souls may find their gods in wood and stone ;
More grown-up souls in sacred lakes and streams ;
The older-minded in the orbs of space ;
The wise see Him in all-pervading Self.)

We speak wisdom among the perfect or initiated, not the wisdom of this world, nor of the archons of this world, but divine wisdom in a mystery, secret—which none of the archons of this world know. (B., Paul).

Jesus says :

To you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven, but to them it is not given. For whosoever hath (the key) to him shall be given, and he shall have more abundance, but whosoever hath not (and is likely to misuse), from him shall be taken away even that (which) he hath. (B.)¹

THE NATURE OF RELIGION. But in order to make our investigation, very brief and merely suggestive as it must be here, somewhat systema-¹In the minor Eleusinian Mysteries of Greece, a sow was washed to typify the purification of the neophyte, as her return to the mire indicated the superficial nature of the work that had been accomplished : H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, II, 493. See the articles 'Mystery' and 'Eleusis' in the Enc. Brit. The rites and ceremonies of the Vedic yajña may be regarded as an earlier form of such 'mystery-initiations'.

These minor and major Eleusinian Mysteries, into which only the select were initiated, are constantly referred to in Greek literature. All the great dead religions had their 'mysteries' and their ceremonial initiations of the worthy into them. They were dramatic ceremonies, symbolising the psychical, moral, and also physical trials and tests of the progress of the soul from stage to stage in real evolution, through which the person under initiation was passed. The intention seems to have been to prepare for the real life's trials and tests. Sometimes, this preparation was so severe that nothing in real life could be more so ; as, today, in the case of the physical 'endurance' and other tests and rehearsals of athletes, racers, aviators, swimmers, film-thrillers.

tic, we should try first to ascertain, even though only rapidly, the nature of what is called Religion.

The word 'religion,' which is in use in the Christian world, is derived from Latin words (re and legere, or ligare) which mean 'to bind back'; that is to say, it means that which binds human beings to each other in the bonds of love and sympathy and mutual rights and duties; binds them all also to God; endeavours to lead them back to that World-Soul, from Whom their lower nature makes them stray away again and yet again, in too eager following of the objects of the senses; and keeps their minds fixed on that Supreme Principle of Unity amidst the press of all their daily work, in order to enable them to do that work with proper balance, righteously. The power to bind together the hearts of men to one another, by the common bond of God, the All-pervading Self, is the power to give birth to, and to nourish and maintain, a high civilization. It is noteworthy that every historic civilisation has had, and has today, its specific religion, its worshipped ideal. Indeed, the birth of a new religion, i.e., a fresh re-viv-al of the spirit of religion, whence united co-operation, has invariably preceded and given birth to a new civilisation.

The corresponding Vedic word is Dharma, from Dhr, to hold and bind together, which has exactly the same significance.

The 'holding together' of human beings in a 'society' is not possible without perpetual 'give-and-take', 'right-and-duty', incessant little or great acts of self-sacrifice, yajñā, qurbānī. The self-assertion of any one individual is not possible without corresponding self-denial on the part of some other or others. And vice versa. More; each individual, to secure selfish self-expression, must impose upon himself some unselfish self-repression, self-restraint, self-denial, also. Egoism and altruism make each other possible. Each disappears without the other. Such is the Law of Duality, which pervades the Multiplicity of the world-process, in subordination to the supreme Law of Unity. Hence, we have the Law of Sacrifice, yajñā, qurbānī, of one's own smaller self's lower desires, in ever-growing degree, from birth to death of body.

Sah yajñāḥ prajāḥ śṛṣhtvā

pur-ovācha Prajā-paṭih—

Anēna pra-saviṣhyaḍhvam, ēsha vo-ṣṭ-vishta-kāma-ḍhuk. (G.).

(By sacrifice of His own Perfect Being, 'His Else-denying 'Singleness of Self,'

The Lord created countless Progeny

Of 'Many selves,' together with the Law

Of Sacrifice, and gave them this command :

"By Mutual Sacrifice. by Mutual Help,

Shall ye all grow, prosper, and multiply ;

This is the cow will milk you all rich things.")

The self-sacrifice of each smaller self for the sake of the larger Self, which is felt to be embodied in Society as a whole; and the corresponding self-sacrifice of that larger Self or Society for the sake of each smaller self, which is felt to be integral part of the whole—this mutual self-sacrifice, though internally motivated by all-wise Philanthropic Love, has yet to be externally regulated by all-loving Wisdom; through Laws which lay down rights-and-duties, which bind rights with duties, and all human beings with the bonds of both. The feeling, and the implicit and explicit recognition, of the omni-presence of the larger Self, and of one's particular smaller self being a part of, and subordinate to, It, as a cell or a tissue in an organism; this feeling, this recognition, may be said to be the quintessence of 'religion' or 'religiousness'. The conscious conviction that every 'finite' is created, ideated, maintained, 'held together', and periodically manifested and in-drawn, by the Infinite; this, and corresponding philanthropic desire and action, may be said to make up the whole of Religion.¹

The word Islām has a profound and noble meaning which is, indeed, by itself, the very essence of religion. Derived from salm, peace, shānti, it means the 'peaceful acceptance' of God; the calm resignation and 'surrender', pra-ni-dhāna, pra-paṭṭi, of the small self to the Great Self; the letting out of egoism and the letting in of Universalism; na-ma-s-kāra, na-mama, kinṭu ṭava ihā, "Thy will be done, ¹The idea is more fully expounded in the other works of the present writer, Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism, The Science of the Self, The Science of Social Organisation, and The Principles of Sanātana Vaidika Dharma, or The Science of Religion.

Lord !, not mine"; whence only the mind, the heart, at peace with itself and with all the world.

The significance of 'Dharma' is the same; for what else can 'hold together' living beings than mutual 'du(e)-ti-fulness', mutual rights-and-duties, through common 'submission' to the Will of the Divine Self? The very important question arises here at once: How may human beings ascertain what the Will of the Divine Self is, generally, and, even more, in particular cases. The answer, in brief, is: (a) The Universal Essential Religion, Scientific Religion, Spiritual Science, tells us what that Will is, generally; (b) particularly, good-and-wise laws, defining rights-and-duties, made by good-and-wise legislators, who know, love, fear God, i. e., the Supreme Universal Self of All; who therefore disinterestedly wish well to all just interests of all sections, classes, vocations; who, as far as is humanly possible, are 'near God', are 'Sons of God', are embodiments of the Higher, Better, Nobler, Wiser, Philanthropic Self of the People, and who are sincerely trusted, honored, and duly selected and elected by the People to make laws;—such laws will represent the Divine Will, as nearly as possible for human beings. It is obvious that only good-and-wise laws can promote the general welfare; and that such laws can be made by only good-and-wise persons. Legislation and administration by such only can establish 'the kingdom of heaven on earth.'¹

¹For fuller exposition, the reader may see Ch. VII

The essence of Christianity is the same as that of Dharma. 'Christos' means the 'anointed,' the 'bathed in Divine Wisdom,' whence only the replacement of the small self by the Great Self.

So 'Vaidika-Dharma' etymologically means the Religion of Knowledge; 'Sanātana-Dharma' means the Nature, the Way, of the Eternal Self; 'Mānava-Dharma', the Religion of Humanity and Humanism; 'Bauddha-Dharma,' the Religion of Buddhi, Wisdom; 'Ārya-Dharma', the Religion of the Good. The other Islāmic name for religion is Mazhab, which means the 'Way,' i. e., the Way of Righteousness, the Path to God and Happiness.

'Dharma' is also a triple Way, sub-divided into three intertwining Mārgas or Paths, of Knowledge, of Devotion, of Works. Buddhism, as we have already seen, also describes itself as the Middle Path, and, again, in greater detail, as the Ashtāṅga Ārya Mārga, 'the Noble Eightfold Path.' But, always the One and only Path is the Path of Non-Egoism, of Unselfishness, Tark-i-khūdī, Asmitā-tyaṅga, whence True Knowledge, Right Love, Righteous Action; and the only Light on the Path is the Light within, "the Light that lighteth every one," the Light of the One Self.

Jyotiṛ-Ātmani, n-ānyaṭra, sarva-jantushu ṭaṭ samam. (Bh.)

of The Science of the Self, and the other works of the present writer, referred to there.

Christ has said : " I am (i. e., is) the Way, the Truth, and the Life." To know that (the) I (is) am all selves is to know the Truth. To love all selves as my-Self is the right Life. To do unto all selves as to my-Self is the righteous Way.

Shinto, (the word is said to be Chinese), the ancient religion of Japan, now practically merged into Buddhism, is Kāmi-no-michi, (in the Japanese language), 'the Way of the Spirits,' 'the Divine Way,' 'the Way of God'. Kāmi are the indwelling spirits—all sparks of the One Spirit. The name of the religion given by Lao-tse to China is Tāo, which, again, means the 'Way'.¹

¹"The idea of the middle path, that lies between the opposites, is found in China, in the form of Tao... The meanings of Tao are (1) Way, (2) Method, (3) Principle, (4) Nature-force or Life-force, (5) the Regulated processes of Nature, (6) the Idea of the World, (7) the Primal Cause of all phenomena, (8) the Right, (9) the Good, (10) the Eternal Moral Law. Some even translate Tao as God...Lao-tse, (born 604 B. C.), in Tao-te-king, says: Tao seems to have existed before God...It is indefinable, perfected,...formless, al-one, unchanging, inexhaustible, beyond reasoning, unseizable, nameless, existing and non-existing also....Dwelling without desire, one perceiveth its essence; clinging to desire, one seeth only its outer form...The kinship with the basic Brahmanic ideas is unmistakeable—which does not necessarily imply direct contact...The primordial image underlying both the R̥ṣa-Brahma-Ātmā and Tao conceptions is as universal as man,

In every case what is meant is the Way which leads to happiness, to peace, to freedom from bondage to Egoism and thence to doubts; freedom from fear of pain and death; by leading to the God within, i. e., to the realisation of the identity of the individual with the Universal Self, whence illumination and assurance of Immortality. We have seen before that so long as men fear pain and death, so long will they necessarily crave religion. It is the climax of religion itself which, by proving that all our appearing in every age, among all peoples, whether as Energy-concept, or Soul-force, or however else it may be designated...The knowledge of Tao has therefore the same redeeming ('freedom'-giving, 'salvation'-bringing, 'moksha'-bestowing) and uplifting effect as the 'knowing' of Brahman...The complete one (The perfected 'son of God', kāmil, mukṭa) is beyond intimacy or estrangement, profit or injury, honor or disgrace...Being one with Tao resembles the spiritual condition of a child; (compare the verses of the Gītā, to the same effect):" C. G. Jung, Psychological Types, 264-266. What else can the Essential Concept be than 'as universal as man', when it is the Essence of Man him-Self, is his very Self! What in the Veda-mantras is named Satya and Rta, is mostly called Brahma and Dharma in the Upanishads and Smṛtis, or Purusha and Prakṛti or Sva-bhāva in some of the Darshanās. The words Brahma and Dharma include all the meanings, ascribed above to Tāo; it will be readily noticed that they are all closely allied as aspects of the same thing, and shade off into one another.

pain is self-inflicted, (since it comes only as consequence of our own selfish desire), and by annihilating the fear of annihilation, can abolish the need for religion. When man has found God, his own Eternal and Infinite Self, and has thrown away his smaller self, he has himself become the Truth, the Life, the Way, and no longer needs any other way to God.

Whichever track we try, we always come round to the one and only way—of merging the small self in the Eternal Self.

THE THREE ASPECTS OF RELIGION. We may distinguish three main parts or aspects in all the great religions. In the Vaidika Dharma, they are expressly mentioned: the Jñāna-Mārga, the Bhakti-mārga, the Karma-mārga. Generally corresponding to these are, the Haqiqat or Aqāyad, the Tariqat or Ibādāt, and the Shariyat or Mā'milāt, of Islām. Gnosis, Pietas, and Energeia; the (a) Way of Knowledge, Illumination, Gnosticism, (b) the Way of Devotion,

Dr. Michiji Ishikāwā, in his paper on 'Shinto Theology', (The Religions of the World, I, 371-377; pub: by the Ramakrishna Mission Institute of Culture, Calcutta, 1938), says: "Shinto is the All-pervading Universal Way...According to Shinto mythology Ame-no-mi-na-ka-nushi (Heaven-centre-ruling Deity) is the Absolute Universal Self, from which both Kankai (visible) and Yukai (invisible) worlds have come into existence through the activities of the three deities of Musubi, Principle of Creation, Completion, and the Controlling Bond between; (cf., Brahma-Shiva-Vishnu)."

Pietism, Mysticism, (c) the Way of Rites and Ceremonies and Works of self-denying Charity, Activism, Energism, Practicalism—these seem to be similarly distinguished in Christian theology, and to have the same significance. In the Buddhist Eightfold Path, the three most important, under which the other five may be classified, are Right Knowledge, Right Desire, and Right Action—Samyak-dṛṣṭi, Samyak-saṅkalpa, and Samyak-vyāyāma; which are the same things as the three Vaidika Mārgas. The Jaina teaching is the same:

Samyag-darshana-jñāna-chārityāṇi Moksha-mārgah.

(UMĀ-SWĀMI, Tattv-ārtha Sūtra)

(The way to Liberty is Right Desire, Right Knowledge, and Right Conduct—three in one).

Darshana here stands for ichchhā or bhakti, and chāritya for kriyā or karma.

I am the (a) Truth, (b) the Life, (c) the Way. (B.)

Sharī'at-rā shaār-e-khwēsh sāzaḍ,

Ṭarīqaṭ-rā wisār-e-khwēsh sāzaḍ,

Haqīqaṭ-khuḍ maqām-e-zāṭ-e-Ū dān,

Buwaḍ ḍāyam miyān-e-kufr-o-īmān.

(S., Gulshan-i-Rāz.)

(His outer garment woven is of Works ;

His inner, of Devotion's ecstasy ;

Him-Self, Knowledge of Truth, that wears the two Standing between belief and unbelief.)

Yogās-ṭrayo mayā proktāh,

Jñānam, Bhaktish-cha, Karma cha. (Bh)

(Three Yoga-ways have I declared to men—
Of Knowledge, of Devotion, of right Deed).

Vāg-ḍando-(a)ṭṭha mano-ḍandah kāyā-ḍandas-ṭaṭṭha-iva cha,
 Yasya-itē nīhitā buddhau
 ṭṭi-ḍandī-ṭi sa uchyatē. (M.)
 Kāyēna samvaro sādhu, sādhu vāchāya samvaro,
 Manasā samvaro sādhu, sādhu sabbatṭha samvaro,
 Sabbatṭha sambuṭo bhikkhū sabba-dukkhā
 pamuchchaṭi. (Dh.)
 (Good is it to control the thought, the speech,
 The act ; the wise man who will thus restrain
 All these, he will, for sure, cast of all pain ;
 He is the true thrice-self-ruled san-nyāsi.)

In these three words, knowledge—desire—action, jñāna—icchā—kriyā, or ilm,— khwāhish—fa'l, or a'rf—irāda—a'mal, we find indicated, in terms of psychological science, the reason why all religions have this threefold nature.
 The human mind has three aspects. Human life is one incessant round of conscious or subconscious knowings, wishings, and doings. Only if we know rightly, wish rightly, and act rightly, can we secure happiness here and hereafter, for ourselves and our fellow-creatures. Religions teach us what are the most important items under each of these three heads, and how we may secure them.

A triad almost more frequently met with, is that of right thoughts-words-deeds ; mano-vāka-karma ; khayāl-qaul-fa'l ; humata-hukṭa- huvarshṭa, (Z.)¹ Here, 'words' stands for 'desire'.

¹Humata is, in Skt, su-matam, right-thought, well-

Manasy-ékam, vachasy-ékam, karmany-ékam mah-ātmanām,
 Manasy-anyaḍ, vachasy-anyaḍ,
 karmany-anyaḍ ḍur-ātmanām. (Mbh.)

(In the great soul, thought, word, and deed are one ;
 In th' evil, all are diff'rent, each from each.)

Civilizations are also, correspondingly, made up of (a) bodies of knowledge, science, learning, (b) of special tastes, aspirations, ideals, ruling passions, and (3) of characteristic ways of living, behaviour, forms of enterprise. The larger, the more varied, the more carefully ascertained the knowledge; the nobler, the more aesthetic, artistic, philanthropic, the ideals, tastes, aspirations, emotions; the more refined the ways of living and the more humanitarian and wide-reaching the enterprises and activities—the greater and higher the civilization.

Thus does the quality of every civilization thought; hu-khṭa is su-ukṭam, right-words, well-spoken; hu-varshṭa is su-vrshṭam, su-varhiṭam, su-vrdham, su-kṛṭam, well-done, well-worked, well-rained, right-deeds).

Compare the Upanishad verse :

Ēshā ḍaivī vāg anu-vaḍaṭi śtanayitnūr, ḍa-ḍa-ḍa
 iti, ḍāmyata-ḍaṭṭa-ḍayaḍhvam. (U.)

(Heaven, with voice of thunder, counsels us

'Ḍa-ḍa-ḍa'—Do deny your lower self,

Do deeds of charity, and do take ruth

On all the weak and frail and innocent.)

depend upon its working out of the threefold principles of its religion.¹

THEIR RELATION TO EDUCATION. Educationists in particular should always bear in mind the fact that the pupil is a unity of intellect, emotion, and physical body, and that that education only is good which informs the intellect with true and useful, cultural as well as vocational, knowledge, ¹Various religions and sects, philosophies and schools, civilisations and epochs, emphasise various aspects, facets, parts of the same One Universal Way and Life and Truth; though all necessarily expound, implicitly, if not explicitly, all the aspects; for these are all inseparable. Thus, one emphasises knowledge more; another, devotion; another, action; one stresses (comparatively changeless) Rest; another, changeful effort, Evolution, progress; another, cyclicity and periodical balancing: one, the Shiva-aspect of the Absolute, Peace, repose, abstention from restlessness; another, the Shakti-aspect of the same, Power, Libido, Elan Vital; another the inclusion of the latter within the former; one more prominently embodies and expresses Law and Order; another Beauty, Music, Fine Arts generally; another Trade, Enterprise, Colonial activity; another, Martial ardour. Which religion or civilisation express and embodies which aspect most—opinion as to this will, again, at least partly depend upon the personality of each observer. Thus, one person may think Buddhism mainly philosophical, rationalist, Intellectual; another as compassionate, benevolent, philanthropic, hence Emotional; another as renunciant of comforts for the bhikshus themselves, but ministrant towards the general public, hence Actional.

disciplines the emotions and the will into a strong, fine, righteous character, and trains the body into hardy health, active strength, handsome shape and occupational skill.

This trinity is also good, nay, very necessary, for educationists to bear in mind for another vital purpose, if the indications in the old books be right. In modern educational theory and practice, while, no doubt, some valuable additions have been made, in the way of tests of degrees and kinds of intelligence, attention does not seem to have been equally given to the testing of the kinds of temperaments; i. e., whether the element of knowledge predominates in the pupil, or of action, or of desire. Yet without such testing, the secret of the discovery of the vocational aptitude of the student, and of appropriate education and subsequent proper fitting into society, is not likely to be found.¹ Expert details too often swamp vital principles, in science as well as in religion. So, the wise priest, minister of soul and keeper of conscience, will discriminately guide each parishioner along the way of either works, or devotion, or knowledge, according to his inner requirement. So, the wise physician, minister of body, will prescribe only after ascertaining the patient's temperament, constitutional peculiarity, personal idiosyncrasy, diathesis.

¹For fuller exposition, the reader may see The Science of Social Organisation.

CHAPTER II.

The Way of Knowledge ; i. e., The Intellectual Constituent of Religion

THE WAY OF KNOWLEDGE. The Haqāyaq, basic 'truths,' Daqāyaq, 'deep' things, Ma'arifāt, the 'knowledges,' A'qāyad, 'beliefs,' which form the object of the Jñāna-kānda of Religion are but few. Nay, there is but one ultimate Truth. The errors are numberless. There is but one straight line, the shortest distance, between two points. The curved lines between them are beyond count. All that is true and right in knowledge, in feeling, in conduct, is but corollary of the one Truth. The whole of geometry is pre-contained in the definitions, the postulates, the axioms. A Samskr̥t verse says that the whole of arithmetic is contained in the Rule of Three.

Sarvam traī-rāshikam pātī.

And the whole of religion, the whole of philosophy, the whole of science, is contained in the 'Rule of Three' also, the Trinity-in-Unity, God-Nature-Man. God includes Nature and Man.

1. God. The one basic Truth of truths is that Man is in essence one with God ; that Nature is God's Nature, the unchanging Self's ever-changing garment ; that the meaning and purpose of life is that God has forgotten himself into man, and man should remember himself into God again; that Spirit has entered into, put on body of, more and more dense Matter, along the Path of Pra-vṛtti, (Pursuit of sense-objects, Av-āroha, Qaus-i-Nazūl, the Arc of Descent), and has to rise again to It-Self along the Path of Ni-vṛtti, (Renunciation, Ā-roha, Qaus-i-Urūj, the Arc of Ascent); that Allah, the Universal Self, has individualised It-Self, has superimposed upon Its true Pure Selfness (or Ownness, Oneness, Pure Being, That-ness, Ta-t-tva m, Thing-in-Itself, Self-in-Itself, Pure Identity, Ayniyat-i-haqiqi, Shuddh-ādvaita m), an illusive Suppositions Other-ness, (False Hetercity, Pure Nothing, Asa-t-tva m, Ghairiyat-i-étabār, Mithyā-i-tarātā); that Brahma, (Param-Ātmā, Khudā-i-murakkab, 'All-including God'), has imagined Itself by Māyavic Will-and-Imagination, (Kāma-Sankalpa, Shuyūnāt), into Jiva, (Jiv-ātmā, Khudā-i-muayyan, 'particularised god'), and has to realise Itself as Universal Self again. All the religions state this Truth, in different ways. They also say that it is very simple, yet very difficult, too, to realize—because we are too strongly interested yet in selfish 'errors', and do not wish to turn to the un-selfish Truth of the All-One-Self.

As the Sūfis say :

Chīst dūnyā ? Az Khudā ghāfil shudān ;

Nai ke mā'sh o nuqra o farzand o zan.

Na gum shud ke rūy-ash ze dūnyā be-tāft,

Ke gum-gashtāe Khwēsh rā bāz yāft.

Na koi parḍā hai Us-ke ḍar par,
 Na Rūye raushan naqāb mēn hai,
 Tū āp apnī khudī se, ai dīl !,
 Hījāb mēn hai, hījāb mēn hai ! (S.)
 (The 'world' is but forgetfulness of God ;
 It is not spouse and child, silver and gold.
 Who from this world did turn his face away,
 He was not lost ; indeed, instead, he found
 His long-forgotten and lost Self again.
 No bar guards His palace-gateway,
 No veil screens His Face of Light—
 Thou, my heart !, by thine own self-ness,
 Art enwrapped in darkest night.)

Laotse says :

Knowing the Eternal means enlightenment ; not knowing the Eternal causes passions to arise, and that is evil. (Tao-te-king).

Kṛṣṇa says the same :

Manushyānām sahasrēshu
 kashchid yaṭaṭi siddhayé, Yaṭaṭām cha sahasrānām kashchin mām vētti ṭaṭṭvaṭah.
 Shraḍdhā-mayo-yam purushah, yo yaṭ-shraḍdhah sa éva sah. (G.)

(One here, one there, from among myriads, setteth
 Forth on the quest of Me, hidden in all !
 And, of the few that seek, fewer find Me ;
 For many do not seek Me steadfastly.
 But he who seeketh Me with heart resolved,
 He surely findeth Me, his inmost Self !)
 Ye cannot serve God and Mammon both...
 Strait is the gate that leadeth unto
 Life, and few there be that find it...
 Few are chosen though many come. (B.)

Ham Kḥuḍā kḥwāhī wa ham ḍunyā-i-ḍūn ;
in kḥayāl-asṭ o muhāl-asṭ o junūn ! (S.)

(That thou shouldst seek for God and this world too—

Vain is the wish, futile insanity !)

Samsāra-vāsanā-yukṭam mano baḍḍham viḍur-buḍhāh ;
Ṭaḍ-éva vāsanā-tyaktam
mukṭam iṭ-yabhi-ḍhī-yaṭé. (U.)

(Bound by mundane desire, the mind is bound ; Freed from that same desire, the Spirit is free.)

But,

If ye attain to God and His kingdom of righteousness, all things else shall be added unto
you. (B.)

Eṭaḍ-éva viḍiṭvā ṭu yo yaḍ-ichchhaṭi ṭasya ṭaṭ. (U.)
(Knowing the Truth, whate'er ye wish ye find.)

Kḥuḍā ko pāyā ṭo kyā na pāyā
Sabhī milā jo milā Kḥuḍā hai !
Zarā ṭu sochai, kabhī bhī Khāliq
Sé Us-kī khilqat huī juḍā hai ?
Sabhī ṭo Main hūn, sabhī ṭo Mērā,
Hamésḥa āṭi yahī niḍā hai !
Ṭuhī hai Khāliq, ṭujhī meñ khilqat,
Kḥayāl-i-kḥāyal, ṭuhī Kḥuḍā hai ! (S.)

(If ye find God then ye have found all things !

Just think ! if the Creator thou dost find,

Can His creation still remain behind ?

Is the One ever separate from the Other ?

'Indeed I am this All, All This is Mine'—

This Word resoundeth ever from within !

Thou art Thy-Self the Thinker, and this world

But Thine own Thought, and God but thou thy-Self)

The greatness of learning which constitutes expert medical science is very imposing and commands great respect. The simple counsel to use pure air, pure drink, pure food, does not. Yet, at the best, the former can only cure disease; and, at the worst, creates new diseases. The latter will promote health and prevent disease always. But pure air, pure drink, pure food, simple though they be, are not easy to obtain under artificial conditions of life.

So, as the religions say, man having emerged from God, wanders round and round for long before he thinks of going back again to "God who is our home," nay, who is our very Self. And knowledge, of many kinds, is needed before we can 'recognise' God, the God 'within'. The prophet Muhammad said: "He dieth not who giveth his life to learning. (H.) Ali said: "Philosophy is the lost sheep of the faithful: take it up again; even if from the infidel": (ERE. IX., 878).

Ke bé-ilm na ṭawān Khudā rā shinākht. (S., SĀPI.)
(Without right learning God may not be known.)

That the Véd-ānta, the crown of the Veda, 'the final knowledge,' teaches this, is well known. But the Christian Scriptures also say to men:

Behold, the man has become as one of us. (B., Genesis.)

I have said, ye are gods; and all of you are children of the most High. (B., Psalms.)

Is it not written in your laws, 'I said, ye are gods'?
...I am the son of God. (B., John.)

Behold, the Kingdom of God is within you.

Know ye not that ye are the temple of God,
and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? (B.)

He is not far from every one of us. For in him we live and move and have our being...We are the offspring of God....The Spirit of God dwelleth in you...God is One...His Spirit in the inner man...One God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in you all. (B.)

Maṭ-ṭah para-ṭaram N-Ānyaṭ kin-chiḍasti, Dhanan-jaya! (G.)
(There is No-Other-thing-than-I, in truth!)¹

The word 'U p a n i s h a ṭ', which designates the last portion of the Veda, wherein the final knowledge is imparted to the earnest seeker only, etymologically means, "sitting very close to the teacher," who solemnly whispers the sacred secret knowledge into the year of the ardent, earnest, intense listener; for unless listened to with reverent and rapt mind, the 'psychic miracle' will not occur, the words will fail to convey their profound significance, even if trumpeted forth from tower-tops. The purport of the Arabic-Persian phrase, ilm-i-sinah, 'knowledge which is ¹For the metaphysical significance of 'I-Not-Another', the reader may look into the present writer's The Science of Peace, or The Science of the Self, if he wishes to pursue the subject further.

passed from heart to heart,' 'the doctrine of the heart,' is the same.¹

¹In all times and climes, within the fold of every religion, "a group here, a group there, has gathered together with no other motive than that of gaining a greater hold on the spiritual life than was prevalent in the ordinary circles of the people...They seem to have lived on the borderland of an unusual ecstasy, experiencing extraordinary invasions of the Divine, hearing mystic sounds and seeing mystic visions..." Among the Jews the 'Essenes' were such. They "were in possession of certain esoteric teachings, of which, those outside their ranks were uninformed..." They laid "great stress on fellowship, amounting to a kind of communism"; were apart "from the general people by reason of their sanctity"; were devoted "to the knowledge of the existence of God and the beginning of all things"; loved "allegorical interpretation..." "Silence or secrecy was frequently employed by the early Rabbis in their mystical exegesis of Scripture. A typical illustration is the following, from Midrash Rabba (a Hebrew commentary) on Genesis, III (B.): '...The sage said this in a whisper...The other asked, Why dost thou tell this in a whisper, seeing that it is clearly taught in a scriptural verse? The sage replied, Just as I have myself had it whispered unto me, even so have I whispered it unto thee'..." : J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, (1913), 18-23. The meek, the pure in heart, the earnestly and intensely seeking, alone can see God; not the flippant, the noisy, the disputatious. The laws of God's Nature are written on Nature's face; but it takes whole lifetimes of intense research by the ablest scientists to decipher one now, one again. Only the receptive open mind can receive. Even the Sun's light

The Qurān also says :

Wa fi anfuṣekum a-fa-lā-ṭubserūn. (Q.)

(I am in your own souls ! Why see ye not ?

In every breath of yours am I, but ye

Are blind, without true eye, and see Me not.)

Sūfis have sung :

Bā wujūdē ke muzhḍae ṭērā 'nahno aqrab,'

Safhe Masahaf paī likhā ṭhā, mujhe mā'lūm na ṭhā.

(Although the great glad news of Thee is writ

Plainly upon the Qurān's holy page :

'Nearer am I to thee than thy throat-vein'—

My eyes blinded with selfishness, saw not !)

The well known Kalemā of faith, the Mahā-vākya, the Logos-word, of Islām, is in terms of the third person, vīz., (Lā ilāh il-Allāh, (Q.)

(There is no god but God).

cannot come in through closed windows. Pre-occupied, pre-judiced, minds, closed by vibrant resistant active 'other'-ward, 'matter'-ward, thoughts, cannot perceive the things of the Spirit.

Incidentally, it may be noted that the derivation and meaning of the word 'Essenes' is in doubt; see Enc. Brit., art. 'Essenes'. 'Buddhist influence' is mentioned; also 'gymno-sophists'; but no western scholar seems to have thought of 's a n n y ā s ī-s' in this connection. 'Gymno-sophists' were met with, and some taken away also, by Alexander; one named Kalanos, (Kalyāṇa) is specifically mentioned by Greek writers. The word seems compounded of 'gymnast' and 'sophist', meaning h a t h a-y o g ī plus r ā j a-y o g ī, 'holy men' versed in various bodily as well as mental disciplines. Jesus is said to have lived and studied among the Essenes.

Sūfis declare that it is meant only for the younger souls who are not yet ready for the inner teaching ; and that the real Kalemā is in terms of the first person :

Wa mā arsalnā min qablikā mir rasūlin illā nūhī ilāhē annahu—

'Inni An-Allāhu lā ilāha illā Anā.' (Q.)

(The prophets, all, that ever have been sent,
Have been so sent by Me, the Supreme Self,
For but one purpose, namely, that they teach,
That 'Men should serve the Supreme Self Al-one',
That 'Verily the I, the Self, am God ;
None other than the Supreme Self is God'.)

Aham éva, na maṭ-ṭo-(a)nyad

Iṭi buddhyaḍḍhvam anjasā. (Bh.)

('I, only I, Naught-Else-than-I at all'—

This is the whole truth, understand it well).

Iṭi tē jñānam ākhyātam

guhyāḍ guhya-ṭaram mayā ;

Sarva-guhya-ṭamam bhūyah

śirṇu mé paramam vachah :

'Man-manā bhava, Maḍ-bhakto,

Maḍ-yājī, Mām namas-kuru ;

Mām év-aishyasi, satyam tē

praṭi-jāné, priy-osi mé ;

Sarva-ḍharmān pari-ṭyajya

Mām Ékam sharaṇam vraja ;

Aham ṭvām sarva-pāpébhyo

mokshayishyāmi ; mā shuchah !' (G.)

(The Ancient Wisdom have I taught to thee,
Highest, most secret, sacred ; yet again,
Hear thou the secret-most of mysteries,

The Final Word of all that 'I' can speak :
 Place thy whole mind in Me, the Supreme Self,
 And place Me, in thy mind, (and Nothing-Else) ;
 Love Me, the Universal I, al-one ;
 Perform all acts as sacrifice to Me,
 As Duty done for All-pervading Self ;
 Make salutation and submission, full,
 Unqualified, of all thy heart and will,
 To Me, the Self in Whom all selves unite.
 Give up all other ways. Come unto Me.
 'I' is the one sole Refuge of all beings.
 The 'I' will save and salve thee from all sins,
 All sorrows, prisonments of finitude,
 By giving thee Its own Infinity.)

This is the one teaching of all the prophets, r̥shis, nabīs, rasūls, a v a t̥ ā r a s, messiahs. It is given to the earnest and seeking souls, the ahl-i-dīl, 'the men of heart,' the genuine hermits, anchorites, bhikshus, faqīrs, sannyāsis, durvéshas, dīkshitas, initiates, miskīns; to the souls, that are ready to receive. It is the ilm-i-sīnā, 'the doctrine of the heart,' daqūyaq, the esoteric doctrine of the Mysteries, the parā-vidyā, 'the higher Knowledge,' rahasya, guhya, 'the Secret,' ādhyātmika artha, the 'spiritual meaning', as it is variously named in the Vedic Scriptures. Distinguished from this is the ilm-i-safīnā, 'the doctrine of the page,' 'the doctrine of the eye', 'the letter', the aparā-vidyā, 'the lower knowledge'; this only, as yet, the younger souls, the ahl-i-dāul, 'the men that seek worldly wealth,' shrāvakas, 'lay disciples,' upāsakas, grhasṭhas, householders, ordinary family-men-and-women, can apprehend and utilise.¹

¹In Christian writings, sometimes, 'prophets' are contrasted with 'priests'; as in Islam, 'sūfī auliyās' with 'shara'ī mullās'; and in Vaiḍika Dharma, jñānī-bhaktās with karma-kāndīs. Jesus rebuked and cursed the latter, whom he called the 'lawyers', i. e. priests of the 'ritualistic law': "Woe unto you, lawyers !, for ye have taken away the key of knowledge; ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in, ye hindered": (B., Luke, xi, 52). Buddha distinguished between true Brāhmaṇas and false self-styled Brāhmaṇas, (as indeed does Manu-smṛiti); and gave out, to the public, some of the ancient secret wisdom; and thus aroused hostility. Among Christians it is believed that "the Apocalypse gives the key to the divine Gnosis, which is the same in all ages, and superior to all faiths and philosophies—that secret science which is in reality secret only because it is hidden and locked in the inner nature of every man... and none but himself can turn the key:" J. M. Pryse, The Apocalypse Unsealed, p. 5. Muhammad said: "I am the city (of occult knowledge), and Alī is the gate into it." Among Muslim Sūfis, the tradition is that Alī first declared to the 'select', who were qualified and ready for it, the Ancient Wisdom, Ilm-i-Rūhānī, Ṭasawwaf, Dīvyā-jñāna, 'Theo-sophy' proper, 'God-Wisdom', 'Soul-Science', 'Divine Knowledge', 'Spiritual Science'. H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine contain a vast amount of astonishing information and profound instruction on the whole subject; but it is not easy reading. This Occult Science, Guṇṭa-Viḍyā, Ilm-i-Sinā, Ancient Wisdom, had to be kept secret, for long, (and the danger

We speak wisdom among them that are perfect.... To you is given to know the mysteries of the kingdom of God, but to them (the polla, the worldly-minded mass) it is not given... Therefore speak I to them in parables and allegories ; because, they, seeing, see not, and hearing, they hear not, neither do they understand." (B., Mat. xiii. 11, 13.)

Hear ye, indeed, but understand not, and see indeed, but perceive not. (B., Isaiah, vi. 9).

Āshcharya-vaṭ pashyaṭi kashchid-Ēnam,
 Āshcharya-vaṭ ch-Aīnam anyah shrṇoṭi,
 Āshcharya-vaḍ vaḍaṭi ṭaṭh-aīva ch-ānyah,
 Shruṭvā-py-Ēnam vēda na ch-aīva kashchit. (G.)
 (Men see, and hear, and speak of It also,
 But seeing, hearing, speaking, they see not ;
 They simply wonder, and not understand.)

Shrṇvanṭo-pi na shrṇvanṭi, jānanṭo-pi na jānaté,

Pashyanṭo-pi na pashyanṭi,

Pashyanṭi jñāna-chakshushah. (U.)

(Hearing, they hear not ; knowing, they know not,
 Seeing, they see not ; the enlightened ones
 Alone do see with wisdom-illumed eyes.

Truly the Self is sun-clear, ever near, nay nearest of all, is our very Self, yet we see not !

As the Sūfis say :

Ghāyab jo ho Khudā se, ālam hai usko hū kā,
 Anāniyaṭ hai jis-mēñ, mauqā nahīñ hai ṭu kā.

is not over yet), because, as Jesus said : ' Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you ;' (B., Matthew, vii. 6). Such is the Law of Duality. God proposes, Satan opposes, and often disposes.

Zāhidé gum-rāh ké main kis tarah ham-rāh hūn ;
Woh kahé Allāh hai, au main kahūn Allāh hūn ! (S.)

(He who is absent far away from God—
His heart can only say : 'God is,' somewhere ;
He who has found the Loved One in him-Self—
For him God is not He, nor Thou, but I.
How may I take for guide upon the Way
One who himself away from it doth stray ?
He is content to say "God is," while I Am desolate till I 'God am' can say !)

This is only an expanded and more poetical version of the Samskr̥t verse:

Astī Brahm-éti chéd véda, paroksham jñānam éva tat ;

Asmī Brahm-éti chéd véda, aparoksham tad uchyatē. (U.)

(Who says only 'God is'—he sees a screen ;
He who can say 'God am'—he, sure, hath seen.)

A g ā ṭ h ā of Zarathustra enjoins, in words which are the equivalent of the Qurānic Kalemā :
Mazadāo sakhārē mainsto.¹ (Z., Gāthā, 29. 4.)

(The Great God only is to be adored.) ॐ

As the Upanishats say :

Ātmā ev-ārē shroṭavyo, manṭavyo, niḍiḍhyāsītavyah
...N-ānyo-ṭo-stī vijñātā. (U.)

(The Self Alone is to be pondered on ;

None Else is there who knows or should be known.)

With reference to the distinction between paroksha and a-paroksha, direct knowledge

¹ (Skt: Mahā-dhāh, 'the Great All-Wise Creator' Mahā-dēvah, 'the Great God', Sakṛt, Ékalah, Kévalah,
'One and Only', 'once for all', sadā, 'always,' smarṭavyah, 'should be remembered', 'borne in mind'.)

and indirect knowledge, Arabian philosophers have said :

Al ilmo ilmān, maṭbū'un wa masmū' ; lā yan-fa
al-masmū' ezā lam yakum il-maṭbū'. (Phil: maxim.)
(Knowledge is of two kinds, that which is heard,
And that which is felt direct in the heart ;
The heard yields not full fruit until it comes Home to the soul by some experience.)
Har ke rā ḍar jān Kḥudā bi-niḥaḍ mahak
Har yaqīn rā bāz ḍānaḍ ū ze shak. (S.)
(A touchstone God hath placed in every heart ;
It separates, with surety, False from True.)
The Great God has conferred a moral sense even on the lowliest people. (C., Shu-king.)

The Christian world knows this touchstone as Conscience, Intuition, the Inner Monitor, the still small Voice of God, etc. The Vaidika (now called Hindū, or better Arya) Dharma refers to it as Anṭar-yāmī, 'Inner Monitor, Watcher, Ruler, Endo-censor' ; and in such expressions as :

Hṛdayén-ābhy-anu-jñātaḥ ; Manah-pūṭam samā-charéḥ ; Swasya cha priyam Ātmanah ; Paritosh-onṭar-Ātmanah ; Svasy-aiv-āntara-Pūrushah ; Ātmanas-tushtir-éva cha ; Kshétra-jño n-ābhi-shankaté ; Yamo...ḍévo...hrḍi sphītaḥ. (M.)

Saṭām hi sanḍeha-paḍeshu vaṣṭushu
Pramāṇam-anṭah-karaṇa-pra-vṛṭṭayah.

(KĀLI-PĀSA, Shakuntalā.)

(That which the 'Heart' permits ; which the 'Soul' likes ;
The 'God within' approves ; the 'Mind' holds pure ;
Th' 'Eternal Witness' sees as free from doubt,
Without misgiving, as straightforward course ;

Which brings pure satisfaction to the 'Self' ;
That is the course to follow, for good men.
In matters wrapped in doubt, 'to do or not'—
The 'Inner Organ' of the good is guide.)

Sākṣhiṇam baṭa kalyāṇam Ātmāṇam ava-manyasé !...
Na hr̥ṣhayam vētsi Munim purāṇam !...
Hṛḍi sthītaḥ karma-sākṣhī Kṣhētra-jñō nāsyā tushyaṭi,
Tam Yamah pāpa-karmāṇam nīr-bhartṣayaṭi pūruṣham.
(Mbh., Āḍi-parva, ch. 98.)

(He who ignores and does not satisfy,
But disobeys, the One, auspicious, pure,
Perpetual 'Inner Witness', the 'Own-Self',
The 'Ancient Sage', all-knowing, who abides
In every heart, recording every act,
Him Yama doth award dire punishment.)

Iṣṭaṭṭhē qalab-ak. (H.)

(Consult thine own heart, if thou art in doubt).

In every heart there dwelleth a Sajin (Sage) ; only man will not steadfastly believe it—therefore hath the whole remained buried. (WANG-YANG-MING)¹

Our knowledge is obviously of two sorts, (1)
that derived from personal first-hand experience, a very small portion, but the most certain, and
(2) that based on the testimony of others, far the larger portion. In Samskr̥t philosophy, the two are called pratyakṣha 'immediately before the senses', 'directly cognised,' and śābda or āgama, that which has been described in 'words' by, has 'come' from, others ;

¹Quoted from the Confucian-Laotsian writings of Wang-Yang-Ming, "the Chinese father of Japanese philosophy", by Jung, Psychological Types, 269.

in Arabic-Persian, maṭbū' and masmū' ; also, with a slight difference, mā'qūlāt and manqūlāt ; in European, direct and traditional, first-hand and second-hand.

L'Illāhé al-annāsi hujjaṭain, zāhiraṭun wa bāṭinah ;
hujjaṭ-uz-zāhira he-al-ambiyā w-ar-rasūl ; hujjaṭul-bāṭina he-al-u'qūl.

(Two proofs are there of Deity, for men ;
The outer is the prophets' witnessing,
The inner is our own rational mind.)

In the case of one's own intelligence and praṭy-aksha or direct observation, again, two kinds (or rather degrees) are recognised by all. Christians speak of intellection and instinctive perception or intuition ; Vaidikas, of sādhā-rāṇa-jñāna (ordinary knowledge) and yoga-jā-jñāna or samādhī-jā-jñāna or prātibha-jñāna (knowledge born of yoga, or samādhī, or praṭi-bhā) ; Musalmāns, of ilm-i-laḍunnī, or ilm-i-wahbī, or -wajḍānī, or -ilhāmī, or -kashfā, or -ishrāqī, (i. e., sudden, inspirational, illuminational, risen like the Sun), and ilm-i-kasabī, or -iktisābī, or -nazārī, or -istiqlālī, or -mashhāyī, (i. e., labored, argumentative, inferential, pedestrian).

All kinds of cognition, as also of desire and of action meet and merge in the Self. It is Self-luminous and Illuminator of all others. It senses It-Self, perceives It-Self, infers It-Self, intuites It-Self, desires and loves and lives It-Self, 'acts,' wills, maintains, asserts It-Self—eternally.

The well-known Sūfī exclamations, An-al-Haq, Haq-tu-ī, Qalab-ul-insān bait-ur-Rahmān, are exact equivalents of the Upanishat utterances, Aham Brahma, Tat tvam asi, Īsha ma Ātmā antar-hṛdayé, Hṛdayam tasmād hṛdayam; 'I am the True, the Real, Brahma; That thou art, too; the heart of man is the abode of God'; and of the Biblical declaration: "Ye are the temple of God." Khālīfā Ali declared:

Qalab-il-momin a'rsh-Illāhī.

(The heart of him who knows, and so believes
With full assurance, is the throne of God.)

Christ said: "I and my Father are one." The Old Testament of the Jewish faith, especially the Book of Isaiah, also utters this same great kalemā, this ma hā-vā kya, logion, ten times and more, viz., "I am (i.e., the Self is) God and there is None-Else".¹

Zoroastrian scriptural utterances, with the same significance are:

Ajém toi āish pouruyo fravoīvīdē; vīspéng anyéng manyéush spasyā dvaéshanghā.
Na échīm tēm anyém Yūshmađ vaéđā.

¹This is the Hebrew form of the Arabic Kalemās, 'Lā-ilāh il-Allāh' and Innī an-Allāhu, lā ilāhā illā Anā, 'There is no god other than Allāh', and 'Verily I am (i.e., is) God; there is no God but (the) I'; and also the Zoroastrian logion, 'Mazađāo sakhāre mairisto', 'Mazađāo alone is to be always ever contemplated and adored.' For an attempt at a philosophical exposition of the

Tém né yasnāish ārmaitōish mimaghjo,

Yé ānménī Mazadāo srāvī Ahuro.

Paré vāo vīspāish paré vaokhēmā.

(Z., Gāthās, 44.11 ; 34 7 ; 45.10 ; 34.5)

(Thee only do I know to be Supreme !

All others I dismiss from this my mind !

I know Him to be none except Thy-Self !

He who is known as Ahurā-Mazadā—

With duteous deeds we worship Him alone.

We know Thee as Supreme above all lives.)

That the teachings of Buddhism and Jainism, on this essential point, are identical with those of Vedānta, goes almost without saying, for those who do not revel in discovering minute differences. In one of his u ḍ ā n a s (shuttahiyāt, as the Sūfis call them, or, in Vedic literature, y o g ā - r ū d h - o k ṭ i s), ecstatic utterances of overflowing joy, joy of realization of identity with the Supreme Self of all—the Buddha, arising from s a m ā d h i - trance, uses words which are the words of the Upanishats, but in their Pālī form :

Védānta-gū, vushiṭa-brahma-chariyo, dhamména

sa Brāhmaṇo Brahma-vādam vaḍeyya. (Uḍāna.)

(He who successfully fulfils his vow

Of continence in body and in mind,

And has achieved the final knowledge, he

Acquires the right, high Brahma to declare

To others who would walk the Path ; he may Give to himself the name of Brāhmaṇa.)

full significance of this m a h ā - v ā k y a, 'A h a m - E ṭ a ṭ - n a', see the present writer's The Science of Peace and 'Praṇava-Vaḍu, or The Science of the Sacred Word.'

In a similar mood of exaltation, Ashtāvakra, long before the Buddha, cried out: A ho A ha m ! n a m o M a h y ā m !, and, long afterward, Bāyazīd Bustāmi re-echoed him, Subhāni ma āzama shānī, 'How wonderful am I!, Salutation unto Me!, How great is my glory!' The Upanishats reiterate, over and over again, A ha m B r a h m - ā s m i, Y a s - t v a m - a s i S o - h a m - a s m i, I d a m s a r v a m a s i, A h a m é v - é d ā m S a r v a m, 'I am the Infinite; What thou art that same am I; Thou art all This; I am all This'. I, the 'I', the Self, the Principle of Consciousness', of Self-Existence, of 'I am', is the basis, the cause, of all 'This' too, of all this Not-Self, Other-than-I, of all the Object-World, the whole World-Process.

The Ormazd Yasht, of the Zoroastrian religion, declares: "My first name is Ahmi, (Sanskrit, A s m i, 'I am'); the last is Ahmi yad Ahmi". The Vedic Shatapatha Brāhmaṇa has the same significant words, Y o h a m a s m i s o - s m i, 'I am what I am', i. e. 'I am' ever the Changeless One, ever the same Self, at the end as at the beginning, for 'I have', i. e., the 'I' has, no beginning and no end. The Bible too says: "I am that I am . . . I am hath sent me unto you": (Exodus). The words "I am hath sent me" are very noteworthy.¹

¹"Then spoke Zaraṭhushtra: Tell me thou, O pure Ahura-Mazdā, the name which is thy greatest, best, fairest, and which is the most efficacious for prayer.

The sayings of Vedānta and Tasawwuf are so similar as to be almost indistinguishable when translated into a third language. Thus :

(O pilgrims for the Shrine ! Where go ye, where ?

Come back ! come back ! The Beloved is here !

His presence all your neighbourhood doth bless !

Why will ye wander in the wilderness !

Ye who are seeking God ! Yourselves are He !

Ye need not search ! He is ye, verily !

Why will ye seek for what was never lost ?

There is Naught-Else-than-ye ! Be not doubt-tost !)

(The wise see in their heart the face of God,

And not in images of stone and clod !

Who in themselves, alas !, can see Him not,

They seek to find Him in some outer spot.)

Thus answered Ahura-Mazdā : My first name is Ahmi (I am),...and my twentieth is Ahmi Yaḍ Ahmi Mazdāo (I am that I am, Mazdā):” Haug’s Essays on the Parsis, 195 “In the Hurmuzd-Yasht of the Zend-avestā, Ahura-Mazdāo enumerates twenty of his names. The first is Ahmi (Skt., A s m i), ‘I am’. The last is Ahmi Yaḍ Ahmi (Skt., A s m i Y a ḍ A s m i, Y o-s m i s o-s m i, Y o-h a m S o-h a m, ‘I am what I am’). Both of these phrases are also names of Jehovah in the Bible: And God said unto Moses, ‘I am that I am’, Ehyeh asher yehyeh. And he said, ‘Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel: I am hath sent me unto you’.” (Gangā Prasād, The Fountain-Head of Religion, p. 47.) “In the Egyptian Book of the Dead, ‘I am he who I am’ is applied to a god”; M. Yearsley, The Story of the Bible, p. 79.) Jesus says: “Before Abraham was I am”, (B.); which can mean only that ‘I am’, the Self, the Principle of Consciousness, was ‘before Abraham’ and everything Else.

The originals of this translation are :

Ai Qaum ! ba hajj raftah ! kujā éḍ, kujā éḍ !
 Māshūq hamīn jā-sṭ, bi-āyéd, bi-āyéd !
 Māshūqe-to hamsāya-to, dīwār ba dīwār ;
 Dar bādiyah sar-gashtah cherā éḍ, cherā éḍ !
 Ānān ke ṭalab-gār-i-Khuda éḍ, Khuda éḍ !
 Hājaṭ ba ṭalab n-īst, shumā éḍ, shumā-éḍ !
 Chizé ke na gardīd gum az bahre che joyéd ?
 Kas gḥair-i-shumā ū-īst, kujā éḍ, kujā éḍ !
 (SHAMS TABREZ)

Shivam Ātmani pashyanti,
 praṭimāsu na yoginah ;
 Ātma-sṭham yé na pashyanti,
 tīrthē mārganti tē Shivam !
 (Shiva Purāṇa.)

Sarvasya-iva janasy-āśya
 Viṣṇur-abhy-antaré sṭhiṭah
 Tam parityajya yé yānti bahir Viṣṇum nar-āḍhamāh.
 (Yoga Vāsishṭha, 5. 34. 26)

(The 'All-pervading' Self, 'Who bindeth all',
 'Knits them together', bides in every heart—
 Who turn from Him, the Inmost Deity,
 Seeking outside, their eyes are yet thick-veiled.)

Sarva-bhūṭéshu yah pashyéd
 Bhagavaḍ-bhāvam Ātmanah, Bhūṭāni Bhagavaṭy-Ātmanyasau Bhāgavaṭ-ottamah. (Bh.)

(Whoso 'in-sees' Divinity everywhere,
 Godhead in every living thing, and all
 In God—he only is true devotee
 And servant of the Omni-present Lord.)

The Upanishat-expression, Ē k a m é v a A-ḍ viṭi y a m, "One—not a Second," is to be found in the Bible (Ecclesiastes) also, and is echoed in Tasawwuf exactly :

Har gıyāhē ke bar zamīn royaḍ,
Wahḍahū lā sharīk-i-lah goyaḍ. (S.)

(Each single blade of grass that sprouts from earth,
Proclaims His word that 'I Al-One am He,
There is No-Other anywhere than I,')

That he, you, I, are all One I, One Life.)

The words of the Zoroastrian Scriptures are :

Na échīm ṭēm anyém Yūshmaṭ vaēḍā. (Z., Gāthā, xxxiv. 7).

(None Other do I know than Thee.)

Mazaḍāo sakhārē mairisto. (Z., Gāthā.)

(Mazaḍa, the One Alone, we bear in mind.)

That only is True, Real, Hag, Sa ṭ, Sure, Certain, which holds true and abides the same in all three times, past, present, future, and in all three spaces, behind, here, before, unchangingly. That which is not, but is imagined or said to be, as if it is, that is unreal. That which at one time is and at another is not, or was not and now is, or is and will not be—is half-true and half-false. That which always is—such alone is True, Real, wholly. Naught-Else than I is such. I is I, in all times, all spaces, all conditions.

Mās-ābḍa-yuga-kalpéshu

gaṭ-āgāmishv-an-ékaḍhā,

N-oḍéṭi n-āṣṭam-éty-éshā

Samviḍ-ékā Svayam-prabhā.

Samviḍo vyabhichāras-ṭu

n-aiva ḍrsht-oṣṭi karhi-chiṭ ;

Yadī dr̥shtas-ṭaḍā dr̥ashtā

śhīṣṭrah Samvid-vapuh svayam. (Purāṇas.)

(In all the months, years, ages, eons, cycles,
Past and to come, countless, infinitely,
What doth not ever rise nor ever set
Is this Self-lit Self-Consciousness al-one.
Break of this Consciousness was never seen.
If it was ever seen, then he who saw,
The witness, he him-Self remains behind Embodied as that Self-same Consciousness.)¹

¹ "I find my boy still hardly able to grasp the fact that there was a time when he did not exist; if I talk to him about the building of the Pyramids or some such topic, he always wants to know what he was doing then, and is merely puzzled when he is told that he did not exist." This is what Mr. Bertrand Russell writes of his son and himself in his book, On Education, p. 171. He is reputed to be a brilliant philosopher and also a great mathematician; yet he told the dear boy that he (the boy) "did not exist" a few years earlier! The child's soul, his Self, knew better, as did Wordsworth, in his Ode to Immortality. Consciousness, Self-consciousness, the Self, simply cannot be conscious of a time when it, the Self, it-Self, Consciousness, is not, was not, will not be. It is a contradiction in terms. Immortality is indelibly stamped on the face of Consciousness, the face of God. When 'I' say that the solar system was born so many hundreds or thousands of millions of years ago and will last so many more—the whole system with all its thousands of millions of years of life-time and all its thousands of millions of miles of body-space is in 'My' Consciousness, 'now' and 'here'; otherwise, my statement were wholly meaningless. As the Sūfī Sarmaḍ well says:

N-Ātmā jājana na marishyaṭi n-aḍhaṭé-sau. (Bh.)
(The Self is never born nor dies nor grows.)

Lam yaliḍ wa lam yulaḍ . . .

Kullu shayin hālikun illā Wajh. (Q.)

(Neither begetter nor begotten He . . .

All things are mortal but the Face of God,
His Self, the primal moveless Cause of all.)

Yad-apariṇāmi ṭaḍ-akāraṇam (Nyāya maxim.)

(What changes never, never has a cause.)

What is incorruptible must also be ungenerable.

(Western Scholastic philosophical maxim.)

This Self is Self-luminous because, clearly, nothing else can illumine It. It illumines all else. Eyes see sights and ears hear sounds; but who sees the eyes and who hears the ears? They obviously do not see and hear themselves. I am conscious of the eyes and of their objects, of the ears and their objects. Indeed I see and hear, rather than the eyes see and the ears hear. They are only the instruments I use.

Lā ṭuḍrikul-absār, wa Huā yuḍrikul-absār. (Q.)

(Eyes do not see Him, but He sees the eyes.)

Shroṭasya shroṭram, manaso mano yaḍ,

Vācho ha vācham, Sa u prāṇasya prāṇash, chakshushah-chakshuh. (U.)

(Hearer of ear and Speaker of all speech,

Seer of eye and Mentor of the mind,

The Self is verily the Life of life.)

Mullā goyaḍ kī bar falak shuḍ Ahmaḍ ;

Sarmaḍ goyaḍ kī falak ba Ahmaḍ ḍar shuḍ.

(The mullā—learned in the Scripture-word

But not its sense—says Ahmaḍ went to Heaven;

But Sarmaḍ says that Heaven came into Ahmaḍ.)

Kunṭu sama'h-ul-lazī yasma'n bihī,
 Wa bisārah-ul-lazī yubsiru bihī. (Q.)
 (I do become the ear by which he hears ;
 And I become the eye by which he sees.)

Yo véd-édam shrṇavān-īti sa Ātmā shravaṇāya shrō-ṭram ; ḍarshanāya chakshuh ; gandhāya ghrāṇam...(U).

(The Self, wishing the wish to hear, became The ear ; to see, the eye ; to smell, the nose...)

Na tatra vāg-gachchhaṭi, na chakshur, no mano, na vidmo, na vijānimo, yaṭh-aṭaḍ anu-shishyāḍ ; anyad-éva taḍ vidīṭāḍ-aṭh-āvidīṭāḍ-adhī. (U.)

(Speech reaches not the Self, nor eye, nor mind ;
 We know not how we may describe the Self ;
 It is not known, nor is it yet unknown,
 The Knower nor unknown nor known can be.)

N-āham manyé su véd-éti
 No na véd-éti véda cha ;
 Yo nas-taḍ véda tad véda,
 No na véd-éti véda cha.
 Yasy-āmaṭam ṭasya maṭam,
 Maṭam yasya na véda sah ;
 Avijñāṭam vijānaṭam,
 Vijñāṭam avijānaṭam. (U.)

(Who thinks he knows It, he does know It not ;
 While he who thinks he knows It not, knows It.
 We do not know whether we know or not ;
 We know the Self ; and yet what do we know !
 Then do we know it not ? But, sure, we know !
 How can we say we do not know our-Self !
 Indeed It is the only Thing we know
 Most positive, most doubtless, here and now !)

Iyam vi-sṛstir yaṭa-ā-babhūva,
 Yaḍi vā ḍaḍhé, yaḍi vā na,

Yo asy-Ādhyakshah paramé Vyoman,
So-anga !, véda, yaḍi vā na véda !

(Rg-Véda).

(This vast-spread emanation, measureless,
Filling the infinite expanse of Heaven,
From Whom has it come into being ? Who Maintains it going ? Or doth none maintain it ?
Who is its Ruler ? Doth it rule it-Self ?
He only knows ! Perchance He too knows not Quite wakefully, and only dreams it all !)
Cognoscendo ignorari, ignorando cognosci.

(ST. AUGUSTINE).

Ai bar-ṭar az kḥayāl o qayās o gumān o wahm
W-az har che guṭṭa-ém o shanīḍ-ém o kḥwānda-ém.

(S.)

(Thou art beyond all thought, conception, guess,
Imagination, yea, and far beyond
All we have spoken, heard, or read in books ;
These deal with Objects—Thou, Subject of all !)
Ashrayatva-vishayaṭva-bhāginī
Nir-vibhāga-Chiṭir-éva kevalā.

(Sankshépa-Shārīraka).

(This marvellous Unique Self-consciousness
Al-one is Subject-Object both at once.
It knows It-Self and knows all-Else also.)

The Universal I, the Supreme Self, God, is indeed Unique, Al(l)-one, One-without-a-second, A-dvītiya, Lā-sāni. There is No-thing Else like
It, or beside It, or except It, nothing mā-siwā-
Allāh, ḡhair-az-Kḥudā, Aṭmanah itaraṭ,
Brahmanah anyat, 'other than God,' 'else than the Self'. It is Majmua'-i-ziḍḍain, Sarva-viruddha-dharm-āshrayah, 'locus, focus, reservoir, of all contradictions, all opposites'.

Ēkam éva Aḍvīṭiyam. (U.)

(One only, always secondless, am I.)

La ilāh il-Allāh. (Q.)

(There is no god in truth other than God.)

Lā ilāhā illā Anā. (Q.)

(There is no God other than I my-Self.)

Aham éva na maṭ-ṭo-(a) nyaḍiti buddhyaddhvam anjasā. (Bh.)

(Know well—There is no-other-than-My-Self.)

I am the Lord, and there is none Else ; There is no God beside me...I am the first and I am the last : and beside me there is no God...(B., Isaiah.)

To Ahura Mazadā, the Secondless...I sing the song of Glory. (Z., Ahunavaḍ Gāthā, xxxvii. 3.)

There is One alone and there is not a second ; yea, He hath neither child nor brother ; yet is there no end of all His labor : (i. e. the World-Process is unending). (B., Eccles., iv.)

Ṭasmai sam-un-naḍḍha-viṛuḍḍha-shakṭayé

Namah parasmai Purushāya Védhasé. (Bh.)

(To Him who wieldeth, in th' eternal Play
Of the World-Drama, mighty, turbulent,
Opposed, and ever-battling wondrous powers
—We offer salutation to that Self.)

Aham Ātmā, Gudā-késha !,

sarva-bhūṭ-āshaya-sṭhīṭah,

Aham Ādīsh-cha, Maḍhyam cha, bhūṭānām Anṭa éva cha. (G.)

(I am the Self abiding in all hearts,

I the Beginning, Middle, End of all.)

Hu-wal-Awwal, Hu-wal-Ākḥir, Hu-waz-Zāhir, Hu-wal-Bāṭin, wa Hu-wā be kulle shayīn Alīm. (Q.)

(He is the First, He is the Last also,

He is the Outer, He the Inner too,

The Manifest and yet Unmanifest,

The Lord, Ordainer, knower of all things.)

I am (is) the first and the last...I am the alpha and the omega. (B.)

I am (is) the Light which lighteth every man... without Me (the Supreme Self in all) thou canst do nothing. (B.)

The Lord, before and beyond whom there is no other. (Z., Yasna, xxviii. 3.)

My name is He who hath shaped everything. (Z., Ahura-Mazda Yasht, 14.)

Aṭ hoi dāmām, thvahnī ādām, Ahurā !

(Z., Gāthā, 48.7)

(Ahura ! the Beginning Thou, and End !).

All these great words describe, befittingly, the I, the Self, the Principle of Consciousness Al-one, and No-thing Else.

'T is the Ahaḍ, of which nothing can be predicated, not even existence or non-existence, Zāti-i-sādiq, Zāt-i-muṭlaq, Munqaṭa'-ul-ishārat, Lā-ba-sharṭ-i-shay, Shuddha, Nir-guṇa, Nir-vishésha, Nir-ava-chchhinna, the Absolute, Pure Being (the same as Pure No-thing), Attribute-less, Un-particularised, Un-conditioned.

N-Āsaḍ-āsīn-no-Saḍ-āsīṭ. (Rg Véda).

(Neither Non-being was, nor Being then.)

Na San na ch-Asan na ṭaṭhā na ch-ānyathā,

Na jāyaṭé, vyéṭi, na ch-āvahīyaṭé,

Na vardhaṭé, n-āpi vishuddhyaṭé punar,

Vishuddhyaṭé Ṭaṭ Param-ārtha-lakṣaṇam.

(Bu., ĀSANGA.)

A-niroḍham, an-utpādam,

an-uchchédam, a-shāshvaṭam,

An-ék-ārtham, a-nān-ārtham,

an-āgamam, a-nirgamam,

Na san, n-āsan, na saḍ-āsan,
 Na ch-āpy-anubhay-ātṃmakam,
 Chaṭush-kotī-vi-nīr-mukṭam
 Taṭṭvam Mādhyamikā viḍuh.

(Bu., NĀGĀRJUNA, Mādhyamika-Kārikā.)

(It is not non-existent, nor existent,
 It is not thus, nor is it otherwise,
 It takes not birth, nor grows, decays, nor dies,
 It has no stain to purify away,
 It is the ever Pure—such is the mark
 Of that which hath no mark, the One Supreme.
 It cannot be suppressed, nor yet expressed,
 It cannot die, nor yet be brought to birth,
 Nor is it slayable, nor everlasting,
 It means not any one thing, nor yet many,
 It cometh not, nor ever doth It go.
 Not being, nor non-being, nor yet both,
 Nor free from both ! This wondrous Mystery,
 Void of these four conditions, is the Truth
 Which those that tread the Middle Path declare.)

Syāḍ aṣṭi, syān n-āṣṭi, syāḍ aṣṭi cha n-āṣṭi cha, syāḍ a-vakṭavyah, syāḍ-aṣṭi ch-āvakṭavyah, syān-n-āṣṭi ch-āvakṭavyah, syāḍ-aṣṭi cha n-āṣṭi ch-āvakṭavyah.

(J., Syāḍ-Vāḍa.)

(Perhaps It is ; or may be It is not ;
 Or it may be that It both is and not ;
 Or It is only Indescribable ;
 Or though unspeakable It perhaps is ;
 Or It both is not and unspeakable ;
 Or, seventhly, it may be that It is
 And is not and unspeakable also !)

Ṭaḍ-ējaṭi, Ṭan-n-aijaṭi,
 Ṭaḍ-ḍūrē, Ṭaḍ u antīké,
 Ṭaḍ anṭar-asya sarvasya,
 Ṭaḍ u sarvasy-āsyā bāhyataḥ. (U.)

(It moveth and It moveth not at all,
 It is the farthest of the far, It is
 The nearest of the near, It is within,
 And yet it is without all that we know.)
 Alone It standeth and It changeth not ;
 Around It moveth, and It suffereth not ;
 The Mother of the World It may be called.

(T., Tao-tek-king, TH R., 6)

I am the Lord, I change not. (B., Malachi.)
 An-Ēka mānhi Ēka rājai, Ēka mānhi an-Ēka-no,
 Ēk-Ānēk kī nahīn sankhyā ! namo Siddha
 Niranjano ! (J., BHŪDHARA.)

(That which is One in Many, Many in One, Yet Neither One nor Many—I bow to That !)

The Tao hath no beginning and no end. (BB., 88.)
 Ai ! ke ḍar héch jā na ḍārī jā !
 Bu-l-a'jab māṇḍah am ke har-jā-ī !
 Ba-jahān ḍar hamésha paḍā-ī !
 Léḱ ḍar chashm-i-man na mī āyī !

(S., SĀDI, Mā-muqīmān.)

(O Thou that hast no place in any place,
 And yet, what wonder !, art in every place !
 That art appearing perpetually,
 In every place within this wheeling world,
 Yet cannot be encompassed by my eyes !)

(The Tao cannot be heard ; what can be heard
 Is not the Tao ; the Tao cannot be seen ;
 What can be seen is not the Tao at all.
 By words the Tao may not be well expressed :
 What can be thus expressed is not the Tao.
 The formless gives to every form that form ;
 Can we know It as else than Void of Form ?
 The Nameless gives to every name that name ;

It-Self may not be named but by all names.)
(BB., 87 ; SBE., vol, 40, p. 69.)

Chakra, chihna, aru varṇa, jāṭi, aru pāṭi nahina jihu,
Rūpa, ranga, aru rékha, bhékha,
koi kahī na sakāṭa jihu,
A-chala-mūraṭi, Anu-bhava-prakāsa,
Amriṭ-oja kahijai !
Koti Indra-Indrān Shāhashāhāna ganijai !
Ṭri-bhuvana Mahī-pa ! sura nara asura,
N-étī, N-étī, vana ṭrṇa kahaṭ,
Ṭava sarva nāma kathai kavana, karama nāma varṇaṭa sumāṭ !
Éka mūraṭi an-éka ḍarshana,
kīna rūpa an-éka,
Khéla khéla a-khéla khélana
aṇṭa ko phira Éka !

(Si., GURU GOVINDA SINHA, Jāp.)

(O Thou ! that hath no mark, sign, caste, or creed
No clan, tribe, form, or color, or outline,
No special shape or dress ! Thou Movelessness !,
Self-luminosity eternally !,
Measureless, fathomless, All-Potency !,
Lord of the three worlds—Waking, Dreaming,
Sleep !—

Angels, men, titans, forests, grasses, all,
Only 'Not-This', 'Not-This', of Thee declare !
Who may recite Thy Names and Works in full,
Since every name and every work is Thine !
One art Thou, countless yet Thy Multitude !
All forms are Thine through which Thou makest Play ;
All merge back into Thee at End of Day !)

A-nir-vachanīyam. (Védānta.)

(This Self indeed is indescribable

In words, though indefeasibly Self-known.)

Whom else can all these 'descriptions' which are 'non-descriptions', proclamations of inability to describe, fit, except the Self? This so indescribable 'I' cannot be proved by anything else. The 'I' proves whatever else is provable. Nobody saw the 'I' being born or dying. Bodies are seen being born and dying; never an 'I,' the 'I'. 'I' only can see 'I' being born or dying; Consciousness only can be conscious of consciousness originating or ceasing; which is a self-contradiction. 'Another's consciousness,' 'another-consciousness,' cannot be conscious of 'My consciousness,' of 'I-consciousness,' beginning or ending; that again is a self-contradiction. The fact is that the Principle of Consciousness, the Self, is One, Universal, all-pervading, a Plenum without parts, without break. The appearance of separate individual selves, of separateness, tafraṇā, bhédā, is an illusion, is the great jā'l of the Jā'el, the māyā of the Māyī; as the appearance of countless bubbles, ripples, waves, billows, in the ocean, separate-seeming yet inseparable from the ocean and each other. There is no 'Another-consciousness.' 'Consciousness' is always only 'I-consciousness,' 'My-consciousness'; never 'an-other-consciousness'. One Consciousness only animates all material forms. The methods, the degrees, the kinds of manifestation are infinitely different in the-infinite forms. That One Consciousness appears as now sleeping, now waking, in this form; or as giving up that form; or as taking up another. It never can conceive itself as beginning or ceasing. Whatever the point of time, in the past, or in the future, a few seconds away, or trillions and quadrillions of years distant, at which it may try to conceive itself as ceasing or beginning—it is already present beyond and before that point of time; it includes that point of time, with all the intervening period, within its vast embrace, and reaches infinitely farther still, beyond, on both sides. Truly is this Self-consciousness Unique, vaster than the vastest, smaller than the smallest.

Universal Being, Hastī-i-mutlaq, Saṭṭā-sāmanya, is the logician's summum genus, jins-i-ā'lā, parā-jāti. At the other end are the smallest particles, atoms, electrons, protons, ions, super-atoms, param-āṇus, or whatever else they may be called, (—and neither the largest nor the smallest can ever be reached in any given time and space, for the infinitesimal is also infinite—), aṇu, zarra, the summum individuum, tashakkhus-i-aḍnā, para-vishésha. This I is both Universal Being and, ultimately, finally, particular in-divis-ible In-divid-ual. It is Infinite as well as Infinitesimal. What is the proof of Universal Being, of "Is," est, hastī, aṣṭī? Is it not I, My Consciousness, 'Am'? Am I not present everywhere and everywhen? Whatever significance, smallest or vastest, can be assigned to these two words, is already within My Consciousness. 'Am' is the proof of 'Is'; not 'Is' of 'Am'. The only Being that we know, for certain, without a possibility of doubt, is My Being, 'Am'; all other beings, all other existences, have only such and so much existence as My Consciousness of them gives to them. What is the proof of the most utterly 'particularised' being? Again, nothing else than 'Am,' 'I am'. For, obviously, nothing is more 'a-tom-ic'. in-divis-ible, more immediately, positively, definitely other-repudiating, nothing more completely distinguishes itself off from all 'others', than 'I,' my feel of 'personality,' here and now. Yet this so extremely compressed and limited 'here and now and thus' is infinitely expandible to 'anywhere and anywhen and also anyhow'. Whatever stretch of space or time or wealth of experiences I bring into my consciousness, my imagination, I envelope it all.

Wasea' Rabbonā kulle shayīn ilmā...

Huā alā kulle shayīn muhīt...

Huā māḱum yanama kunṭum. (Q.)

(God's Consciousness envelopeth all things...

He doth pervade, include, all things and beings...

Wherever you may be, He is with you.)

Aḡor-aḡīyān, mahāṭo mahīyān. (U.)

(Greater than greatest, than smallest more small).

So-yam Āṭmā...ésha ma Āṭmā...sarva-karmā, sarva-kāmah, sarva-gaṇḍhah, sarva-rasah, sarva-gaṭah, sarva-prém-āspaḍah, sarvaṭo-mukhah, sarva-jñah, sarvaṭah-pāṇi-pāḍah, sarv-ānana-shiro-grīvah, sarvaṭ-okshi-shiro-

of matter that is not alive, not pervaded by the Spirit, by Consciousness, by Life.¹

¹ How it expands the consciousness, broadens the mind, enlarges the heart, and promotes science and philosophy, if we look for similarity amidst diversity, and unity amidst similarity; and how it contracts the outlook, narrows the intelligence, warps the sympathy, hinders appreciation of rational knowledge, if we look for differences rather than agreements, dividing features instead of unifying ones; may be illustrated thus. A greatly esteemed Maulavī friend writes to me that the 'essentials' of Islam are, (a) Belief in (1) Allah, (2) Muhammad as His Chief Prophet, and other prophets, (3) the Qurān as God's word, (4) the Day of Judgment, (5) God's omniscience, and (b) Practice of (6) salāt or namāz, (7) saum or rozā, (8) sakāt, (9) hajj, (10) jehād, (11) the three festivals, Id-ul-fitr, Id-uz-zohā, Muharram. An equally worthy Pandit says the 'essentials' of Hinduism are, (a) Belief in (1) Param-ēshvara, (2) Kṛṣṇa as His Chief Avatāra, and other avatāras, (3) the Vēda as God's word, (4) the Judgment of Yama, in accordance with the Laws of Karma and Re-incarnation, (5) the omniscience and accuracy of Yama's recorder, Chitrā-Guṇṭa, and (b) Practice of (6) sandhyā, (7) vṛata-upavāsa, especially on ekādashī, (8) dāna, (9) ṛitha-yātrā, (10) dharma-rakshā, (11) a number of seasonal and historical festivals, e. g., Holī (spring), Nir-jalā (summer), Deva-shāyanī (beginning of rains), Shrāvaṇī (middle of rains), Dev-oṭṭhāna (end of rains), Dīpāvalī (autumn), Makara-snāna (winter), etc., and Rāma-nawamī (the birthday of Rāma), Kṛṣṇ-āshtamī (the birthday of Kṛṣṇa), etc., and (12) Varṇ-āshrama-dharma (the system of four 'class-castes and four stages of life'). Here are two sets of 'essentials'. And there are two ways of interpreting them. If we see them with the eye of difference, which sees particulars only—the stage is set for a mutual breaking of heads and feuds descending from century to century. But if we see them with the eye of agreement, which discerns the common features, the genera, behind the particulars, clearly—then we have irresistible inducement for hand-shakings and embracings and rejoicing of hearts.

The sense of the 'separateness' of each personality, 'Ego-ism', the sense that 'I am I' and 'you are you', is so strong; this bhédā-

Sarvaḍā sarva-bhāvānām

sāmānyam vṛddhi-kāraṇam ;

Hīsa-heṭur-vīśeṣaḥ-ṭu ;

pravṛtti-ubhayasya cha. (Charaka.)

(If we look at the common elements,

Which make the genus, then all entities

Expand from more to more; but if we look

Exclusively upon the differences,

Then all things shrink to ever narrower limits.

Both tendencies are ever at their work.

The wise man sides with the inclusive one.)

The prophet Muhammad has been quoted before as appealing to all to meet on high common ground. We have only to translate the two sets of 'essentials' into general terms to see the essential unity of them. Thus: (a) Belief in (1) the Supreme Being, (2) highly advanced philanthropic souls, appearing from time to time in various races, as great teachers and lovers of mankind, (3) sacred scriptures, embodying knowledge which is of most help to mankind, (4) the law of cause and effect, of action and reaction, whereby sin unfailingly meets punishment, and virtue reward, in b u d d h i, ghairiyat, created by the separateness of the bodies, is so overpoweringly ascendant; that the concept, the feeling, the sense, of a common I, a single I, running through all the bodies, and vitalising and energising and moving them all—is very, very, difficult to apprehend at first. Yet it is the very heart, the foundation, of all Religion. Like lesser but also difficult concepts, in all sciences, it becomes more and more clear, by dwelling upon, reflection, meditation. Analogies, as always, are very useful. My toes and fingers, my limbs, my sensor and motor its own proper time, here or hereafter, (5) the omniscience and impartial justice of the Supreme Being; and (b) Practice of (6) prayer, (7) self-denying restraint of the senses, especially of the tongue, (8) discriminate charity, (9) pilgrimage and travel in the spirit of reverence for all manifestations of God's Nature, (10) defence of the right against wrong, (11) disciplines, festivals, public rejoicings and mournings for expression and promotion of fellow-feeling, (12) a rational Social Organisation, with a just division of the social labor, of the means of living, and of the necessities, the comforts, and the luxuries or prizes of life, in accordance with the vocational temperaments of the different types of men, as indicated by the principles of psychology. Incidentally, Yama is the same as Al Qābiz, the Regulator, Judge, Punisher; and Chitra-guṭṭa is Al-Muhsiy, the Recorder, the Counter, the Accountant, the 'Hidden Picture,' the Lauh-i-Mahfūz, the 'Preserved Tablet' of Hāfizā, Memory, Universal Mind, in which all is ever recorded and preserved, past, present, and future; Skṭ., Chit or Chitī.

organs, the billions of living cells, which make up the 'I' or 'me' that is my living body, are all separate from each other, and have independent lives. Yet, are they separate? Have they independent lives? My 'I' runs through them all, holds them all together. The word 'we'; the feel 'sympathy'; the fact 'common interest'; the thing 'common property', 'public property'—all these would be impossible, if there were no unity, running latent, through the patent diversity and multiplicity of the world.

To make this latent Unity less latent, to make human beings more conscious of it, is the main purpose of Religion; and to make it fully patent, v a i r ā g y a, mujānibaṭ, v i s h ā ḍ a, bé-zārī, m a h ā - k a r u ṇ ā, rahm, change of heart, altruism, disgust with our own egoism and egoism in general, dis-illusion-ment, world-weariness, world-sadness, satiety, surfeit, n i r - v é ḍ a, séri-az-dunyā, dil-bardāshṭagī, and great compassion for the world, a craving, yearning, that all these other helpless souls as well as our own, wandering in the dark, may see light, may find the way out of this terrible labyrinth—all these are needed. They create the state of mind, the condition of soul, in which the finite dissolves into the Infinite, emotional and intellectual egoism is broken by emotional and intellectual altruism, and leaves behind Universalism. Some prefer to call this mood as Spiritual Consciousness, Super-mind, y o g a - j a - j ñ ā n a, a state transcending ordinary Intellect, a peculiar state of exaltation and realisation, like the rising of the sun upon a world of darkness; though, bye and bye, the exalted glories of the many-hued splendours of the dawn settle down into the steady light of day, and are utilised for the world's work, are made 'integral for life', are 'integrated into the daily life', as some would say.

In a sense, it is perfectly true that there is a special descent of the 'supra-mental' Divine, in such a condition; that God comes in, because ego-ism has gone out and made room; and the whole life is transformed. But it is also true that in the case of the 'lower knowledge' of any special science, the same process of 'yoga', though on a lower level, always takes place. Every discovery and invention is followed by an elation and exaltation in the inventor's and discoverer's being. 'Yoga is performed in all states and stages, on all planes of mind': thus declares the Yoga-sūtra. 'Change of Heart', from hard to soft, from sā-rāgya to vai-rāgya, from krūra-tā to karuṇā, from ṭakabbur to hilm, from gharrah to inkisār, is absolutely necessary, before God can come into it. Sympathy, Fellow-feeling, is of, from, by, Love Spiritual; and such Love is God.

God is very near the simple, innocent, guileless, unselfish, loving child—unconsciously; or, better, supra-consciously. He is very near the wise man in his second childhood—who has become as children, 'simple of heart'; but deliberately so, because he has realised the evils consequent on crookedness; 'natural' again, because he has experienced and put aside artificial ways; 'un-sophisticated', by voluntary de-sophistication.

Except ye be converted and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. (B.)

Brāhmaṇah pāṇḍītyam nir-vidya bālyēna ṭishthāśēḍ;
bālyam cha pāṇḍītyam cha nir-vidya aṭha munih;
maunam cha maunam cha nir-vidya aṭha brāhmaṇah. (U.)

(The learned priest—let him feel sick of all
That load of arid learning, argument
Endless, and bitter odious debate;
Let him become again as simple child;
Next let him take to ways of silent thought,
Prolonged communing with him-Self, within;
And, finally, let him pass from that too,
And be the natural duteous Man of God.)

Such are the stages on the 'return-journey' of the soul 'back to God', on the Qaus-i-Ūrūj, or the Safar-i-abd, as also the Sūfis call it; i. e., 'the journey of the servant' back to 'Godhead'; while the opposite journey, of the Qaus-i-Nazūl, is correspondingly called the Safar-i-Haq, 'the journey of God' towards 'servanthood'. Briefly, the hard in heart cannot see God because they cannot feel Love which is an integral essential aspect of God. Ego-ism hardens the heart; altruism softens it. This mood of altruism, bé-khudī, n i s s v ā r ṭ h a ṭ ā, n i r a h a m k ā r a, comes to every soul, in its own good time, in the course of evolution.¹

¹Other ways of expressing the truth are these:

A GREAT DANGER. There is a danger, a great danger, lurking here. Man, in trying to find identity with God, the inner Spirit of all, may

Man must neither any longer feel separate from fellow-creatures, nor feel any separateness between different component parts of his being; he must become a whole, a unity, consistent in all parts; there must be no inconsistency between his thought, his word, his deed, between his intellectual, emotional, and active being-s; his religion must not be kept in a water-tight compartment, carefully preserved from contact with his daily life in the world; his religion must pervade his whole being, guide his thoughts, as well as words, as well as actions; his week-days must be as his Sundays; he must be conscious in feeling as well as in intellect, i.e., he must not allow himself to be run away with, swept off his feet, by his feelings; he must deliberately choose, and feel, only the right and appropriate emotions; his personal life, as a separate-seeming individual, must become subordinate to his impersonal life as really one with the Universal; the centre of egoism, the hardness of heart, must be dissolved, by n i r- v é ḍ a, v i- s h ā ḍ a, v a i- r ā ḡ y a, deep dispassion, plus m a h ā- k a r ṇ ā, passionate compassion for all suffering. Truly 'the hard in heart cannot see God'; and 'the meek', the soft in heart, 'shall see God', and become sovereign ruler and king over their earthly bodies, and, some day, over the whole earth, literally, also, when the majority of human beings have learnt the great lesson of Evolution, have subordinated ego-ism to altruism and universalism, and have thereby brought the millennium, the Golden Age, Saṭya-yuga, again—to the Earth. "Seek in the heart the source of evil, and expunge it... It is a plant that lives and increases throughout the ages... He who would deliberately identify himself with the Satan of the outer flesh of our body. This is illustrated by the story of Indra and Virochana in the Upanishats, and of the fall of the archangel Azazel into the state of Satan in the Christian and Muslim legend.¹ The consequences of enter upon the Path...must tear this thing out of his heart. Then the heart will bleed and the whole life of the man seem utterly dissolved. This ordeal must be endured. Each man is to himself absolutely the Way, the Truth, and the Life. But he is so only when he grasps his whole individuality firmly, and, by the force of his awakened spiritual will, recognises this individuality as not himself, but that thing which he has with pain created for his own use, and by means of which he purposes, as his growth slowly develops, to reach to the life beyond individuality:" (Light on the Path, Theosophical Publishing House, Adyar, Madras.) This opening out of the Individual soul to and into the Universal Spirit, takes place, in each case, in its own good time. It cannot be forced. It begins from within. The soul grows as the flower grows, by its own vital force, and in accord with the cyclic laws of life. But the gardener can make the conditions which are most favorable to the growth. The older generation teaches the outlines of general geography to the younger generation. The actual visiting of any of the places of the earth has to be done by the grown-up. So has the message of Essential Religion to be given by the father to the child, and to remain in his mind as seed, to put forth root and shoot, branch, leaf, bud, blossom, and fruit, in its own good time. Then the 'heard' will become the 'seen'.

¹A'zāz-i-El seems to mean "the Supreme Greatness such subtle error are endlessly disastrous; as when the public servant commits the grievous mistake of regarding himself as the public of God". The Majesty of Benevolence, inverted, becomes the Pride of Malevolence. Demon est Deus inversus. There is another, and fine, conception of Satan in Hebrew theology. God commands his highest angel to 'act' as his reverse and adverse, as Satan, deliberately to test and strengthen and advance souls to salvation, through sin and suffering. When they fail to stand his tests and temptations, Satan rejoices—outwardly; inwardly he weeps. Ultimately, when they spurn him, he gnashes his teeth—outwardly; inwardly he rejoices greatly. Nāra-ḍa (nā r a m, m o k s h a m, ḍ a ḍ ā ṭ i, 'he who brings release, salvation') is a very different yet similar figure in Purāṇic mythology. He is a well-known devotee and favorite of Viṣṇu, and his chief 'sport and pastime' is to cause wars between kings, by subtle praises of one to another, to arouse their jealous pride. Khwājā Khizr is yet another, different yet similar, figure in Islāmic legend. In Purāṇic mythology Indra, the king of the ḍ é v a s, gods or angels, also discharges the duty of tempting and trying rṣhis, yogis, aspirants for psychical and spiritual perfection and moksha, through the agency of apsarā-s, nymphs. In Buddhism, Māra is the great tempter. Etymologically, the word means the 'slayer', but actually it is used as synonymous with Kāma, Eros, Love-Lust; because carnal love-lust leads to death. Birth of physical body necessarily means death of it, later. Also, Lust precedes and generates all the other evil passions, which 'slay' the good spiritual emotions and affections. This will be expounded, later on, more fully.

master; or the trustee makes himself the proprietor; or the basis of the social organization is shifted from vocational temperament and aptitude to hereditary caste, all duties are forgotten, and all rights are grabbed, as by divine birth-right, without need of any worth. The most supernal blessing then becomes the most infernal curse. In earlier times, this sacred truth, of the identity, in essence, of Man and God, was not always preached publicly, lest it be not understood, but turned away from, and so put to shame, by those not interested in and not ready for it; or becoming cheap, be treated with levity and ridicule by the light-minded, in whom familiarity breeds contempt; or, worst of all, being disastrously misunderstood, breed arrogance instead of humility, hateful scorn instead of love. But the conditions are different to-day. The general level of intelligence is much higher. The opposite error, of sensual and proud egoism, is rampant. Corrective counsel is greatly needed and is perhaps more easily applicable. Argument has perhaps greater chance. Finally, there seems no other resource, no better alternative, for fighting the forces of darkness, whose chief weapon is viciously false propaganda, than to try to spread right knowledge. The very purpose of genuine religion is to guard man against such perversion, to lead him from the small self to the Great Self, from sinner to saint, from selfishness to selflessness, from Darkness to Light, from Untruth to Truth, from Evil to Good, from Satan to God, from Khudî to Khudâ, from Angra Mainyu to Spenta Mainyu, from Matter to Spirit, from the Third person to the First, from Jîv-âtmā to Param-âtmā, from Egoism to Altruistic Universalism.

Mazaḍā Ahurā!...Ma-ibyo ḍāvoi ahvāo aṣṭavaṭ chā hyaṭ chā manangho āyaptā.

Hyaṭ tā ūrvātā sashaṭhā yā Mazaḍāo ḍaḍātā...khīṭi chā anīṭi chā...aṭ aipī tāish anghahaṭi ūštā.

Yayāo spanyāo ūṭi mravaṭa yéma angrém no-īṭ nā manāo, nō-īṭ séngḥā, nō-īṭ khratavo, na éḍā varanā, nō-īṭ ūkh-ḍhā, nō-īṭ shyaoṭhnā, no-īṭ ḍaé-nāo, no-īṭ ūrvāno sachanté. (Z., Gāthā, 28. 2; 30. 11; 45. 2)

Lord Mazaḍā Ahurā!, grant unto us

To realise the difference between

Our two selves, the physical lower one,

And th' other, higher, of the better mind.

Of these two selves that Mazḍā gave to us,

The higher self points ever to the Right,

The lower one misleads towards the Wrong;

Determined by these two are all our acts.

The Brighter Self unto the Darker says:

Neither our minds, nor well-cognised beliefs,

Nor duties, manners, words, nor our deeds,

Nor our religions, nor our souls agree.)

Dvā suparnā sayujā sakhāyā

Ekam vrksham pari-shasvajāté;

Tayor-ékah pippalam svāḍu aṭti,

An-ashnan Anyo-abhi-chākashīti. (U.)

(Two birds do nest upon the self-same tree;

One tastes the fruits—now bitter, and now sweet;

The other looketh on eternally.)

Manas tu dvi-viḍham prokṭam

Shuḍḍham ch-āshuḍḍham éva cha ;

Ashuḍḍham kāma-sankalpam,

Shuḍḍham kāma-vivarjītam. (U.)

(The mind is of two kinds, one good, one bad ;

Motived by selfish egoist desire,

Is the bad mind ; inspired by altruism,

Free from all foul desires, is the good mind.)

Ashā and Druj (Love and Hate, I c h c h h ā or R ā g a and D r o h a or D v é s h a); Ārmaīti and Tārmaīti (righteous activity and wrongful activity); Spenta-Mainyu and Angra Mainyu, good or bright Spirit or Mind and bad or dark one; Vohu or Vahishto Mano and Achishto Mano, pure mind and impure mind; such are other words, in the Zoroastrian Books, for the same pair of opposites, the two *īrvātā*¹, given to us by Ahurā Mazadā, the One 'Great Wise all-ideating all-creating' Principle of Consciousness.

Very great is the need to be ever alertly and watchfully on guard against the awful danger of deliberately identifying ourselves with the lower, selfish, Evil mind, the baser nature, instead of with the higher, un-self-ish Good mind, the nobler nature, and the Universal Self. This a s m i-ṭ ā, a h a m-k ā r a, khudī, ego-ism, the lower self, is indeed the element of Satan in man. It is the ¹The Qurān mentions two angels, Hārūt and Mārūt. Shri J. M. Chatterji, The Ethical Conceptions of the Gāthā, suggests that these are the same as those known to the Jews and the pre Christian Armenians as Horot and Morot; to the Zoroastrians as Haurvātā and Ameretā; to the Vaidikas as Rtam and Amrtam.

root of all lust and hate, all greed and pride of 'martial glory' and 'land-hunger', all adultery and robbery, all rape and murder, all sadism and masochism, all aggression, all self-assertion and and other-suppression, all the most monstrous tyranny and oppression, all political and religious bigotry, fanaticism, persecution and cruellest torturing of dissentients and innocents. "Thy will, O Lord !, Thou Universal Self of All !, not mine !" —says the servant of God and Humanity, the servant of God in Man. "My will, O fool !, thou slave of mine !, not thine !" says the unwitting, or, far worse, the witting slave of the Satan in Man. Be ever on guard, vigilantly, against that Satan ! God and Satan are both within us !

THE MANY NAMES OF THE ALL-PERVADING ONE SELF. Science no longer denies this first and most important truth, of the Universal Self, the all-pervading Principle of Consciousness; as we have seen before. Scientific materialism is dead. It is generally recognized that Consciousness is indefeasible. It proves the existence of matter and of the senses which perceive matter. It cannot be proved by the senses or by matter. It illuminates itself as well as all other things.

Brahma sarvam āvṛtya ṭishthaṭi.

Ṭasya bhāṣā sarvam iḍam vibhāṭi. (U.)

(Brahma abides, enveloping all things ;

All things appear, illumined by Its light.)

Allāho be kulle shayīn muhīṭ.

Allāho nūr us-samāwāṭi wal arḍ. (Q.)

(Allāh surroundeth and encloseth all ;

His light illumineth all heaven and earth.)

In Him all things live and move and have their being...Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord...The Spirit of God filleth all the earth, and that (space or heaven) which contains all things. (B.)

He is the light that lighteth every man and everything (B.)

Great Heaven is intelligent, clear-seeing, and is with you in all your doings. (C., Shi King.)

Obviously, Consciousness, God's Consciousness, Man's Consciousness, the Self's Consciousness, includes, encompasses, illumines all things. 'To be' is 'to be known'; to know is to recognize and thereby impart existence. Esse est percipi. Vidyatē (is known) is vidyatē (exists.)

This Consciousness, this I, is behind every name and form and act.

Kéchiṭ Karma vaḍanty-énam,

Sva-bhāvam aparé janāh,

Éké Kālam, paré Daivam,

Pumsah Kāmam ut-āparé,

Ētam éké vaḍanty-Agṇim,

Manum anyé, Prajā-paṭim,

Indram éké, paré Prāṇam,

Aparé Brahma Shāshvaṭam.

Brahma-iva sarvāṇi nāmāni, sarvāṇi rūpāṇi,
sarvāṇi karmāṇi bibharti. (Bh., M., U.)

(Some call It Karma, some Self-Nature name It,
Some call It Time, and others call It Fate,
Some say It is th' eternal Urge and Surge
Of Prime Desire, some name It Agni too,
The Luminous Fire which leadeth all to Self.

Some name it Manu, Universal Mind,
 Some Prajā-pati, Lord of Progeny,
 Some Indra, Chief of all great Nature-Forces,
 Some Brahma, Vast, Eternal, Infinite,
 Which as the 'I', the Universal Self,
 Hidden, yet Manifest too, everywhere
 Wears, bears, and does, all forms and names and acts)¹

¹The following Skt. quotations give many more names, used by different schools of thinkers or devotees, and at the same time prove widespread recognition of the fact that the Same Mystery is meant by all the different names :

Yam Shaivāh sam-up-āsate Shiva itī,
 Brahm-ēti Vedāntinah,
 Bauddhā Buḍḍha itī, pramāṇa-pataṇah
 Kart-ēti Naiyāyikāh,
 Arhan-ity-aṭha Jaina-shāsana-raṭāh,
 Karm(a)-ēti Mīmāmsakāh,
 So (A)yam vo viḍaḍhāṭu vānchhiṭa-phalam
 Tṛailokya-nāṭho Hariḥ.
 Ké-chit tām Tapa ity-āhus,
 Tamah ké-chit, Jadam paré,
 Jñānam, Māyām, Praḍhānam cha,
 Prakṛtim Shaktim-apy-Ajām,
 Vimarsha itī vā Shaivāh,
 Avidyām itaré janah. (Devi Bhāgavata).
 Ēsha éva Vimarshash, Chitīh, Chaitanyam, Ātmā,
 Sva-rasā, Uḍiṭā, Parā-varā, Svā-tanṭryam,
 Param-Ātmā, Aun-mukhyam, Aishvaryam,
 Sat, Tatṭvam, Saṭṭā, Sphuraṭā, Sārah, Mātrikā, Mālinī, Hrḍayā, Mūrṭih, Sva-samvit, Spanda-ity-āḍi-shabḍaiḥ Āgamaḥ ud-ghuṣhyatē.

In the Zoroastrian scriptures it is called Vahma, the same as Brahma of the Veda-Upanishats, in its all-comprehensive transcendent aspect; and Ahurā Mazadā in its active and immanent aspect, as Universal mind, Brahmā. Another name for Vahma, in the Zoroastrian scriptures, seems to be Zerouane Akerane, (Skt. Sarvam or Sāram Akāraṇam?) 'the Uncaused Cause of all causes', or 'the Causeless Essence of all'. Some Sūfis make a similar distinction between Ahad and Allāh-ar-Rahmān-ar-Rahīm.

(Gupṭa-vaṭī Tīkā on Durgā-Saptā-shaṭī, 'Up-oḍ-ghāṭa' or Introduction.)

(Shiva, Brahma, Buddha, Karṭā, Arhat, Karma, Thought, All-holding Consciousness, Universal Memory, Self, Self-taster, Awake, Before-and-After, High-and-Low, Self-dependence, Supreme Self, Eagerness, Urge, Lordliness, Being, Essence, Thatness, Existence, Vibration, Core, Measuring Mother, Matter, Cycling Wreath, Heart-Image, Self-awareness, Motion, Breath, Tāpas, Tāmas, Unconsciousness, Objectivity, Knowledge, Māyā (Illusion), Praḍhāna (Root, Source), Prakṛti (Nature), Shakti (Energy), Avidyā (Error)—all these are only Its names.)

The following is an attempt by an ancient Roman poet along the same lines :

"Ogugia calls Me Bachchus; Egypt thinks Me Osiris; The Musians name Me Ph'anax; the Indi consider Me Dionysus (Divā-nisham, Day-Night); the Roman Mysteries call me Liber; the Arabian Race, Adonis (same as Dionysus)!" (Ausonias, quoted by H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, ii. 302.)

The distinction between Impersonal Absolute Brahma, the Motionless Spectator, and person-alised Brahmā, the Active Creator, is the same.

Spentā Mainyū sraotū Mazadāo Ahuro yéhyā Vahmē vohū irashī mananghā ahyā khraṭu fro mā sāstū vahishtë...Aṭ hoī Vahmém dēmāné garo niḍāma. (Z., Gāthā, 45. 6, 8).

(Lord of benignant Spirit, Mazadā !,
Listen to this my prayer, and teach me well
What he should do who would with a pure mind
Seek earnestly to find the Peace of Brahm' !
...May we find Brahma in the House of Songs.)
Yé jī adāish ashā dṛujém venghaīṭī, hyaṭ asamshuṭā, yā ḍaībīṭānā fraokṣṭā,
améréṭāīṭī ḍaévāish chā mashaīish chā,
aṭ ṭoī savāish Vahmém vakshaṭ Ahurā.

(Z., Gāthā, 48. 1).

(May Ahurā give us the truth of Brahm',
May He unite us with that Absolute,
When we have undergone successfully
The disciplines whereby the Vice in us
Is overthrown by Virtue, which make man
Divinely meritorious, and which bring Salvation unto men and gods alike.)
...Véštā Vahmeng Séraoshā rāḍhangho...

(Z., Gāthā, 46. 17)

(By worship and devotion know ye Brahm'.)
Ṭaḍ viḍḍhi pra-ṇi-pāṭéna pari-prashnéna sévayā. (G.)
(Know it by earnest quest, and questioning,
With due submission and with humble heart
And service, of the old and wise who know).

In the Buddhist scriptures too the name
Brahma is given to the Supreme ; (Brahma am I, Great Brahma, the Supreme,

The Unsurpassed, Perceiver of All Things,
 Controller, Maker, Fashioner, Lord of All,
 Chief, Victor, Ruler, Father of All Beings
 That ever have been, are, and are to be.)

(Kévaḍḍha-Sutta, Ḍīgha-Nikāya ; BB., 115).

Yehovah (Jehovah, Yahveh) is the Hebrew word ; Hayy and Yahyā are the Arabic words for the same ; O-hau, O-hau-hau, are the Sāma-Veda's names for it ; J(I)āo is the Phoenician. All these names are formed of the vowel sounds aspirated ; the breathings of man, in short ; each of which breathings 'names' and invokes God. 'So-(a)ham,' '(a)ham-Sah', 'That am I', 'I am That', is the a-ja p ā G ā y a ṭ r ī, the 'unspoken perpetual prayer', of each and every living being. It is un-uttered, yet is uttered in and by every ingoing and outgoing breath ; for none can live at all without perpetual support from Him, the Anima Mundi, the Soul of the World, the Life-breath of the Universe.¹

¹It is noteworthy that there are some 'natural' sound-names of the Supreme. First, there is the inner sound of the AUM (pronounced Om), like the humming of the bee, or the sound heard when the ears are tightly closed. With a little practice, this sound can be heard, within the head, between the ears as it were, even without closing the ears. It is the a-n-ā h a ṭ a n ā ḍ a, 'un-struck or un-uttered sound', mentioned in connection with yoga-ways. Graduations of it are mentioned in the Upanishats and Yoga books. "The Word was with God and the word was God," says the English Bible.

In the Chinese religions It is called Yi (the Changeless Principle of Change), T'ien (Heaven,

Probably the original Hebrew word means 'sound', rather than 'word'. Ākāsha, (which means Space, as well as the primal 'element' filling Space), whose 'attribute' or 'quality' is 'sound', (as 'touch' of 'air', 'taste' of 'water'), is the first manifestation; therefore it may well be said that 'the word', i.e., sound, was with God, and was God.

Next after this natural primal name, which seems to be the Hidden, Inner, Name, sometimes spoken of in mystical works as 'the lost (i.e., hidden) word or name', there comes the first uttered name. This is some form or other, in the older languages, of a collocation of the primary vowels, combined with the aspirate, and sometimes the nasal also; e.g., O-hau-hau in the Sāma-vēda, also Huvā-hāyī, Huvā-hoyī, Hāyī-Hāyī, (cf. 'Ā-hāī! Ā-hai', of some boatmen's songs); Iao, among the Phoenicians and the Egyptians; Y(od)-H(é)-V(au)-H(é), in Hebrew; Hayy in Arabic, also Yahyā; T (Ch) ao, in Chinese; Heu-Heu, among some African Negro tribes. And so on. The sound of 'breathing', wherein and whereby the (non-yogī) living human being realises his Self-existence, continuously, incessantly, 'I am', 'a s m i', 'ahmi', is imitated in its various shades by these names. A person in great pain, groaning, utters but a form of this primal sound, and thereby calls upon the Supreme for help, unconsciously. All sorts of 'moods of mind', 'states of being', of grief, wonder, fear, anger, enquiring curiosity, sorrow, joy, may be, and are, expressed by such exclamations, interjections, interrogations, as Āh!, Hā!, Oho!, Oh!, Hum! Hūn!, Aiñ! Hāy!, Ahā!, Wāh!, Ūñ?, Ai-hai!; and so forth.

Heavenly Destiny, Divine Ordainment, Fate), T'ai Chi (the Great Ultimate or Origin), Ch'i (Universal Energy), Tao (the Unnameable and Indescribable Principle of All Activity; the Way, the Reason, of the Universe), Hun Tun or Hun Lun (Chaos), Ming (Destiny), Shen (Spirit), Hsuen (the Mysterious). Jainism, like Buddhism, gives ultimately the same name, i. e., 'the Supreme Self', to the Ultimate Mystery as Vaidika Dharma does. Thus, in a fine prayer-hymn, which is in common use among Jainas, we read :

Yo ḍarshana-jñāna-sukha-sva-bhāvah,
 Samasta-samsāra-vikāra-bāhyah,
 Samādhī-gamyah Param-Ātma-sanjñah,
 Sa Dēva-dēvo hrḍayé mam-āstām.
 Sarvam nirā-kṛtya vi-kalpa-jālam,
 Samsāra-kāntāra-nīpāṭa-hēṭum,

The name Aham, given to the I, the Self, (Universal as well as Individual), in Samskrṭ, (the word etymologically means the deliberately 'well-constructed and refined language') embodies all the above significance and more. In the Samskrṭ alphabet, A is the first and H is the last letter-sound. The Self, A-h(am), is the First and the Last, and comprehends all; the first and last letters of the alphabet include between them all the other letters and all knowledge of all things, which can be expressed by means of letters and collocations of them. The special natural significance of each letter of the alphabet is mentioned in the Tanṭra-books. (See Isis Unveiled, ré Hewa, Eva, Iao, etc., with the help of the Index).

Vivikṭam-Ātmānam av-ékshya-māṇo,
 Nī-līyasé tvam *Param-Ātma-tattv*é.
 Yaiḥ Param-Ātmā-(A)miṭa-gaṭi-vandyaḥ,
 Sarva-vi-vikṭo, bhr̥sham an-avadyaḥ,
 Shashvaḍ-dhyāto manasi, labhanté
 Mukṭi-nikēṭam vi-bhava-varam tē.

(J., AMITA-GATI, Sāmāyika-pāṭha.)

(May He abide always within my heart,
 'The Supreme Self', the One God of all gods,
 Transcending all 'this-world's' ephemera,
 By deepest meditation reachable !
 They who have passed beyond all arguments
 And doubts and false attachments of this world,
 They only can behold in purity
 'The Supreme Self', and in It merge themselves.
 Who take their refuge in that 'Supreme-Self',
 Stainless, beyond particularities,
 And fix their minds on It devotedly, Unfailingly they gain Its Blessedness.)

Says Kwan-yin-tse :

Find the Tao in Your-Self and you know every thing else...The holy man recognises Unity in Multiplicity and Multiplicity in Unity...The One is eternally unchangeable.¹

A western poet has written :

Some call It Will, and some call It God ;
 Some call It Fate, and some call It God ;
 Some call It Evolution, and some call It God ;
 Some call It Chance, and some call It God ;
 Some call It Force, and some call it God.
 Some call It th' Unknowable, some call it God.

¹See Suzuki, History of Chinese Philosophy, pp. 42-'3.

Whatever the name each person who has attained to the stage of 'thinking' may give to It, the Ultimate Mystery has to be recognised.

But its nearest, dearest, fullest, greatest, and withal most intelligible and intimately familiar name is 'I', the Self in Me and in All alike.

So-(A)ham asm-īty-agré vyāharaṭi ; taṭo-
 (A)ham-namā-bhavaṭi ; tasmāḍ-apy-étarhy-āmanṭriṭo-(A)ham ayam ity-év-āgré ukṭvā
 ṭaḍ-ānyan-nama brūṭé, yaḍ asya bhavaṭi. (U.)
 ('I Am' is what He uttered first of all,
 Therefore his principal, best, and most true
 Name is the 'I' ; and so we see that when
 A person is thus questioned : 'Who are you ?',
 He first of all says : 'I am', then he adds Whate'er his special name is—'So-and-so'.)
 Ātmanas-tu kāmāya sarvam vai priyam bhavaṭi. (U.)
 (All things that may be dear to us are dear
 For the sweet sake of our-Self alone.)
 Aṭachā ahmāi vīspānām vahisṭém,
 Khaṭhroyā nā Khaṭhrém ḍaidīṭā. (Z., Gāṭhā, 43. 2).
 (Give me the gift that is the best of all,
 Give me the Inmost Self of all the Selves.)
 Yoi Moi Ahmāi séraoshém ḍāna chayas chā.
 ūpājimén haūrvāṭā amérétāṭā. (Z., Gāṭhā, 45. 5).
 (Who fix their love and choice on Me alone,
 Me who reside in them, they do attain
 Self-knowledge and Eternal Deathlessness
 The Higher Self and Immortality.)
 Yam labḍhvā ch-āparam lābham manyaṭé n-āḍhikam ṭaṭah,
 Yasmin sṭhiṭo na ḍubkhéna
 guruṇ-āpi vi-chālyaté. (G.)

(Than gain of Whom there is no greater gain ;
When fixed in Whom, sorrows shake one no more.)

God is the Universal Self; the individual self is 'heaven in us'. The immaterial divine essence, Ryochi, is 'God in us', and dwells in each individual. It is the true Self. The false self is an acquired personality arising from perverted beliefs; it is 'persona', i.e., that general idea of our nature which we have built up from experiencing our effect upon the world around and its effect upon us. Ryochi is 'al-one being' or 'al-one knowing', as the summum bonum, 'bliss'; it is the light which pervades the world; it is immortal all-knowing Good. It is the mediator and reconciler of 'the pair of opposites', namely, Ri and Ki, world-soul and world-matter respectively, attributes, both, of God, who is their union. Similarly the human soul embraces both Ri and Ki. As the essence of the world, God enfoldeth the world, but at the same time, He is also in our midst and even in our own bodies. (NAKAE TAJU).¹

¹Nakae Taju, the 'Sage of Omi' is a "distinguished Japanese philosopher of the seventeenth century. He belonged to the Chu-Hi school of philosophy which had migrated from China". The above account of his view is abridged from C. G. Jung, Psychological Types, pp. 268-269, whose description is based upon Tetsujiro Inouye, Japanese Philosophy, (1913). The 'bliss' of Ryochi is the same as the ānanda of Brahma, lazzat-ul-ilāhiyah, beatitude; 'persona', 'personality', is the same as the individualised p u r u s h a, jī v-ā t m ā, śhakhs; the Yoga-sūtra explains how this 'persona' is con-creted, conglomerated, upon the basis of a s m i t ā, egoism, by the growths of r ā g a, d v é s h a, a b h i n i v é s h a, likes, dislikes, and stubborn complexes.

Sūfis say :

Kufr o dīn har do ḍar raha-ṭ poyān,
 Wahḍahu lā sharik-ilah goyān. (S.)
 (Belief and misbelief are galloping,
 Both, on the road to Thee, both calling loud
 For what is the One Only Ultimate !)
 Momin o Ṭarsā, Yahūd o nék o baḍ,
 Jumlagān rā haṣṭ rū sūyé Abaḍ. (S.)
 (Muslim, Christian, or Jew, or good or bad,
 All turn their eyes to the Eternal One.)

The prophet Muhammad said :

Aṭ-ṭurqu il-Allahi kan nufūsu banī Āḍama. (H.)
 (There are as many ways to God as souls ;
 As many as the breaths of Adam's sons.)

A profound truth. Each individualised soul manifests an infinitesimally different aspect of the One Infinite. Therefore its involution, its return-journey to God, must also be, in the same degree, infinitesimally different from that of all others. Christian theology has a saying to the same effect: "As many as are the breaths in the nostrils, so many are the ways to God". But the Goal is ever the Self-same.

Ruchīnām vai-chiṭṛyāḍ
 ṛju-kutīla-nānā-paṭha-jushām
 Nṛṇām Ēko gamyas-
 Ṭvam asi payasām arṇava iva.
 (Shiva-Mahima-stuṭi.)

(Thou the One Goal of all the many paths
 Some easy, straight, some winding, difficult,
 Men follow as they variously incline—
 As of the countless streams the one vast sea !)

Yé-py-anya-dévaṭā-bhaktā
 yajanté shraḍḍhay-ānviṭāh,
 Ṭé-pi Mām éva, Kauntéya !,
 yajanty-aviḍhi-pūrvakam. (G.)

(Who worship other gods with heart of faith,
 They too adore but Me behind those forms,
 Unknowing yet of the one direct way.)

Indeed all names belong to It alone.
 The Qurān says :

Lillāhul asmā ul husnā. (Q.)

(All beauteous names are His—the Book declares.)

It tenderly adds the adjective “beautiful”, lest younger souls be disturbed. Elsewhere
 Muhammad has explained :

Ṭo kallimun annāso alā qaḍre uqūlahum. (H.)
 (Speak unto men according as may be Capacity of their intelligence.)

So Kṛṣṇa has said the same :

Yaḍ yaḍ vibhūṭi-maṭ saṭṭvam
 Shrī-maḍ ūrjītam éva vā,
 Ṭaḍ Ṭaḍ év-āva-gachchha ṭvam
 Mama téj-omsha-sambhavam.¹ (G.)

(Whatever shows forth glory, splendour, might—Know from My téjas-aspect is it born.)

¹Souls not yet sufficiently experienced and advanced, are apt to be repelled, even greatly angered, on hearing such statements as are quoted on preceding pages, of the identity, in essence, of man, nay, of all living things, with God. Such scriptural declarations must not be pressed upon them. For them, the Third Person, ‘He’, is enough ; later on, they will turn to the First Person, ‘I’.

Ṭān akṛtsna-viḍo maṇḍān kṛtsna-vin-na vīchālayeṭ;
 Na buḍḍhi-bhēḍam janayēḍ
 ajñānām karma-sanginām. (G.)

(Let not the man, who knoweth all, disturb
 The slower minds of those who know not all;
 Do not confuse child-minds with abstract thoughts;
 They must continue for some more time yet
 To learn from pious rituals and works.)

Speaking out too much and too freely about things which they cannot yet comprehend will

In the meanwhile, for the purposes of creedal and communal peace, they should be entreated to ponder the question: "Has the same God created all the races of men, past and present, or have different Gods done so? If the same, then must not the same truths about Himself, and the same commands for mutual goodwill and peace among men, be embodied in all the religions of the past and the present; with only as much surface-difference as there is between the complexions and clothings and languages of these different races, and the climatic and other natural conditions of different countries?"

It is true, there are some sects, in all religions, which are firmly convinced that God deliberately creates some souls (belonging to those sects) to enjoy heaven eternally, and other souls (belonging to all the other sects) to suffer hell perpetually. Unhappily this stage of extreme self-righteousness has to be passed through, it seems, by every soul, at some time or other, in the course of its eonic evolution. One can only very gently and humbly invite such to reflect whether the All-Merciful God can possibly be so cruel.

only perplex child-minds. As the English proverb wisely advises, 'give milk to the babes and meat to the strong.' But the elders have to take care that they diligently coax the babes on towards the stronger food in due time, and do not try to keep them on milk all their life, as priestcraft does but too extensively.

A Sūfī supplies the needed comment on the Qurānic adjective "beautiful".

Ba nāmé ān ké Ū nāmé na dārad,
Ba har nāmé ke khwānī sar bar ārad.
(He hath no name, and yet whatever name Ye may call out, He lifts an answering head.)

Another says plainly :

Ḍar mazhabé ā'shiqāne Yak-rang,
Iblīs o Isrāfil aṣṭ ham-sang. (S.)
(In the religion of the souls that love
The Changeless One, Satan weighs just the same,
And is hewn out from the same block of stone,
As Purity's Archangel Isrāfil.)

Yet another says,

Chūn nék o baḍ as Kḥuḍā-e dīḍand,
Rū az hama kḥalq ḍar kashīḍand. (S.)
(The wise saw Good and Evil both as God's;
And so they drew their hearts away from both,
And fixed them on the Master of the Two.)

Finally, the Qurān itself emphatically declares the whole truth :

Al khairo wa-s-sharro min Allāhi-ṭā'la. (Q.)
(Both Good and Evil come from the High God.)

One of the Qurānic names of God is Al-Muzil, the Misleader and Tempter and Tester; as Māyī, the 'Illusion-maker,' in Veda-Upanishats.

And the full significance of the Gītā-verse, quoted above, is that while the radiant and magnificent forms of life and existence manifest the Téjas or Jalālī aspect of the Supreme Self, other forms express others of His infinite aspects.

Vishtabhy-Āham Idam kṛtsnam

Ēk-āmshéna sthīto jagat. (G.)

(The whole of all this restless moving world

Is but a little part of Me ; the rest

Of Me is ever in eternal rest.)

For, indeed, He, the I, is the One in which all the Many is ever included ; the One, of which the Many are but as the attributes.

Wahḍaṭ ḍar Zāt, Kasraṭ ḍar Sifāt. (S.)

(In Essence, Unity ; Attributes, Multitude).

Guṇānām Āshrayas-tv-Éko,

Nirguṇah Kévalah saḍā ;

Guṇ-opa-gunakānām tu

Samkhyā n-aiv-éha viḍyaṭé.

Éko Dharmī dharma-shūnyah,

Dharmās tu sakalam jagat ;

Pratyaksham Khé Mahā-Shūnyé

(A)sankhy-āndāni bhramanṭi hi.

(Yoga-Vāsishtā).

(Substratum of all Attributes is One,

Al-one, Eternal, Void of Attributes ;

Of these, major and minor, count is not.

The One Possessor of all Attributes

Is yet devoid of all these Attributes ;

This may we see e'en with the eyes of flesh.

Does not this Infinite expanse of Heaven,

Vast Emptiness of Space, (Plenum of Self),

Hold all these countless ever-whirling orbs,

'Eggs of the Infinite', untouched by them ?).

While warning the wise man not to disturb the simple mind, to the advanced and thoughtful soul capable of hearing and holding wisdom, Kṛṣṇa says clearly :

Maṭ-ṭah para-ṭaram n-ānyaṭ kin-chiḍ-aṣṭi, Dhanan-jaya !
 Mayi sarvam iḍam pr-oṭam
 sūtré maṇi-gaṇā iva.
 Yé cha-iva sāṭṭvikāh bhāvāh,
 rājasāh, ṭāmasāsh-cha yé,
 Maṭ-ṭah év-éṭi ṭān viḍḍhi,
 na ṭv-Aham ṭeshu, té Mayi.
 Sukham, ḍuhkham, bhavo, bhāvo,
 Bhayam, ch-ābhayam éva cha,
 Yasho-ayasho, ṭapo, ḍānam
 Maṭ-ṭah sarvam pra-varṭaṭé.

Maṭ-ṭah smṛtir-jñānam ap-ohanam cha. (G.)
 (Nought is outside of Me ; all This is strung
 On Me, as beads upon a thread ; all moods,
 All acts, good, bad, mixed, all are Mine alone ;
 Yet am I not in them ; they are in Me.
 Joy, sorrow, life, death, fear, and fearlessness,
 Fame, infamy, gifts, acts of sacrifice,
 All these arise from Me and Me Al-one ;
 From Me, in Me, forgetfulness of Self
 And folly's utmost limit ; from Me too
 The Wisdom of remembrance of the Self.)

Puṇyam cha pāpam cha pāpé.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA, Shārīraka Bhāṣya.)
 (Sin, merit, both are sin, for both do bind
 The Soul—with chain of iron, or of gold.)

From the transcendental standpoint, each term of every pair of opposites is necessary to throw it into relief, to bring it into existence, by contrast, and also to neutralise it, ultimately. Good cannot possibly exist without contrasting evil. Hence to abolish evil, we must abolish good also ; neither love nor hate are to be assigned to the Absolute Self, which includes both equally.

Parī-ṇaṭi saba jīvana kī
 ṭīna bhāṇṭi baranī ;
 Éka pāpa, éka puṇya,
 éka rāga-haranī.
 Jā mén shubha ashubha aṇḍha,
 doṁ kara karma-bandha,
 Vīṭa-rāga-pari-naṭi hī
 bhava-samuḍra ṭaranī.
 Ṭyāgu shubha-kriyā-kalāpa,
 karu maṭa kaḍā cha pāpa,
 Shubha mén na magna hoi
 Shuḍḍha-ṭā bīsaranī.
 Yāvata shuḍḍh-opa-yoga
 pāvaṭa nāhīṁ mano-ga,
 Ṭāvaṭa hī karana yoga
 kahī puṇya-karanī.
 Ūcha nīcha ḍashā ḍhār,
 chīṭa-pramāḍa ko bīḍār,
 Ūchalī ḍashā ṭé giro
 maṭa adho ḍharanī.
 Bhāga Chandra l, yā prakāra
 Jīvana hai sukha apāra,
 Yāhī ké aḍhāra syāḍ—
 Vāḍa kī ucharanī.

(J., BHĀGA CHANDRA).

(Three-staged the Path of souls inherently ;
 Each soul must pass through all successively ;
 First is the stage of vicious selfishness ;
 To it succeeds the time of virtuousness ;

Last comes the stage free from all loves and hates,
 All personal desires. This last, the path
 Lighted by Duty only, helps the soul
 To break the bonds of sin and merit, too,
 Forged by the passions which imprison it ;
 And takes it safe across life's stormy sea.
 Give up the wish to earn merit for heaven ;
 But do not therefore cease from purity,
 Nor dream of ever doing deed of sin.
 Observe the rules prescribed for piety,
 Till the mind merges in the fount and source
 Of Purity. Bear patiently the states,
 Now high, now low, which fortune brings to thee ;
 Guard watchfully 'gainst errings of the mind ;
 See it falls not from noble to base mood.
 Such is the only way to fill with Peace
 Of mind and heart the life upon this earth ;
 Such is the essence of what Jina taught.)

The Bible of Judaism and Christianity also clearly indicates that all pairs of opposites, including the pair of Good and Evil, are in the One :

Shall evil befall a city, and the Lord hath not done it ? (B., Amos.)

I form the light and create darkness ; I make peace and create evil ; I am the Lord that doeth all these things...I have created the smith that bloweth the fire of coals, and bringeth forth a weapon for his work ;
 and I have created the waster to destroy. (B., Isaiah.)

We have seen before, that in Vaidika Dharma (now, in its corrupted form, in current practice, known as 'Hinduism'—and which living religion today is free from unfortunate degenerations, caused by the evil ingrained in human nature together with the good?), God is the Destroyer as Rudra, Tempter and Tester as Māyā-vī, Punisher and Corrector as Yama, and so on; that Islam recognises Him, as Al-Qahhār, Al-Jabbār, Al-Muzil, Al-Mumīt, i. e., the Wrathful, the Oppressor, the Misleader and Tester, the Slayer of the sinful; and so forth.

The mystery, the perplexity, the anguish of the heart torn between faith and doubt, faith in the ultimate Beneficence of the Supreme, doubt created by the glaring fact of endless misery of all degrees, within each self and all around—this conflict vanishes as soon as we realise that 'I' is the 'I'; that 'I am' means 'the I is'; that God, Lord, Allah, Īshvara, all ultimately mean the Universal, all-pervading, Self; that all Good and all Evil, the seeds of all the noblest virtues and all the basest vices, are all in Me, in every 'individual self', because they all are in the Universal Self; that all life, all the World-process, is incessantly, and inevitably, the Interplay of Opposites, of endless pains, sorrows, miseries, and corresponding endless pleasures, joys, delights; all which balance and neutralise each other in the Absolute Self, the Self absolv-ed from all relative 'opposites', zaujain, ziddain, d v a m-d v a m. But the 'child-mind' cannot, and must not be expected to, see the whole Truth. It has to evolve and grow to the stage of the 'parent-mind', and become able to stand on its own feet, and develop the power of self-conscious intro-spection, a n t a r-d ṛ s h t i, chashm-i-basirat, 'mental eye', 'inner eye', before it will be able to reduce the Third Person into the First Person, the 'He' into the 'I'. Then it will recognise it-self, and every self, as a piece of the Self, and as the maker of its own destiny; which destiny, in the 'infinite' view, is the same for all; endless Play, Pas-time, Drama, of equal Tragedy and Comedy. Till then, i.e., so long as it remains a 'child-mind', it must rest in the arms, or be helped along by the hands, of a 'parent', an 'elder'.

Without the Self, without the Principle of Consciousness, the Universe disappears, and science vanishes. All things else may be doubted, the Self cannot be. The doubter cannot doubt himself. Scientists have therefore grown wiser and have receded from the gush and rush of materialistic turbulence natural to the first flush of the growth of science. The faith of the great scientists of the day has been already mentioned, that this world is a world governed by Spirit and not by Matter; unless, indeed, we endow Matter with all the qualities of Spirit; and then it means only that we have ex-changed the connotations of the two words. And this Supreme Spirit is in Me, is I.

As Christ says :

Believe Me that I am in the Father and the Father is in Me...He that has seen Me has seen the Father... If ye had known Me ye should have known my Father also. (B.)

And as Muhammad says also :

Anā Ahmaḍ bilā mīm. (H.)

Man rā-ani rā al Haqqa. (H.)

Man a'rafa nafsahū faqad a'rafa Rabbahu. (H.)

Nas-ullāhā fa'ansāhum anfusahum. (Q.)

Ahmaḍ am I, minus the letter 'm',

Which means, 'I am Ahad, the One alone.'

He who hath seen Me surely hath seen God.

He who hath known him-Self hath known his God.

He who forgetteth God forgets him-Self.)

Confucius says :

What the undeveloped man seeks is others ; what the advanced man seeks is him-Self. (Quoted in Ency. Brit., 14th edn., Art. Confucius.)

Hayashi-Razan, an eminent scholar of Chinese classics, of the seventeenth century, says :

The human mind, partaking of Divinity, is an abode of the Deity, which is the Spiritual Essence. There exists no highest Deity outside the human mind.

(Shinto-Dinju, quoted in Ency. Brit., Ibid.)

The heavens are still ; no sound.

Where then shall God be found ?

Search not in distant skies ;

In man's own heart He lies.

(Shao Yung, translated and quoted by H.D. Gibbs, The Religions of Ancient China, 1011—1077).

Shintoists...consistently upheld the theanthropic doctrine of Kan-nagara, of man being essentially divine ; Kan-nagara, kan from kanu, and nagara,... 'man himself divine'...The divine and the human are one in quality ; Only, the latter is temporary, the former enduring. The everlasting divinity is called human during the time it resides on this planet. (Inazo Nitobe, Japan, pp. 309-321).

This, in Vedānta, is the distinction between Param-ātmā and Jīva-ātmā; in Sūfism, between Rūh-ul-arwāh and Rūh; in Gnostic Mysticism, between God and Son of God.

As the Christ says :

I and my Father are one...Yet is my Father greater than I...I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you. (B.)

In the words of Shankar-āchārya,
Saty-apī bhéd-āpa-gamé,

Nātha ! Tav-āham, na māma-kīnas-Ṭvam !
Sāmuḍro hi ṭarangah

Kva-chana samuḍro na ṭarangah ! (Shat-paṭi.)
(Though all false sense of separateness be past,
Yet am I Thine, My Lord !, and not Thou mine !
The wave unto the ocean doth belong ;
Never the ocean to the tiny wave !)

I have said, ye are gods ; and all of you are children of the Most High. (B., Psalms, 82. 6.)

It is with reference to this that Jesus says,
Is it not written in your laws, 'I said, ye are gods?...Say ye (to me)...'Thou blasphemest, because, I said, 'I am the son of God' ? (B., John.)

The Truth of the Infinite is indeed not easy to put into words which are finite, and so easily and so frequently misunderstood. What wonder that Buddha and other great Teachers became silent, when questioned on ultimate mysteries, by persons not ready and not able to understand the thought behind the veil of words.

Man a'rafa Rabba-hū kal-lā lesānuhū. (H.)
(The man who findeth God loseth his speech.)
Gurōs-ṭu maunam vyākhyānam,

Shishyās-ṭ-ūchchhīna-samshayāh. (Guru-Gītā.)

(The speaker doth discourse quite speechlessly, Yet are the pupils' doubts wholly re-solved.)

Mahramé īn hosh juz bé-hosh n-īst;

Mar zabān rā mushṭarī juz gosh n-īst. (S.)

(Only th' Unconscious knows this Consciousness;
The tongue's sense but the speechless ear can guess.)

Girā a-naina, naina binu bānī,

Kehī bīdhi an-upama jāi bakhānī!

Sūna bhīṭi para bībīdha ranga ké

ṭanu bina likhé Chitéré!

(TULASI DĀS, Rāmāyana and Vinaya Patrikā.)

(Sightless the tongue is, voiceless are the eyes;

How then describe that Vision, all unique!)

Wall—Emptiness; the Painter—Bodiless;

Yet pictures infinite in forms and hues!)

I am in the Father, and the Father in me...
I am in my Father and ye in me, and I in you...Abide in Me, and I in you...without Me you cannot do anything. (B., John, xiv.)

Yé bhajanṭi ṭu mām bhakṭyā,

Mayi ṭé, téshu ch-āpy-Aham. (G.)

(They who love Me with love sincere, they are

In Me, and I also am e'er in them.)

Ū ḍar ḍile man aṣṭ, wa ḍile man ba-ḍaṣṭe Ū;

Chūn āyīnah ba-ḍaṣṭe man, wa man ḍar āyīnah. (S.)

(He's in my heart, my heart is in His hands;

This mirror's in my hand, and I in it.)

All things are Himself, and Himself is concealed on every side; Iqrā Rabbā, X. 117; Adam Kadmon, (Ādam-i-Qaḍīm) the Eternal Man or Self of the Kabalists, contains in Him-Self all the souls of the Israelities, and He is Him-Self in every soul. (Sohar, or Zohar, Introduction, pp. 305, 312; quoted by H. P. Blavatsky, in Isis Unveiled, II, 342.)

Yas̥tu sarvāṇi bhūṭāni Ātmany-év-ānu-pashyaṭi, Sarva-bhūṭéshu ch-Ātmānam ṭaṭo na vi-jugupsaté, ṭaṭo na vi-chikitsaté. (U.)

(Who seeth all in Self and Self in all, Doubteth no more, nor hateth any more).

We have noted elsewhere that the ability of a person to put off any one particular religion, and put on any other, proves that the soul of the human being is superior to all particular religions, and can judge between them all at will.

The case for the supremacy of the I has been still more conclusively put in some Sūfī verses :

Zān ki ustā rā Shināsā ham ṭu ī,
Jumla ustā rā khud Ustā ham ṭu ī.
Chūn Haqīqat rā Muhaqqiq khud ṭu ī,
Ain haq īn-as̥t ain-ul-Haq ṭu ī.
Hastiyé Rab rā Mujawwiz chūn ṭu ī,
Bil-yaqīn Allāh-e-Akbar khud ṭu ī. (S.)

(Since thou decidest who is fit to take
Or not to take for Teacher, thou thy-Self Must surely than all teachers greater be.
Since thou dost judge that this is True, this Not,
Maker of Truth, most True, thy-Self must be.
Since thou determinest whether God is
Or is not, surely thine own Self must be
The inmost being of Godhead, Greatest God.)

2. EVOLUTION, PHYLOGENESIS, REBIRTH

So far, we have endeavoured to expound the fundamental Truth of truths, viz : There is an Ultimate Mystery behind all Life, behind all the World-process, behind the whole 'Uni-verse,' (from Lat. unus, one, and vertere, to turn; 'that which revolves round the One'); It is the Creator, Preserver, Destroyer, of all objects; It can be best and most nearly understood and recognised in terms of Spirit and Mind; It is All-pervading Spirit and Universal Mind; It is the Principle of all Life and Consciousness; It is the Spirit, Soul, Life, Mind of the whole World; It's nearest, dearest, best, most common, indeed universal, name is 'I'; It, as 'I', bears every name, wears every form, knows, desires, does, everything that is known, every desire that is felt, every act that is done—'I am so-and-so; I know, wish, do, this and that'; thus, every living thing, which regards itself as 'I', especially Man, who self-consciously regards and speaks of him-self as 'I', is, in essence, one with It; It, that Ultimate Mystery, is our very Self—so all religions declare; though all names belong to It, still, every religion, every language, has given It one or two names which are most frequently used in it, e.g., Param-Ātmā, Ātmā, Brahma, in Vaidika Dharma (or Hinduism) and Samskr̥t; Allāh, Rab, Mālik, Maulā, in Islām (or Mohammedanism) and Arabic; Khudā, in Persian; God, (perhaps another form of Khudā) in Christianity and English; Ahurā-Mazadā, in Zoroastrianism; Jehovah, in Judaism (Hebraism, the Jewish religion); Sat Sri Akāl, (the Timeless), in Sikhism; Ātmā, Brahma, Shūnya, Amit-ābha, in Buddhism; Ātmā, Param-ātmā, Nir-anjana, in Jainism; Tāo in Taoism; Shangti (the One Supreme Being), Tien (Heaven), Tai-Chi (the Great Ultimate) in Confucianism; Ame-no-minaka-nushi (Heaven-centre-ruling Deity, the Absolute Universal Self), in Shintoism. We have also seen that the World-process is one unending Drama of infinite inextricably mingled Tragedy-and-Comedy, 'Pairs of Opposites', wherein God is perpetually forgetting himself into Man, and Man is perpetually remembering himself back into God again.

Out of this arises the next important truth, viz., that of samsāra-chakra, charkh-i-gardūn, 'cyclical wheeling', 'revolution' of involution (of Spirit in Matter) and re-evolution (of Spirit out of Matter), of regress and progress, a-vā-roha and ā-roha, izāl and irṭiqā. This corresponds to, and links up with, the scientific view of Evolution and Phylogenesis. Some religions speak of Re-births of the same soul in several physical bodies, one after another. Others interpret 'progress' differently. Other English words for re-birth are re-incarnation and metempsychosis; Skt., punar-janma; Arab.-Per., tanāsukh. The Vaidika doctrine is well known, that the soul comes to the stage of man after passing through many lower forms, and takes numerous rebirths in the human form. In fact, Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, are so full of it that it is not needed to quote texts in proof. It does not appear that the Bible and the Qurān contain any explicit affirmation of rebirth. But they nowhere deny it either. And Christ said that the prophet Elijah had come again as John the Baptist.

Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. (B., Malachi.)

Jesus began to say unto the multitudes concerning John the Baptist...For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John. And if ye will receive it, this is Elias (Elijah) which was for to come. (B., Matthew.)

King Herod the tetrarch...beheaded John in the prison. (Ibid.)

And his disciples asked him...and Jesus answered...that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed. ...Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist. (Ibid.)

The Prophet Muḥammad also has said :

Yā ayyoḥal insāno innakā kāḍihun elā Rabbekā kāḍihan fa mulāqihe,...laṭarkabun-na ṭabaqan an ṭabaq. (Q.)

(O Man ! thou hast to go back unto God,
Thy God, thy Self, with labour and with pain, Ascending stage by stage, plane after plane.)

Kṛṣṇa says :

Anéka-janma-samsiddhas

ṭaṭo yāṭi parām gaṭim.

Bahūnām janmanām anṭé

jñāna-vān Mām prapaḍyaṭé. (G.)

(Many the births that man has to pass through,
Before the Supreme Knowledge comes to him,
And he accomplishes his destiny,
Reaches the Final Goal, and findeth Me.)

And there are texts in the Qurān which may be interpreted as meaning that man lives and dies repeatedly, even as worlds are created and destroyed repeatedly.

Man-vanṭarāṇy-a-sankhyāni,
sargah, samhāra éva cha,

Krīdan-niv-aṭaṭ kurutē

Paraméshthī punah punah. (M.)

(Cycles and cycling worlds, all numberless,
Creations and destructions, doth He make
Over and over, as in playful sport—
The Lord of all, standing beyond them all.)

Innahū yabḍa-ul-khalqa summa yoīḍoh; le yajze-yallazīna āmanu wa a'melus-saulehāte b-il qiste...
Kama baḍa-anā awwala khalqin noīḍah...Yakhloḡo-kum fī buṭūni-ummuhāṭi-kum khalqam-minā bā'de khalqin zulumāṭin salas.. (Q.)

(He makes a world-creation; then again
He reproduces it, so that He may
With justice recompense those who believe
In God's Word and do good to fellow-beings.
God sayeth—As We did originate
The first creation, so we reproduce...

He in your mother's wombs createth you,
Creation on creation yet again.)

Minhā khalāqnā-kum, wa fī hā noīḍu-kum, wa minhā nukhruju-kum elā ṭa'āraṭīn-ukhṛā. (Q.)

(From out the earth have I now given birth
To you, and I will send you into it
Again, and bring you forth from it again,
Again, repeatedly, until the End.)

Summā ba'asmā-kum min bā'de mauṭe-kum la'alla-kum ṭushkurūn. (Q.)

(I gave you birth again after you died,
That you may think of Me with gratitude.)

Ahyānā bā'de amātanā...Kul yohyi hallazī anshāahā awwalamarra. (Q.)

Yukhrijul hayya minal mayyaṭi, wa yukhrijul
mayyaṭa minal hayyī. (Q.)

(He made us live again after our death.

He made you live before, and can again.

He makes the living dead, the dead alive.)

Kaifā ṭakfurūnā billāhē wa kunṭum amvātan fā ahyakum summā yumīṭokum summā yohyikum summā ilāhe ṭarja'un. (Q.)

(How can you make denial of your God

Who made you live again when you had died,

Will make you dead again, again alive,

Until you go back finally to Him ?)

The well-known lines of Maulānā Rūm¹ may be regarded as explicit comment on these texts, fixing the right interpretation.

Ham cho sabzā bārahā royīdah am,

Haft saḍ haṭṭāḍ qālīb dīdah am ;

Az jamādī murḍam o nāmī shuḍam ;

Waz numā murḍam ba haiwān sar zaḍam ;

Murḍam az haiwānī o āḍam shuḍam ;

Pas che ṭarsam kai ze murḍan gum shuḍam ?

Hamlaé ḍīgar bī-mīram az bashar,

Ṭā bar āram az malāyak bāl o par ;

Az malak ham bāyaḍam juṣṭan ze jū,

Kulle shayīn hālikun illā Wujh-Ū.

Pas a'ḍam garḍam a'ḍam chūn arḡhanūn

Goyaḍ am 'Innā ilāihā rāje'un'.

Bāre ḍīgar az malak parrān shawam,

Ān che andar wahm n-āyaḍ ān shawam. (S.)

¹ Masnawī, Book III, p. 334, (Cawnpore edition).

(Like grass have I grown o'er and o'er again ;
 Seven hundred seventy bodies have I seen.
 From out the form of mineral I passed
 And as a vegetable lived again ;
 From out the vegetable form I died
 And lifted up a head as animal ;
 The form of animal I put away
 And took the human shape of Adam-Eve ;
 Why shall I fear that if I die once more
 I shall be lost ? Nay, I shall surely gain,
 At the next onset, dying out of man,
 The flowing locks and shining wings of angels.
 And finally, when next I take my flight
 From e'en that world, I surely shall become
 That which beyond all comprehension rests !
 For all things pass except the Primal Cause,
 The Cause of Causes, the Face of the Self,
 Which is Non-being of Aught-Else than Self,
 (For Self is the Negation of Not-Self).
 And when I am in such Non-Being, then
 My Being in Non-Being shall resound
 In organ-tones, 'Thou hast returned to Me'.)

Elsewhere, in the same Masnawī, Rūmī repeats :

Āmadah awwal ba iqlīmē jamād ;
 Az jamādī dar nabāṭī ofṭād ;
 Sālahā andar nabāṭī umr kard,
 Waz jamādī yād n-āward az na burd ;
 Waz nabāṭī chūn ba haiwānī fuṭād,
 N-āmaḍ-ash hāl-é nabāṭī héch yād ;
 Ham-chun-in iqlīm tā iqlīm raft,
 Tā shud aknūn āqil-o dānā wa zaft ;
 Aqlahāé awwalīn-ash yād n-īst,
 Ham azīn a'ql-ash ṭahawwal kardānī-st,

Tā riyad z-iñ a'ql pur-hirs o ṭalab,
 Saḍ hazārāñ a'ql bīnaḍ bu-l-'ajab.
 Gar-ché khufta gasht o shuḍ nāsī ze pēsh
 Kai guzārāñ-ash ḍar-añ nīsiyān-e-khwēsh.
 Bāz az āñ khwāb-ash ba bēḍārī kashand,
 Tā kunaḍ bar hālaté khud rīsh-khand. (S.)
 (First into state of mineral he came ;
 And then, as vegetable, ages spent,
 Forgetting all he felt as mineral ;
 Then into state of animal he passed,
 Oblivious of the vegetable state ;
 Ascending thus, stage after stage, he now
 Is man, intelligent, knowing and strong,
 Yet all forgetful of his previous states.
 From this stage of intelligence also
 He has to rise, since it is full of greeds
 And clingings to small things and jealousies.
 When he has done so, then a myriad paths
 Of knowledge, wonder, and great mysteries,
 Will open out before him endlessly.
 He will not be allowed to lose him-Self ;
 He will be dragged out of his Night of Sleep,
 Into the Day of Wakefulness again,
 Till he laughs at him-Self in ecstasy.)

The same succession of mineral, vegetable, animal, human, and higher kingdoms of nature is to be found in the ancient Samskr̥t books, and also in modern science.

Uḍbhijāh, svēḍa-jāsh-ch-aiva, anda-jāsh-cha jarāyu-jāh ;
 Ity-ēvam varṇitāh shāstré
 bhūṭa-grāmāsh-chaṭur-vidhāh. (Purāṇas.)
 (Four are the orders of the living things
 That dwell on this our earth—the mineral,

The vegetable, animal, and man ;
 First fissiparous, then gemmation-born,
 Then oviparous, viviparous last.)
 Srshtvā purāṇi vividhāny-ajay-Ātma-Shaktyā,
 Vṛkshān, sarīsrpa-pashūn, khaga-ḍamsha-maṭsyān,
 Tais-ṭair-aṭushta-hṛdayo manujam vidhāya
 Brahm-āva-bodha-ḍhishanānam muḍam āpa Dévah.
(Bh.)

(House after house did God make for Himself—
 Mineral and plant, insect, fish, reptile, bird,
 And mammal too. But yet was He not pleased.
 At last He made Himself the shape of Man,
 Wherein He knew Him-Self the Vast Immense,
 The final greatest Greatness limitless,
 The all-including Universal Self,
 Pervading all, Eternal, Infinite —
 And then the Lord of All was satisfied.)

Khalaq-al-insāna alā sūraṭ-ir-Rahmān. (H.)

God created man in His own image...And God saw everything that He had made, and behold it was very good. (B.)

The Jewish (Hebrew) Qabbālā has an axiom :

A stone becomes a plant ; a plant, a beast ; a beast, a man ; a man, a spirit ; and the spirit, a god.

The Hebrew (Jewish) Zohar says :

All souls are subject to the trials of transmigration ; and men...do not know how many mysterious trials and transformations they must undergo...The souls must re-enter the Absolute Substance whence they have emerged. But to accomplish this they must develop all the perfections, the germ of which is planted in them ; and if they have not fulfilled this condition during one life, they must commence another, a third, and so forth, until they have acquired the condition which fits them for re-union with God.¹

The Purāṇic legend is that living forms may be dichotomised (i.e., dually classified) into the unmoving and the moving, which are sub-divided into the four main kingdoms of nature, which include eight million four hundred thousand species. The last figure may or may not be of the same sort as the many modern 'scientific speculations' regarding the age of the earth, the distances and the numbers of the visible and invisible stars, the size of the universe (or rather our sidereal system, an infinitesimal atom of the Infinite Universe), the numbers of radiations from metals, the velocities of electrons, the time it would take for one element to 'break down' into another because of radiations, the number of millions of eggs laid by one cod-fish at one laying, the number of atoms contained in the earth, the number of miles from the sun or our earth to the nearest star, etc.—speculations based on mathematical calculations. But the succession of the various orders of life is very much the same as that sponsored by modern science. Thus :

Sthāvaram vimśaṭśr-lakṣham,
 jala-jam nava-lakṣhakam,
 Kūrmāśh-cha nava-lakṣham syurḍaśha-lakṣham cha pakṣiṇaḥ, Trimśhal-lakṣham paśūnām cha,
 chaṭṭur-lakṣham tu vānarāḥ,

¹*The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals*,
 by Annie Besant.

Ṭaṭo manushyaṭām prāpya
ṭatah karmāṇi sādḥayet.

(Bṛhad-Vishṇu-Purāṇa.)

(The mineral and the vegetable worlds,
Unmoving, count 'tween them two million forms ;
Nine hundred thousand, the aquatics then ;
Reptiles, as many ; birds, a million ;
Then comes the mammal world, three millions ;
Four hundred thousand kinds of anthropoids ;
Two hundred thousand human species, last.)

It is explained that all these are not to be supposed as co-existing to-day or at any other given time in the past or the future. The majority of them 'have had their day' and disappeared, like the monster-saurians, the twelve-legged horse, the aurochs, the sabre-tooth tiger, the pterodactyl, the dinornis, many amphibia, and innumerable forms representing the critical junction-points between the kingdoms ; and many will appear and disappear in the future.

Bhūṭeṣhu vīruḍbhya uḍ-utṭamā yé
Saiṇ-srpās ; ṭeṣhu sa-boḍha-nishthāh ;
Ṭaṭo manushyāh ; pramaṭhās ṭaṭo-pi,
Gandharva-siddhā vibudhā-nu-gā yé ;
Dev-āsurbhṛyo Maghavaṭ-pradhānā
Daksh-āḍayo Brahma-suṭās tu ; ṭeṣbām
Bhavah parah ; so-ṭha Virinchi-vīryah ;
Sa Maṭ-paro ; Aham dṛviṇa-dēva-Dēvah. (Bh.)

('Mongst living growing things, than minerals
Are vegetables higher ; and than these
The forms that freely move about ; than these
The animals that have intelligence ;
Then human beings ; and then the several grades

Of spirits, angels, and perfected men ;
 Then the high gods born from the Primal Mind,
 First Ideator, First Intelligence ;
 And finally the Self in which all Rests.)

Zoroaster says ;

Yé vahyo vanghéus đazađé yas chā hōī vārāī rāđat
 Ahuro kshathrā Mazadāo ađ ahmāī akāđ ashyoyéhoī, no iđ vīđāiđē apémé anghéus ūrvayésé.

(Z., Gāthā, 51-6).

(In each succeeding birth the Great God gives
 To him who seeks His favour by good deeds,
 Greater Self-knowledge, greater self-control ;
 But unto him who acts not well but ill,
 He gives a worse fate in each following life.)

Ṭān Aham đvishađah krūrān
 samsārésu narā-đhamān
 Kshīpāmy-ajasram ashubbhān
 āsurīshv-éva yonīshu. (G.)

(Those evil ones, the hateful, cruel, mean,
 Fall into evil wombs, birth after birth,
 Till by reaction consequent, in pain,
 They learn to turn into the ways of good.)

Man is the 'crown of creation', ashraf-ul-makhlūqāt.

Sanātanam guhyam iđam bravīmi,
 Na mānushyāđ shréshta-đaram hi kin-chiđ. (Mbh.)
 (This ancient secret is disclosed to thee :
 There is naught nobler than 'humanity'.)

This is so only because in the human form God becomes able to recognise Him-Self, and to realise that He is All and Every-thing, again, after millions of years of forgetfulness of the Self's Glory.

Sūfis generally believe in rebirth, rija't, and irtiqā, ascent; and have more technical distinctions than even the Vaidikas on this point. Thus, reincarnation as man is naskh; as animal is maskh; as vegetable is faskh; as mineral is raskh.¹ Such degradation, as in schools, from higher to lower stage, class, is very rare, though detention is not so infrequent. Because the Self runs through and wears all forms, therefore the thread of evolution runs through them all continuously, and man has in him the seeds and potencies of all the kingdoms of Nature. All is indeed everywhere and always, because God is everywhere and always; and all is in God, the Self.

¹"Ahmaḍ ibnī Sābiṭ, Ahmaḍ ibnī Yabūs, Abū Muslim of Khurāsān, Shaikh-ul-Ishrāq, and the famous Omar Khayyām, were exponents of the doctrine of transmigration and re-incarnation, basing their arguments on (the Qurān) Sūrat-ul-Bāqarā, verses 61-92, Sūrat-ul-Māidah, v. 55, etc.": Khāja Khān, Studies in Tasawwuf, p. 132. Translations of some of these verses, as made by Maulvī Muḥammad Alī, M. A., LL. B., President Ahmadiyya Anjuman-i-ishāat-i-Islām, Lahore, are reproduced below:

"And certainly you have known those among you who exceeded the limits of the Sabbath; so We said to them: Be (as) apes, despised and hated": (65). "...What then is the reward of such among you as to this, but disgrace in the life of this world, and on the day of resurrection they shall be sent back to the most grievous chastisement; and Allah is not at all heedless of what you do"; (85). "And most certainly

3. KARMA.

The third important truth is that of reward and punishment. Virtue and merit are rewarded ; vice and sin punished ; some day, somewhere, sooner or later, here or hereafter. All religions equally proclaim this great truth. As we sow, so must we reap. This Law of Karma is only the scientific law of cause and effect, or, better, of action and reaction, working on the psychical and spiritual plane. Karma works from within. Because the Self is in all, therefore pain given, means, later, pain suffered ; and pleasure given, becomes pleasure received. Sins as well

We gave Moses the book, and We sent apostles after him, one after another ; and We gave Jesus, the son of Mary, clear arguments, and strengthened him with the holy revelation. What !, whenever then an apostle came to you with that which your souls did not desire, you were insolent, so you called some liars, and some you slay": (87). "Evil is that for which they have sold their souls ;...so they have made themselves deserving of wrath upon wrath, and there is a disgraceful chastisement for the unbelievers": (90). Al Bāqarā.

"....(Worse is he) whom Allah has cursed and brought His wrath upon, and of whom He made apes and swine, and he who served the devil ; these are worse in place and more erring from the straight path": Al-Mā'idah. Maulānā Muhammad Ali, in his comments, says that the words 'apes' and 'swine' are not to be taken literally. The learned Sūfis, whom Khāja Khān mentions, as above, seem to have thought otherwise. More on this point will be said in a later foot-note.

as merits come home to roost, without fail. Failure would be possible if souls were really wholly separate. They are not. The One Self, Rūh-ul-rūh, Rūh-i-ā'zam, Rūh-i-ālam, Para m-A t m ā, J a g a d-Ā t m ā, S ū t r-Ā t m ā, V i s h v-Ā t m ā, Oversoul, Ānima Mundi, the Collective Unconscious, the Supra-conscious, Universal Spirit, binds them all together. Therefore escape from consequence is impossible. If my hand hurt my foot, shall not the hand also feel the pain? Vaidika Dharma and its off-shoots and reforms, Buddhism, Jainism, Sikhism, current 'Hinduism', are so permeated with the idea of Karma, and this fact is so well-known, that no texts need be quoted; yet, a few may be. The very word Karma has now become part of many languages.

Bani Ādam ā'zāi yak dīgar and,
Ke dar āfrīnish ze yak jauhar and.
Chu uzwē ba-dard āwarad rozgār,
Dīgar uzwa-hā rā na mānad qarār. (S., SĀ'pī).

(The progeny of Adam, all are parts
And limbs of one and the same organism,
Risen from the Same Essence, every one;
And can it be, while one limb is in pain,
That other limbs should feel at restful ease?.)

Sahasra-shīrshā Purushah

sahasr-ākshah sahasra-pāt. (V.)

(The countless heads, eyes, ears, and hands and feet
Of living beings are all parts of One Man.)

When one member (of the body) suffers, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it. (B., Paul.)

Sukhasya dukkhasya na ko-pi dātā,
 Paro daḍḍāt-īti ku-buddhir-éshā ;
 Svayam kṛtam svéna phaléna yujyaté ;
 Sharīra, hé !, nistara yaḥ tvayā kṛtam.

(Garuda Purāṇa.)

(Sorrow or joy none other gives to us ;
 False is the thought that others give us these ;
 Our own deeds bring us their own just fruit—
 Body of mine ! repay by suffering !)

Woe unto them that call evil good, and good evil...
 Be not deceived ; God is not mocked ; whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap...They that sow iniquity and sow wickedness, reap the same...To him that soweth righteousness shall be a sure reward.
 ...Men do not gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles...The wages of sin is death...He shall reward every man according to his works...Give and it shall be given unto you...With the same measure that ye mete withal, it shall be measured to you again...God will render to everyone according to his deeds...Unto Thee, O Lord !, belongeth mercy ; for thou renderest to every man according to his work. (B., Job ; Psalms ; Proverbs ; Matthew ; Luke ; Romans ; etc.)

Wa mā asawbakum min-mosībatin fa bemā kasabaḥ ayḍikum...wa maṇya'mal misqāla zarraṭin kḥairuṇ-yarah ; wa maṇya'mal misqāla zarraṭin sharraṇ-yarah...F-al yauma lā ṭuzlamo nafsun shai-aṇwa lā ṭuzzauna illā mā kunṭum ta'malūn. (Q.)

(Whatever of misfortune falls on one,
 Of one's own doings it is the result.
 The atom's weight of good that you have done,
 That you shall see come back to you again ;
 The atom's weight of evil you have wrought,

That also must you meet unfailingly.
 Be sure, no soul shall be dealt with, this day,
 Unjustly, in the least; and you shall not
 Requited be with aught but what you did.
 Jazā-un be mā kānu yā'malūn. (Q.)
 (Thou shalt receive requital and reward
 In just return for whatsoe'er thou dost.)
 Hṛḍi sṭhitah Karma-Sākshī... svasy-aiv-Āntara-Pūrushah...
 Yamo Vaivasvaṭo Dēvo
 yas-ṭav-aisha hṛḍi sṭhitah,
 Tēna cheḍ-avivāḍas-tē
 mā Gangām mā Kurūn gamah.¹ (M., Mbh.)
 (This Ruler-Yama who dwells in thy heart,
 Watchful, awake, as thine own Ātmā-Self,
 Unfailing witness of thy smallest deeds—
 If He no quarrel has with thee, then thou
 Needst not make pilgrimage to holy shrines,
 To Kuru-kshétra or to Gangā's stream.)
 Har che bar mā-sṭ, az mā-sṭ (S.)
 (Whate'er befalleth us, cometh from us.)
 (These deeds of yours shall verily be brought Back unto you, as if you were yourself
 The author of your own just punishment. (H.)
 Yāo īshuḍyo daḍénté dāṭhrānām ha chā
 ashā-ūno Yāoschā, Mazadā !, dṛégvodévyo ;

¹ A western poet has put the truth of the Law of Karma more softly and soothingly:

All Nature is His Art unknown to thee ;
 All Chance, His Order which thou caust not see ;
 All Discord, His Concord not understood ;
 All partial Evil, His all-reaching Good.
 Take heart, beloved !, in erring reason's spite ;
 Whatever wrong there is, will be set right.

Yā frashā āvishyā, yā vā, Mazadā !, pérésaité tayā,...tā chashmēnéng thvisrā hāro aībi ashā aībi vaénahī vispā. (Z., Gāthā, 31. 13, 14) (Great Mazadā !, Thou dost requite all deeds
 Unto the pious and the impious ;
 For thou dost see with Thy All-seeing eyes
 The secret and the openly expressed Desires of human beings, or good, or bad.)
 Yathā āish ithā varéshaité
 ...Raṭuš shyaōthanā rajishṭā drégvaṭa-écha hyaṭ chā ashāūné...
 ...Hyaṭ Thvā anghéuš jānthōi ḍarésém pao-ūrvīm, hyaṭ dāo shyaōthanā mīzhdavāū yā chā ūkhghā, akém akāi vaughūhīm ashīsh vanghaové Thvā hunarā dāmoīsh ūrva-ésé apémé. (Z., Gāthā, 33. 1 ; 43. 5).
 (Great Raṭush !, Thou does give unto each one
 Just retribution, even as he is,
 Vicious or virtuous, or false or true.
 Thou, Mazadā !, that art both First and Last,
 At the beginning and the end of life,
 According to Thy fixed eternal Laws,
 Thou dost award to each his just desert,
 Reward or punishment, in word and deed,
 Ill unto ill and good unto the good.)

O men ! learn ye these laws of happiness and misery which Ahura Mazadā has ordained. They are, the suffering of pain for a long time for the wicked, and blessings for the righteous, by which they attain happiness. (Z., Ahūnavaḍ Gāthā, xxx. 11.)

Good and evil do not wrongly befall men ; but Heaven sends down misery or happiness according to their conduct. From the loving example of one family a whole state may become loving ; and from its courtesies, courteous. From the ambition and perverseness of one man, the whole state may be thrown into rebellious disorder. Such is the nature of the influence. (C., Liki, 39. 18.)

Those who do evil in the open light of day—men will punish them. Those who do evil in secret—God will punish them. Who fears both man and God—he is fit to walk alone. (T., Kwang Tze, 23. 8.)

Whoso casteth a stone on high, casteth it on his own head; and a deceitful stroke shall make wounds. Whoso diggeth a pit shall fall therein; and he that setteth a trap shall be taken therein. He that worketh mischief, it shall fall upon him, and he shall not know whence it cometh. § (Bible Apocrypha, Ecclesiasticus).

*The Way of Heaven is to bless the good and to punish the bad; the end of punishment is to promote virtue and make an end of punishing. (C., Shu King.)

The recompense of good and evil follows as the shadow follows the figure.

(Ta Tai-shang Kan Ying Pien.)

(If a man speak or act with evil thought,
Pain surely follows him, e'en as the wheel Follows the ox that drags the cart along.)
(Bu., Mahā-vagga, 6. 31. 7.)

Yo apy-aḍutthasya narasya ḍussati,
Suddhassa posassa an-angaṇassa,
Ṭam éva bālam pachchéti pāpam,
Sukhmo rajo pati-vāṭam va khiṭṭo. (Dh.)
(The man who hurts the sinless innocent,
Unto that thoughtless man returns that hurt,
Unfailing, as fine dust flung 'gainst the wind).

Attā hi Attāno nātho,
ko hi nātho paro siyā;

Aṭṭanā 'va su-ḍantēna,
 nāṭham labhaṭi dullabham.
 Aṭṭā hī Aṭṭano nāṭho,
 Aṭṭā hī Aṭṭano gaṭi ;
 Tasmā saññamay-Aṭṭānam, assam bhadram 'va vāṇijo.
 Aṭṭanā 'va kaṭam pāpam
 aṭṭa-jam aṭṭa-sambhavam
 Abhi-manṭhaṭi ḍum-médham
 vajiram 'va 'sma-mayam maṇim.¹ (Dh.)

(Self is the Self's protector, master, lord.
 Who other can be such ? If ye control
 And discipline your-Self, ye gain a Friend
 Such as ye cannot have outside your-Self.
 Self only is Self's final refuge, goal ;
 Then train it well, so it will swiftly take
 To whatsoever righteous goal ye seek.
 The sin arising from within one-self,
 Churns up that evil mind within it-self,

¹The Samskr̥t form of these Pālī verses, uttered by the Buddha, would be :

Ātmā hī Ātmano nāṭhah ;
 ko hī nāṭhah parah syāt ?
 Ātman-aiva su-ḍantēna
 nāṭham labhaṭi dur-labham.
 Ātmā hī Ātmano nāṭhah,
 Ātmā hī Ātmano gaṭih ;
 Tasmāt samyamay-Ātmānam,
 ashvam bhadram iva vāṇijah.
 Ātman-aiva kṛṭam pāpam,
 Ātma-jam, Ātma-sambhavam,
 Abhi-maṭhnāti ḍur-médhasam,
 vajram iva ashma-mayam maṇim.

E'en as the diamond-grinder's grinding stone
Grinds down the jewel-stone till it shape true.)

Udḍharéd-Ātman-Ātmānam
n-Ātmānam ava-sādayét ;
Ātm-aiva hy-Ātmano bandhur-
Ātm-aiva ripur-Ātmanah ;
Bandhur-Ātm-Ātmanas-tasya,
Yén-Ātm-aiv-Ātmanā jītaḥ ;
An-Ātmanas-tu shaṭrutvé
vartét-Ātm-aiva shaṭru-vaṭ. (G.)

Paraspara-bhayāt kéchiṭ pāpāḥ pāpam na kurvaṭé ;
Rāja-danda-bhayāt kéchiṭ, Yama-danda-bhayāt paré ;
Sarvēśhām api ch-aṭēśhām Ātmā yamayaṭām Yamah ;
Ātmā samyamito yéna, Yamas-tasya karoṭi kim.
Na Yamam Yama ity-āhur,-Ātmā vai Yama uchyaté.
(Mbh., M.)

(Save and uplift your-Self by your own Self ;
Degrade it not ; your-Self is your best Friend,
If your High Self but masters your low self ;
But if your low self rears rebellious head,
Then your High Self is sharpest Enemy.
For fear of one another, some refrain
From sin ; others for fear of the king's rod ;
Some, fearing Yama's judgment after death ;
But Judge of Judges is the Inner Self ;
In whom this Inner Judge is satisfied,
He hath no fear of any other Judge.)

Yadi n-ātmani putréshu ;
Na chét putréshu, naptṛshu ;
Na tv-éva tu kṛt-odharmah
kartur bhavaṭi nishphalah ;
Shanair-ā-varṭamānas-tu
Kartur mūlāni kṛṇṭaṭi. (M.)

Aty-ugra puṇya-pāpānām
 iha-iva phalam ashnuṭé.
 Hrḍayé sarva-bhūṭānām
 Anṭar-yāmī Yamah sṭhiṭah. (Mbh.)

(Sin doth not always bear its painful fruit
 Unto the sinner, here on earth, at once ;
 But, circling, it reacts unfailingly,
 And cuts the sinner's very roots of being ;
 And often it inflicts the consequence
 Upon the children and grandchildren too,
 [As patently the sins of venery] ;
 Never goes sin without its due return ;
 And deeds of noble goodness, or dire sin,
 Bear their just fruit, here, in this very life.
 Never is there escape from consequence,
 Because the Great Judge dwells within each heart).

In the last line is the secret of the perpetual Day of infallible Judgment. No one can escape him-Self, his own heart and memory and conscience, and avoid reward or expiation.

Doubts, disputes, problems, have arisen, in this connection, regarding Free-Will and Destiny (dishṭa), Liberty and Necessity, Vitalism and mechanism, purusha-kāra and daiva, udhyoga and niyaṭi, qadr and jabr, mukṣ-ṭār and majbūr, sva-tantra and para-tantra, Self-Choice and Determinism ; the same thing being meant by many names. Also, problems have arisen regarding conflict between God's Mercifulness and Forgiveness of sins, on the one hand, and His Justice and Restraint of Wickedness on the other.

All such doubts are reduced, controversies allayed, problems solved, views reconciled, if we bear in mind duly that the Great, Infallible, Subtle, all-seeing Judge is ever within us; we are compelled, ultimately, by our own heart, our own conscience, our own Self, to expiate our sinful karma and to receive reward of our meritorious karma. What we do from pure sense of Duty, is neither sin nor merit, and has no such 'binding' consequence. If any one feel that he is helpless to commit sin, he shall be equally helpless to endure punishment. If the most innocent child drink poisonous liquid by sheerest mistake, it will, by that same mistake, suffer painful resultant illness, even death. If anyone deliberately commits sin, he will equally knowingly suffer the penalty. The Justice which arises within our-Self, and compels us to make voluntary restitution, is also the greatest Mercy, since it purifies the soul. To feel 'compelled' to commit sin, and 'free' to avoid punishment, is not reasonable.

Mā-ém ba luṭf-e-Haq ṭavallā karḍah,
 V-az ṭāa'ṭ o māsiyaṭ ṭabarrā karḍah,
 Har-jā ke i'nāyaṭé Ṭo bāshaḍ,
 Nā-karḍah cho karḍah, karḍah chūn nā-karḍah !
 Ai ! nék na karḍah, va baḍī-hā karḍah !
 W-angāh ba luṭfe-Haq ṭavallā karḍah !
 Bar u'fwu ma-kun ṭakiyah, ke hargiz na buwaḍ
 Nā-karḍah cho karḍah, karḍah chūn nā-karḍah !
 (OMAR KHAYYĀM)

(Some say : In God's great Mercy we have faith,

And take no thought of good or evil deed ;
On whomsoe'er His eye of Favour rests,
His 'not-done' deeds of good become all 'done',
And his 'done' deeds of evil all 'un-done' !
O thou ! that didst not do one deed of good,
But hast been doing many deeds of ill !
Do not deceive thyself, that if thou throw
Thyself upon the Mercy of High God,
Thy sins will be forgiven in such wise
That the 'done' deed shall be as if 'not-done',
And the 'not-done' become as if 'twere done.)
[All the great sages with one voice declare—
Whom the Lord loveth, him He chasteneth,
With trials sore and penalties severe,
Which cleanse him of his sins and make him pure,
And worthy of His love and love of all.]

It is an outstanding characteristic of our baser, lower, nature, that we are always trying to fasten on others, all the blame for our own faults, vices, sins, crimes. 'God made me do this ; He created me like this ; He must forgive me ; I am not to blame' ; 'Fate, Chance, Nature, compelled me' ; 'the other person started the quarrel' ; 'the other nation began the war ; we are completely innocent' ; and so on, and so forth. A glaring, ridiculous, conclusive everyday illustration is—a child runs carelessly, stumbles, falls, hurts itself, begins to cry ; the mother runs up, picks up the child, beats the floor, and the child is completely satisfied, ceases to cry : 'the floor was to blame, not I.' In the earlier 'child-mind' stages, a personal God outside is to praise or to blame ; in the later 'sage-mind' stage, the Impersonal all-pervading God within more than without, is to praise or to blame.

The Qurān puts it more strongly :

Mā asābekā min hasanaṭin fa min Allāhī, wa mā asābekā fa min sayāṭin fa min nafasak. (Q.)

(Whatever good ye have, is all from God ;

Whatever evil, all is from your-self.)

What is meant is, of course, that all that is good comes from the element of the Higher Self in us, the essence of which is God ; while all that is evil, comes from the lower element, viz., the self-ish self in us.

The Sūfis have made it clear :

Har che az zain o shain-i shumā-st,

Sar ba sar muqṭazā-i a'in-i shumā-st.

Har che a'in-i shumā ṭaqāzā kard,

Jauḍ-i-faiz-i-Man huwaiḍā kard.

(Good, evil, both are all your own demand ;

Whate'er your heart desired, My bounty gave.)

Nature is a Continuity. Life, The Ever-living Self, whose Nature it is, is not only a Continuity but also a Unity. Because Life is a Unity, therefore is Nature a Continuity; therefore are all the constituents of the universe inter-dependent, smallest or largest. The One Life runs through all forms ; an unbreakable thread, S ū ṭ r - Ā ṭ m ā , Thread-Soul ; strings, threads, nets, weaves them all together inseparably ; and makes of them a Continuity. Every atom is constantly sending out, and receiving, infinite vibrations to and from all other atoms. The same particles of gaseous, liquid, solid substances are circulating through all sorts of living bodies and things; the same thoughts, feelings, desires, volitions, through all minds. All living things are influencing each other, sharing in each other's pains and pleasures, willy-nilly. Any change, any disturbance, in any department of Nature, has reverberations and repercussions in all other departments. "The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God," and thinks he will evade the consequences of his evil ways; but God is hiding all the time in that same heart, as much as in the wise heart; and He will impel him, from within, to put himself in a position where he will have to eat the bitter fruit of the tree of evil that he has planted; thus will ¹Western scientists are coming to see this Continuum of Life and Consciousness more and more: Thus, "When we view ourselves in space and time, we are obviously distinct individuals; when we pass beyond space and time, we may, perhaps, form ingredients of a continuous stream of Life": Sir James Jeans, Address at annual meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, quoted in The Modern Review (of Calcutta) for February, 1935, p. 227. It may be added that it is not necessary to pass beyond space and time to feel this continuity. Indeed, continuity necessarily involves space and time, and is possible only in them. Beyond them there is Eternity, Motionlessness, Unity; or indeed the Absence of both Unity and Multiplicity; instead of Continuity; for Continuity means Unity running through Multiplicity, Self through not-selves. Mr. Whately Carington, in his books, Three Essays in Consciousness, and The Quantitative Study of Trance Personalities, reviewed in The Theosophist for February, the erring one learn wisdom by sad experience. As nothing can pass out of the Whole, sin and merit are always being balanced up by their respective consequences. The Whole as such is ever in a state of perfect equilibrium, samātā, wahāta.

Sukhasy-ānanāram ḍukham, ḍukhasy-ānanāram sukhām;
 Chakra-vaṭ pari-varṭé
 Sukha-Ḍukkhé ḍivā-nīsham. (Mbh.)
 (After joy, sorrow; after sorrow, joy;
 After day, night; and after night, the day;
 Ceaseless rotate they on the wheel of Life;
 O'er and between the two, broods Peace always.)
 Inna ma'l usra yusrin fa inna ma'l usré yusra. (Q.)

1935, argues to the effect that: "Physiologists and biologists, chemists and physicists, are showing with increasing success that there is no kind of discontinuity to be observed between conscious and non-conscious matter; hence the universality of Consciousness.... This Consciousness is fundamentally one.... Apparently distinct consciousnesses are united by a Common Sub-Consciousness...(There is) a Universal substratum of Consciousness animating all structural forms...(It is possible) to envisage (national panics, enthusiasms, etc., are proof) a process of expansion or enlargements of consciousness without loss of individuality, until in the limit each will be co-extensive with Universal Consciousness". This is all good sound Yoga-Vēdānta and Ṭasawwuf and Gnostic-Mysticism. Only the word 'comparatively' has to be added before 'Universal', for the 'non-comparative' Universal is—'non-comparative'; there is no expansion or gradation in or for or to It.

(After pain, pleasure cometh, verily ;
So too comes sorrow surely after joy.)

The scientific laws of causation, of action and reaction, of conservation of energy and indestructibility of matter amidst perpetual transformations of form, all arise out of this same fact, viz., that the Self is ever-complete and contains all, once for all, and all actions, vibrations, movements, arise within It, and end within It, issue from It, and return to It.

Pūrṇam aḍah, pūrṇam idaṁ, pūrṇāt pūrṇam udachyaṭé,
Pūrṇasya pūrṇam āḍāya
pūrṇam év-āvashishyaṭé.

(That Spirit-world is Full. This Matter-world
Is Full also. If from the Full the Whole
Is taken out, the Whole remains the Full.)

As the Sūfis say :

Huwal āna kamā kāna.
(He is as He was.)
I am that I am. (B.)

There is nothing new under the sun ; That which is, is That which was. (B., Eccles.)

Jīrṇāni vāsāmsi yaṭhā vihāya,
Navāni grhṇāti naro-parāni,
Taṭhā sharīrāni vihāya jīrṇāni,
Anyāni samyāti navāni dēhī. (G.)

Praṭi-kṣhaṇa-pari-ṇāminī Prakṛtiḥ ;
Chīṭi-shakti-a-pari-ṇāminī. (Sāṅkhya-Yoga).
(E'en as a man puts off his worn-out clothes
And puts on new ones, even so the Self
Casts off old bodies and takes up new ones.

God's Garment, Nature, changes hues and forms,
Moment to moment, tireless, ceaselessly ;

HIS Consciousness continues e'er the same.)

Kullu yaumin huā fishān. (Q.)

Ḍam-ba-ḍam gar shawaḍ libās baḍal

Mard-i Sahīb-i-libās rā che khalal. (S.)

Ṭa'iyun būḍ kaz hastī juḍā shud,

Na Haq baḍa, na baḍa bā Khuḍā shud.

(S., Gulshan-i-Rāz.)

(Each moment is He in a diff'rent state.

But how may it affect the One who wears

These Many garbs, if these change ceaselessly ?

A Limitation, Definition, seems

To shape out in the sea of Boundless Being ;

Nor God grows Servant, Nor the Servant God.)

Dream-worlds, world-dreams, world-dramas, arise and disappear endlessly ; the 'substance-quality-quantity' of Infinite Consciousness in,
for, from, by, out of, which they are made and come and go, remains the same. Multiply the endless infinite circle of the zero by any finite number ; it remains zero.¹

¹NOTE : On Karma, Rebirths, and Evolution.

The following is abridged from the art. 'Metempsychosis', Enc. Brit., 14th. edn. :

"The theory of the transmigration of souls is usually associated with the ancient Egyptians ; with the teaching of Pythagoras and the Buddha ; and was also held by a sect of early Christian heretics. The idea is much older than these creeds, and exists throughout the world. It is often bound up with the idea of a plurality of souls, in a single individual, one of which is separable. Thus the Poso-Alfures of Celebes believe in three

4. OTHER WORLDS AND PLANES OF BEING.

The fourth great truth, common to all religions, souls, (a) the inoso or vital principle, (b) the angga, or intellectual, and (c) the tanoana or divine element which leaves during sleep. The Orphic religion of Greece, and the Eleusinian Mysteries, included faith in metem-psychosis. Pythagoras was its first famous exponent in Greece. Plato accepted it and enhanced its importance. In Jewish literature, there are traces of it in Philo Judeus, and it is definitely adopted in the Kabbala. Within the Christian Church, it was held in the first centuries by Gnostic sects; by the Manicheans in the 4th and 5th centuries; in the Middle ages, by the numerous sects collectively known as Cathari. Giordano Bruno, van Helmont, Swedenborg, Goethe, Lessing, Charles Bonnet, Herder, Hume, Schopenhauer, and other notable thinkers held it or respected it. Modern Theosophy, which draws its inspiration from India, has taken it as a cardinal tenet; it is, says a recent theosophical writer, 'the master-key to modern problems, among them the problem of heredity'."

As regards the Jews and the early Christians, Origen, one of the most learned Fathers of the Christian Church, taught, in the 2nd century, A. C., that "forth from God come all spirits that exist, all being dowered with free-will. Some refused to turn aside from the path of righteousness and took the place of Angels. Others, in the exercise of their free-will, turned aside from the path of duty, and passed into the human race, to recover, by righteous and noble living, the angel condition...Others, still in the exercise of their free-will, descend yet deeper into evil and become devils...All were originally good—by innocence, not knowledge. Angels may become men, men angels; and even the evil ones is that as there is the physical world corresponding to man's five outer senses and the waking state, may climb upwards once more, and become men and angels again": (De Principiis, passim; quoted in the The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals, by Annie Besant). But Origen's form of the doctrine was condemned at a Church Council, A. D. 533.

Josephus, De Bello Judaico, says: "They say that all souls are incorruptible; but that the souls of good men are only removed into other bodies, and that the souls of bad men are subject to eternal punishment;" and again: "...all pure spirits...live on in...heavenly places, and in course of time they are again sent down to inhabit sinless bodies; but the souls of those who have committed self-destruction are doomed to a region in the darkness of the under-world." This last sentence is an almost exact equivalent of a verse of the Isha-Upanishat,

Anḍham ṭamah pra-vishanṭi
yé ké ch-Ātma-haṇo janāh.

(Into deep darkness do they fall who turn Away from their true Self and slay It thus.)

"Origen, Clemens Alexandrinus, Synesius, Chalcidius, all believed in metem-psychosis; so did the Gnostics, who are unhesitatingly proclaimed by history as a body of the most refined learned and enlightened men"; H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, I, 12.

Gibbon, (Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, ch. 47, text and notes), says: "The disciples of Jesus were persuaded that a man might have sinned before he was born (John, ix, 2), and the Pharisees held the transmigration of virtuous souls, (Josephus, de Bello Judaico). Since the introduction of the Greek or so there are other worlds corresponding to subtler senses and other states of his consciousness ; that Chaldean philosophy, the Jews were persuaded of the pre-existence, transmigration, and immortality of souls."

The Hebrew word for metempsychosis is gilgālim. The Enc. Brit., 14th edn, art. 'Kabbalah', says, "The doctrine was adopted by the Kabbalists in defiance of the Jewish philosophers." The main doctrines of the Kabbala, outlined there, are the very same as those of Vēdānta and Ṭasawwuf. "The Zohar states that 'all souls must undergo transmigration';...the Jewish literature of this subject of transmigration is an exceedingly rich one": J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, 164, 165.

The following is an abstract of a very remarkable article, 'The Ancient Wisdom in Africa', by Patrick Bowen, in the Theosophist (Adyar, Madras) for August, 1927: "As a boy, ten or twelve years of age, following my father's wagon through the wild Bushlands of the Northern Transvaal, I gained the friendship of many Isanusi (Wise Men) of the Zulus. One of these, Mankanyezi ('the Starry One') said to me, 'Within the body is a soul ; within the soul is a spark of the Itongo, the Universal Spirit. After the death of the body, Idhlozi (the soul) hovers for a while near the body, and then departs to Esilweni, the Place of Beasts. This is very different from entering the body of a beast. In Esilweni, the soul assumes a shape, part beast and part human. This is its true shape, for man's nature is very like that of the beast, save for that spark of something higher. After a period, long or short, according to the strength of the animal nature, the soul throws aside its beast-like shape, and moves onward to—a place of rest. There through these the soul of man passes between death and rebirth in this world, even as he passes

it sleeps, till a time comes when it dreams that something to do and learn awaits it on earth; then it awakes, and returns, through the Place of Beasts, to the earth, and is born again as a child. Again and again does the soul travel thus, till at last the man becomes true Man, and his soul, when the body dies, becomes one with the Itongo, whence it came. The common man cannot understand more than that the Itongo is the Sipirit of his Tribe; but the Wise Ones know that It is the Spirit within and above all men, even all things; and that at the end, all men being one in Spirit, are brothers in the flesh.' Mankanyezi, a year or two later, predicted to me that I would meet one of his 'Elder brothers', an Elder in the Family (Society) to which he belonged, 'whose members are the guardians of the Wisdom-which-comes-from-of-old; they are of many ranks, from learner to Master, and Higher Ones whose names may not be spoken; and there is one member at least in every tribe and nation throughout this great land' (Africa). This prediction came true, and I did meet other members of the Fraternity, and also saw proofs of clairvoyance and telepathy and will-force, and received teachings. Mandhlalanga ('Strength of the Sun'), chief of a very small community of Berbers, or rather Khabyles, Kha-beel-ya, [? Arab. Qabīlā-s] who, for reasons unexplained, had come away, five thousand miles, from their home in North Africa, and had identified themselves with the Zulus, taught me in the secret Bantu tongue: 'Itongo is all Substance, all Power, all Wisdom; but it is also above and beyond them, eternally Unmanifest. There are but two manifestations, Universal Mind and Universal Matter. Force is simply that portion of Mind through dreams in the night between day and day ; that there are sub-human, super-human, and which endows Matter with Form. At first both Mind and Matter were un-individualised ; a vast amorphous mass ; growing denser and denser ; ether, gas, liquid, solid. When, how, why, Individuality began—only the Itongo can know. It was like the starting of myriads of whirlpools on the surface of the ocean. In matter the Soul has reached the aphelion of its cycle ; now it begins its long slow return journey. It climbs slowly from mineral to plant, animal, man ; up through the lower mind to the higher, till, at last, its cycle complete, it merges into its source, the Itongo, ceases to be Individual, becomes one with the All. On his journey, from and back to the Itongo, man is born again and again. His physical body dies, as also his lower mental principles ; only his higher mental principles survive from age to age, retaining, throughout the Cosmic Cycle, the individuality bestowed upon them at its opening. The Principles are: (1) the physical body (umzimba) ; (2) the etheric body (isitunzi) ; (3) the lower mind (amandhlu) ; (4) the animal mind (utivesilo) ; (5) the human mind (utivomuntu) ; (6) the spiritual mind (utivetongo) ; (7) Itongo.' ”

In terms of Yoga and Vedānta, these are (1) anna-maya-kosha, (2) prāṇa-maya-kosha, (3), (4) and part of (5) mano-maya-kosha, rest of (5) and (6) viññāna-maya-kosha, (7) ānanda-maya-kosha, and Ātmanā. In terms of Theosophical literature, they are, (1) the physical body, or sthūla-sharīra, (2) prāṇa, or the etheric double, (3) linga-sharīra, (4) kāma-rūpa, (5) manas, (6) buddhi, (7) Ātmanā. In another Vedāntic and co-human kingdoms of beings which inhabit them; and that man, by special efforts and processes of training can develop the inner senses

Rāja-yoga scheme, the main 'bodies' or śharīras, are (1) sthūla, gross, dense, physical, which includes the first three, (2) sūkṣma, subtle, astral, which includes the next two, (3) kāraṇa, causal, equivalent to the sixth; Ātmā being the wearer of the three bodies.

Mr. Bowen continues: "The Brotherhood is called, in the ancient Bantu speech, Bonabakulu abase-Khemu, i.e., The Brotherhood of the Higher Ones of Egypt. (Khem, whence 'Chem-istry'. was an ancient name of Egypt). It was founded by a Priest of Isis in the reign of the Pharaoh Cheops, to spread The Wisdom which comes from of Old, among all races and tribes of Africa, and the study and practice, among its members, of Ukwazi-kwasi-thabango, which means, The Science which depends on the Power of Thought (Yoga). The grades of the Brotherhood are: (1) the Pupil, (2) the Disciple, (3) the Brother, (4) the Elder, (5) the Master, (6) Those who Know (Isangoma), (7) Abakulu-bantu, i. e., Perfect Men, for whom rebirth has ceased, who dwell on earth in physical form by their own will, and can retain or relinquish that form as they choose. By getting full control of the vibrations of his higher planes, a developed Man may despatch through the Cosmic Ocean of which he is a part, ripples of various kinds and intensities, which will produce effects, according to their nature and strength, on all strata, most of course on the most sensitive highest strata, of the other 'whirlpools' or 'individualities'..."

and the latent powers which can open these worlds to him.

The above long, and yet all too condensed and short, account of the belief of Africa, has been incorporated here, in pursuance of the method of this compilation; to show how numerous, how widespread in space, persistently continuous in time, are the votes cast by Demos in favor of the immortality, evolution, or revolution, and rebirths, of souls. The article, 'Transmigration', in the Ency. of Rel. and Ethics, occupies sixteen double-column large quarto pages of minute print, equal to some eighty pages of this book. It shows that the belief has been, and is, spread all over the world, in all known history and anthropology, in one form and another, among primitive peoples of all the continents, and has also been held by the Indian, Persian (Irānian, Zoroastrian), Egyptian, Jewish, Greek, Roman, Celtic, and Teutonic nations. In the Christian world, the belief, suppressed for a time, seems to be reviving among the educated and thoughtful, as a necessary complement and corollary of the fact of evolution.

The Encyclopedia of Islam, art. 'Tanasukh', says, in effect, that "the belief in metempsychosis is widespread in India and among several sects of the Muslim world. Shahrastāni takes the word tanāsukh in a wide sense, viz., the successive lives and rebirths of the world, in cycles of revolution, of varying durations, 30000, 70000, 360000 years, and so on. (Cf: Vedic yugas, kalpas, mahā-yugas, etc.) In another sense, it means the diffusion and distribution of the Divine Spirit among the beings of our world. Extreme Shīās believe in the descent or incarnation (hulūl) of all or part of the Divine Principle in certain men. (Cf., Vedic a v a-ṭ ā r a s, a m s h-ā v a-ṭ ā r a s, etc.). In the popular sense, of passing from one body to another, the belief is held by several Shīā sects. Among the Mo'tazilas, the disciples of Ahmad b. Ha'it taught that God first created beings in a kind of paradise [Saṭya-Yuga, Golden Age, Arcadia, Eden]; then those who were guilty of disobedience were sent by him into our world in the form of men or animals, according to the gravity of their sins; they then migrate from form to form until the effects of their sins have ceased. The Ismāīlīs did not admit the passage of the soul into the bodies of animals; but they did admit successive (human) lives until it recognised the Imām; then it rose to the world of Light. The Nusāīrīs believe that sinners of their religion will be reborn into other religions; outright infidels will become camels, mules, asses, dogs, etc.; there are seven degrees of metempsychosis according to them. The Druses believe that the souls of the enemies of their religion will enter the bodies of dogs, monkeys, and swine. The Kurds and the Yazīdis believe in transmigration into the bodies of men and also animals, and in successive existences separated by an interval of 72 years. According to Saiyad Sharīf Djurdjānī, ṭanāsukh is the passing of the soul to a new body without intervals on account of the inclination of the spirit for the body".

Modern science indicates this possibility by the expression, 'extension of faculty'; and

All sorts of beliefs, as to the kinds of transmigration, similar to those of these Muslim sects are to be found among the different sects of other religions also. The belief in the continuous existence of the clairvoyance and telepathy have been proved by psychical research, conducted by recognised scientists. Yoga-siddhis, divya-shaktis, kamāl, mo'jizah, karāmāt, raushan-zamīrī, 'divine powers', 'the luminous heart', 'perfections', 'miraculous powers', 'magical powers', have been believed in, everywhere, always. They are only extensions of such powers as we daily exercise, and not, in the least, more surprising than these. Svargas, narakas, lokas, bhuvanas; jannats and jahannums, bahishts and dozakhs, arsh-es and ard-s, lauhas and tabaqas; paradises and purgatories, heavens and hells of higher and lower levels, and subtler and grosser planes of matter; are affirmed by all religions. They are subjective as well as objective; in us, and also outside; as joy and woe in us, parks and jails outside us.

Dévas and upa-dévas, ganas and pārshadas, siddhas and vidyā-dharas, apsarās and gandharvas, yakshas and rakshas; farishtās and malāyak, parīs and jinnāt; frāvarshis, farshārs, amesha-spen̄tas, yazds; dévs and darvands; iblisas and shaitāns; daityas and asuras; angels and devils, soul, and its births and rebirths into physical bodies, is common to almost all. Of course, there are also sects, in all religions, which deny such transmigration; very few in Hinduism; many in Islam; many in Christianity. Also, some texts of the Quran, and of venerated Muslim writers, which some commentators interpret as favouring belief in re-incarnation, others interpret otherwise.

good and evil spirits of earth, water, fire, air, woods, hills, etc., fairies, gnomes, sylphs, nymphs, undines, dryads, salamanders, brownies, banshees, elves, imps, fiends, demons, devils, etc., are common to all religions and all peoples. As human bodies are made of certain forms of matter, so the bodies of these are said to be composed of other forms of matter, which are not ordinarily perceptible to our senses (as human bodies are not, to theirs); except in special conditions; as air becomes 'visible', when, as whirlwind, it 'puts on' a column of dust, sand, or water. To think that no other forms of life are possible than such as are cognisable by human senses, is surely to depart very greatly from due modesty. Scores of species of these, high and low, gentle and fierce, as of herbivorous and carnivorous animals, and of savage and civilised human beings, are named in the scriptural books.¹

¹Jewish and Christian theology distinguishes nine kinds of angels grouped in three great classes: (1) Seraphim, Cherubim, Thrones, (2) Dominions, Virtues, Powers, (3) Principalities, Archangels, Angels. The Jewish Kabbala adds Eons, Sephiroth, Dignities; Izeds (Yazds), Shadim, Sephiroth, Malakim, Teraphim, Elohim, are also spoken of. In Islam, five kinds of Jinns, related to the five elements, are recognised; and it gives special prominence to four great archangels, Jibra-īl, Mikā-īl, Azrā-īl, Isrāf-īl; somewhat like the four Loka-pālas and eight Dik-pālas of the Vaidika Purāṇas. In Judaism, "Rahmiel is the angel of Mercy; Tahriel, of Purity; Pedaiel, of Deliverance; Tsadkiel,

Different from these are certain disembodied human spirits, floating midway, so to say, between 'this-world' and the 'other-world' proper, of heaven-and-hell, in an abnormal way, like lunatics and maniacs in a community. They are kept tied to the earth, for varying periods, before passing on to the 'other-world,' by various strong unfulfilled desires. Some of these spirits are good but feeble and foolish, others powerful and malignant, according to the quality and strength of their manias. They are known as prétas, piśhāchas, etc., of many kinds, in Vaidika Dharma; ghools, āsébs, etc., in Islam; ghosts, vampires, incubi, succubi, etc., in Christianity.

There is no sufficient cause to deny these non-human 'spirits', 'sprites', 'nature-spirits,' nor to of Justice; Raziel, of the Divine Secrets": J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, 127. In the Arabic language also, which is a cousin of the Hebrew, (since Arabs and Jews are descendants of the two sons of Abraham respectively, by tradition), Rahm means mercy; Ṭahar, Purity; Fedā, Deliverance, Submission; Sıḏq, Justice, Honesty; Rāz, secret; and so on. These words indicate great outstanding attributes of the Universal Self or Consciousness; and also embodiments of them, as 'characteristic ruling passions', in personalities.

H. P. Blavatsky, The Secret Doctrine, III. 402, says: "Sephīr is Aḍīṭi, Mystic Space. The Sephiroth are identical with the Hindu Prajā-paṭis (Āḍīṭyas), the Dhyān Chohāns of Esoteric Buddhism, the Zoroastrian Amsha-spents, and the Elohim, the 'seven angels of the presence', of the Roman Catholic Church."

worship them. But the better sort, friendly to man, and willing to help, as inferiors or as superiors, may be utilized by special processes, in the same way as domestic animals, or as superior human friends possessed of power and authority. If, on the contrary, the evil sort are evoked, (particularly the disembodied human spirits), by tāntrika processes of black magic, jādū, (Skt. yāṭu, whence the name yātu-dhāna for the Atlantean race, called also Rākshasas), physical and moral ruin ensue without fail. Prayer for the release of such earth-bound souls, and for the upward progress of spirits of all kinds, and, indeed, of all living things and beings, is the duty of men, prescribed by all religions. Various rituals and ceremonies, (the essential elements in all of which are the benevolent sympathetic all-loving will-force of the officiant, and his mental and moral purity), are also prescribed and practised in all religions; for purifying the mental, moral, psychical, superphysical, spiritual atmosphere, as fragrant incense purifies the physical; and for attracting and facilitating the operations of the good spirits; and driving off, and hindering or sterilising and counteracting the work of, the evil 'nature-forces', or the evil disembodied human ghosts; as perfumes vivify healthy, and disinfectants kill unhealthy, microbes.

In connection with the science and art of Yoga or Sulūk, and its stages, maqāmāt, bhūmīs, the inner side of all religions recognizes three principal layers, bodies, vehicles, sheaths,

'principles,' in the make-up of man, which are in touch, respectively, with corresponding worlds or planes as well as with one another. Vedānta names them s̥thūla, sūkshma, and kāraṇa, i. e., physical, subtle, and causal. The Jainas know them as audārika, taijasa, and kārmaṇa sharīras. The Buddhists' nirmāṇa-kāya, sambhoga-kāya, dharmakāya correspond. Christian mysticism calls them body, soul, and spirit.¹ Jewish mystics designate them as nefesh, ruah, and neshāmāh (nūsmā). Ṭasawwuf uses the Ar. words nafs, rūh, and nafs-i-nāṭiqā, or nafs, dīl, rūh. These three, in the individual, the microcosm, the pind-āṇḍa or kshudra-virāt, the ālam-i-saghīr, have their correspondents in the Universal, the Macrocosm, the Brahm-āṇḍa or Mahā-Virāt, the Ālam-i-kabīr. These are called in Samskr̥t, Vāishvā-nara (or simply Virāt), Sūtr-āṭmā (or Hiraṇya-garbha or Prāṇa), and Sarva-jña (or Īsha, Anṭaryāmi, etc.); in Sūfī terms, Jism-i-kul or Shakl-i-kul, Rūh-i-kul or Ṭabīyaṭ-i-kul or Nafs-i-kul,

¹"Your whole Spirit and Soul and Body": (B., Thessalonians). In the Egyptian Book of the Dead, these same three seem to be indicated by Khā, the body, Kā or Rā, the soul, Bā, the higher soul or Spirit. In the Greeco-Roman religion we have carnis, umbra (or manes), and anima. Some early Christian Fathers, like Ireneus, speak of "carne, anima, spiritu". The Zulu terms for these have been mentioned before, at p. 195, supra.

and Aql-i-kul; the collective total material Body, the collective total Vitality, the collective total Intelligence. The correspondence to Action, Desire, Knowledge, is obvious.

Many kinds of nafs and rūh are also distinguished, corresponding to the kinds of śharīras, kōśhas, etc. The corresponding states, planes, worlds, are jāgrat, svapna, sushupti (i. e. waking, dreaming, and slumbering) states; or bhūh, bhuvah, and svah lokas; ālam-i-shahāda (or -mulk or -nāsut), ālam-i-misāl (or -malakūt), ālam-i-jabrūt, etc.¹ Subdivisions are also distinguished. The Sūfis speak of nafs-i-ammārā, nafs-i-lawwāmā, nafs-i-muṭmainna, nafs-i-mulhima, nafs-i-Rahmānī, etc. These are lower and higher states of the soul, from one standpoint; from another, they may be said broadly to correspond with the five kōśhas of Vedānta and skandhas of Buddhism. Another distinction is the one between nafs-i-jārī and nafs-i-muqīm, 'the wandering body' and 'the stationary body'. Jism-i-lāṭif and jism-i-kasīf

¹Mention has been made of the seven arḍ-s ('earths') and the seven arsh-es ('heavens') recognised in Islam. They are the same as the fourteen bhuvana-s or loka-s, seven below, pāṭāla-s, and seven above, bhūh, bhuvah, svah, mahah, janah, tapah, saṭyam. Ālam-i-mā'nī, (the world or plane of 'ideas'), ālam-i-lāhūt, ālam-i-hāhūt, etc., are mentioned in Sūfī books as beyond jabrūt; so ṭurīya, ṭuryāṭīṭā, etc., in Vedānta. See R. A. Nicholson, Studies in Islamic Mysticism, pp. 122-125.

mean the same, i.e., the fine or subtle body and the dense or gross body. This is the same pair as the āṭi-vāhika and the ādhi-bhautika śharīras of the Vedānta, or the khé-chara-chiṭṭa or sūksīma-śharīra and the sthūla-deha of the Yoga. The Sūfī Jāmī has hinted this living separation of the subtle from the gross body thus :

Dād ū dīl bā har kasé,
 Man ze ghairat be-murdam basé !
 Yak bār bi-mīrad har kasé,
 Béchāra Jāmī bārahā ! (S.)

(The Loved One gave him-Self to every one,
 And of that shame of Other-ness I die !
 All other human beings die but once,
 This helpless Jāmī dies repeatedly !)

Elsewhere he tells,

Au Yahūd-o Mōmin-o Ṭarsā magar
 Ham-rahī kardand bāham dar safar.
 Pas Yahūd āward un-che dīda bud,
 Tā kujā shab rūh-e ū gardīda bud ;
 “Dar pay-é Mūsā shudam tā Kōh-i-Ṭūr,
 Har do gum gashtēm w-az ishrāq-i-Nūr”.
 Bād-az-ān Ṭarsā dar-āmad dar kalām,
 Ke “Masīh-am rū namūd andar maqām.”
 Pas Musalmān guft, “Ai yārān-i-man,
 Pēsh-am āmad Mustafā Sultān-i-man.” (S.)

(A Jew, a Muslim, and a Christian too,
 Happened to come together on the road.
 Walking and talking, first the Jew described
 Whereto his soul had wandered in the night ;
 “I followed Moses to the Mount of Ṭūr,
 Where both of us were lost in Blaze of Light.”)

The Christian said, "My Christ appeared to me."
 Lastly the Muslim said, "Beloved friends,
 To me my king and Prophet showed himself.")

In these lines, Jāmī not only speaks of the soul wandering away from the body during sleep, but also shows that there are many mediators, helpers, guides ; and that each earnest soul is helped, in dreams, visions, and super-physical states, by the great personage in whom it may have placed its whole-hearted faith and trust. Incidentally, he provides a beautiful instance of the brotherliness of the wise and pious of all religions.

Muhammad gave, to the select, the counsel :
 Muṭo qabl un ṭamūto. (H.)
 (Die before you die.)

The R̥shi of the Upanishats gives the same advice, to the promising disciple worthy of receiving it :

Ṭam svāṭ sharīrāṭ pra-brhén-munjāḍ-ishīkām iva ḍhairyéṇa. (U.)
 (As from the thatching-grass the core is drawn,
 So from the body should be drawn the soul
 With patience, perseverance, fortitude.)

I knew a certain man—whether in body or outside of body, I know not, God knoweth—who was rapt into Paradise and heard things ineffable, which it is not lawful for a man to repeat...I knew a man...caught up to the third heaven.

(B., Paul, 2 Corinthians.)

"The children of this world marry and are given in marriage ; but they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage. Neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels, and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection. (B., Luke.)

The Jaina prays :

Sharīrāṭah karṭum ananta-shakṭim,
Vibhinnam Ātmānam apāṣṭa-ḍoṣham,
Jinendra !, koṣhād-iva khadga-yashtim,
Tava prasāḍēna mam-āṣṭu shakṭih.

(J., Amitagaṇi, Sāmāyika Pāṭha.)

(E'en as a sword is drawn out from its sheath,
So to draw out my pure ethereal soul
From this gross body, do thou teach me, Lord !)

Bahir-a-kalpiṭā vr̥ṭṭir-mahā-vidēhā.

(Yoga-Sūtra, iii. 43.)

(The pow'r to pass out from this case of flesh,
In subtle sheath, and roam about at will—Mahā-vi-ḍēhā is this power named.)

The soul, the āṭi-vāhika déha, sūkshma-sharīra, jñāna-déha, nirmāna-kāya, naḥs-i-jāri, jism-i-laṭif, jism-i-misāl, subtle body, 'astral' body, has to be loosened from the physical body, the sṭhūla-sharīra, bhaṭika-déha, jaḍa-déha, jism-i-kaṣif, jism-i-shahāda, naḥs-i-muqīm, the gross or dense body, the body of flesh, by regulated fasts and vigils, physical and psychical disciplines, and various subtle introspective processes, of yoga-sulūk, under the guidance of a wise guru-murshid, pīr-i-mughān, yogī, ṛshi, who has himself passed through the experience and achieved the 'freedom' of the subtle body from the gross-body. After the successful achievement of this great experience, the 'subtle' wears the 'dense', as a person wears a suit of clothes, and can pass into and out of it at will. Then only may the person be said to be 'free' of the bonds of Karma on the earth-plane, the bonds which cause his unconscious and involuntary births and deaths here; then he is mukṭa, has gained najāt, freedom, so far as this plane is concerned¹. This, in the technical 'superphysical' sense; in the 'metaphysical' sense, unshakeable and permanent conviction of Self-dependence and Immortality and Universality is 'freedom' from all fear and doubt.

5. THE LAW OF ANALOGY OR CORRESPONDENCES.

Another important truth is the truth of sama-darśhiṭā, 'same-sightedness', the Law of Correspondences, or the Law of Analogy, as it may be called in modern terms. This Law of Analogy, indeed, is the basis of that method of induction which is the foundation of all science. As the 'microcosm', the ālam-i-sagḥīr, the ¹The Art of Dying', 'The Craft of Dying', 'The Science of Death', is dealt with in various books of many dead and living religions. See The Tibetan Book of the Dead, by Evans-Wentz (with Foreword by Sir John Woodroffe); The Secret of the Golden Flower, a Chinese Book of Life, by R. Wilhelm and C. G. Jung; and, of course, the Yoga-Sūtra, and the literature of Yoga generally. Euthanasia is the Greek word for 'good dying'.

ks h u d r a - v i r ā ṭ, so the 'macrocosm', the ālam-i-kabīr, the m a h ā - v i r ā ṭ; as the terrene man so the heavenly man—this is the way the Hebrew, Christian, Islāmic, and Védic mystics put it. As one, so all, in short; because individual and universal are the same.¹ As the atom so the solar system—as the scientists put it.

Yāvān ayam vai purushah,

Yāvatyā samsthayā miṭah,

Tāvān asāv-āpi Mahā-

Purusho loka-samsthayā. (Bh.)

Vidyā-vinaya-sampanné

Brāhmaṇé gavi haṣṭinī,

Shunī cha-iva shva-pākē cha

Panditāh sama-darśinah. (G.)

(As are the components, organs, and parts
Of single human beings—such are those Of the Vast Macro-Cosmic Man also.
The learned cultured brāhmaṇa, endowed
With the humility which is the crown
Of virtues, as also the elephant,
The cow, the dog, and eater of the dog —Spirit of the same Spirit are all these,
And Matter of the same Root-Matter too,
Only arranged in ever-varying forms;
And the same Laws of Nature work in all—
Thus the same-sighted Wise do understand.)

A Sūfī almost translates this :

Muhaqqiq hamīn bīnaḍ anḍar ebil

Ke ḍar khūb-rūyān-e Chīn o Chagil. (S.)

(The wise see in the camel's frame,

The same laws manifest

¹ See The Science of the Self, p. 110-115.

As in the beauteous Chinese dame
Or Chagil's belle, the best.)¹

¹Khājā Khān, at p. 89 of his excellent work, The Philosophy of Islam, says: "Referring to Sūraṭu Hā Mīm, 41. 53, (of the Qurān) it may be gathered that God has referred to certain signs in the heavens and in the individualities of men. From this, Sūfis have constructed a theory of micro-cosm and macro-cosm, e.g., the twelve zodiacs are the twelve holes in the human body; the seven planets are the five senses plus the senses (organs) of talking and understanding. The body is the earth; the bones, the mountains; space, the sea;... This, as well as the theory of the five elements and twenty-five guṇas, qualities, possess a distinctive Hindu stamp. The Muslim philosophy in Southern India is so much mixed up with that of the Hindus, that it is difficult to distinguish it." But the difficulty should be welcomed very heartily. Is there any need to distinguish, to see difference, instead of agreement? Is not 'mixing up', assimilation, very desirable, very helpful? The correspondences between the 'large' and the 'small', the Infinite and the Infinitesimal, have been described, in various ways, in the Purāṇas, the Upanishats, the Smṛtis, the Vēda itself, repeatedly. And now, as said in the text above, western Science is discerning them. Some scientists have even put forth the view that the orbs of heaven are living beings. For a brief statement of the reason 'why' of the Law of Analogy, working in all departments of Nature, the reader may see the present writer's The Science of Peace, 2nd edn., p. 333. Detailed and astonishing illustrations of it are to be found in those marvellous mines of 'occult' knowledge, H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine. The ancient

The mystery of the earthly man is after the mystery of the heavenly man...The wise can read the mysteries in the human face. (Ju., Zohar, II, 76 a).

As above, so below. (Ju., Kabbalist axiom.)

Just as the soul fills the body, so God fills the world; as the soul bears the body, so God endures the Samskr̥t work, Nirukṭa, explains how and why certain Vēda-texts have to be explained in three ways, metaphysical or āḍhy-āṭmika, scientific or yājñika (or āḍhi-dāivika), and historical or aiṭi-hāsika (or āḍhi-bhauṭika); each interpretation being true. Madame Blavatsky's works explain how these and other interpretations, in terms of other sciences, are all correct. She speaks of the 'seven-fold' key to the Scriptures. Khājā Khān, at p. 13 of his book above mentioned, gives a diagram showing twenty-eight 'potencies', inherent attributes or principles, Asmāi-Ilāhi, and twenty-eight corresponding 'manifestations,' Asmāi-Kiyānī, in the Universe at large. If he had only pursued the same 'principles' in their manifestations in the human being in particular, he would have seen that the view was not peculiarly 'Hindu', but natural and universal. In the Purāṇa-Mythos, Brahmā, the Creative Cosmic Mind (of our Solar Cosmos or System) first creates seven (or ten) mānasa-puṭra-s, 'mental sons'. These are called the primal, primeval, prajā-paṭis, patriarchs, progenitors, of all types of living beings. They correspond to, or are the same as, the Sephiroth, Angels, Elohim, etc., of the other religions; see f.n., p. 201, supra. They are also the 'presiding deities', the 'vitalising souls', of the seven (or ten) planets of our solar system. Each planet has its own types of life; they all exchange their jīvas, also, in accord with 'occult' laws; as the world ; as the soul sees but is not seen, so God sees but is not seen. (Ju., Talmūd, quoted by J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, pp. 155-56).

Yathā pindé tathā Brahm-āndé. (Védānta axiom.)
(As is the small man, such the Cosmic Man ;
As the 'small egg', such the vast 'orbs of Space'.)

This s a m a-ṭ ā, this uniformity, in the working of the laws of Nature, can be due to nothing else than the Unity of Nature's God ; as one so all, as once so always, as here so everywhere ; because the Same One Self is in all, is ever present, is everywhere present. It is also the basis of that Equality which the democratic heart craves after, and rightly within due limits. The Védānta states the metaphysical fact on which the Law of Analogy, s a m a-ṭ ā, is based, as Sarvam Sarvaṭra Sarvaḍā, 'All is everywhere and always'. Tasawwuf describes various countries and continents of this earth exchange 'colonists', 'immigrants' and 'emigrants' ; which is only another illustration of the working of the Law of Analogy, on the minutest as well as the vastest scales. The reader who may be interested in this line of thought, or 'science', or 'speculation', may consult H. P. Blavatsky's great books, and some of the later 'theosophical' literature. The famous American philosopher, William James, in his book, A Pluralistic Universe, descants magnificently on the idea entertained by a German thinker, Fechner, that the Earth is a living being, a great cosmic Individual. In Indian mythos, of course, she is Pṛthvī-Dēvī, the great 'goddess' Earth.

it as Indirāj-i-Kul-f-il-Kul, 'the Immanence of the All in all, in each and everything'. The Bible speaks of it as "the fulness of Him that filleth all in all." The Jewish sacred book, Talmūd, honored next after the Old Testament of the Bible, says: "No atom of matter, in the whole vastness of the universe is lost; how then can man's soul, which comprises the whole world in one idea, be lost?"¹

The whole of the sun is imaged in every the most microscopic dew-drop reflection, and every such reflection comes from, is present and included in, the vast light-sphere of the sun.

Viḍyaté sa cha sarvasmin, sarvam tasmīnsh-cha viḍyaté,
Tasmāḍ Samviḍ itī prokṭah
Param-Ātmā mah-ātmabhih.

(Vāyu-Purāṇa.)

(Since Everything exists in Consciousness,
And Consciousness exists in Everything,
Hence Samviḍ, 'Principle of Consciousness',
Is one of the great names by which they know,
The great-souled ones, the Supreme Self of All.)

Science speaks of the potency of infinite multiplication present in each seed, germ, microbe; of infinite vibrations of each atom perpetually affecting all other infinite atoms; of infinite photographs being conveyed to each point of space eternally by infinite rays of light from all directions from the most distant stars and ¹Riley, Bible of Bibles, p. 148.

planets ; of infinite sights, sounds, etc., filling all space constantly, and needing only appropriate apparatus to be caught ; and so forth.¹ Obviously, to know all about the least little atom, is to know all about the Universe, for each part of a Whole is inseparably connected with all the other parts of the Whole.

6. THE LONG LINE OF THE SPIRITUAL HIERARCHY.

Another thought, which all religions hold unitedly, is that, as the chain of evolution extends below man, so it extends above him also ; and that advanced souls, forming a Spiritual Hierarchy, take care of the Human Race, and guard and guide it on its upward path, as parents and teachers do their children and pupils. Famous western scientists also have openly expressed their belief that this must be so. All the religions mention these hierarchs. Vaidika Dharma calls them Avatāras, Amshas, Kalās, Vibhūṭis, Kumāras, Manus, R̥shis, Munis, of many degrees. Buddhism names them as Buddhas, Pratyēka-buddhas, Bodhi-sattvas. Jainism knows them as Tīrthan-karas and Arhats.

¹“There is no material point that does not act on every other material point. When we observe that a thing really is where it acts, we shall be led to say, as Faraday was, that all the atoms interpenetrate, and that each of them fills the world”: Bergson, Creative Evolution, p. 214.

Islām knows them as Qutubs, Ghauses, Wataads, Abrār, Baḍals, Akhyār, Walis, Nabis, Rasūls. Christianity calls them Sons of God, Messiahs, Thrones, Principalities, Powers, Prophets, Saints. Judaism calls them Patriarchs, Prophets, Sages. Zoroastrianism knows them as Soshyants, 'Renovators, whose task is to re-interpret the Eternal Truth from time to time', 'Lovers of mankind', also Naroish-naro, i.e. 'Men of men', Supermen.¹

Tao-ism says :

The High Emperor of the Sombre Heavens descends to earth...hundreds...(upon) hundreds (of) times, to become the companion of the common people and teach them the truth,...to heal the sick,...to endure suffering patiently and give his life again and again, that his pain may be a spring of joy and righteousness to many hearts².

Kṛṣṇa and Dévi-Shakti say :

Yaḍā yaḍā hi ḍharmasya
glānir-bhavaṭi, Bhāraṭa !,
Abhy-ut-thānam a-ḍharmasya ṭaḍ-Ātmānam srjāmy-Aham.

¹The word Soshyanṭa, it seems, etymologically means 'lovers' of mankind, also 'renovators' of Humanity as well as of Truth, 'givers of a new, a second, birth to mankind', by giving birth afresh to the Eternal Truths, for their instruction, purification, and advancement. Zoroastrians believe in "three prophets... Oshedar-Cami, Oshedar-mah, and Sosiosh, preceded by Zarathustra": H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, II, 467.

²Quoted by J. Estlin Carpenter, The Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World, p. 60.

Pariṭrāṇāya sādḥunām
 vināshāya cha dushkr̥tām,
 Dharma-samsthāpan-ārthāya,
 sambhavāmi yugé yugé. (G.)
 It̥tham yaḍā yaḍā bādḥā
 dānav-oṭṭhā bhavishyaṭi, Taḍā ṭaḍ-āva-ṭiry-Āham karishyāmy-ari-sankshayam.

(Durgā-saptā-shaṭi.)

(To guard the good and slay the wicked men,
 And re-establish on firm base My Law,
 I manifest My-Self age after age.
 When law and righteousness decline and fade,
 And vicious sin uplifts a fearless head,
 Then I incarnate to redress the world.¹
 Whene'er the evil ones oppress the good,
 I will take birth, and slay them without fail.

Ētan-nān-Āvaṭārāṇām
 niḍhānam bījam Avyayam,
 Yasy-āmsh-āmshéna jāyanté
 déva-ṭiryang-nar-āḍayah. (Bh.)

(My Universal Mind is the One Fount,
 Exhaustless, the One ever-fruitful Seed,
 Of all the Sparks infinitesimal,
 Atomic, countless, that ensoul all forms
 High, low, of gods, men, animals;
 While rarer Sparks of greater Light and Might Appear as Avatār's to guide them right.)

¹Faizī has translated this famous verse into Persian thus,

Chu bunyād-i-Dīn suṣṭ garḍaḍ basé,
 Numāyém Khud rā ba shaklé Kasé.
 Another reading of the first line is,
 Cho ahwāl-i-ḍunyā bi-garḍaḍ khasé.

Muhammad says :

Le kullé qaumin hād...In min ummaṭin illā ḵhalā
fihā nazīr...Wa la qaḍ ba asna fi kulli ummaṭin
Rasūlan. (Q.)

(To every race great Teachers have been sent.
God hath not left any community
Without a prophet, warner, and true guide.
He sendeth Prophets to the ignorant
And those misguided into evil ways,
Raising these prophets up from 'mongst themselves
To purify them, and to teach to them
His signs and wisdom and philosophy.)

Inn-Allāhā yaba'so lihāzehīl ummaṭé a'lā rasé kullé méyaṭé sanaṭin mañ-yuḷḷadḍad lahā ḍīna-hā.

(H., recorded by Abū Dāūd).

(At the beginning of each 'hundred years',
God sends, for every race, a teacher who Revives Religion freshly for the world.)

Kāna fī Hindé nabī-yun aswad-ul-laune isma-hū Kahinan.¹ (H., recorded by Dailamī, in Tārikh-i-Hamḍan, Bāb-ul-Kāf.)

(A Nabī-Prophet lived and taught in Hind, Dark of complexion, Kahin was his name.)
Zālekā fazl-Ullāhé yoṭīhé mañ-yashāo, w-Allāho zul-fazl-īl. Allāho yā'lamo haiso yaja'lo rasālatahu. (Q.)
(Such prophetship is a great gift from God.
And God is very generous. He also knows
Who worthy is to be His messenger.)

The Zoroastrian Gāthā says :
Anghéush ḍaréthrāya fro ashahyā frārénṭé véré-jadāīsh senghāīsh Saoshyantām khraṭavo...

¹I.e., Krshṇa, which means 'the Dark One'.

Aṭ ṭoī anghém Saoshyāntō ɖakh-yūnām yōī kshanūm vohu mananghā hachāonté...

...Yé ɖāthaébyo érésh Raṭum kshyāmsa ashivāo
chistā. (Z., Gāthā, 46. 3 ; 48. 12 ; 51. 5)

(Take up the disciplines enjoined by them,
The Saoshyāntas, Lovers of Mankind,
Masters of Yoga, for thy soul's welfare ;
In thought, in word, in deed, yea, take them up !
In every land, of e'en barbarians,
Are there Saoshyāntas who have attained
The Great Peace of the Universal Self.
This Sovereign of the World, the Self of All,
Hath sent down righteous Prophets unto us,
Saoshyāntas, to show us the Right Path.)

The theurgists and Platonists of the earlier centuries of the Christian era seem to have distinguished between Theo-pneusty (inspiration or the mysterious power to hear orally the teachings of a god), Theo-pathy (assimilation of divine nature), and Theo-phany (actual appearance of a god in man), as grades of spiritual progress.

The Buddha says :

In due time another Buddha will arise. He will be known as Maṭṭrēya (which means 'he whose name is kindness').

Jesus says :

I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am, ye may be also. (B.)

Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord. (B., Malachi.)

And elsewhere we read in the Bible :

Out of thee (Bethlehem) shall He come forth unto Me that is to be ruler in Israel ; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting. (B., Micah.)

The last words are especially significant.

God hath not left himself without witness in any land. (B.)

Isaiah says :

The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me. (B.)

The Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him (i. e. Jesus). (B.)

And Jeremiah :

And the Lord said unto me—Behold, I have put My words in thy mouth.” (B.)

In the Qurān, the fact is emphasised over and over again that it is Allāh who is speaking through the lips of Muhammad.

Even simply to bear these great souls in mind, as loving helpers, as examples, as standards, as proofs of the possibility for all of high achievement; and, much more, to get into touch with them, by developing spiritual and moral merit, and opening up the subtler senses, ‘extending’ the faculties into the superphysical, the finer and more ethereal, planes; this helps our own progress as members of the vast Fraternity of Man, nay, of all living beings.

The Fundamental Truths and Teachings remain ever the same, but the frame-works in which they manifest, decay and lose vitality, over and over again, in race after race, age after age, clime after clime, tongue after tongue. The words, the forms, become hackneyed, with the lapse of centuries; and human hearts respond to them no longer, vividly and actively. The new spiritual impulse, the new descent of the divine fire of life, that is needed to vivify afresh those Truths and Teachings, and give them a new birth in the living frame of a new language and new forms, in a new generation, or a new race, new place, new epoch—such divine afflatus can be given only by such Supermen. They incarnate as Founders of Religions; and, by the fire and fervour of their ishq-i-haqiqī, karam-bā-khalq,¹ Love divine and universal, Brahmanishthā, vishva-préma, loka-hiṭ-éhā, the ardent flame of their compassion for mankind, fed constantly by the fuel of their deeds of self-sacrifice—by such ṭa pa s-fire in their own hearts, they set aflame the hearts of other human beings, all around, with similar love of God and of mankind. Thus they give a new life-time, of a whole great era, to the Eternal Truths, and so give birth to a new civilisation. This is their supreme work—of bringing into the world afresh, a great influx of spiritual, moral, emotional force. The intellectual work, also indispensable, of re-proclaiming the basic eternal truths is also done by them; but that of expounding and reconciling their teachings, is done afterwards by studious followers, lesser persons. While these latter remain true servants of the Spirit, and well-wishers of mankind, the religion flourishes. When they become false, selfish, aggressive, proud, malevolent, then they begin to divide instead of reconciling and uniting; sects arise and multiply; decay begins.¹

¹ Bā khalq karam kun ke Khudā bā ṭo karam kard : (Sā'dī); 'Since God loves thee, thou too shouldst love all beings.'

¹The creators of a movement, who give it its origin, its life, its energy, its emotional impulse, and its actional impetus, are, usually, other than those who give it its detailed philosophy, and do its teaching, and guiding, its right direction; even as the parents of a child are usually other than its teachers. This does not mean that the teacher and the teaching begin to exist, are born, after the parents and the child; but only that the work of education, the clear exposition of the philosophy, begins after the child, the movement, has been born. As history has gone, so far, usually philosophy and movement have acted and re-acted on, and helped to define, each other. If parents and teachers have been in consultation with each other before the child is conceived and gestated and born, or if parents are also teachers—then the conditions for successful growth are most favorable. Only in rare cases, of some a va ṭ ā r a s, insān-ul-kāmil, mazhar-i-aṭamm, have the aspects of Al-Bādī and Al-Alīm, Brahmā and Viṣṇu, Creator and Teacher, been combined; and then also, the two aspects have scarcely been equally manifested. Either the aspect of Knowledge as Teacher, or of Action as History-maker and Warrior, or of Desire as Inspirer of Love and Devotion and Purifier of soul, prevails, and manifests more than the other two; but,

It should also be noted that the Evolutionary Chain or Spiral of living beings, high and low, stretches infinitely, above as well as below, according to the Scriptures of the nations; and modern science also vouches for it. Thus:

Looking at the matter from the most rigidly scientific point of view, the assumption that amidst the myriads of worlds scattered through endless space, there can be no intelligence as much greater than man's, as his is greater than a black beetle's; no Being endowed with powers of influencing the course of Nature as much greater than his, as his is greater than a snail's; seems to me not merely baseless but impertinent. Without stepping beyond the analogy of what is known, it is easy to people the cosmos with entities in the ascending scale until we reach something practically indistinguishable from omnipotence, omnipresence, and omniscience.¹ of course, never exclusively; for all three aspects are inseparable, though distinguishable.

The reader who cares to pursue the subject further, may look into the present writer's Kṛishṇa, A Study in the Theory of Avatāras.

¹Prof. T. H. Huxley, Essays on Some Controverted Questions, p. 36 (edn. of 1892). Prof. Huxley was one of the most renowned scientists of Britain, in the last quarter of the last century. More recently, the late more famous A. R. Wallace, and also the living very old Sir Oliver Lodge have publicly professed adherence to the same belief. The latter has written: "Two things I am impressed with—the first, the reality and activity of powerful, but not almighty, helpers, to whom,

THE GOAL OF LIFE—TO FEEL THE SELF IN ALL.

The great truth which may be mentioned last here, is only another aspect of the first. The Self comes back to It-Self, remembers its forgotten Infinitude. The Wanderer returns Home. In symbol, the Serpent of Wisdom and of world-cycles swallows its own tail. A circling of the soul is completed. Extremes meet. The Infinitesimal is seen to be the Infinite. The Individual and the Universal become One.

The 'end' 'aim', 'purpose', 'goal', 'object', 'fundamental value' of life is dual. The preliminary purpose is a b h y-u ḍ a y a, ne'maṭ-i-ḍunya-vī, iqbāl-mandī, prosperity, success, in the life of this world, enjoyment of the good things of the earth, through the sensor and motor organs; it is threefold, (1) ḍ h a r m a, (2) a r ṭ h a, (3) k ā m a, (1) ḍ a y ā n aṭ, (2) ḍ a u l aṭ, (3) l a z z aṭ-uḍ-ḍ u n y ā, or (3) Sense-joy, refined by (2) Wealth, regulated by (1) Law; in other words, happy (3) Family-life, beautified by (2) Property and artistic possessions, restrained, controlled, regulated by (1) Religion-inspired Law of Right-and-Duty. This first triple end of life is to be pursued in the first half of life. The second half of life is to be in some direct and proximate sense, we owe guidance and management and reasonable control; and next, with the fearful majesty of still higher aspects of the universe, culminating in an Immanent Unity which transcends our utmost possibility of thought."

devoted to the achievement of the final goal, moksha, najāt, 'salvation', freedom from and sorrow, Summum Bonum, Nis-shréyas, Hazzan, ālā, Greatest Good, Joy than which there is no greater joy, 'to be like God', 'to become merged into God', 'to become God'.¹

The final purpose of life, inherently cherished by every human heart, is Return to the Original State from which we have erred away; is the Assurance, the Realisation, that the whole World-process is the Play of one-Self, without restraint by an-Other, Liberty from all compulsion by another, Recollection of our-Self as Supreme Maker, Mender, and Ender of all, Freedom of the Spirit from the bonds of fear, doubt, sorrow, Salvation from sin, Deliverance from error, Emancipation from superstition, Ab-solu-tion, ab-solved-ness, Ab-solute-ness, from all limitation and its consequences. Some time, sooner or later this Freedom comes to each and every soul, after experience of all kinds of joys and sorrows, sins and merits, deeps and heights of life, because all souls are parts of the One Supreme Self; and it comes by the realisation that there is no Other, than the Self, which can restrain or compel. Vaidika Dharma, Buddhism, and Jainism know this state as Mukṭi; also as Nir-vāṇa, ¹The reader who cares to pursue the subject of the 'Goal of Life' further, may look into the present writer's The Science of the Self, and The Science of Social Organisation.

annihilation or extinction of the sense of separateness and egoism, and blossoming of the sense, and tasting of the Bliss, of Oneness with the Universal Self, which constitutes the 'return' of the soul to its Source. Islām knows it by words which are exact equivalents of Mukti and Nir-vāṇa, viz., Najāt and Fanā-f-Ilāh. The last word means extinction or annihilation into God, with its accompanying ecstasy of joy, Lazzat-ul-Ilāhiya, Brahm-ānanda, Spiritual Blessedness, dissolving into the 'Bliss of God', the opposite of viśhaya-ānanda, or lazzat-ud-dunyā, worldly 'joy of sense-objects'. The Jewish Kabbalists call it 'the Palace of Love'; the Gnostics, 'the Pleroma of the Eternal Light'; the Christians, 'the Kingdom of Heaven'. Christianity calls it also the Beatitude of Salvation accomplished, Supreme Blessedness and Divine Bliss; the soul feels 'salved', 'saved', from 'death'; i. e., that death of the 'soul' which is 'the wages of sin'; the break-up of the 'subtile body', sūkshma-sharīra, which results from persistent gross sin; death of the physical body is, of course, inevitable. St. Paul speaks of "the Glorious Liberty of the Sons of God". And again, he says :

Stand fast therefore in the Liberty wherewith Christ hath made us Free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of Bondage. (B., Paul.)

The Truth (of the identity of the Individual with the Universal) will set you free. (B.)

There is no 'other-ness,' no ghair-iyat, no itara-tā, left in this state of Bliss. All is I. "The Universe grows I". Purusha becomes Brahma; Jiv-ātmā becomes Param-Ātmā; Amsha becomes Pūrṇa; the Part, the Whole; Anāniyat-i-adnā, Shakhsiyat-i-adnā, the Individual, becomes Anāniyat-i-ālā, Shakhsiyat-i-ālā, the Universal; Chitta becomes Chit; Viśhishta-Chaitanya, limited, particularised, individualised consciousness, Viśhishta-Satṭā, specific existence, becomes Chaitanya-sāmānya, Universal Consciousness, Satṭā-sāmānya, general, Universal Being; Khud or Khudī becomes Khudā; the Drop becomes the Ocean; the Infinitesimal, the Infinite; Man becomes God.

As described by those who have experienced the realisation, there is, in it, the 'intellectual conviction' of identity of one-self with the Universal Self; there is also the 'affective' or 'emotional feeling' of that union, a very great exaltation, a sense of utter security and certainty; as the first romance of perfectly reciprocated human love raised to a very high degree, even to infinite degree, for here we have love of all, instead of only two; and there is also the 'actional' or 'volitional' aspect of the 'will', the 'resolve', to become, or, indeed, of having become, a 'missionary of God', a 'son of God'; of one's (triple) body being now an 'instrument', an 'organ', of the Universal Will-Life-Intelligence.

Bhaktih, Par-ésh-ānu-bhavo vi-rakṭih
 Anyatṛa cha-isha ṭrika éka-kālah. (Bh.)
 (Love Universal, sense of Dei-ty, Surcease of selfish act—all three in one.)
 All are but parts of One stupendous Whole,
 Whose body Nature is and God the Soul. (POPE.)
 Yaḍ, Agné !, syām Aham Tvam,
 Ṭvam vā dhā syā Aham. (Rg-Véda, 8. 44, 23) (Lord Agni !¹ Fire and Light and Guide Within !
 Ordain that I be Thou, and Thou be I !)

Man ṭu shūḍam, ṭu man shuḍī,
 Man ṭan shuḍam, ṭu jāñ shuḍī,
 Ṭā kas na goyaḍ bāḍ az iñ,
 Man ḍīgaram, ṭu ḍīgarī. (S.)

(I am none else than Thou, and Thou than I ;
 I am Thy body and Thou art My Soul.
 Let no one say hereafter that I am
 Other than Thee, or Thou other than I.)
 Yaṭhā saṭah purushāṭ késha-lomāni,
 Ṭaṭh-Āksharāṭ sambhavaṭ-īha Vishvam. (U.)
 (As to the human being, hairs and nails,
 So is this Cosmos to th' Eternal Self.)
 Haḡ jāñ-i-jahāñ aṣṭ, wa jahāñ jumla baḍan ;
 Tauhiḍ hamīñ aṣṭ ; ḍigar shéwa o fan. (S.)
 (One single Body—this Whole Universe ;
 God—its One Soul ; spirits, souls, angels all—
 Its organs and its senses ; th' elements,
 And all the Natural Kingdoms are its limbs—
 Such the significance of Unity.)
 Ṭaṭ srshtvā ṭaḍ-év-ānu-prā-vishaṭ...
 Esha vai Vishva-rūpa Āṭmā Vaishvā-narah...

¹ 'Agré nayaṭi,' 'That which leads forward', is 'Ag-ni', the Divine Fire Within.

Ṭaṭṭa ko mohah kah shokah Ékaṭvam
anu-pashyaṭah. (U.)

(The Self creates this world and enters in,
As soul in body, to the very nails
The Total of All Bodies and All Souls
Is His One Single Body and One Soul.
For him who sees him-Self in every self,
In everything, there is no longer left
Any perplexity, doubt, sorrow, fear.)

Other names for this Bliss are surūr-i-jāwédānī, the 'permanent intoxication', iṣṭighrāq, 'mergence' into the One, Brahma-līnaṭā, 'disappearance in Brahma', Āṭma-lābhā, the 'finding of the Self', wisāl, 'union', sāyujya, 'identification' with God, wahḍaṭ, ékī-bhāva, kaivalya, 'on(e)li-ness', soli-tude, soli-tariness, Āṭm-ānanda, Āṭma-raṭi, Āṭma-tṛpti, 'Self-bliss', 'joy in Self', 'Self-content', bhakti-rasa, 'bliss-bath of love', mahābhāva, the 'great emotion', bhūmā, the state of being 'the greatest', 'the most', Infinitude.

Willy-nilly, consciously or sub-consciously, all living beings, all things, are all the time trying to reach this Eternal Fount of Peace which is within themselves, this Self of all, this Universal Love. All genuine earnest Philosophical and Religious Questing is but Home-sickness; yearning for the Heaven from which we have erred and fallen away; pining for the Garden of Eden from which we have been exiled, through the serpent-wiles of false Māyā-Desire, Ṭṛshṇā, Hirs, Tama'; longing to regain our own forgotten and lost Self.

Mama varṭm-ānu-varṭanté
manushyāh, Pārṭha !, sarvashah.

Yé yaṭhā mām pra-paḍyanté
tāns-ṭaṭha-iva bhajāmy-Aham.

Ṭé-pi Mām-éva, Kauntéya !

yajanty-a-viḍhi-pūrvakam. (G.)

(Mankind are everywhere marching to Me.

Whatever road they take, I meet them on it.

In every form each soul seeks Me, the Self.)

Self-consciousness, All-Self-consciousness, is the one purpose and goal of all evolution, the one ever very near and yet seemingly "far-off" divine event to which the whole creation moves," as western modern poet and philosopher also see and say, more or less gropingly; while the scriptures of the nations say and show the Great Truth in full blaze of light.

Manyé-ush hachā ṭhvā é-é-āonghā

Yā-ishā anghush po-uruyo khavaṭa.

(Z., Gāṭhā, 28. 11)

(By force of knowledge and expanding thought

Shall we return to Thee, unto that state

Which was at the beginning of our life.)

Kaṭ vé kshaṭhrém, Mazaḍā !, yaṭhā vāo hakhmī

...paré vaskhémā...yaṭhā...ūrvāiḍ-yās...ayēnī paṭī.

(Z., Gāṭhā, 34. 5, 6.)

(Thou art beyond all this we see, Supreme !

Teach us what resignation, fortitude,

And what detached aloofness from the world,

May join us unto Thee, Lord Mazaḍā !

And make us thus to realise our-Self.)

Ṭach-chhruṭam ṭach-cha vijñānam,
 Ṭaḍ-ḍhyānam, ṭaṭ param ṭapah,
 Ayam Aṭmā yaḍ-āsāḍya
 Sva-svarūpē layam vrajēṭ.

(J., SHUBHA CHANDRA, Jñān-ārṇava.)

(The deepest learning and the highest science
 And meditation and asceticism
 Are that the Self should re-cognise It-Self
 And lose Itself in Self eternally.)

The Jewish Mystic Books say :

All things of which this world consists, spirits as well as bodies, will return to their principal, the root from which they proceeded. (Ju., Zohar, II. 218b, quoted in H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled, II, 271).

Bahūnām janmanām anṭe

jñānavān mām pra-paḍyaṭe. (G.)

(After the soul has passed through many births,
 It knows, and comes back to Me, in the end.)
 Life is a going forth, death is a returning home.

(T., Tao Teh King.)

Gar che ḍiwār afganaḍ sāyah ḍarāz

Bāz garḍaḍ sūye ū ān sāyah bāz. (S.)

(Long is the shadow that the wall casts forth,
 When the Sun falls upon the earth at dawn ;
 Yet it turns back again, as the Sun climbs,
 Till it is lost in the wall's base at noon.)

Innā l-Ilāhī wa innā Ilāhī rāje'-ūn. (Q)

(From Allah do we come, for Him we are,
 And to Him verily is our return.)

The beautiful poem of Sā'di, Mā-muqīmān, is an extended comment on this verse of the Qurān. Only the first and the last lines are given below :

Mā muqīmān-e-kū-e-Ḍildār ém ;

Rukh ba dūnyā wa dīn na mī ārēm ;
 Bulbulān-ém, ke az qazā wa qaḍar,
 Oṭṭāḍah juḍā ze gulzār ém.
 ...Man na ḍānam ke andar īn|hairaṭ,
 Ba wisālē ke ḍāḍ paighāmē,
 Ke ba chashmān-i-dīl ma-bīn juz Doṣṭ,
 Har che binī be-ḍān ke mazhar-i-Ū-sṭ. (S., Sā'dī.)
 (In the Beloved's Garden did we dwell !
 His Will, as Destiny, did cast us out,
 To wander, seeking, in this labyrinth.
 But now we've done with this world and its creeds.
 After long yearnings and far wanderings
 The wonder comes ! He filleth all our being,
 With His own Self—Yea, 'tis the Beloved !—
 And a vast music in our Soul resounds,
 "Ye are united with Me once again,
 With the heart's eye see now naught but the Friend ;

For whatsoever ye behold, ye know
 Is but the glory of the Beloved !")

Miṭṭrasya chakshushā pashyema. (V.)
 (See we the whole world with the One Friend's eye.)

Gauharé juz Khuḍ-shināsī
 n-īṣṭ ḍar bahr-é wujūḍ ;
 Mā ba girdé Khwēsh mī
 garḍém chuñ girdābhā. (S.)

(Self-knowledge is the only pearl
 In the sea of life ;

Like whirlpools round our-Self we whirl
 In incessant strife.)

Na vā...paṭyuh, jāyāyāh, puṭrasya, viṭṭasya,...
 —A tmanas-tu kāmāya sarvam vai priyam
 bhavaṭi. (U.)

(Not for its own sake is aught dear to us ;
 Whatever thing or being, high or low,
 Parents, spouse, child, friend, house, or gold, or god,

Is dear to us—is so for sake of Self.)

Kufr o dīn har do dar raha-ṭ poyān,

Wahdahū lā sharīk-ilah goyān.

Har kas ṭālib-i-Yār and, che hushyār o che maṣṭ ;

Hama jā khānai ishq aṣṭ, che maṣjīd che kanisṭ.

Ṭu-hī Maqsūd hai, Ka'bā

wa Buṭ-khānā bahānā hai. (S.)

(Sceptic or faithful, both run after Thee,

Seeking the One Great Ultimate of all.

Sober, inebriate, sane or insane,

Each one for the Beloved One doth seek ;

Musalmān's mosque or Magian's fire-place,

Each is the sacred shrine of Love Divine.

Thou art the Goal for which all are asearch ;

Temple and Kā'bā, both, but roads to Thee !)

A comparatively recent Indian Sūfī poet bursts into song, as below, with the first joy of the Great Discovery :

Jis simṭ nazar kar dēkhé hai,

us Dīl-bar kī phulwārī hai,

Kahīn sabzī kī hariyālī hai,

Kahīn phuloṅ kī gulkārī hai ;

Dīn rāṭ magan khush baithé haiṅ, aur ās Usī kī bhārī hai ;

Bas āp hī Wah dāṭārī hai, aur āp hī Wah bhandārī hai.

Har ān haṅsī, har ān khushī, har waṭṭ amīrī hai, bābā !,

Jab āshiq maṣṭ faqīr hué,

phir kyā dīl-gīrī hai, bābā ! (S., NAZIR.)

(Whichever way the eye is turned, it sees
 The Garden of the Loved One burgeoning
 Blooming and blossom'ing with life upwell:
 From the One Fount, which gives and tak
 b

He is the Giver, He the Gatherer ;
 He is the one main stay of all our hopes ;
 All days are one long laugh, all nights one
 All life one opulence and affluence—
 When once the heart all worldly things d
 And owns again its Own-Self's ecstasy.)

And again :

Āshiqé zār hūn maiū, tālib-é-ārām nahīn,
 Nang-o-nāmūs-e-ḍuniyā sé mujhé kām nal
 Bé-sar-o-pāyī kā usshāq ko khatrā kyā ha
 Asar-e-Ishq hai yah, gardish-e-ayyām nah
 Ālam-e-Ishq kī ḍuniyā hī nirālī ḍékhī,
 Sahr-o-shām wahāū yé sahr-o-shām nahīn
 Bé nihāyaṭ, jiskā pāyā hai nahīn pāyān,
 Jis jagah ham pahuñché hamī, āghāz hai,
 anjām nal

Fīkr ḍuniyā kī malāmat kī ṭujhé kyā hai,
 Ashiqon méū ṭo akéla tū hī baḍ-nām nah
 (S.,

(I am a Lover dire, no seeker of delights '
 What have I got to do with this world's praise or

What care the reckless Lovers that their words lac

This is th' effect of Love, and not of Fortune'

The world of Love is very different from thi

ahī, kahyā ahi, kathā ayārē dakshārā fērasayāī dīshā aibī ṭhvāhū gaṭṭhāhū ṭanushī chā. (Z., Gāṭhā, 13. 7).

(Conscience, the higher mind, awoke in me, Shook me and questioned me : "Think ! careless
one !,

Who art thou ? Whose art thou ? I ask thee, say !
Why art thou here ? What for ? And doing what ?
When wilt thou learn the purpose of thy life ?
When understand thy body and thy mind ?
And in that moment did I realise,
Thou art the only Holy One, the Whole,—
Mazdā !, Mahā-Dēva !, Mahā-Dhātā !,
Creator Great, Most wise, the Soul of All,
From Whom, for Whom, and unto Whom alone
Are all souls, 'asu-s', Great Lord 'Ahu'-ra !)
Ātmānam vijāniyāt...Ātmā vi-jñēyah...
Ātmānam an-vichchāmah, yam Ātmānam an-vishya sarvāmsh-cha lokān av-āpnoī...
Ātmā vā arē drashtavyah shroṭavyo manṭavyo nīdīdhyāsītavyah...(U.)

(Deep hid in the heart cave, seek thine own Self...
The Self is the one thing to seek and find...
Yea, let us seek the Self, for finding It
We find within It all the countless worlds ..
There is Naught-Else than the One Self Alone,
In very truth, to be sought, thought, seen, known.)
Know thy-Self. (SOLON, the Greek Sage.)

Hearken unto Me (the Supreme Self), my son ; blessed are they who keep My ways...Blessed is the man that heareth Me, watching daily at My gates...
For whoso findeth Me, findeth life, and shall obtain favour of the Lord....But he that sinneth against Mewrongeth his own soul...and loves death. (B., Proverbs.
vii, 1—36.)

Nas-Ullāhā fa'ansāhum aufusehum. (Q.)

(He who forgetteth God forgets him-Self.)

Ko-(A)ham, kas-ṭvam, kuṭa-āyāṭah,

Ṭaṭ-tvam chinṭaya, Taḍ-īdam, bhrāṭah !

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA.)

(What is I and what is Thou ?

(Whence is each, what for, and how ?

What the truth of all this show ?

Ponder this, my brother ! now !)

Kim ṭe ḍhanéna, kim-u baṇḍhubhīr-éva vā ṭe,

Kim ṭe ḍāraih, putraka !, yo marishyasi ;

Aṭmānam an-vichchha, guhām pravāṣhtam,

Ṭāmahās-ṭe kva gaṭāh, ṭā cha. (Mbh.)

(What hast thou got to do with riches ; what

With kinsfolk ; what with loved and loving spouse ?

Of these none shall bestand thee, O my child !,

When the dread Messenger of Death shall come !

Where are thy parents and their parents gone !

Seek then th' Immortal Self, Master of Death,

Eternal Refuge, hiding in the cave,

The Cave profound of thine own living heart !)

“My father sent me...I go the Father,” says
Jesus, i. e., ‘to My own Universal and Supreme Self’; and every soul has to say it, and thus triumph over Death.

Jā ké ghar sukh kā bhandārā

So kyon bharmāi ḍar ḍar mārā !

(In thine own home, the Treasury of all joy !

And thou a-begging thus from door to door !)

Ho ke Sulṭān-i-Haḳīqat isī āb-o-gil mén,

Ḍar ba ḍar misl-i-gaḍā ṭhā, mujhe mā'lūm na thā.

(S.)

(Though King of all the World, in mud and mire,
I begged from door to door—I knew Me not !)

Ṭvam tu bhūmi-paṭēh puṭro !

na jāṅgalika-santaṭih ! (Yoga Vāsishtha.)

(Though art the King's Son, Sir !, no jungle-child,

Though lost in infancy in this vast wild,

And reared by forest-folk, from Truth beguiled !)

Shrēshtham vāṇijyam ṛṭam amṛtam mama-iṭan-

Martyén-Āham krīṭa-vānasmy-A-martyam. (U.)

Ēshā buddhi-maṭām buddhir-,

Manīshā cha manīshinām,

Yaṭ Satyam an-rṭēn-ēha

Martyén-āpnoṭi Māmṛtam. (Bh., xi. 29. 22.)

Iha chéḍ-avéḍīḍ-aṭha Satyam aṣṭi,

Na chéḍ-ih-āvéḍīn-mahaṭi vi-nashtih. (U.)

Iha-iva saṇṭo aṭha viḍmas Ṭaḍ vayam,

Na chéḍ-avéḍīr mahaṭi vi-nashtih ;

Yé Ṭaḍ viḍur-amṛtās-tē bhavanṭi ;

Aṭh-ētaré ḍuhkham ev-āpi-yaṇṭi. (Brhad U.)

(Best of all trades is mine—that I have sold

My mortal things and bought Immortal Soul !

This is true Wisdom ; this, best Enterprise ;

That we should part with Lie and lay in Truth,

And with the mortal buy th' Immortal Self !

Great is our loss if we fail to buy back

Our 'birthright' with this 'pottage-mess' and gain

Our Deathless Self while still in mortal sheath ;

Let us make sure to see Him while still here ;

If we do not, then very great our loss,

And we pass o'er and o'er from pain to pain ;

But if we do, then Deathless Bliss our gain !)

Great is the yearning of the Elders of the Race, the Sages, Saints, Seers, Prophets, that the youngers should make this Great Discovery and so be freed from all sorrows ; even as is the yearning of the mother and the father that their little ones may attain majority and become able to stand on their own feet.

Samsārīṇām karuṇay-āha Purāṇa-guhyam. (Bh.)

(Of pity for mankind, Shuka did teach

The Ancient Sacred Secret unto all.)

Ḍarḍ-e-dīl ké wāṣṭé insān ko paidā kiyā ;

Var-na ṭāa'ṭ ké liyē kuchh kam na ṭhīn Karrobiyān.

(S.)

(God entered into human shape, to feel

Ache of the Heart, commixt of Woe and Bliss.

To hymn His Glory there were Cherubim

In hosts ; but He grew tired of hearing them,

And wished to feel the feel of human woe.)

Kufr Kāfir rā, wa dīn dīn-dār rā,

Qaṭra-e ḍarḍé-dīlé Attār rā. (S.)

(Let sceptics in their disbelief rejoice ;

And in their faith the faithful ones take joy ;

One drop of the Divine Heartache for Me.)

My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you ; (B., Galatians.)

Until we all come in the unity of faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, into a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. (B., Ephesians.)

Work out your own Salvation, for it is God which worketh in you. (B., Philippians.)

The law of the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of life and death. (B., Paul.)

Some may interpret 'the law of life and death', as 'the law of involuntary re-births':

The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be ; and that which is done is that which shall be done...The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north ; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits... All the rivers run into the sea ; yet the sea is not full ; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again. (B., Eccles.)

This Law of Cyclicity is true of things physical as well as things spiritual or psychical.

For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, are the sons of God. (B., Romans.)

By the help of the Best Purity, by the help of the Supreme Purity, O Ahura Mazaḍa, may we see Thee, may we draw near Thee, may we become one with Thee for Eternity. (Z., Yasna, ix. 12.)

"We become One with Thee", by realising that the individual is, in essence, identical with the Universal.

The pure in heart shall see God. (B.)

Such souls no longer need the prohibitions and the injunctions, the negative 'don'ts' and the positive 'do's', the nishédhas and vidhis, the mana's and the kun's, of Religions Ethics. They have risen from 'don'ts' and 'do's' into 'be' perfect). They are themselves the embodiments of Law, Ḍharmātmā, Salim.

Nis-ṭrai-guṇyé paṭhi vicharaṭo
ko vidhih ko nishedhah.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA.)

(Since they have mastered 'the three attributes' ;
Of knowing, wishing, and performing acts ;
Of light, and darkness, and vast restlessness ;
Which manifesting in 'th' opposéd pairs',
Create the world and keep it ever going ;
And are no longer mastered by those three ;
And since the Law of Universal Love

Reigns ever-wakeful now within their hearts,
No other laws of 'do's' and 'don'ts' they need.).

The souls which have achieved this realization of the Oneness of all Life, this non-separateness from all others, this inseparable connection and unbreakable relationship with all other living beings—they are called Pūrṇa-puruṣas, Dīvyā-puruṣas, Jīvan-Mukṣas, Avatāras, Perfect Persons, Divine Persons, the 'Living-Free', 'Deity descended (into human form)', in Vedānta; Buddhas, Bodhi-sattvas, the 'Enlightened,' the 'Wisdom-souled,' in Buddhism; Arhaṭs, the 'worthy,' Tīrthan-karas, 'the helpers-across, the ferrymen, of others,' in Jainism; Sons of God, Messiahs, Christs, ('Christos' means the 'anointed' with Divine Wisdom) in Christianity; Insān-ul-kāmil, Mard-i-tamām, Mazhar-i-aṭamm, Perfected Men, Completed Men, Divine Men, Incarnations or Manifestations of Divinity, in Islām.

Be ye perfect, as your Father in heaven is perfect... And ye shall know the Truth (of the essential identity of the individual with the Universal Self), and the Truth shall make you free (of all fear)Ye are gods...(B.)

(God says : But follow thou My laws, O man !,
And thou shalt sure become like unto Me ;
Then if thou say, 'Let there be this', it is !) (H.)
Mayi dhārayaṣash-chétah
upa-tīshthanṭi siddhayah. (Bh.)

(If any one will fix his heart on Me,
All secret sacred Powers shall wait on him !)

Such perfected, completed, souls, having achieved at-one-ment with the All-Self and therefore with all selves, can and do try to make atonement for all; to make all realise at-one-ment.

Labhanté Brahma-nirvāṇam
rshayah kshīṇa-kalmashāh, Chhinna-dvaidhā yaṭ-Ātmānah
sarva-bhūta-hité raṭāh.
San-ni-yamy-ēndriya-grāmam
sarvaṭra sama-buddhayah,
Té prāpnuvanṭi Mām éva
sarva-bhūta-hité raṭāh. (G.)

(The pure souls that have washed away their sins,
And cast off doubt and sense of separateness,
And all duality of 'I' and 'thou',
That see with Love the Same Law everywhere,
And always are intent on good of all—
They have found Me, and found My deathless Peace.)

Kasé marḍé-ṭamām aṣṭ az ṭamāmī
Kunāḍ bā khwājagī kārē ghulāmī. (S.)
(They are the perfect men who, being such,
Out of the greatness of their loving hearts,
Make themselves small to slave continuously
To make th' imperfect ones perfect also.)

Degrees and kinds of rapport between the individual and the Universal (or, mostly, a higher individual, a personal god, a great angel), between the part and the (mostly comparative) Whole, the small and the Great, are distinguished as sālōkya, sāmīpya, sārūpya, sāyujya, āvēśha, kal-āvaṭāra, amśh-āvatāra, pūrṇāvaṭāra, etc., in Vedānta and Yoga; and as wajḍ, jazba, wasl, qurb-i-farāyaz, qurb-i-nawāfil, burūz, hulūl, mazhar-i-aṭanm, etc., in Ṭasawwuf; i.e., nearness of several degrees, assimilation of many degrees, and identification of various degrees.

In the ascent, urūj, āroha, to this perfect realization of the identity of individual and Universal, the soul passes through three main inner stages. In terms of knowledge, they constitute the three main 'views,' darshanās: (1) Dualistic Theism or Deism, (2) Pantheism, (3) Monism; (1) Dvaita, (2) Vishishtādvaita, (3) Advaita; (1) Ijādiyah, (2) Shuhūdiyah, (3) *Wujūdiyah*¹; (1) the popular view of Causation, i.e., an extra-cosmical personal God has created the cosmos, (2) the Scientific view of Causation, i.e., that Force and

¹ Ijāḍ, from the root wajḍ, means 'giving existence (to what was non-existent)', 'invention', 'creation'. Wujūḍ, from the same root, means 'existence', 'being'. Shuhūḍ means 'witnessing', 'seeing'. As usual, there is much hair-splitting and drawing of 'nice' distinctions, as to what exactly the shuhūdiyah doctrine is. As usual, also, there is, there must be, an element, a piece, of truth, in each view. Broadly and comprehensively speaking, the doctrine is that God, Spirit-Force, 'witnesses' the 'manifestation' of the infinite Material attributes that are inherent in Him-Self; and this manifestation-and-witnessing is the World-Process plus God, the Interplay of Spirit or Mind or Energy or Force, and of Matter; of Thought and Extension; of Purusha

Matter, or Thought and Extension, are inseparable aspects of the same thing, and are undergoing transformations constantly, (3) the Metaphysical view of Causation, i.e., that the cosmos is the Dream-Illusion of the One Spirit or Self or Principle of Consciousness; (1) the Ārambhāvāda of Nyāya-Vaisheshika, (2) the Parināmavāda of Sāṅkhya-Yoga, (3) the Vivartā (or Ābhāsa or Adh-yāsa)-vāda of Mīmāṃsā-Vedānta.

The Sūfis put the three stages in three logia, *mahāvākya*s, kalemā-s; (1) Hama az Ū-st 'all is (made) by Him,' (2) Hama andar (or ba) Ū-st, 'all is in Him'; (3) Hama Ū-st, 'all is He'. Other forms of the logia are (1) Lā ma'būdah (or maqsūdah) illā Hū, 'none is to be adored but He,' (2) Lā mashahūdah illā Hū, 'none is to be witnessed, sensed, felt, experienced but He,' (or 'none is the Witness but He'), (3) Lā maujūdah illā Hū, 'Naught is but He'.

A Samskrit verse sums up all these three and their sub-varieties in terms of the Prepositions which signify the Relations between Nouns through Verbs; here, the Relations between God and the World through al-Mighti-ness, to which the grammatical trinity broadly corresponds.

Yasmin, Yasya, Yaṭo, Yasmāt,

Yéna, Yam, Ya Idam Svayam,

and Prakṛti. For fuller exposition of the different views that have arisen under the shuhūdīyah view, the reader may consult the excellent books of Khājā Khān, viz., Studies in Tasawwuf and the Philosophy of Islām.

Yo-smāṭ parasmāṭ cha Parah,
 Ṭam prapadyé Svayam-bhuvam !¹
 (I take my refuge in th' Eternal Self,
 Subject of all, Self-born, Self-evident,
 In, Of, From, For, and By, and Unto Whom
 All 'This' innumerable Object-world exists ;
 Who is This all too ; and Who, being This,
 Yet shines transcendently beyond This all !)

Out of Him (the Self), through Him (the Self), in Him (the Self), all things are. (In the original Greek : Ex auton, kai di auton, kai eis auton ta panta).
 (B., Paul.)

The three views correspond broadly to the temperaments of (1) Active Energism, (2)
 Devotional Pietist Mysticism, (3) Enlightened Gnosticism. They are not inconsistent at all with each other, much less antagonistic ; except when each is emphasised to the exclusion of the others, in the false spirit of extremism. When the final stage is reached, all views are seen to be complementary and supplementary aspects of one another. Perfect evolution requires perfect equipoise of all, (1) Active Service of Mankind, because of (2) Philanthropy, due to the (3)
 Knowledge that all are One-Self ; the knowledge

¹ In the Bhāgavata, the verse occurs in the following form :

Yasmin Idam, Yatash-ch-Ēdam,
 Yén-Ēdam, Ya Idam Svayam,
 Yo-smāṭ Parasmāch-cha Paras-
 Ṭam prapadyé svayam-bhuvam.
 (Bh., Gajendra-Sṭuṭi.)

that (a) the One Self, (b) dreams the Interplay of Self (Force) and Not-Self (Matter), of Soul and Body, and (c) manifests also in 'personal i. e., individualised, gods', as Rulers of endlessly graded larger and smaller worlds, orbs, solar and sidereal world-systems.

We have referred before to the three main functions or aspects of the mind. They correspond to the three Primal G u n a s of the Nir-g u n a, the Sifāt of the Zāt-i-lā-sifāt, the Attributes of the Attributeless, the Zāt-i-sādij, Sh u ḍ ḍ h a-S a t, T a t t v a-m ā t r a, Pure Being, Pure Essence, Mere That-ness; the Munqata'-ul-ishārat, Lā-ta'iyun, Lā-ba-shart-i-shay, Majhūl-un-nās, Nir-anjana, Nir-vishésha, Nir-mala, Sh u ḍ ḍ h a, the Unconditioned, Undefin-able, 'No'-thing, Attributeless, Ab-solute, ab-solv-ed from all limitations, Devoid of all marks, stains, particularities, specialities; Par am - Ā v y a k t a, Ghaib-ul-ghuyūb, the Utterly Hidden; A t y a n t - Ā t ī t a, Ghaib-i-Muṭlaq, the absolutely Transcendant; S a t t ā - m ā t r a, Wajūd-i-bahat, Being-in-itself; Whose Infinite all-enclosing Generality and Universality can be described only by a p a - v ā ḍ a of all a ḍ h y - ā r o p a, by ṭanzih of all ṭashbih, by negation of all particular affirmations, rejection of all de-fini-tions, repudiation of all narrowing characterisations, of all names and forms; na-iṭi, nāma-rūp-āpalāpa, ākāra-nirākaraṇa, vishéshaṇ - āpavāraṇa, isqāt-ul-ishārat, inqīṭa'-ul-ashkāl, ṭardīd-ul-hayākāl, 'I am this,

—No,' 'I am that,—No,' 'I am that other,—No,' 'I am I al-One,' 'I am that I am'.¹ The careful reader will see that these, mostly negative, adjectives and descriptions, can belong to 'No-Thing' but the Universal Self in and of all.

It is well-known that the view of Buddhism and Jainism as to the indescribability of the Ultimate Fact otherwise than by negatives, is exactly the same. So too is that of the Jewish mystics. The Hebrew book, Zohar, says :

God, En-sof, 'No-End,' Infinite [Skṭ, A n-a n ṭ a, Arab.-Per. Lā-inrihā] is above all creatures and all attributes.² When these things have been removed,

¹ The reader, if he desires a more detailed exposition of the subject, may refer to the present writer's The Science of Peace and The Science of the Self.

² Arabic scholars usually derive the word Sūfī, whence Ṭasawwuf, from the Sūf (spelt with a swāḍ), which means 'woollen cloth', and not from the Sūf (spelt with a sīn), which means 'wisdom'. They say that, in the earlier days, it was customary for Sūfī-s, ascetic-mystic-gnostic-devotee-philosophers, who had retired from the world, to wear a woollen blanket or gaberdine; as the sannyāsī-s of India still wear ochre-colored cloth, and as some sects of Christian monks used to wear sack-cloth. Others think that the word is connected with safā (spelt with a swāḍ), which means 'purity'. Yet others connect it with the Greek sophia, 'wisdom', whence the Arabic fal-safā (a transformation of 'philo-sophy'), and sūfistā (i.e. 'sophist', the man of pseudo-wisdom, the specious reasoner). Hebrew and Arabic scholars might consider whether the Hebrew En-Sof can be translated as Arabic A'yn-Sūf (with sīn) or A'yn-

there is left neither attribute, nor shape, nor form. He can be postulated only negatively. We cannot tell what God is; we can tell only 'what He is not.' For the creation of the world, which is an emanation of the Divine, the Infinite became, as it were, contracted, Tsimtsum, and took on certain attributes of the finite. To this finite, belongs 'darkness,' evil, [Skṭ., ṭ a m a s]. The finite, the world, opposite extreme of the Infinite, is evil. Evil, sin, are Kelifoth, 'coverings', screens which hide the Truth; [Skṭ., kl é s h a s, ā v a r a ṇ a s, u p ā ḍ h i s.] Whatever in the world is evil, and not of the Divine, cannot be real. Hence evil is that which has no being [a-s a ṭ]; it is a sort of illusion [m ā y ā]; it is a state of absence, negation; it is a thing which merely appears to be, but is not. It is man's duty to strive after re-union with the Infinite; his pursuit of the finite, the false, constitutes evil. He can attain the real only when he seeks the Real, Who is his fount, his home.¹

Sāf (with swāḍ), which would mean 'mere pure Intelligence or Consciousness, i.e., 'no-thing-ness', or 'Sheer Purity', i. e., 'no-thing-ness', 'no-mixture', again.

¹This quotation is abridged from pp. 128-132 of Dr. J. Abelson, Jewish Mysticism, (The Quest Series), in his own words. Another western writer says: "In Egypt they have a popular rhyme which is thus rendered by Canon Gairdner,

Whatever idea your mind comes at,
I tell you flat, God is not that."

The original is perhaps,

Kulla mā haṭarā bī bālik,
F-Allāhu siwā zālik.

Thus popular instinct and religio-metaphysical meditation come to the same conclusion. Extremes meet.

We have seen before that the compassionate teachers "temper the wind to the shorn lamb". They tell the earnestly seeking soul that evil is 'no-thing.'¹ They add the explanation that this is so because all 'limitation' is the mark of 'nothingness.' What passes, vanishes, must be nothing. Sorrow and evil pass; they must be nothing, like dreams. Bye and bye, the earnest seeker after true religious consolation will realise, that what he knows as joy and good also passes, is limited in time, space, condition; and so must be nothing too. Finally, he realises, that the Everlasting Peace of the Eternal and Infinite Self transcends the make-believe, the drama, of both good and evil, both joy and sorrow; that good is good and joy is joy by contrast with evil and with sorrow; that, in the World-drama, his part is to be consciously on the side of the good; that the souls that are as yet unconscious of their identity with All, are indeed intensely conscious of only separateness, and 'know no better,' will be on the side of evil, which is 'error', erring away from the Supreme and into the body of flesh with its inherent selfishness; and that as he himself has erred but returned, so all these others

¹Spinoza, a philosopher famous in Europe, is a very earnest expounder of this view, in philosophical language; but he, like Hegel, leaves behind perplexity and confusion in the mind, instead of lucid convictions, because he speaks of the Ultimate Fact, the Primal Substance, the Absolute, in terms of the third person, as 'It', instead of the first person, 'I', 'Self', Ego.

also will, each in his own proper time and without fail, come back to the Right Path and reach Home. Soon or late, each 'erring' soul tires of its 'wanderings'; the mood of v a i-r ā g y a, 'world-weariness' and 'passionate compassion' for all the 'wanderers in the dark' comes upon it; and it begins the 'Homeward Journey'.

There is One Alone [i.e., the Uni-versal Self], and there is Not-a-Second: Yea, He hath neither child nor brother; Yet is there no end of all His labor [i.e., this endless World-Process]; neither is His eye satisfied with riches [for all the Universe is His always]; neither saith He, For whom do I labor, and bereave My soul of good [i.e., forget My infinity and fall into limitation]. This is also Vanity (M ā y ā, L ī l ā). Yea, it is a sore travail [k l é s h a, in the Yoga-Sūtra, 'misery-breeding original sin or error of Self-forgetting']. (B., Eccles. 4.)

This sore travail hath God given to the sons of man to be exercised therewith...to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven...I gave my heart to know wisdom and to know madness and folly...In much wisdom is much grief, and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow...I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit...There I saw that wisdom excelleth folly, as far as light excelleth darkness...This also is vanity. (B., Eccles.)

I know that there is no good in them, but for a man to rejoice and to do good in his life. (B., Eccles.)

Duḥkham éva sarvaṃ vivékinah. (Yoga-bhāṣya).
Anḍham ṭamah pravishanti yé Avidyām upāsaré;
Ṭaṭo bhūya-iva téṭamo ya-u Viḍyāyām raṭāh. (U.)

Viḍyām ch-āviḍyām cha, yas taḍ vėḍ-obhayam saha
 Aviḍyayā mr̥tyum tīrtvā
 Viḍyayā amṛtam ashnuṭē. (U.)
 Na sukham na cha vā ḍuhkham, na moksho n-āpī bandhanam,
 Na puṇyam na cha vā pāpam,
 ity-ēshā Param-ārthaṭā. (U.)

(To him who sees the difference between
 The Staying and the Fleeting, all this Show
 Of Shadows, pleasant-painful, all is pain.
 Who worship Error, pass into the Dark ;
 And they who worship Truth-ful Wisdom—they
 Into a deeper Darkness seem to pass,
 In which all long-loved finites disappear ;
 But soon the Glory of the Self shines forth,
 In which all finites are, eternally.
 To know the Truth, we must first Error know ;
 By Error, we pass through the gates of Death ;
 And then, by Truth, to Deathlessness we go.)

Good is good, evil is evil, wisdom is wisdom, folly is folly ; though both are parts of the one Drama. The soul has to pass from evil to good, from folly to wisdom, to become Son of God,
 Jīvan-mukṭa, Insān-ul-kāmil, and win back
 the lost, i.e., merely forgotten, Immortality.

‘Descent’ along the Qaus-i-nazūl, Avāroha-mārga, and its attendant isbāt-ul-ishārat, adhya-rōpa, ‘putting on, assumption, of particularising marks and limitations’, and selfish ṭashbīh, nāma-rūpa, ‘donning of name-and-form’; and then reascent along the Qaus-iurūj, Āroha-mārga, and its appertenant

isqāṭ-ul-ishāraṭ, a pa-vā d a, 'putting off, repudiation, of all de-finition', and unselfish tanziḥ, n i r-ā k a r a ṇ a, 'negation of limitations,'—are both part of lahv, l i l ā. Yet the latter is better.

The pair, of good as well as evil, virtue and vice, merit and sin, is also part of the World-Illusion in this wise, together with all other countless pairs.

Since this ever-changing, 'ever-whirled-and-whirling' 'world', j a g a ṭ, the 'ever-going', jahān, the 'ever-leaping,' is made up of nothing-else than all the paired and opposed particularities which are negated, denied all existence, by each other; which indeed neutralise, nullify, abolish each other; therefore, all religions hold that this world, with all its weal and woe, is indeed, in essence, a s a ṭ, a'dam, non-being, no-thing;¹ "vanity of vanities" (B.); M ā y ā, ¹It does seem very hard to believe, to 'realise', that all the solid things, our bodies, these houses, trees, towns, mountains, the whole earth—are 'un-real', are 'no-thing.' Yet it is certain that they are always changing, even vanishing. But what changes, is not permanent; and what is not permanent, cannot be real. Only That Which sees that 'all these things' of 'This' Object-World are changing, unreal; and distinguishes the changing from the Changeless; That is and must be It-Self Changeless, Real, Eternal Mind, Infinite Consciousness, Omnipotent Energy of Will-and-Imagination. From It does all 'This' manifestation appear, Dream-like, Illusory, (Solids, Liquids, Gases, Ethers, Atoms, Electrons, Protons, Neutrons, Plutons, all); by That it is.

illusion, Līlā, play, Krīdā, (creat-ion), sport, pastime, Svapna, dream, Nāshvara, perishing, Bhrama, 'circling' hallucination, Maru-marīchikā, desert-mirage, (U.); Lahwun wa la'ibun, idle sport and play,¹ Tasalluf, delusion, Fisāna, story, Sar-āb, mirage, Fitna, deception, Ja'l of the Jā'el (Māyā of the Māyī), magic-forgery, false snare of illusion, Khayāl or Khwāb-i-Khudā, the thought or the dream of God (S.); Hādīsūn, Hālikun, Bāṭila, fleeting, perishing, nullity. (Q.)

In this Infinite and Eternal Miracle of Imagination are to be found all possible experiences—of the 'sub'-conscious 'under-worlds', and the 'supra'-conscious 'upper-worlds'; of hells and heavens; of the most horrible nightmares and the most beautiful paradises; of the most simple and the most complex, the most childlike and artless and the most sagelike and profound, the most frivolous and frolicsome and the most serious, maintained for a while (for a Moment, eye-wink or millions and billions of human years); into It does it vanish—again and again, periodically, in minutest to vastest Cycles of alternate Waking and Sleeping, Restlessness and Rest, Outbreathing and Inbreathing, Cosmos and Chaos, Power and Peace.

¹Some say the name Al-Lah is connected with or derived from lahv, and means the Great Player, Playwright, corresponding with the Vedic Kavi, the Ancient Poet and Dramatist, Author of the World-Drama; others derive it from walhum, love; still others from the Hebrew El, (Arab. Al, That), God.

solemn, earnest, and grand, types and characters :
the most empty show and the Fullest Reality.

Haqāyaq-ul-ashiyā sābiṭun,

w-al ālamu hādīsun. (H.)

Kullu shayīn hālikun illā Wajh. (Q.)

Kullu shayīn mā-siwā-Allāhu bāṭila. (H.)

(The Essence bides ; the world's a passing dream.

The Cause, the Face of God, God's very Self,

Alone persists ; effects all pass and die.

All-Else-than-God is wholly null and void.)

Annāsu niyamin, fa ezā māṭu inṭabahu. (H.)

Innamul kaunu khayālun, wa huā

Haqqun fi-l haqīqatē. (H.)

(Men who are living here are in a dream,

And when they die then shall they be awake ;

For all this world is a mere thought—the thought

Of Him who is the True, whose thought is Truth.)

Some others of the many names of this Omnipotence of the Supreme Self, this Magic-Power of Desire, this all-compelling Force of
Will-and-Imagination, which is the motive-force behind all this Dreaming are Ṭrshuā, Vāsānā, Kāma-Saṅkalpa, Āvidyā, Hirs,
Tamannā, Havas, Arzū, Khayāl.

Jumla in dām aṣṭ o dān-ash ārzū,

Ḍar guréz az dām-hāyē āz zū. (S.) (āz, hirs ; zū, zūḍ)

(Know all this is the snare spread by Desire ;

Flce from those snares as soon as e'er thou canst.)

'After life's fitful fever sleep ye well' ; 'After tasting all things, hold fast by the Good ; which is God Alone'. After exhausting the world's experiences of joy and sorrow, good and evil, realise that they are all 'vanity of vanities', all dreams of your own mind's creating, that you your-Self are (is) the only True, Good, Beautiful, Free, Infinite, Eternal, Changeless Reality ; that God Al-one is ; 'I Al-one am' ; and all This Else-is-Naught, is Dream, is My Will-and-Imagination, and 'I' can create, maintain, destroy, anything, as 'I' please, by sufficiently intense and strong Will-and-Imagination.

Dhyānikam sarvam év-aṭṭaḍ-yaḍ-Ēṭṭaḍ-abhi-shabḍitam ;
Na hy-an-adhy-āṭma-viṭ kash-chiṭ
kriyā-phalam up-āshnuṭé. (M.)

(All this. the Object-world that we call 'This',
It is made up of Thought ; he who knows not
This truth, his actions bear not wholesome fruit.)

Mahramé īn hosh juz bé-hosh n-īṣṭ,
Mar zabān rā mushtārī juz gosh n-īṣṭ.
Har ke bédār aṣṭ ū ḍar khwāb-ṭar ;
Haṣṭ bédārī-sh az khwāb-ash baṭar,
Har ke ḍar khwāb-aṣṭ bédārī-sh beh ;
Haṣṭ ghaṭaṭ a'yn hushyārī-sh beh. (S.)

(None but th' Unconscious knows this consciousness ;
The tongue's speech but the speechless
ear can guess.

He who seems now awake is in deep dream ;
His wakefulness is false and worse than sleep.
And he who seems asleep doth truly wake ;
The true sleep's better than false wakefulness.)

Yā nishā sarva-bhuṭānām
ṭasyām jāgati samyamī,
Yasyām jagati bhuṭāni
sā nishā pashyaṭo munéh. (G.)

(That which is night for others, therein wake
The Careful ; while that which is day for all
Is night for him who sees the inner world.)
Na ṭaṭra chakshur gachchaṭi, na vāg gachchhaṭi, no manah... Vijñātāram aré kéna vijāniyāṭ. (U.)

(The eye can reach It not, nor speech, nor mind ;
By means of what can ye the Knower know ?
It-Self doth know It-Self and All-Else too.)
Aī bar-ṭar az khayāl o qayās o gumān o wahm
W-az har-che guṭṭa-ém o shanīd-ém wa
khwānda-ém ! (S.)

A'yān aisā ke har shai mén nihān hai,
Nihān aisā ke har shai mén a'yān hai. (S.)

(O Thou ! that dost transcend our highest thought,
Imagination, guess, conjecture—all,
And all that has been spoken, heard, or read !
Thou that art hidden so in everything
As to be plainly visible everywhere,
And manifest in all things in such wise
As to be hid in utmost mystery !)
Maghrībī ! ān-che ṭu ash mī ṭalabī ḍar khalwat,
Man a'yān bar sar-i-har kūcha wa kū mī bīnam.
(Man of the West !, what thou wouldst fain
Seek in far space's dark retreat,
That I behold spread out full plain
Here, now, in every lane and street.) (S.)

Yasya sarvāṇi bhūtāni

Ātma-iv-ābhūd-vijānaṭah

Ṭaṭra ko mohah kah shokah

Ēka-ṭwam anu-pashyaṭah. (U.)

Idānīm asmākam patu-ṭara-vivék-añjana-jushām
Samī-bhūṭā ḍrshtis-ṭribhuvanam api Brahma
manuṭé. (BHARṬṚ-HARI.)

(For whom all things have now become him-Self,

Who knows that I al-One exist in all,
 For him there is no more sadness or hate.
 With new eye-lotion dropped into our eyes,
 Of the same-sighted knowledge, all the worlds
 And their contents are seen by us as Brahm'.)

Questioning arises, again and again, in the sensitive heart of the earnest seeker, (whatever the formal religion he professes). It arises even after he has arrived at the stage of thought and feeling which has been described before as A d v a i t a - v ā ḍ a or A ḍ h y ā s a - v ā ḍ a, or the Wujūdīyah view, or the 'meta-physical or illusionary or will-and-imagination theory of causation'. The questioning can be finally set at rest only by long-continued meditation on that view. In the meanwhile, some more citations may be made, of the 'poetical' answer, of the mystic-gnostics of all religions, to that questioning. These are helpful in preparing for and then clarifying and strengthening the 'metaphysical' answer and Vision.

Jo mazā intizār men dēkhā

Wo nahīn wasl-e-Yār men dēkhā. (S.)

(The ache of yearning for the Belovéd

Is sweeter far than joy of clasping Him.)

The English poet Tennyson wrote:

'Tis better to have loved and lost

Than never to have loved at all.

It would give a deeper, more consoling and comprehensive, if less emotionally poignant, meaning, if we say:

'Tis better to have lost and found

Than never to have lost at all.

Dard-e-dil ké wāsté insān ko paidā kiyā,
Warna ṭā'aṭ ké liyé kāfī na ṭhīn karrobiyān ? (S.)

Kufr kāfir rā, wa dīn dīn-dār rā,
Qatra-é dard-é-dilé Aṭṭar rā ! (S.)

(To know the joys of Heartache, God made man ;
For service He had made angels enough !
Doubters, let doubt ; believers, let believe ;
Drop of Divine Heartache, let me receive !)
If I held Truth in my hand, I should let it go, for the joy of pursuing it is greater than that of finding it.

(Sir W. Hamilton, Metaphysics, I. lec. 1.)

The love-chase is more exciting, more pleasurable, than the love-capture.

N-Āham ṭu, sakhyo !, bhajaṭo-pi janṭūn
Bhajāmy-amīshām anu-vṛṭṭi-vṛṭṭayé ;
Yath-ādhano, labdha-dhané vinashté,
Tach-chinṭay-ānyan nibhrṭo na véda. (Bh.)
(Friends ! if I seem to run away from you,
My lovers and My loved ones !, I do so
In order that ye may run after Me,
The more distraught, the more whole-heartedly !
As a man who has found a precious gem,
Then lost it, can now think of nothing else,
So, having glimpsed and lost Me, ye will search
With all your heart and mind until ye find.)

An old Chinese proverb says :

To journey hopefully is better than to arrive.

Illusion, Dream, Romance, Imagination, is more sweet than Dis-illusioning 'Reality'—unless the Reality is that of the Infinite Spirit which includes all unrealities, all the most glorious, and blissful, (as also inevitably the most horrid and agonious), Dreams.

Another western writer says :

It is the trying to find out that is the real prize ;
the race, not the winning ; the battle, not the victory.

The soul is always experiencing and enjoying the swing between losing and regaining.

[God gave all gifts to Man, but kept back Rest ;]

For "If I should," said He,

"Bestow this Jewel also on my Creature,

He would adore My gifts instead of Me,

And rest in Nature, not the God of Nature ;

So both should losers be.

Yet let him keep the rest,

But keep them with repining Restlessness ;

Let him be rich and weary, that, at least,

If Goodness lead him not, then Weariness

May toss him to My Breast" !

(GEORGE HERBERT.)

God forgets Himself in order, first, to feel the Divine Heartache of longing for Him-Self ;
and then to feel the Divine Bliss of re-collecting,
re-memembering, re-cognising, re-covering Him-Self.
This is one way of putting the Truth. But the full way of putting it is,

Purnam Aḍah, purnam Iḍam,

Purnāt purnam uḍachyaṭé,

Purnasya purnam āḍāya

Purnam évā-va-shishyaṭé. (U.)

(This endless universe is all derived
From Spirit Infinite ; yet, taking out
The Endless Whole from the Whole Infinite,
The fullness of the pseudo-infinite,
Th' illusion of this ever-fleeting dream,

From the True Infinite, the One who Dreams
Yet changes never—E'er the Full remains.)¹

Gar khurī juzā-e ze sāghar gham,
Jām-e-Jamshéd rā zanī bar-ham !
Mulk-e-shādī hamīn dīhand ba bād
Mālikān-é balā wa gham dar dam.
Dard-mandān-e zaḵm-e-tégh-e-furāq
Mī na khwāhand az kasé marham.
Ba jahān dar hamésh paidā-ī,
Lék dar chashm-i-man na mī āyī !
Aī ke dar héch jā na dārī jā,
Bul-a'jab māndah am ke har jā-ī !
Andarūn o burūn, wa az pas o pesh,
Dar chap o rast, wa zér o bālā-ī !
Dai libās-é dūī na mī gunjī
Z-ān-ke mashhūr-tar ba yak-tā-ī !
Dosh goyīnda-é aḍā mī kard,
Az dīl-é-zār saut-e-shaīdāī,
Aī ba-chashmān-i-dīl ma bīn juz Dost !
Har che bīnī bī-dān ke mazhar-i-Ūst !

(SĀ'DI, Mā Muqīmān.)

(If thy lips taste one sip of that Heartache, Thou wouldst dash down Jamshéd's Bowl of Delights !

They who have been sore wounded by the Sword
Of Separation from the Belovéd,
Seek from None-Else for any salve or balm !
The wealth of worldly pleasures, to the winds,
Instant, they cast, who own the wealth Divine
Of yearning for the Vision of His Face,
And ever breathe the sad sweet sighs of Love !

¹For reconciliation of Changeless and Changeful, see The Science of Peace, and The Science of the Self, by the present writer.

O my Beloved !, how wonderful art Thou,
 That, being everywhere, nowhere art Thou !
 That wearest all the forms that there can be,
 Yet canst not be encompassed by mine eyes !
 To left, to right, above, and down below,
 Within, without, before, also behind,
 There is no time, no place, where Thou art Not !
 So famously Uni-que, Al-One, art Thou,
 Garb of An-Other never can fit Thee !
 Last night a devotee in ecstasy Whispered ' Whate'er thou seest, it is He" !)

God, tired of sole-ness, Kaivalya, Wah-dat, Al(l)-oneness, L-one-liness, Soli-tude, went 'forth', went 'out' of Him-Self, and 'multiplied', burst forth into an infinity of forms, and held high revel of emotions, most solemn and most cheerful, most heavy-laden and most light-hearted, most terrible tragedy and most frivolous comedy. Tiring of that mad Riot of Shiva-Rudra, Rahmān-Qahhār, Double-Faced Janus of Peace and War, Gaurī-Kālī, Ghaffār-Ghazzāb, He decides that it is all Vanity of Vanities, Māyā, Fisāna, Dream and Imagination, Khwāb and Khayāl, and withdraws into Him-Self and goes into the Deep Sleep of Chaos; till Desire to Wake and Play surges again within Him.

*Ze dariyā mauj-e-gūnā-gūn dar-āmaḍ,
 Ze Bérangī ba rangé chūn bar-āmaḍ. (S.)*

Apārē Brahmanī Brahṁā

Sva-bhāva-vashaṭah Svayam,

Jāṭah Spandā-mayō nityam

Ūrmir-ambu-nidhāv-iva. (Yoga Vāsishṭha.)

(The peaceful Ocean heaves with mighty waves,
And, from the Formless, countless forms break forth ;

The Colourless sparkles and coruscates
With countless colours, 'this', 'this', 'thus' and
'thus'.)

(In the Vast Ocean boundless, fathomless,
A giant billow surges ; in th' Immense
Sleep of the Infinite Eternal Space
There is a Stirring, and a Central Point
Of Whirling Vibrant Restlessness doth rise ;
From Restful Brahm', restless Brahmā is born.)

¹ Brahma is the Universal Impersonal Self, Param-Ātmā, Allāh, Ahad ; Brahmā is a personal creator, ruler, preserver, destroyer, of a particular world-system, ilāh, el. One final question, one last doubt, remains. Why should God feel the need to play and sleep ? Pa ri-p ū r ṇ a s y a k ā s p r h ā ; a l ā n a k a m ā k ā n a. The Ever-full should not suffer such 'lack', such 'want', such 'need' ? Deep meditation on the logia, 'One-without-a-Second', 'lā mā-siwā-Allah', 'lā-maujūdah illā Hū', 'Aham éva Na maṭṭo Anyaṭ', 'I-Not-Another'—will loosen this last knot. The present writer's The Science of Peace and The Science of the Sacred Word, and the more recent work, The Science of the Self, (in English), also the last chapter of Samanvaya (in Hindī), may perhaps help the enquirer in this work of reconciling 'Change' with 'Changelessness,' if he happens to be interested in the great problem, and cares to pursue it.

Briefly : God having forgotten Him-Self into an Outer World, recognises the No-thing-ness of any such outer, any such other ; withdraws it all into, and remembers, Him-Self ; and also beholds that the Ékākī na ramatē...Ékākī kāmayaṭē, jāyā Mé syāt...

 Patish-cha paṭnī ch-ābhavaṭ ..So-kāmayaṭa bahu syām pra-jāyēya...ḍviṭīyo Ma ātmā jāyēta. Āpayato vai ṭāvany-onyasya kāmān sarvān...Ḍviṭīyād vai bhayaṁ bhavaṭi...Ḍviṭīyo vai sa-paṭnah. (U)

Manv-anṭarāṇy-asankhyāni

Sargah samhāra éva cha,

Kṛīdan-niv-aṭaṭ kuruṭē

Paramēshthī punah punah. (M.)

(The Solitary feels un-satisfied ;

A nameless restlessness surges within ;

He wishes: May I have a Mate who may

Play with Me. He becomes Nature and God,

Husband and Wife. And then He wished again .

May I be Many and have second 'selves' ;

And there were Many Progeny to Both.

Countless desires arise between the Two

Of every sort, of most opposéd sorts ;

And find expression, first ; and then surcease ;

For, with a Second, is born rivalry,

Fear of An-Other, souring of the sweet ;

And then the One goes back to Soli-tude.

Thus, ceaselessly, the Overlord of All,

Transcending every limit, 'sits on high',

And makes, unmakes, remakes worlds, o'er and o'er

In cycles, smallest, largest, as in Play.)

Allāhu jamīlun wa yohibb-uj-jamāl. (H.)

Kunṭu kanzam makḥfiyun fa aḥbabṭu

An ā'rifa fa khalāq al khalqa li ā'rifa. (H.)

Affirmation and the Negation of the 'Other', the 'This', the 'outer World', are simultaneous, not successive ;
 hence there has been, there is, there will be, No Change, and He is and will be ever as He was, 'I am that I am',
 'Full, Free from all Limitation'.

(I was a hidden treasure ; I desired
 To see My-Self ; I therefore did create
 This World of forms and lives beyond all count,
 That I may realise My-Self therein.
 Beauty must ever love to be admired
 And to be loved, eagerly, passionately ;
 God is most Beautiful ; shall He not love
 That Many may behold that Loveliness
 In Him, and that He may Him-Self also Behold His own Self's Beauty in them all ?)
 Yā ayyohal nafs-ul-muṭmainna,
 Arjé'al elā Rabbeka rāziyaṭun marziya,
 Fa ḍukhūlī fi u'bbādī wa ḍukhūlī jannaṭi. (H.)

Al-arwāhun junūḍun mujannīḍa, fa mā tā'rafu minha iltāfa,
 wa mā ṭankara minha akhtaḷifu. (H.)

(O Soul ! that hath found rest in God ! Turn back Unto thy Lord ; for He takes joy in Thee,
 And thou too dost rejoice in Him. Mix then
 With these My servants. Enter Paradise !
 The souls that do not recognise the One
 Ensouling all—they differ 'mongst themselves ;
 The souls that, in each other, Me behold,
 They bathe in Love, and Love is Paradise !

All the great religions describe this Ultimate Principle, either as Tri-Une, Trinity-in-Unity, Unity-in-Trinity, or as possessing three principal Attributes, g u ṇ a-s, sifāt. They are the Principles of (1) Be-ing, Ex-ist-ence, 'outer' manifestation, which is possible only by Action, movement, Motion, (2) Joy, Bliss, which is possible only by fulfilment of Desire, and (3) Awareness, Knowledge, Wisdom, through Cognition. These are named in Vedānta as Sat, Ānanda, Chit, summed up in Chaitanyaṃ, Infinite Principle of Life and Consciousness; in Christianity as the Way, the Life, the Truth; or, as Omni-presence, Omni-potence, Omni-science; in Ṭasawwuf they are called Wujūd, Shuhūd, Ilm, summed up in Nūr, the supernal Light of Consciousness, Nūr-i-Qāhir, primal over-powering Light; Param Jyotiḥ, the final Light, the (Jewish) Or En-sof, the Infinite Light, by which and in which Light all the Universe is illumined. In Chinese Taoism or Laotsism, they are called Hsing, Chih, and Ch'i (Form, Substance, Pneuma), the three potentialities of Hun Tun (Primal Chaos).¹ Personifications of, or broadly corresponding to, the three Principles are, Brahmā—Shiva—Vishnu; Lakshmī—Gaurī—Saraswatī; Son—Holy-Ghost—Father; Al-Mālik—Ar-Razzāq—Al-A'lim. In the Jewish religion, Kabalistic Judaism or Hebraism, the Three are Chochmah—Kether—Binah, or Hakama—Jāh—Binah, or Hakam—Hasad—Jasad, or Sephira—Kether—Adam—Kadmon, as the primary emanations of the Unknowable En-Sof. The scientific triad may be said to be Matter—Force—Mind. In a Craft Lodge of Masonry, they are indicated by the Pillars of Strength—Beauty—Wisdom.

Manju-shrī—Amit-ābha—Avalokit-éshvara, the three aspects of the Incorporeal Buddha, in Buddhism; Ahura-Mazda—Spento-mainyush—¹Suzuki, History of Chinese Philosophy, p. 30.

Armaiti, (or Ahura-Mazdā—Vohu-mano—Ashā; or Ahura the Self-existent, Maza the Great, and Dā the Knower), the three aspects of Zerouane Akerané, the Unmanifest, in Zoroastrianism; indicate the same Tri-Unity. Ahura Mazda says: "I am Protector, Life-giver and Nourisher, Knower, and the most spiritual Evolver....I am of the name Ahura, Bestower of Life, and the name Maza-da, Greatest and most Wise"; (Z., Yasht, i. 12). In Plato's mysticism, they are the principles of Goodness (the Object of Action, realised by Power of Action for all as for Self, the Way of realising the Common Self of all in and by Action); of Beauty (the Object of all Desire, the One Self being the Supremely Beautiful Object of such Heart's Desire of all, being the Joy, the Life, of the Heart); and of Truth, (or Reality, the Object of Cognition, the Self being the One and Only Ever-True, Ever-Real).

Vaidika theology has many hymns, each singing a 'thousand names' of the Supreme as Vishṇu, or as Shiva, or as Shakti-Dēvi. Islām has a 'hundred holy names' of Allah. The Hebrew religion has Sefiroth, Eloh-im, like Gabri-el, of Might, Rafi-el, of Healing, Mikai-el of Strength, Seraphi-el of Harmony, and so on. In Islam, Jibrā-īl¹ is the angel of Earth, Knowledge, and Revelation, Mikā-īl of Water, Existence, and Protection, Azrā-īl of ¹Khājā Khān, Phil. of Islām, p. +5, says these correspond to Védic "Kshiti, Varuṇa, Agni, Indra." See p. 200, supra.

Fire, Power, Death and Destruction, Isrāf-il of Air, Intention, and Resurrection, etc. All these are the vyākṭis, kāyanāt, manifestations, of the śhaktis, śhuyūnāt, powers, potentialities, of the Self; they are the personifications of the Mādhurya and Aishvarya vibhūṭis, the Jamālī and Jalālī sifāt, the sweetly beautiful and the blazingly compelling and awful powers and glories, of the Supreme—which all living things manifest, each in infinitesimal degree, and which shine forth strongly in the higher spirits, cherub-im, seraph-im, angels, dévas, farishtas, as in suns, moons, cataclysms; in flowers, butterflies, babies; as in cyclones, simooms, blizzards, avalanches, volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, continent-sinking-and-upheaving cataclysms.

Infinite, like Him-Self, must be, are, the masques, which the Eternal Masquerader is ever, everywhere, everyway, putting on and off, fatiguelessly! Why? Because it is pleasant 'pass-time' to be 'all-ways' forgetting One-Self in order to remember One-Self 'all-ways'; to be 'all-ways' losing, seeking, finding, re-losing, pursuing, re-finding One-Self. Time, it has been remarked by a humorist, is the greatest enemy of man; he is always trying to kill it, and never succeeding. The jest is true in the profoundest sense; and it is true not only of Time, but of Space, and of Motion, too, all three; and all three are indestructible, un-kill-able, because the would-be Destroyer Him-Self deliberately gives to them

His own Ever-lasting-ness, by bearing them in His Universal Mind, His Eternal and Infinite Will-and-Imagination.

The soul which has merged itself into God, consciously endeavours to realize the 'sweeter' attributes, and show them forth by a life of serenely wise, devotedly philanthropic, and actively beneficent service of fellow-beings. Very highly advanced souls may sometimes have to manifest consciously the 'compelling' attributes also, like the avatāras, messiahs, prophets.

Bhāḍa-buddhi-vi-nir-mukṭah

saiva-bhūta-hitē rāṭah. (U.)

(Freed from the sense of separateness, the soul Engageth in the service of the Whole.)

Kasē mardē-ṭamām aṣṭ, az ṭamāmī

Kunaḍ bā khwājagī kār-ē-ghulāmī. (S.)

(Being perfected, freed, the Master braves
The noble task of slaving for the slaves.)

As Kṛṣṇa says :

Dāsyam aishvarya-vāḍēna

jñāṭinām ṭu karomy-Aham. (Mbh.)

Pari-ṭrāṇāya sādḥunām,

vi-nāshāya cha ḍush-kṛṭām,

Ḍharma-sam-sṭhāpan-ārṭhāya

sam-bhavāmī yugé yugé. (G.)

(Under the designation of the Lord
I do the work of slave for all the world.
To save the virtuous, destroy the vicious,
And to establish Law Divine anew,
I manifest My-Self age after age.)

Ēvam pra-varṭiṭam chakram

n-ānu-varṭayaṭ-ihā yah,

Agh-āyur-indriy-ārāmo

mogham, Pārṭha !, sa jīvaṭi. (G.)

(He who thus helpeth not to keep the Wheel
Of Life and Love and Law revolving aye,
His life is selfish, sinful, lived in vain.)

Saiyaḍ-ul-qaum khāḍima-hum. (H.)

(The leader is chief servant of the tribe.)

Ān ke khīḍmaṭ kard, ū makhḍūm shuḍ ;

Ān ke khūḍ rā dīḍ, ū mahrūm shuḍ. (S.)

(He who served others was by others served,
Who looked but to himself was thrust aside.)

He that is greatest among you shall be your servant. (B.)

He who has seen, known, realised most fully the Truth of the identity of all selves in the One Self, he is the greatest and most free and willing servant.

Ye shall know the Truth, and the Truth shall make you free. (B., John.)

Rṭe jñānān na Mukṭih. (U.)

Jñānān Mokshah. (U.)

(Freedom there's none unless ye know the Self.

But if ye know the Truth, then are ye free.)

Ke bé-ilm na ṭawān Kḥuḍā rā shīnākḥṭ. (S.)

(Ye cannot realise God till ye know.)

Mā'rifaṭ, irfān, p r a - j ñ ā n a , the higher subtler jñānā , the 'spiritual knowledge', is essential one-third part of the triple, tri-part-ite, threefold, means to najāt, Deliverance from all ills.

Such then is the final purpose of life in all religions—to find God, i. e., know and realise the Self as God ; after having fulfilled its preli- minary purpose, of tasting the things of the world, in accordance with Law and Religion and Science, i. e. Religio-Scientific Law¹; and, by toiling consciously on the side of the forces of Good, to help others to do the same. This is what the Way of Knowledge leads unto.

¹On this point, something more will be said later, in the chapters on 'The Way of Devotion' and 'The Way of Works'.

CHAPTER III

The Way of Devotion, or The Emotional Constituent of Religion

THE WAY OF DEVOTION.

The Way of Devotion is not a separate path at all ; but is so-called only for certain special purposes. In the life of the human being, cognition, desire, and action are inseparable. The Way of Devotion is only one of the three inseparable departments. It is the department of Right Desire, Good Feelings, Deep and High Emotions, Noble Ethics.

If Right Knowledge is the head, Right Love is the heart, and Right Action is the limbs, of organic, psycho-physical, bodily-mental Life. Love, Devotion, even genuine love human, infinitely more Love Divine, is the Joy of Life. Ishq-i-majāzī, Vishay-ānanda, Mānavaprēma, is but the reflection, in the limited, of Ishq-i-Haqīqī, Brahm-ānanda, limitless Bhagavad-bhakti. Without rich emotion, encyclopedic science is as a desert without a stream, as bare bald mountains without vegetation, as the most beautiful human body without a living soul in it, is as a corpse. Knowledge is ful-filled, completed from half into whole, when love is married to it, and the children of noble acts are born to the two. Science plus Philanthropy, Bene-volence, is Bene-science, is Wisdom ; Wisdom plus Helpful Activity, Bene-ficence, is Righteousness. Let us achieve Righteousness and all things else shall be added unto us.

Dharmād-arṭhash-ch kāmash-cha,
Sa kim-arṭham na sévyatē ? (Mbh.)
(Pleasure and Wealth both flow from Righteousness,

Why not pursue it, then, whole-heartedly ?)

The commandments of all the great religions, on the subject of Ethics, are identical, for all practical purposes.

1. THE FIVE PRINCIPAL VIRTUES, DISCIPLINES.

Sāmāsika Dharma, 'The duty of Man in brief,' enjoined by Manu, who is regarded by the followers of Vaidika Dharma (Hinduism) as the Primal Law-giver, is the same as the five Yamas of Yoga and the Panchashila of Buddha. It is also five of the ten Commandments of Moses, which are re-uttered and confirmed by Christ too. They are to be found in the Qurān also, though not all in one place. Thus Manu says :

Ahimsā, Satyam, Astēyam,
Shaucham, Indriya-nigrahaḥ,
Ētam Sāmāsikam Dharmam
Chātur-varṇyē-bravīn Manuh. (M.)

(Harmlessness, Truth, Honesty, Cleanliness, Restraint of senses from all erring ways,
—This is the 'Whole Duty of Man in Brief,'
For every one in every walk of life—
Thus Manu, Father of the Race, declares.)

Buddha's "Five Virtues" are :

Pāṇ-ātipātā-véramāṇī, musā-vādā-véramāṇī, aḍinn-āḍānā-véramāṇī, surā-méraya-majja-pamāda-tthānā-véramāṇī, kāmesu-michchhā-chārā-véramāṇī.

Sir Edwin Arnold's sweet version of these must be borrowed from his wonderful and immortal poem, a veritable scripture of Buddhism, The Light of Asia, and be given a place here reverently.

Kill not—for Pity's sake—and lest ye stay
The meanest thing upon its upward way.
Bear not false witness, slander not, nor lie ;
Truth is the speech of inward purity.
Give freely and receive, but take from none
By greed or force or fraud, what is his own.
Shun drugs and drinks which work the wit abuse ;
Clear minds, clean bodies, need no soma juice.
Touch not thy neighbour's wife, neither commit
Sins of the flesh unlawful and unfit.

The Jaina religion says the same :

(Sthūla-) prāṇ-āṭi-pāṭa-viramaṇa-vrāṭa ; (sthūla-) mṛshā-vāḍa-viramaṇa-vrāṭa ; (sthūla-) a-ḍaṭṭ-āḍāna-viramaṇa-vrāṭa ; (sthūla-) maithuna-viramaṇa-vrāṭa ; (sthūla-) parigraha-parimāṇa-viramaṇa-vrāṭa. (Jaina Scriptures).

(The five Resolves are, broadly : to refrain
From taking life ; from speaking untrue word ;
From taking what is not willingly given ;
From all unlawful love ; from ownership
Of goods beyond the limits of strict needs.)

Maḍya-māmsa-maḍhu-tyāgaiḥ sah-āṇu-vrāṭa-panchakam, Ashtau mūla-guṇān-āhurgrhiṇām Shramaṇ-ottamāḥ.

(J., SAMANṬA-BHADRA.)

Maḍya-māmsa-maḍhu-tyāgaḥ
 sah-oḍumbara-panchakam, Ashtā-véṭé grha-sṭhānām
 ukṭā mūla-guṇāḥ shrutaḥ.

(J., SOMA-DEVĀ.)

Himsā-asatya-sṭéyāḍ
 a-brahma-parigrahāch-cha vāḍara-bhéḍaḥ, Ghrṭān-māmsān-maḍyāḍvirāṭir-grhiṇo-shta-mūla-guṇāḥ.

(J., Mahā-purāṇa.)

(Besides the five, three others : to refrain
 From flesh-foods, butter, and from 'maddening' drinks—

Eight are root-virtues for the family-man.)

Himsāyām, anṛté, sṭéyá, maṭhuné cha, parigrahé,
 Virāṭir-vrāṭam—ity-ukṭam
 sarva-saṭṭv-ānu-kampakaḥ.

(J., SHUBHA CHANDRA, Jñān-ārṇava.)

(Slaying, false speaking, theft, lust, greed to hold
 Aught as one's own exclusive property—
 To give up these, and wish well unto all,
 This is the essence of all virtuous vow.)

Moses' Commandments are :

'Thou shalt not kill,...not bear false witness,...not steal,...not commit adultery,...not covet anything that is thy neighbour's. (B.)

Fear God and keep his commandments—this is the whole duty of man. (B., Ecclesiastes.)

Christ repeats these commandments of Moses and adds others.

Specific condemnation of intoxicating liquor, supplementing the commandments of Moses and

Jesus, may be found elsewhere in the Bible ;
thus :

Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink ; that continue until night, till wine inflame them. (B., Isaiah.)

Muhammad commands :

Wa lā yaqṭulūn-an-nafs-allāṭi harrām Allāho illā
bil haqqī.

Wajṭanebū qaul-az-zūrē.

W-as-sareqo w-as-sareqaṭo faqta'u aḍeyahoma.

Al khamro amalish-Shaṭṭānī.

W-allazīna-hum le furūjehim hāfizūn. (Q.)

(Slay none ; God has forbidden it, except Justice require it...And avoid false words...

Woman and man who steal shall lose their hands...

Intoxicants are Satan's own device...

They who avoid unlawfulness in sex,
And watchfully and resolutely control

Their senses, they alone achieve success.)

ADDITIONAL AND FARTHER-REACHING VIRTUES.

These five duties or virtues, prescribed by Manu, Buddha, and the other great Teachers, are for the laity, the householders. For him who has renounced the worldly life, the sannyāsī, bhikṣhu, faqīr, hermit, the yogī or sālik : who, not that he may enjoy superhuman status, but that he may serve his fellow-creatures better, aspires after spiritual and psychical mysteries and powers and the Great Peace ;—for him stricter yamas and ni-yamas, zohd and ṭaqashshuf, ibāḍat and riyāzat, abstinences and performances, devotions and disciplines, are ordained. These take the five duties to their extreme culmination.

The Buddhist bhikṣu or śramaṇa has to cultivate five more śīlas or virtues, viz., avoidance of (1) eating except at the fixed time, (2) of seeing and hearing dance, song, instrumental music, theatrical shows, (3) of flower-garlands, perfumes, unguents, and all self-decoration, (4) of high seats, luxurious couches, (5) of gold and silver. These make the ten qualifications, daśa-śīla. At yet higher stages these have to reach a climax in the ten pāramitās, 'extreme perfections':

Dāna, Sīla, Nekkhamma, Paññā, Vīriya, Satya, Kṣhānti, Ahittāna, Mettā, Upēkkhā. (Bu.)

(Such Charity as gives away e'en life
To whosoe'er may ask for it ; adherence
To rule of Noble Conduct in despite
Of even torture ; Absence of Desire
For things of sense of e'en the mildest sort ;
The Luminous Intelligence that sees
The heart of everything ; Tireless Endeavour
For good of all ; Patient Forgivingness
Of the worst torments even ; Truthfulness
In face of death itself ; and Fortitude
Of Will-to-right, dauntless 'fore obstacles ;
Immense Compassion for all living things,
Blind souls, that wander helpless in the dark ;
The seeing of the Process of the World
With Perfect Equanimity of Soul.)

The purpose of these negative and positive disciplines, forbearances and observances, is to turn inwards, the currents of vitality and consciousness, which flow outwards, into the physical organs, in the normal man. By such ascetic inward direction of them, gradually the subtler superphysical organs are re-awakened; and the journey made easier, on the Upward Path of Renunciation of the things of this world and all selfishness; the Path of Re-ascent to the Spiritual state of Universality. The annals of every religion show us examples of highly advanced souls which have achieved various degrees of these 'extreme perfections.'

The yamas and ni-yamas, as given by Patañjali, are :

Ahimsā-saty-āstēya-brahma-charyā-pari-grahāḥ yamāḥ.

Shaucha-saṁtoṣa-tāpah-svādhyāy-Īśvara-praṇi-dhānāni niyamāḥ. (Yoga-Sūtra.)

(Avoidance of all slaying, nay, of hurt
To mind or body, of a living thing;
Of falsehood in all speech, and e'en in thought;
Of all unlawful gain or coveting;
Of sex-indulgence, or in body or mind;
Of all sense of possessive ownership;
Such are the yamas. Then, the niyama-s:
Observance of the utmost purity
That may be possible for body of flesh;
Contentment with whatever may befall;
Study of Sacred Science of the Self;
Restraint of body by determined will;
And, last, complete surrender of one's will
To God's, replacement of one's own small self
By the Great Self, by utmost trust in Him.)

When his questioner persistently asks, "What more good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life," Christ also adds the Yoga-injunction of renunciation of all property, in which the sense of mine-ness, egoistic separatism, is centred, "If thou wilt be perfect, give what thou hast to the poor and follow Me." (B.) He also adds, as do the other great Teachers, for the sake of such high aspirants, ready for Yoga, Sulūk, 'communion' with God and God's Nature, ready for ascetic disciplines and ever-greater abandonment of carnal pleasures—for such he adds a b h a y a d ā n a, complete non-resistance and radical abstinences from sin; not only by deed, but by speech and thought also, thereby 'not destroying but fulfilling the prophets'; completing, for the renunciant anchorite, what Moses prescribed for the ordinary householder. For such high aspirants, mere ordinary goodness and virtuousness are not enough; they must achieve greater and greater 'saintliness'.

For such more earnest whole-hearted seekers, Muhammad too enjoins fugr and sukn, complete renunciation of property and cultivation of uttermost contentment, a - p a r i - g r a h a and s a n t o s h a, etc., like the other teachers.

Al-fuqro fakhri. (H.)

(Pride do I take in utmost poverty.)

The Védic law commands that s a n n y ā s i - s, persons in the fourth stage of life, retired from the household life, anchorites, must not defile their hands by the contact of money. The apostles of Christ provided "neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in their purses," and "the Son of Man (Jesus) had not where to lay his head". Peter spurned an offer of money for imparting his spiritual powers, saying :

Thy money perish with thee, because thou hast thought that the gift of God may be purchased with money. (B.)

In the Jaina 'commandments', of the five virtues for the laity, the word s̥th ū la, 'broadly', 'generally', occurs as a qualifying adjective; for the 'ascetics', the limitation or modification is dropped.

It should be noted that any one of the five yamas or shīlas, carried to its logical extreme, involves the annihilation of the separating individualising physical and material sheath or body, the complete renunciation of individualised existence. It should also be carefully borne in mind that the duties of the household life are very different, in degree, from those of the life of renunciation and asceticism.

So single-mindedly should the ascetic, all-renouncing, sālik, yogī, 'mystic-gnostic', concentrate on the Supreme Self, contemplate his own identity with the All, that he must not allow himself to covet, or be tempted by offers of, even 'god'-like powers and enjoyments.

Ḍar ān manzil buwaḍ kashf o karāmāt ;

Walé bāyaḍ guzashṭan z-ān maqāmāt.

Agar ḍunyā wa uqbā pésh āyaḍ,

Nazar kardān dar ān hargiz na shāyaḍ.
 Agar gardī tu dar Ṭauhīd fānī,
 Ba Haq yābī baqāc zindagānī. (S.)
 (Unselfishness, all-lovingness—as these Grow in the aspirant for uni-on
 With God, with All, illuminations come,
 And extra-ordinary happenings too ;
 Let him not dwell on these things, but pass by
 All things of this world and the other worlds.
 Let him pursue with single mind the One,
 And merge himself in One-ness with the All ;
 Thus, losing his small life, he gains All-Life,
 Losing a 'time', he gains Eternity.)

Ṭc samāḍhā-vupa-sargāh, vyutṭhānē siddhayah...
 Sṭhāny-upa-nimanṭraṇē sanga-smay-ā-karaṇam,
 punar-an-iṣhta-prasangāt. (Yoga-Sūtra).
 Ih-āmuṭṭra-phala-bhoga-virāgah.
 (SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA, Shārīraka-Bhāshya.)

Na yoga-siddhīr-a-punar-bhavam vā
 May-yarpiṭ-ātm-échchaṭi Maḍ-vin-ānyaṭ.
 Mayi dhārayaṭash-chétah upa-ṭishṭhanti siddhayah..
 Antarāyān vaḍanty-étān yunjaṭo yogam-uṭṭamam...
 Nahī ṭaṭ kushal-āḍṛṭyam ṭaḍ-āyāso hy-ap-ārṭhakah.
 (Bh., xi, ch. 15.)

(These super-physical experiences
 And powers will, as bye-products, appear,
 Epī-phenomena, when mind is rapt
 In contemplation of the One-in-All ;
 They are distractions from the End and Aim ;
 The y o g ī should be-ware, and studiously
 Avoid all such temptations ; for they bind
 To things of subtle sense, new selfishness,
 And greater, more intense, more evil ; since

Far greater powers may now be misused.
Therefore, renunciation of all wish
For selfish pleasure, power, privilege,
Must be the one sole beacon-light for Him
Who seeks the Deathless Life of All for all.)

Let no one deceive himself by thinking and hoping, and subtly wishing: 'I will desire nothing for myself; then all powers will and should come to me'. This is a plain self-contradiction. Of course, persons without any spirit of renunciation also snatch powers from Nature by strength of will and intellect, developed in the course of evolution; as western scientists have done, before our eyes. But we all see also that they have not won thereby any peace of mind, any real happiness, any sense and certainty of Immortal Life, for any one; instead, the very opposite. Of course, that opposite too has its own acute 'pleasure' of intensely active, restless, rushing, 'fast life' of intoxicated excitement and frantic passions and emotions; palaces of luxury beyond dreams, on the one side, asphyxiating gases and millions writhing in death-agony, on battle-fields and in war-trenches, on the other. To the souls that are at that stage of cyclic life and evolution, at which such fever and frenzy of excitement and rush-lust is preferred to the happiness of repose of soul and peace of body—for such, 'religious platitudes and sermons' have no use. They must go their own way, till their hour strikes, and the call comes from within themselves, after experience of terrible consequences, to turn from the Arc of Descent, A v-ā-ro h-a-p-aṭṭha, A ḍ h o-m ā r g a, Qausi-nazūl, to the Arc of Re-Ascent, Ā-ro h-a-p-aṭṭha, Ū ṛ ḍ h v a-m ā r g a, in the Cycle of Life. On the path of Ascent, stage by stage, subtle superphysical experiences and powers unfold and enfold of themselves, in accord with laws embodied in that cyclic life; as physical experiences and powers, teething, crawling, standing, toddling, running, learning, adolescence, puberty, progenition, decay, appear and disappear, of themselves. But on this upward path towards Union with the All, and the ever-growing abandonment of separate individuality, the soul holds all such superphysical powers, with anxious care, with reluctance, as heavy burden of sacred trust for the use of others, in constant fear and trembling lest it be tempted to misappropriate them for its own personal uses.¹

CONTROL OF TONGUE, THE SECRET OF ALL CONTROL. Among the sense-organs again, the tongue is the most radical, most dangerous, most necessary yet most difficult to control, in respect both of what goes in by it, and of what goes out from it.

Christ says :

Not that which goeth in at the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth him...Those things which proceed out of ¹See Light on the Path, (T. P. H., Adyar, Madras).

the mouth come from the heart; and they defile the man. For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, blasphemies. These are the things which defile a man. (B.)

Elsewhere the Bible says :

If thou sit at a bountiful table, be not greedy upon it...Eat, as it becometh a man...and devour not, lest thou be hated...Be not insatiable, lest thou offend... A very little is sufficient for a man well nurtured... Sound sleep cometh of moderate eating; he riseth early and his wits are with him...Show not thy valiantness in wine, for wine hath destroyed many...Many have fallen by the edge of the sword; yet not so many as they that have fallen because of the tongue. (B., Apocrypha, Ecclesiasticus.) Every kind of beasts, birds, serpents, things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed, of mankind; but the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison. (B., St. James.)

Kṛṣṇa says :

Vishayā vi-ni-varṭanté
 nir-āhārasya dēhinah,
 Rasa-varjam ; raso-py-asya
 Param dṛshtvā ni-varṭatē. (G.)
 Indriyāṇi jayanty-āshu
 nir-āhārā manīṣiṇah,
 Varjayitvā tu rasanam ;
 tan-nir-annasya vardhatē.
 Tāvaj-jit-ēndriyo na syādvijit-āny-ēndriyah pumān,
 Na jayēd-rasanam yāvaj—
 jitam sarvam jite rasé. (Bh.)

(Lusts of the senses leave the man who fasts—
 For food supports and strengthens all desires—
 Excepting taste for food and feel of self.
 Indeed it waxes with the want of food ;
 But leaves him when the Supreme hath been seen.
 Over no organ is control secure
 Until the tongue has been placed under curb.
 When that is conquered, all else are subdued.)

Asked by a follower to mention the one all-pervading principle which runs through and upholds all virtues, Muhammad explained thus :

Fa akhaza be lesānīhī wa qāla kuffa a'laika hāza.....Wa halyakubb-unnāsa fin nārī alā wujūhehim illā hasāido al-sīnatehim. (H).

(The Prophet touched his tongue and said: Control
 The reign of this sense-organ o'er yourself...
 Men are hurled headlong into fires of hell
 By loads of evil that their tongues have reaped.)

Zoroaster says :

Gūstā yé mantā ashém ahūm-vish vīdvāo,
 Ahura !, érézukhdhāi vachanghām kshayamno
 hijvo-vaso Thvā āthra sukhrā, Mazadā !,
 vanghāu vīdātā rānnayāo. (Z, Gāthā, 31-19.)
 (Illumination and all that is Good,
 Lord Mazadā !, Thou givest unto him,
 The hero, valiant in righteous war,
 Who ever thinks, hears, speaks of Rectitude,
 Who knows the Self, is wise, controls his tongue,
 And tells the truth in soft convincing words.)
 Yoī dush-khrathvā aéshémém varédém rāmém chā, khāis hijubīs fakhuyas ū afasuyanto...
 toī daévém dān yā drégvato daénā. (Z., Gāthā, 49-4.)
 (They who, seeing yet blind, spread, all around,

Intolerance and insolence and hate,
 By th'evil words of their unbridled tongues,
 Know them to be the devils on this earth,
 Disseminators of the Creed of Hate.)

Manu says :

An-ārogyam, an-āyushyam,
 a-svargyam ch-āti-bhojanam,
 A-puṇyam, loka-vi-dvishṭam,
 tasmāt tat pari-varjayēt.
 Vāchy-arthā nihiṭāh sarvé vāṅg-mulā vāg-vi-nis-srṭāh ;
 Tasmād yah stēnayed vācham,
 sa sarva-stēya-krn-narah.
 Ahimsay-aiva bhūṭānām
 kāryam shréyo-nu-shāsanam,
 Vāk ch-aiva maḍhurā shlakshṇā pra-yojyā dharmam ichchhaṭā.
 Yasya vāṅg-manasī शुद्धhé,
 samyag-gupté cha sarvaḍā,
 Sa vai sarvam av-āpnoṭi
 Védānto-pa-gaṭam phalam.
 N-ārun-ṭudāh syād ārto-pi,
 na para-droha-karma-dhīh ;
 Yayā-sy-oḍ-vijatē vāchā
 n-ālokyām tām udīrayēt. (M.)

(Ill-health, ill-mind, thence many sins, short life,
 Loss of good name, and loss of paradise—
 All these follow excessive and ill meals ;
 Let the wise man avoid such carefully.
 And since all thoughts and feelings are enwrapt
 In words, and are conveyed by them to others,
 He who misuses words empoisons all ;
 Let the wise man then guard well all his speech.
 If ye have to instruct, direct, command,

Use speech that may be smooth and soft and sweet.

Whose mind and speech are pure and well-controlled,

Only he finds the fruit of Final Truth.

Touch not another to the quick, though you

Yourself are hurt ; let malice sway you not ;

And carefully eschew the speech of pride,

Unsocial, which perturbs all and repels)

Saṭyam brūyāt, priyam brūyāt,

na brūyāt saṭyam apriyam,

Priyam cha n-ānṛtam brūyāt,

Īsha dharmah sanā-ṭanah. (M.)

(Speak but the Truth, but speak it sweetly too ;

So it may gratefully pervade and soothe

And influence the mind of him who hears.

Tell it not harshly so as to annoy,

Repel, and be rejected wastefully.

Nor ever tell an untruth, sweet or harsh.

Such is the ancient way trod by the wise.

Luqmān-i-zamān tu khud hai, gar bhukh se yak

luqma kam khā. (Hindustānī Proverb).

(Luqmān, the wisest of the world, art thou

Thyself, if thou but eat one morsel less Than hungry tongue clamours to thee to eat.)

God is Ar-Razzāq, the giver of rizq, livelihood, the daily bread. Christ prayed : "Give us this day, O Lord ! our daily bread" ; Bread Spiritual as well as Bread Material. The Veda-Rshi prayed : Anna-pa-ṭé, annasya no dhéhi, an-amīvasya shushminah, "Lord of Food, give us the food that will bring health and strength, not disease" ; and proclaimed, Annam Brahma, "Food is Brahma, the Principle of Life, the Life-Supporter, Nourisher." The 'daily bread' is not to be treated with levity, much less to be despised, or abused and misused, by over-eating or wrong-eating. Eating, Mating, Speaking, the most elemental functions of life, are also the most sacred, to be performed most carefully. Never can too much care be taken over them. Ill-discharged, they lead to every misery. Well-performed, they lead to every happiness.

The successful issue of diplomatic negotiations, upon which depend the peace and welfare of vast nations, often hangs upon the finding of just the right formula, in words, which will smooth down the ruffled feathers and bristling hair, and draw back into their sheaths the outflung claws, talons, beaks, fangs, of all the 'human' eagles, bears, and lions concerned.

The metaphysic and psychology of the solemn religious injunctions are plain. It is matter of common knowledge that "Sex and Hunger rule the world". Abuse of these two appetites is the cause of 90 per cent of the physical and mental diseases, wars, and all other ills, of humanity. Lawful use of them is the source, directly or indirectly, of all its joys. But Hunger is clearly deeper and more elemental than Sex. It extends literally and manifestly from birth to death; Sex does not. It means self-preservation, continued existence, life itself; Sex means only self-multiplication; as Acquisitiveness, whence Property, means self-expansion, self-aggrandisement. And speech means self-existence either as friend or as enemy of all around. To indulge too much or wrongly in food, or speech, or sex, is to accentuate one's own egoism, to antagonise and provoke other's egoisms, and to make oneself and others physically and mentally sick.

All earthly joy and woe may well depend upon right-use and mis-use of Bread, ultimately; and not only mundane, but also supra-mundane. Out of such right-use and mis-use, respectively, arise, clear intellect and darkened mind, virtues and vices, merits and sins, wisdom and criminal error, and their corresponding supra-mundane consequences, in the future life, after death. Only when deprived of the daily bread, man realises the tremendous greatness, value, sacredness of it; for as vitality is almost greater than intelligence, even thus is Bread-power almost greater than even Mind-power, Science-power, and far greater than Arms-power, Military-power, steam-power, powder-and-gas-power, electricity-power, etc., which are its by-products, and than Labor-power which it makes possible.

Āhāra-shuddhau satṭva-shuddhiḥ,
Satṭva-shuddhau dhruvā smṛtiḥ,
Smṛti-lambhē sarva-graṇṭhīnām
vi-pra-mokṣah. (Chhāṇḍogya U.)

(When Food is pure, Mind too is pure and bright;
Thence Memory clear and sure, of cause-effect;
Thence Solving of all Knots and Complexes;
Thence Freedom from all Misery of Soul,
And crossing from the Dark to realms of Light.)

2. REVERENCE FOR PARENTS, TEACHERS, ELDERS.

Commandments to honour the teacher, the father, and the mother above all others, are also to be found in the forefront of the scriptures of all religions. Injunctions to love children are not needed ; the mere fact that the younger generation lives and grows, is ample proof that Nature herself inevitably and successfully compels the older generation to foster it.

Parental affection, like water, necessarily flows down the slopes of time, from older to younger generation. Of course, there are exceptions, in the shape of monsters who devour their own offspring. They only prove the rule. Even wolf and tiger and serpent mothers always foster their young, though the fathers sometimes kill and even eat them. Filial affection, on the other hand, being, by law of nature, unavoidably selfish in the beginning, requires some persuasion and labour to ascend upwards. Hence the injunctions, specially laid upon the younger, to honor the elder. Parental, particularly maternal, affection is naturally so strong that it does not need to be strengthened by the scriptures. Even so, Vaidika Dharma makes it a Duty to rear up progeny virtuously. How the parental feeling, which makes even animal mothers fight with sublimely reckless heroism in defence of their young, makes even the gentle Christ indignant, may be seen in this :

Whosoever shall offend one of these little ones that believe in Me, it is better for him that a mill-stone were hanged about his neck and he were cast into the sea. (B.)

Shankar-āchārya sings :

Ku-putro jayēta, kva-chiḍ-api ku-māṭā na bhavaṭi.

(Many the sons unfilial ; never was,
And never is, a mother that was not
And is not, tender mother to her sons.)

Yam māṭā-pīṭarau klēsham
sahēté sambhavé nr̥ṇām,

Na ṭasy-āpachīṭih shakyā karṭum varsha-shaṭair-api. (M.)

(The travail that the parents undergo,
To make life for their children possible—
Hundreds of years of service may not make Adequate recompense for it at all.)

Filial devotion and respect for elders are the very foundation of an unselfish life. (C., Analects.)

Moses and Christ say :

Honor thy father and thy mother. (B.)

Muhammad says :

Bil wālīḍaini ihsāna. (Q.)

Al jannāto ṭahāṭa qaḍamīl umm. (H.)

Ana ashkurūli w-al-wālīḍaik. (Q.)

(Serve and revere the parents. Heaven is spread
Beneath the feet of mothers everywhere.

God sayeth : Be ye grateful unto Me,

And to your parents e'en as unto Me.

Remember with what pain and fainting-fits

Your mother bore you nine months in her womb,

And then with dire travail did bring you forth,

And nourished you with her own milk for years.)

Very truly, very wisely, does the Prophet declare thus. The sweetest, most holy, most benignant names of Allah, God, are Ar-Rahmān, the Beneficent, Ar-Razzāq, the Nourisher, Al-Ḡaffār, the Forgiving. Who more rahmān, razzāq, ḡaffār to the child than the mother? Where the mother-heart is, there is Godhead; where Godhead is, there is heaven. Therefore :

(Where'er the mother's foot doth tread,
There surely heaven lies outspread.)

The Veda says :

Āchārya-ḍévo bhava, pīṭr-ḍévo bhava, māṭr-ḍévo
bhava. Prajā-ṭaṇṭum mā vy-ava-chchhētsīh. (U.)

(Let thy preceptor and thy father be,
And let thy mother be, above them all,
Thy gods and guardian angels in thine heart ;
So keep unbroken thou, from age to age,
The line of life in noble progeny.)

The image of the mother, enshrined in the heart of the son and the daughter, will effectively prevent that heart from erring into the ways of vice and sin, and will guard it from many dangers due to weaknesses and temptations. The generation that does not cherish, in its heart, honor and gratitude towards its older generation, is not likely to make itself worthy of being honored by its own younger generation ; and the whole nation will thus lose continuity between past and present and future, and degenerate and decay rapidly. Sa t - s a n g a, v r d d h a - s é v ā, keeping near to the virtuous, the experienced, the aged, and pondering carefully and reverently over their conversations and their ways, is more livingly educative and useful than the study of many books.

Jawān rā sohbaté pīrān hīsārē ā'fiyaṭ bāshaḍ. (S.)

(The company of wise, experienced,
Virtuous and loving elders is, indeed,
A rampart of protection for the young.)

Sohbaté sāleh ṭo-rā sāleh kunaḍ. (S.)

(Wise company will make thee also wise ;
From vicious friends thou canst but gather vice.)

Intelligent, reasonable, 'ancestor-worship and hero-worship' means the maintenance of high family-traditions. Therefore Manu and Vyāsa, translating the Veda, say :

Mātā-pitroh priyam kuryād, ācharyasya cha sarvadā ;

Tēsh-vēva ṛshu ṛshtēshu ṭapah sarvam samāpyatē.

Ta ēva hī ṭrayo lokās-ṭa ēva ṭraya āshramāh,

Ta ēva hī ṭrayo Veḍās-ṭa ēv-ōktās-ṭrayo-gnayah ;

Upādhyāyān ḍash-āchāryah,

shaṭ-āchāryāns-ṭaṭhā piṭā,

Sahasram ṭu piṭīn mātā gauraveṇ-āṭi-richyatē. (M.)

(Serve mother, father, teacher studiously ;

If ye succeed in winning the applause

Of these three, ye have done all there's to do,

And gained all that can be worthy to gain.

They the three worlds, the three life stages they,

They the three Vedas, the three Sacred Fires.

Than teacher, yea, the father hath more weight ;

Yet in the educator-quality

And right to reverence, the mother doth

Exceed the father by a thousand times.)

N-āṣṭi maṭṛ-samā chhāyā, n-āṣṭi māṭṛ-samā gaṭih,

N-āṣṭi māṭṛ-samam ṭrāṇam, n-āṣṭi maṭṛ-samā priyā.

Kukshau san-dhāraṇaḍ-ḍhātrī, jananāḍ jananī smṛtā,
 Angānām vardhanāḍ ambā, vīra-sū-ṭvēna vīra-sūh,

Shishoh shushrūshaṇaṭ shushrūh,

mātā dēham an-anṭaram. (Mbh.)

(No cooler and more grateful shade is there,
 From all the scorching heat and glare of life,
 No refuge, no protection, yea, no love,
 Greater than is found in that one word, 'Mother.'
 Because she 'bears' the child within her womb,
 She's named the ḍ h ā ṭ r ī ; j a n a n ī, because
 She 'giveth birth' to him ; and a m b ā too,
 Because she fondly 'fostereth his limbs'
 And makes them grow ; and v ī r a - s ū h also Because she trains him so that he may grow
 To be a 'hero' ; s h u s h r ū, too, her name,
 Because she ever sweetly 'cares' for him.

'Mother' and 'child'—two bodies, yet the same !)

The sweetest and most famili-ar names, in every religion, for God are, Father in Heaven, Sa vi ṭ ā, B ā ḍ ī, Kh ā li q, Abb ā ; for His Omnipotence, Mother-Nature, L o k a - m ā ṭ ā, Holy-Ghost, Imm ā (Hebrew). In the mythology of the dead Egyptian religion, the trinity was Kneph or Ammon, the Father, Neith or Muth, the Mother, and Phtah or Khons, the Son ; also Osiris, Isis, Horus. The Trinity-in-Unity of every religion is the Primal Family of Purusha-Prakṛti-Jīva, Brahma-Māyā-Manushya, or Ishvara-Jagat-Jīva, (V.) ; Vahme-Gayethā-Daeva, (Z.) ; Father-Mother-Son, (B.) ; God-Nature-Man (Science). The noblest sermon that the Buddha preached, the Mahā-Mangala-Sutta, 'The Song of the Greatest Blessing,' is a hymn to the happy family.

...A-sévanā cha bālānam,
 Panditānam cha sevanā,
 Pūjā cha pūjaneyyānam,
 Êtam Mangalam uṭṭamam...
 Mātā-piṭu-upatthānam,
 Puṭṭa-dārassa sangaho,
 Anavajjāni kammāni,
 Êtam Mangalam uṭṭamam...
 Tāpo cha, brahma-chariyam cha,
 Ariya-sachchāna ḍassanam,
 Nibbāna-sachchhi-kiriya cha,
 Êtam mangalam uṭṭamam.

(Bu., Mahā-Mangala-Sutta)

(To shun the erring vicious ; serve the wise ;
 Honor the worthy ; and do blameless deeds ;
 To wait on father-mother reverently ;
 And care all tenderly for wife and child ;
 Deny one-self ; observe due continence ;
 See clear the truth of the Four Noble Truths—
 Woe, Cause, Surcease, the Way to gain Surcease ;
 To govern daily life by all these truths,
 And realise Nirvāṇa at the end—
 Such is the Blessed Life, the Blessed Life.)

Piṭā-(A)ham asya jagato,
 Mātā, Dhātā, Piṭā-mahah,
 Gaṭir, Bhartā, Prabhuḥ, Śākshī,
 Ni-vāsah, Sharaṇam, Suhr̥ṭ,
 Pra-bhavah, Pra-layah, Sthānam,
 Ni-ḍhānam, Bījam, A-vyayam. (G.)

(I am the Father-Mother of this world,
 Spouse, Master, Ruler, Judge, Witness, Nurse, Friend,
 Lover, Beloved, Abode, the only Goal
 And Final Refuge, Place of Birth and Death,
 I am (is) the Deathless Seed of All the World.)

Yā fēdhrōi vidāt paithyayé, chā vāstraébyo, aṭ chā khaéṭaové, ashāūni ashavabyō. (Z., Gāthā, 53.4.)
 (He is the Father, Husband, Servant, Lord,
 He is the Comrade—He is all to me.)

Brahmaṇā pūrva-sṛshtam hi
 Sarvam Brāhmam idaṃ jagat. (Mbh.)
 (Since Brahmā did create all moving things,
 They are all Brāhma, Brahmā's progeny.)

Al-khalqo a'yāl-Allāhi, fa ahabbul-khalqi il-Allāhi man ihsāna ilā a'yālihi. (H.)
 (All creatures are the family of God ;
 And he the most beloved is of God
 Who does most good unto His family.)

The duty of loving fidelity between husband and wife, implicit in the relationship of Father-Mother ; and the avoidance of adultery and all unlawful sex-relations ; these are also expressly enjoined by all scriptures. The Bible says that husband and wife "are no more twain, but one flesh ; what therefore God hath joined together let no man put asunder."

Manu ordains that "they shall perform all the duties of life together, side by side, saha-dharma-chāra, and be faithful to each other unto death and beyond". The Quran commands that if a husband has more wives than one, he shall love all equally ; "if thou canst not deal equitably and justly with each and all, thou shouldst take only one". The Védānta and Sāṅkhya tell us that the Primal relationship is indeed the Conjugal Marital Relationship of God and His Nature, Purusha and Prakṛti, Brahma and Māyā, Zāṭ and Sifāṭ; (another aspect of which appears as Abā-i-ʿUlavī and Ummuhāt-i-Siflī, the Celestial Fathers and the Terrene Mothers); and that all other relationships, of paternity, maternity, filiiety, fraternity, etc., and all spiritual affections and unselfishness, are born from and subsequent to it.

Yādr̥g-guṇēna bhartrā strī
 sam-yujyēta yathā-vidhi,
 Tādr̥g-guṇā sā bhavati,
 samudrēṇ-ēva nimna-gā.
 Utkarsham yoshiṭah prāptāh
 svaih svair-bhartr̥-guṇaih shubhaih. (M.)
 Vyāla-grāhī yathā vyālam
 balād-udd-haraṭē bilād;
 Tathā paṭi-vratā nārī
 paṭim niraya-gāminam. (Smṛti.)
 Prajan-ārtham strīyah srshtāh, santān-ārtham cha mānavāh. (M.)

(As is the husband's quality of soul,
 As, too, the nature and the circumstance
 Of man's and woman's mating, such becomes
 The wife's soul-quality also. The rivers run
 Into the sea, and make their waters salt;
 Sea-waters rise and clasp the sunny air,
 And from their brackishness turn into sweet.
 As the strong serpent-charmer drags the snake,
 Resisting, all-unwilling, from its hole
 Into the light and air, so doth the wife,
 Loving, devoted, clinging to her spouse,
 Drag back the fallen man from hell itself.
 One righteous aim of marriage is, no doubt,
 To take joy in each other's beauteousness;

But greater, higher, nobler far is this—
 To know divine heartache and anxious joy
 Of fatherhood and of sweet motherhood.
 That they be fathers—were men fashioned men ;
 That they be mothers—women were made women.)

Mohsinin, ḡhaira musāfihīn, wa ṭā muṭṭakhizi akḥḍan. (H.)

(Marriage has been enjoined because it helps
 To save the pair from immoralities,
 To shun the waste of vital healthful power,
 And to save woman from degradedness.)
 (Where there is happy union between Husband and wife, there shall be harmony
 Between the parents and the children all ;
 And sweet and generous affection too
 Twixt brothers, sisters ; all the family
 Will be in happy state perpetually.
 Loving example of one family
 Will make the neighbourhood, nay, the whole state, Loving ; and courteous, from its courtesies.)

(O., THR., 263.)

The Chinese word for 'culture' or religion is chiao.
 It is derived from the word for 'filial piety', hsiao.
 Confucius says, in the Hsiao-king (Classic of Filial Piety):

"The gentle-man teaches filial piety in order that man may respect all those who are fathers in the world.
 He teaches brotherliness in the younger brother, in order that man may respect all those who are elder brothers in the world...Those who love and respect their parents dare not show hatred and rudeness to others...Filial piety is the basis of virtue, and the origin of culture. To do the right thing and walk according to the right morals, thus leaving a good name in posterity, in order to glorify one's ancestors, is the culmination of filial piety." (LIN YUTANG, My Country and My People, p. 171 ; pub: 1938.)

Recent western poets have also recognised that wise parenthood is the spiritual culmination and sweetest fruit of weddedness ; though a horrible flood of brazen, screaming, shameless, naked, animal sexuality, and very unregulated contraception, and wish to avoid all parental responsibility while snatching all sorts of lawless sexual excitements and pleasures, seems to have burst in an overwhelming flood on the world, after the Great War of 1914-1918.

Womanliness means only Motherhood ;
All love begins and ends there—roams enough,
But, having run the circle, rests at 'Home'.

(BROWNING.)

3. THE GOLDEN RULE OF CHRIST.

"Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

This is stated repeatedly in the positive as well as the negative form, in the Vedic scriptures. It is also contained in one of the sayings of the Prophet Muhammad. It is to be found in the Scriptures of all religions.

The negative aspect of the Golden Rule, it may be noted, is the source of all the 'preventive' or 'constituent,' 'śhāntika,' 'nigraha,' 'kshéma,' insidādī, functions of the state ; and the positive aspect, of the 'promotive,' 'ministrant,'

‘p a u s h t i k a,’ s a n - g r a h a, a n u - g r a h a,
 ‘y o g a,’ imḍādī, functions.

Vyāsa says :

Shrūyaṭām Dharma-sarvasvam, shrutvā cha-iv-āva-ḍhāryaṭām,
 Ātmanah praṭi-kulāni
 parēshām na sam-ā-charēt ;
 Na taṭ parasya kurvīta
 syāḍ an-ishtam yaḍ Ātmanah,
 Yaḍ yaḍ Ātmani ch-é chchhéta
 taṭ parasy-āpi chintayēt. (Mbh.)

(Do not to others what ye do not wish
 Done to yourself ; and wish for others too
 What ye desire and long for, for yourself
 —This is the whole of Dharma, heed it well.)

Muhammad says :

Afzal-ul-īmāni-unṭohibba linnāsé mā ṭohibbo le-nafseka, wa ṭakraho lahum mā ṭakraho
 le-nafseka. (H.)

(Noblest religion this—that thou shouldst like
 For others what thou likest for thyself ;
 And what thou feelest painful for thyself,
 Hold that as painful for all others too.)

A verse of the Bhāgavata says the same,
 in slightly varied form :

Ētāvān avyayī dharmah saḍbhir-nīṭyam anu-shthītaḥ,
 Yal-loka-shoka-harshābhyām Ātmā shochaṭi hrshyaṭi.
 (This Dharma stands unchallenged changelessly,
 That I should sorrow when my fellow-beings
 May sorrow, and rejoice when they rejoice.)

Stating the golden rule, Muhammad says, “This is the noblest religion” ; Christ describes it as

"This is the law and the prophets"; Vyāsa, in the Mahā-bhārata, laying it down, says, "This is the whole of Dharma." A disciple asked the Chinese Master, "Is there one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one's life?", and Confucius answered :

Ṭzu-kung wen yueh : 'you yi yen, er ko yi
 Chung sheng hsing chih choh hu ?' Ṭzu yueh :
 'Chī Shu hu ! Chī so pu yu, wu Shih yu jen.'¹

(U., Analects, 15. 23 ; also 12. 2.)

(Is 'Reciprocity' not such a word ?

Do not to others what you do not want

Done to yourself—this is what the word means.

If you act thus, your public life will not,

Nor will your private life, arouse ill-will.)

The Buddha's single word is sa m ā n - ā ṭ m a ṭ ā. The Buddha appealed specially to those souls which were ready to enter the Path of Renunciation, San-nyāsa or Naishthika-brahma-charya, Fuqr and Tark-i-duniyā. Perhaps his chief purpose (as perhaps also Christ's) was to create a great band of Spiritual Volunteer-Helpers of mankind, able to practise extreme self-denial ; and Shankar-āchārya's idea seems to have been similar ; though the vihāras, mathas, abbeys, monasteries, nunneries, convents, Sūfi khāneqāhs, that grew up later, came, by degeneration, to embody the very opposite of that idea. For the ordinary householders as such, the Buddha enjoined the pañcha-shīla abstinences and the four positive observances, viz., (1) dāna, charity, (2) priya-vachana, gentle speech, (3) artha-charyā, earning of livelihood, but governed by the purpose of social service, by philanthropic intention in all the activities of life, trade, etc., and, finally, the secret of all goodness and virtue, (4) samān-ātmata, 'equal-souledness,' 'equality,' 'similarity,' nay, 'sameness,' of all souls; whence same-sightedness, feeling of, sense of, non-separateness; and the possibility and necessity of observing the Golden Rule. This samān-ātmata is the same as the Upanishadic and Qurānic Spiritual Democracy of Equality or indeed Identity of Souls.

¹This transliteration of the original Chinese words was very kindly supplied to me by Prof. Tan Yun Shan, then residing in Shri Rabindranath Tagore's famous institution, Shanti-nikētana, by letter dated 16-7-1937.

Some other statements of the Golden Rule, in the several scriptures, in varying forms, are :

Ātm-aupamyēna sarvaṭra samam pashyaṭi yo-(A)rjuna !, Sukham vā yaḍi vā ḍukham,
 sa yogī paramo mataḥ.
 Sarva-bhūṭa-sṭham Ātmānam
 sarva-bhūṭāni ch-Āṭmani, Īkshaṭé yoga-yukṭ-Āṭmā
 sarvaṭra sama-darshanah.
 Yo Mām pashyaṭi sarvaṭra
 sarvam cha mayi pashyaṭi,
 Tasy-Āham na pra-ṇashyāmi,
 sa cha Mé na pra-ṇashyaṭi.

Sarva-bhūṭa-sthīṭam yo Mām bhajaṭy-ékaṭvam āsthīṭah, Sarvathā vartamāno-pi
 sa yogī Mayi vartatē. (G.)

Sarva-bhūṭeshu ch-Ātmānam,
 sarva-bhūṭāni ch-Ātmani,
 Samam pashyan Ātma-yājī,
 Svā-rājyam adhi-gachchhaṭi.
 ...Svasya cha priyam Ātmanah
 ...sākshāḍ Dharmasya lakṣaṇam. (M.)

Mātr-vaṭ para-dārēshu,
 para-dṛavyēshu loshta-vaṭ,
 Ātma-vaṭ sarva-bhūṭēshu
 yah pashyaṭi sa paṇḍīṭah.

(Hito-paḍēsha.)

(By self-analogy who feels for all
 In gladness or in sorrow, everywhere,
 The highest yogī is he to be deemed.
 He who hath joined his self to the Great Self,
 And seeth all in Me and Me in all,
 Same-sightedness he gaineth everywhere.
 Who sees Me everywhere and all in Me,
 He never loses Me, nor I lose him.
 Who, having gained the Great Identity,
 Loves Me in all—wherever he may be,
 And howsoever, he abides in Me.
 Who sees Me in all beings, and all in Me,
 He sacrifices unto Me in all ;
 His life is all one constant 'sacri-fice',
 'Good-act'; he only gains the true Svā - r ā j y a,
 'Reign of the Higher Self,' Kingdom of Heaven.
 Who looks on other's wives as on his mother,
 Who looks at other's gold as so much dross,

Who feels for others as he feels for self,
 He is true p a n d i ṭ, he is true wise man.
 The final mark of Duty, Righteousness,
 Legal and moral Lawfulness, is this—
 That what ye hold as dear and good for self
 And which your inner higher self approves,
 Ye hold as dear and good for others too ;
 And what ye may not like for your own self,
 For others like it not, in the same way.
 Who feeleṭh as his own the joys and sorrows
 Of others, he is the true yogī, he Hath truly 'joined' his own soul with all souls.)

Pity the misfortunes of others ; rejoice in the well-being of others ; help those who are in want ; save men in danger ; rejoice at the success of others ; and sympathise with their reverses, even as though you were in their place.

(T., Ṭai-Shang-Kan-Ying-Pien, THR., 223.)

When abroad, behave to everyone as if interviewing an honored guest ; in directing the people, act as if you were assisting at a great sacrifice ; do not do to others as you would not like done to yourself ; so there will be no murmuring against you in the country, and none in the family ; your public life will arouse no ill-will nor your private life any resentment.

(C., Analects, xii. 2.)

Har che bar khuḍ na pasandī bar dīgarān ma pasand. (S.)

(Whate'er thou likest not for thine own self,
 For any person else, too, like it not.)

Sabbé ṭasanti dandassa, sabbésām jīvitam priyam ;
 Āṭṭānam upamam kaṭṭvā,
 na haneyya na ghāṭayēt. (Dh.)

(All shrink from suffering, and all love life;
Remember that thou too art like to them;
Make thine own self the measure of the others,
And so abstain from causing hurt to them.)

Love thy neighbour as thy-self. (B.)

Note that the Golden Rule does not attempt the futile and impossible task of abolishing and annihilating egoism. On the contrary, it makes Egoism the measure of Altruism. 'Do not foster the Ego more than the alter; care for the alter as much as for the ego.' To abolish egoism is to abolish altruism also; and vice versa. This is the injunction for the normal man, the ordinary householder. It is varied in special circumstances.

What a man hates to receive on the right, let him not bestow on the left; what he hates to receive on the left, let him not bestow on the right; this is what is called the Principle, with which, as with a measuring square, to regulate one's conduct.

(C., Great Learning, THR., 222.)

What I do not wish others to do to me, that also I wish not to do to them.

(C., Analects, 5. 11.)

Ushṭā ahmāi yahmāi ushṭā kahmāi chīṭ...

(Z., Gaṭhā, 43. 1.)

(Skṭ: Ishtam asmai yasmai ishtam kasmai chīṭ.)

(That which is good for all and any one,
For whomsoever—that is good for me...

What I hold good for self, I should for all.¹

Only Law Universal is true Law.)

¹To some, this may seem to be a perhaps simpler and more easily intelligible statement of what the Corollaries of the Golden Rule are :

Yaḍ anyair viḍiṭam n-éhcchéḍ
 āṭmanah karma pūrushah,
 Apa-ṭrapéṭa vā yasmān,
 na ṭaṭ kuryāṭ kaḍā-chana. (Mbh.)

Yaṭ sarvéṇ-éhcchhaṭi jñātam,
 yan-na lajjaṭi ch-ācharan,
 Yéna ṭushyaṭi ch-āṭm-āsyā,
 ṭaṭ saṭṭva-guṇa-lakshaṇam. (M.)

(What he would hide from others ; would not like
 Others to know ; what his own heart feels shame
 To do—let him not ever do such act.

What he is willing may be known by all ;
 What his heart feels no shame at all to do ;
 What satisfies his 'con-science', his best Self,¹ —That has on it the mark of Righteousness.)

Ko nu sa syāḍ upāy-oṭra, yén-āham ḍuhkhiṭ-āṭmanām,
 Anṭah pravishya bhūṭānām,
 bhavéyam ḍuhkha-bhāk saḍā.
 (Mbh., Anu-shāsana parva, ch. 50-51.)

(O ! who would tell me of the sacred way
 Whereby I might enter into all hearts
 That suffer, and take all their suffering
 Upon myself for ever and for aye.).

German philosopher Kant formulated as 'the categorical imperative', twenty-five centuries later.

¹For nature and meaning of 'con-science,' as 'joint-science' of the Common Self of a 'community,' see The Science of the Self, pp. 186-193, by the writer.

I was anhungered and athirst, naked and sick, in prison....Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these My brethren, ye have done it unto Me. (B.).

Another corollary of the Golden Rule is:
Refrain from fault-finding, carping, cavilling, back-biting, ill-natured criticism, scandal-mongering, malicious libelling, defaming, slandering—all only too common and too destructive of friendliness and human happiness.

The disease of men is this that they neglect their own field, and go to weed the fields of others, and that what they require from others is great, while what they lay upon themselves is light. (C., MENCIOUS, THR., 113.)

To attempt to correct others while one's own virtue is clouded, is to set one's own virtue a task for which it is inadequate. (T., KWANG-TZE.)

He who smites will be smitten; he who shows rancour, will find rancour; from reviling comes reviling, and to him who is angered comes anger.

(Bu., Uḍāna-varga, xiv. 3.)

Therefore,

Na hi vérēna vérāni sammant-īha kaḍā-chana;
A-vérēna cha sammanti, ēsa dhammo sanāṭano.

(Dh.)

(Never by hates are hates extinguishéd,
Only by love may hate be changed to love
And cease as hate—such is th' Eternal Law.)

Rājan ! sarshapa-māṭrāṇi para-chhidrāṇi pashyasi,
Āṭmano bilva-māṭrāṇi
pashyan api na pashyasi. (Mbh.)

Yas-tu sarvāṇi bhutāny-
 Ātmany-év-ānu-pashyaṭi,
 Sarva-bhūtēṣhu ch-Ātmānam
 taṭo na vi-jugupsaṭé. (U.)

(He who sees all in Self and Self in all,
 He hates, fears, scorns not any, any more.)

Yéna kéna prakāśéna
 yasya kasy-āpi janūnah,
 Saṁtosham janayéd-dhīmānstaḍ-év-Eshvara-pūjanam.
 Prāyasho loka-tāpena
 tapyanté sādḥavo janāḥ ;
 Param-ārādhanam taḍ-hi
 Purushasy-ākḥil-Ātmanah.
 Bhūta-priya-hiṭ-éḥā cha dharmo-yam sārva-varṇikah ;
 Jyotir-Ātmanī n-ānyaṭra
 sarva-janūshu taṭ samam. (Bh.)

(The Light of Consciousness is in the Self,
 And in all living things It shines the Same,
 Therefore to give joy to some living thing,
 And feel the pain of others as one's own,
 Is the best worship of Divinity,
 Most pleasing unto Him who lives in All.)

DIFFICULTIES RE THE GOLDEN RULE. The Golden Rule is not always easy to interpret and apply for the purposes of daily life. Yet it is intended for nothing else than daily practice. It can be followed fully and wisely only by those who have risen beyond personality, have 'let out ego and let in God.' The Teachers have said seemingly different things, at different times. But the inconsistency is only apparent. The allreconciling principle always is : Difference of circumstance makes difference of duty. But the heart should always be bene-volent ; sincerely, not by profession only, like that of the horrible Inquisitors of the Medieval Ages, and of the cruel hypocrites in all religions ; though the duty may, at times, require the giving of pain to another ; like that of a surgeon operating on his own child.

Jesus says :

Resist not evil ; if any smite thee on the right cheek, turn the left to him as well...Bless them that curse you ; love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you.

Buddha says :

Conquer hatred with love.

Muhammad says :

Idfa' b-illaṭi he-ya ahsan. (Q.)

(Recompense evil, conquer it, with good.)

Manu says :

Kruḍhyantaṃ na praṭi-kruḍhyéd-akrushtah kushalam vadét. (M.)

(Wroth be not with those who are wroth with you ;
To those who speak harsh words, reply with sweet.)

Vyāsa says :

A-kroḍhéna jayét kroḍham,

a-sāḍhum sāḍhunā jayét,

Jayét kaḍaryam ḍānéna,

jayét satyéna ch-ānrtam.

(Mbh., Viḍura-nīti.)

(With kindness conquer rage ; with goodness malice ;
With generosity defeat all meanness ;
With the straight truth defeat lies and deceit.)

Buddha repeats the words of Vyāsa :

Akkodhēna jiné koḍham,
asāḍhum sādhanā jiné,
Jiné kaḍariyam dānēna,
Sachchēn-ālika-vāḍnam. (Dh.)

Jainism says :

Conquer your wrath by sweet forgivingness ;
And by humility check vanity ;
By truth straightforward stay all crooked fraud ;
And by contentment peaceful, vanquish greed.
(J., Dasa-veyaliya, THR., 228.)

They rejoice not if revered, nor be angry if insulted ; but they only are capable of this who have passed into the eternal harmony of God.

(T., KWANG TZE.)

Tulya-nindā-ṣṭuṭir-maunī, san-ṭushto yēna-kēna-chiṭ,
A-ḍvēshtā sarva-bhūṭānām,
maitrah, karuṇa éva cha,
Harsh-ā-marsha-bhay-oḍ-végaih
mukṭo yah sa cha mé priyah. (G.)

(To censure or to praise—always the same ;
Content ; bearing in silence everything ;
Angry with none ; helpful and kind to all ;
Free from all gusts of pride and fear and rage ;
Such are the wise souls that are dear to Me.)

If thine enemy be hungry, give him bread ; if he thirsty, give him water ; so shalt thou heap coals of fire upon his head ; and so the Lord shall award thee ; [for thy enemy will feel ashamed of his hostile feeling, and his head, his face, will 'burn' with shame, and he will give up enmity and become thy friend, and that will be thy great reward]. (B., Prov.) He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty ; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city...Hatred stirreth up strife ; but love covereth all sins...A soft answer turneth away wrath ; but grievous words stir up anger. (B., Proverbs.) Perfect love casteth out fear. (B.)

Yo vé uppaṭiṭam koḍham raṭham bhaṇṭam 'va ḍhārayé,
 Ṭam aham sārathim brūmi,
 rasmi-ggaho itaro jano. (Dh.)
 Yah sam-ut-paṭiṭam kroḍham
 a-kroḍhena ni-yachchhaṭi,
 Sa éva shūro vi-jñéyah,
 na yoddhā-pi mahā-raṭhah. (Mbh.)

(He who restrains his rage from bolting with him,
 He is true warrior and true charioteer,
 Not he that slays in battle many foes.)

Sétuṇs-ṭara duṣṭarān, a-kroḍhéna kroḍham, saṭyén-ānṛṭam. (Sāma-V.)

(Cross carefully the bridges hard to cross ;
 Cross Hate with help of Love ; Untruth, of Truth.)

Mā vo ghnantam mā shapantam praṭi-voché dévayantam ; sumnair-iḍ-va āvivāśé. Chaṭurash-chiḍ ḍaḍamānāḍ vi-bhīyāḍ ā-ni-ḍhāṭoh ; na ḍur-uktāya sprhayéṭa.
 (Rg-V., I-41.9.)

(Repay not blow by blow, nor curse by curse,
 Nor by base trick the meanest craftiness ;
 But shower blessings in return for blows
 And curses and mean craftinesses, all.)
 Vi-muchya...kroḍham...Brahma-bhūyāya kalpaṭé. (G.)

(Who gives up anger, he attains to God.)

But Kṛṣṇa also says : "Therefore fight (against the wrong-doer and oppressor)" ; and himself fought against and destroyed such, throughout his long life. And Muhammad too says: "Fight in the way of God, for the weak among men, women, and children"; and was a great leader of battles himself. And Manu says: "There is no quicker and surer road to heaven than to give up life fighting for the protection of women and children". Christ also, when he "found in the temple those that sold oxen and sheep and doves, and the changers of money sitting....he....made a scourge of small cords....drove them out of the temple...and poured out the changers' money and overthrew the tables"; he also pronounced heavy curse against the scribes and the pharisees and against those who offend against children; and also said: "I came not to send peace but a sword". Socrates, famed the wisest man of Greece, said:

We ought not to retaliate or render evil to any one, whatever evil we may have suffered from him". (Plato, Crito.)

His famous dictum is: "It is better to suffer wrong than to do wrong". Yet he fought in three wars against the enemies of Athens.

Lao-tse said: "Recompense injury with kindness". Confucius asked: "What then will you return for good?"; and added as his own view: "Recompense injury with justice, and return good for good". Lao-tse's disciple, Chuang-tse, two hundred years later, answered Confucius: "To the good I would be good; and to the not-good I would also be good, in order to make them good. To those who are sincere, I am sincere; and to those also who are not sincere, I am sincere; thus all grow to be sincere"

Christ says the same thing :

Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you;...for if you love them which love you, what reward have ye? Do not even the publicans the same? (B.)

Mencius, the great expounder of Confucius, is regarded, with Lao-tse and Kung-fu-tse (Confucius), as the third of "the three blessed, pure, and holy ones of China, Loshi, Koshi, Moshi"¹. He too has said :

¹The nuances of pronunciation of one language are, as is well-known, difficult to reproduce in transliteration by the alphabet of another language. Tsu, Tse, Tzu, Tze, means 'philosopher' or 'wise man' in the Chinese language. 'Lao' remains uniform. Confucius was named 'Ch'iu' by his mother "because of the noble proportions of his forehead. In the Analects, he refers to himself several times as Ch'iu; and again as Chung Ni, his other cognomen. But he is mostly spoken of by his family surname of K'ung...K'ung-fu-tzū or Confucius, meaning K'ung the Philosopher"; (Biography, prefixed to The Analects, The World's Classics Series). Mencius is Meng-tse; he was the most famous exponent of the views of Confucius. Kwang Tze, (Chuang Tzu, Kouang Tsu, Chwang Tse, etc.) was, similarly, the most famous expounder of Taoism, i.e., Lao-tse's philosophy. Y. L. Fung, History of Chinese Philosophy,

If another treat him perversely, the man of superior quality will turn round upon himself and say, 'I must have been wanting in propriety; how else should this have happened unto me?'; and will be especially observant of propriety. If the perversity of the other, and unreasonableness, are still the same, the superior man will again turn round upon himself and say, 'I must have failed to do my utmost', and will proceed to do his utmost. (C., THH., 226.)

Reconciliation of all views will be found in the following principles and illustrations :

Adhikāri-bhédād dharma-bhédah; sādhyā-bhédāt sādhana-bhédah; prasthāna-bhédād darshana-bhédah.

A-ḍandyān ḍandayan rājā

ḍandyānsh-cha-iv-āpy-a-ḍandayan,

A-yasho mahad-āpnoti

narakam ch-ādhi-gachchhati. (M.)

(Duty differs with different-functioned men;
So means do vary with varying ends;
And outlooks upon Life, Views of the World,
Aspects of Truth, do vary with view-point.
The king who fails to punish criminals;
Or punishes, instead, the innocent;
He is hurled into infamy and hell.)

"The cloak of charity covers a multitude of sins" is a Biblical proverb; and Manu also says :

(pub. 1937) tells us (p. 408) that Confucius was born in 551 B.C. and died in 479 B.C.; Mencius (372-289 B.C.); Chuang Tzu (369-286 B.C.). Confucius, as a young man, visited at least once, Lao-tse, then very old. Soon after, Lao-tse went into and disappeared in the mountains, in the ancient way, common in India, of yogi-s and sannyāsīs.

Dānam ékam Kalau Yugé. (M.)
 (While other virtues reign in other ages,
 In th' Age of Discord, Charity prevails.)

But "Charity begins at home" is another western proverb ; and Manu also says :

Shaktah, para-jané dātā
 Sva-jané dukkha-jīvinī,
 Maḍhv-āpāto vish-āsvāḍah
 Sa dharmā-praṭi-rūpakah. (M.)

(The man who, being able, helpeth not
 His kinsfolk living in distress and want,
 But giveth unto others, thinketh ill
 And acteth ill. His thought and act are like
 The burning venom that is honey-hued ;
 Of real duty it is copy false ;
 It is not charity but self-display.)

So does wise Paul say :

If any provideth not for his own, and specially for his own household, he hath denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever. (B.).

This supplies commentary on Christ's saying :
 Take no thought, what shall we eat ? What shall we drink ?...But seek first His kingdom and His righteousness ; and all these things shall be added unto you. (B.)

The two sayings are in perfect accord and supplement each other. The word first in the Christ's saying is the key. So the Upanishad says :

Étaḍ-év-Āksharam Brahma,
 Étaḍ-év-Āksharam Param,
 Étaḍ-éva viditvā tu
 Yo yaḍ-ichchaṭi tasya taṭ. (U.)

(He who hath seen the Infinite, the Self,
Unperishing, Eternal, Brahma, All—Whatever he desmeth, that is his.)

Such are illustrations of the truth that Duty varies with circumstance; and that achievement of God, of His kingdom, of His righteousness, is the highest and Ultimate Duty of man, on the fulfilment of which, all others are fulfilled automatically, without failure or mistake. A-himsā, 'non-violence', 'non-hurting', 'harmlessness', 'thou shalt not murder', is the very first of all scriptural ethical commandments, as we have seen above. Yet also the right, nay, the duty, of 'defence' of self, and of dependents even more, has been recognised, even enjoined, by scriptures, and laws, in all times and climes; with special exceptions for special reasons. Himsā, 'harming', 'slaying', of the innocent, must be distinguished from danda, 'punishment', of the guilty, the criminal, the aggressor, the brutal invader. As to who is to be held guilty and aggressor, in which circumstances—this has to be decided by 'divine law' and 'human law', in the manner, mentioned before, at p. 81, in which the 'Divine Will' can be ascertained.

The governing principle, which illuminates the whole problem, and makes possible the correct solution of each particular case, is :

Dēśha-kāla-nimittānām

bhedair-dharmo vi-bhidyaṭé. (Mbh.)

(Difference of time and place and circumstance Makes difference of duty and of right.)

The general rule is : Return good for evil ; forgive ; suffer, rather than cause suffering. This is so, less reservedly, for the teacher, the priest, the man of God ; with still less exception, when the injury is done to himself ; without any reservation, when the injured person is a faqīr, a nnyāsi, hermit. The special rule is : Fight against and resist evil ; with physical force, passively or actively, negatively or positively, as conditions may permit and require ; this is so, specially, for the householder, the man of and in the world ; particularly when those dependent on him for protection are threatened ; yet more particularly for the 'public servant' ; unreservedly and without exception for the policeman, the soldier, the magistrate, whose express duty it is to protect the people from miscreants. In short, himsā, 'hurting the innocent,' is clearly distinguished in the Védic Scriptures, and in all others also, explicitly or implicitly, from danda, 'punishing the guilty'. And the right of private defence of person and property has been recognised, always, everywhere, as said above.

Gurum vā bāla-vṛddhau vā brāhmaṇam vā bahu-shruṭam, Ātātāyinam āyāntam
hanyād év-ā-vichārayan. (M.)

(The poisoner, the incendiary,
The robber, and whoso commits assault
With lethal weapon, and the ravisher,
And one who tries by force to oust from land
—These should be slain unhesitatingly.)

This is for the ordinary person, the householder, the public servant. The renunciant hermit follows another law. He has given a bhaya-dāna, 'freedom from fear,' to all and every one.

Detailed treatment of this subject is exceedingly important for the practical purposes of manifold and very various and complicated daily individual and collective social life. It has been attempted elsewhere¹. A brief outline will be included in the next chapter, on 'The Way of Works' Here, it is enough to say that the Golden Rule cannot but remain a mere pious wish, unless and until it is provided with a full technique; i. e., a complete Social Organisation. This would make clear what the main stages and situations are in each individual life; what the main occupations and positions are in the total social life; and what the duties and corresponding rights are that attach to each such stage and occupation. Then every one would know what he should wish for himself and therefore for others, in any given time-place-circumstance.

4. THE IMMORTAL VIRTUES AND THE DEADLY SINS.

The 'Seven Immortal Virtues' of Christianity, viz., Faith, Hope, Charity, Justice, Prudence, ¹In the present writer's The Science of Social Organisation, or The Laws of Manu; Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism; The Science of the Self; and various pamphlets.

Temperance, and Fortitude, generally correspond with the Ṣaṭ-sāḍhanas, 'the Six Helpful Means' of upward progress, of the Védānta, viz., Śhama, Dama, Upa-rāṭi, Ṭīṭikṣhā, Śhraddhā, Sam-ā-dhāna, i.e., charitable Tranquillity, self-'restraining' Prudent Temperance, Resignation, all-enduring Fortitude, Hopeful Faith and Faithful Hope, just and all-reconciling Single-mindedness and Collectedness of mind. The 'Seven Deadly Sins,' Pride, Covetousness, Lust, Anger, Gluttony, Envy, and Sloth, are the same as the Ṣaḍ-ripus, 'the Six Internal Enemies,' Kāma, Kroḍha, Lobha, Moha, Maḍa, Maṭsara, i.e., Lust, Hate, Greed, Infatuation, Arrogance, and Jealousy; Infatuation covers Gluttony and Sloth, also Fear.

THE TWO MAIN SINS. The sins have been reduced to two, in almost the same terms, by Kṛṣṇa some five thousand years ago, and by Maulānā Rūm, about seven hundred.

Indriyasy-ēndriyasy-ārṭhé Rāga-Dvэшau vyavasthītau ;
Ṭayor-na vasham-ā-gachchhét,
ṭau hy-asya pari-panṭhinau. (G.)

(Lust, ape of Love, and Hate, Anger, Dislike—
 To every object of each sense attach.
 Be thou on guard, pass not into their power ;
 They block thy passage on the upward path.)

Kāma esha, Kroḍha esha...

viḍḍhy-ēnam iha vairiṇam. (G.)

Khashm o Shahwaṭ marḍ rā ahwal kunad,
 Z-istiḳāmaṭ rūh rā mubḍal kunad. (S.)
 (Hatred and lust are the two inner focs.)
 (They twist man's eyes and make his vision false,
 And from the straight path lead his soul astray.)

5. THE SINGLE SEED OF THE TWO ROOT-SINS.

The Yoga tells us that Asmitā, Ahaṁkāra, 'I-am-ness' (of the separatist individualised 'I') Khudī, Egoism, is the yet more subtle root, from which both lust and hate sprout forth as obverse and reverse; and that the final seed, from which this egoistic selfishness too proceeds, is Avidyā, Wahm, the Un-truth, Falsehood, Error, Neuroscience, self-deceit, that 'I am not the Infinite One; but am this one particular infinitesimal body of flesh and blood and bone, among many such bodies; am therefore something quite separate from my fellow-beings; and that each one of these is utterly separate from all others and from the One Self'. This self-ish Un-truth, Nā-Haq, A-saṭ, is the ultimate source of all wrong feeling, wrong desire wrong conduct. This avidyā is the real kufṛ, Kufṛ means, literally, 'hiding the truth,' lā-haq. non-truth, i.e., considering mā-siwā-Allah, 'any, other-than-God', as actor. In affirming separate 'I-ness', (as contra-distinguished from the universal 'I AM'), the nafs, the ego, commits shirk,¹

¹For these definitions of kufṛ and shirk, see Khaja Khan's The Secret of Anāl-Haq, pp. 68, 83, 123, 151. Shirk means 'joining', joining something to God, placing ḍvāiṭa, bhédā, saṅkara; it 'adds' the 'impurity', mala, kasf, of the Finite, to the 'purity', शुद्धि, lutf, of the Infinite. Khudā, overpowered by Khudī, becomes an individual or particular Khud, a separate self; Brahma, enveloped by Māyā, becomes Jīva; Uṭṭama Puruṣa, Puruṣa-ottama, Param-Ātmā, surrendering to (Dāivī and Mūla-) beside God something other-than-God, and believing it to have real existence also; whereas true Islam regards God as the Only Being, and all other-than-God as non-Existent; just the same as Véḍ-āṇṭa. Gradually, kufr has come to mean disbelief in the Islamic religion generally. Thus the Gulshan-i-Rāz says:

Ke rā kufr-é-haqīqī शुद्ध पिदिदār,
Ze Islām-é-majāzī gasht bé-zār. (S.)
(Whoever glimpsed the real Disbelief,
From outward Islam he did turn away.)

"Apparent Islam consists in the observance of ordinances, and real Islam consists in the extinction of self [disbelief in the false self, the lower self, egoism]... Kufr is covering up the Oneness of Existence under the screen of Multiplicity. Shirk is considering the One Real Existence as two. Kufr and shirk of Sharīat are pollutions, from sins; those of Ṭarīqat, are love of the (sensuous) world; and those of Haqīqat, are the establishment of ghair ['other,' iṭāra, ḍviṭīya, a 'second'], and not seeing the Oneness underlying Multiplicity"; The Secret of An-al-Haq, pp. 114, 213. The difference between Véḍic Karma-kāṇḍa and Véḍ-āṇṭa, and between 'Churchianity' and real Christianity is the same.

Prakṛti, A-viḍyā (Mūlā, and Tūlā) becomes Jīva-ātmanā; mukta becomes bad-dha; āzād becomes asir. Thus it is that God plus Satan, angel plus devil, is man. In very truth, quite visibly, is there an angel as well as a devil in everyone of us. See the same face now in smiles, and again in frowns.

Az bahāyam hissa dārī, waz malāyak nīz ham,
Bu-g'zar az haḍḍ-é-bahāyam, k-az malāyak bug'zarī.
(S.)

(A piece of beast, a piece of angel, thou !
If thou wilt only rise above the beast,
Then wilt thou pass beyond the angel too !)
Yea, we can rise on stepping-stones
Of our dead selves to higher things.
(TENNYSON)

Thus it comes about that :

Pra-kṛtēh kriyamāṇāni guṇāni karmāni sarvashah,
Aham-kāra-vi-mūḍh-ātmā kartā-āham-iti manyatē. (G.)
(This Nature of the Universal Self,
This Universal Nature, doeth all ;
Yet man, deluded by false egoism,
Believes 'I am the actor,' not that Self.)

This Aham-kāra, Ego-ism, Khudī, feel of separate self, appears as a triple Desire, (1) syāṁ, 'may I always be,' (2) bahu syāṁ, 'may I be more,' (3) bahu-dhā syāṁ, 'may I be many'; in other words, hirs, 'tama', cravings, urges, for (1) self-preservation, (2) self-expansion, (3) self-multiplication. In Véd-ānta they are called the three éśhaṇā-s, (1) loka-iśhaṇā, (2) viṭṭa-iśhaṇā, (3) dāra-suṭa-iśhaṇā.

In Buddhism, (1) bhava-tṛṣṇā, (2) vi-bhava-tṛṣṇā, (3) kāma-tṛṣṇā. Jainism knows them as (1) āhāra-sañjñā, (2) parigraha-sañjñā, (3) maithuna-sañjñā. Sūfis call them the primal desires for (1) zamīn, (land, whence food and self-preservation), (2) zar, (wealth), (3) zan, (wife). In Christian lands the popular names for these are (1) 'wine', (in place of food), (2) 'wealth,' (3) 'woman'. Western psycho-physiology knows them as the primal instincts, cravings, impulses, appetites of (1) Hunger, (2) Acquisitiveness, (though this is not yet clearly recognised as an elemental radical factor, equally with the other two, which completes, with them, the primal triad of the root Egoistic-Desire), and (3) Sex; āhāra-é ch ch hā, ḍhan-é ch ch hā, raṭ-ī ch ch hā. The new psycho-analytic science, or, rather, branch of psychology, would perhaps name them as, (1) the ego-complex, (2) the property-complex, (3) the sex-complex. Hṛdaya-granthi, 'heart-knot,' kāma-jatā, 'tangled desire-roots', are the expressions, corresponding to 'complex,' found in the old books, (Upanishats and the Bhāgavata.)

These three primary desires or appetites, vāsanās, āśhayas, impulses, instincts, are, indeed 'simplexes' rather than 'complexes'. But since all the emotions accrete and conglomerate 'complicatedly' around and on them, they appear as 'complexes'. In connection with 'food', the emotions appear in their most direct and elemental or simple forms; with 'possessions', they become more indirect and complicated; with 'sex', most so. Secretiveness appears in relation to all three, but least to food, most to sex, in man. Out of these three elemental appetites, in order that they may be satisfied in due measure, with 'alliance for existence,' and without internecine 'struggle for existence', arise the three fundamental institutions of Society, (1) Law-Religion, (2) Property, (3) Marriage and Family.

The sublimated forms of these innate primal appetites are: (i) the Wish-to-be-always, the Religious Instinct, of attaching one-Self to, identifying once Self with, the Eternal; also the Wish for 'lasting name and fame', 'a niche in history', yashah, kīrti, ṭār'if, shuhraṭ, nām-warī; (ii) the Wish-to-be-more, the Wish for rich artistic possessions, the proprietary and aesthetic instinct, to have ḍhaṇam, ḍaulaṭ; (iii) the Wish-to-be-many, the power-instinct, the Wish to rule over others and be depended upon by them. The correspondents are lhaṛma, Arṭha, Kāma, ḍin, ḍaulaṭ, ḍunyā; the elemental lower forms are, wish for (1) food, (2) growth of body (especially muscle) and goods, (3) spouse and progeny. Wisdom—Wealth—Health, (the wish to be 'healthy, wealthy, and wise'), this triad is another aspect of the same.

The altruistic three instincts, corresponding, and opposite, to the three egoistic ones, are to be seen in the verse:

Bhunkṭé bhojayaṭé cha-iva, guhyam vakti shrṇoṭi cha,

Dadāṭi praṭi-grhṇāṭi,

shad-vidham miṭṭra-lakṣhaṇam.

(Not only eats, but feeds, also ; not only

Receives confidings but gives such, in turn ;

Not only takes, but makes, gifts—the true friend.)

The Self, which is Immortal and Omniscient ; knows all past, present, future, all succession of events, which are Its own imagined creations ; knows all senses, all 'tastes' of all 'foods' ; this Self has, as it were, 'forgotten' that fact, 'hidden the truth,' fallen into a - v i d y ā and kufṛ of Its own Free-will, for lahw o la'ib, lilā, 'idle sport and play,' and has made itself mortal and little-knowing ; It now tries to make itself pseudo-immortal and all-knowing, and maintain itself in unbroken continuity, by taking physical and mental food. The Self, which is Omnipresent ; because all things are already, always, present in It, has, as if, veiled Its eyes to that fact, and made itself small ; It now tries to make itself all-encompassing, in counterfeit, by growing bigger and bigger in body, and securing more and more wealth and possessions. The Self, which is Omni-¹The Samskr̥t word for Self, viz., Ātman, Ātmā, etymologically means, that which sa-taṭam ataṭi, aṭṭi, aṭy-ēṭi méyān, mā iṭi nishédhaṭi sarvān pari-miṭān, i.e. 'that which moves in, into, pervades, everything, always ; which eats, (a ṭ, to eat), tastes, everything ; which transcends all limitation ; which negates, repudiates, all limited things, all particularisations'. The Greek words etymon, 'original root,' etymos, 'true', also atmos, 'air', seem to be connected.

potent; which already contains all potencies, all powers, all forms, within Itself; has, so to say, blinded Itself to that fact, made Itself weak and confined Itself to one form; It now tries, vainly, erroneously, futilely, to regain its all-mightiness, by reproducing itself, pro-generating itself, in a series of many forms, all subject to its will and power, through a spouse, a counterpart, a reversed image and reflection of itself. Thus does Egoism work, giving rise to endless errors, wrongs, ill-wishes, through the branching of each of these three into endless derivative forms of like and dislike, love and hate, kāma and krodha, shahwaṭ and kṛashm.

The counteractives of the three down-dragging appetites, the correspondingly opposed altruistic instincts, Desires, Deliberate Resolves, are those of (1) a-himsā, (2) a-pari-graha, (3) brahma-charya; (1) ṭark-i-izā-rasāni, ṭark-i-sitām, (2) ṭark-i-daulat, fuqr, (3) ṭark-i-shahwaṭ, ṭajrīd, husūr, zabt-i-nafs, a'smat; (1) harmlessness, non-violence, (2) non-possessiveness, non-proprietorship, voluntary poverty, (3) continence. The other shīla-s, kṛhūbī-s, kamāl-s, virtues, perfections, yama-s and ni-yama-s, will all come under these; while Saṭya, Haq, in the highest sense, of the One Truth of the Unity of all, stands above and gives birth to all the three and their subordinates.¹

¹For fuller exposition of the whole subject of Desires, Emotions, Egoistic and Altruistic impulses, their

6. THE ONE SEED OF ALL THE VIRTUES.

As wrong desires all take their rise from the Falsehood of selfish and separative Egoism; from the stubborn feeling that individual selves are really separate and different from one another and from the One Universal Self; so all right desires, good feelings, virtues, flow from, or are but aspects of, selflessness, unselfishness, self-sacrifice, nir-a-ham-kāriṭā, bé-khudī, which is the corollary of the Great Truth of the One Self in all. "Love God with all thy heart," said Christ, and also, "Love thy neighbour as thy-Self"—because God is thy inmost Self, and thy neighbour is the same.

As Lust-Hate are the dual shoots that sprout from the seed of selfish Egoism, so bhakti and karuṇā, ishq-i-haqīqī and rahm, pure spiritual love and compassion, spring from selfless Altruistic Universalism. The Védānta tells us that Primal Desire, Māyā-illusion, Avidyā-Ne-science, has two chief shakti-s, quḍrat-s or shuyūnāt, viz., āvaraṇa and vikshépa; one 'veils,' blinds, the eyes to the Reality; the other 'flings', 'distracts', drives, the soul towards the things of the Unreal. The Sūfis would perhaps call them hejāb and izāl. From the standpoint of the Infinite Self, Desire is the deliberate Desire genetics, classification, and how the baser can be subjugated to the nobler, the reader may, if he cares to pursue the subject, see the present writer's The Science of the Self, ch. vi, and The Science of the Emotions.

for Līlā, Play, Pas-time; for the World-Drama of Sṛṣṭi, Khalq, Creation-Preservation-Destruction, by means of the powers of Irāḍah (Īṭabār, Ikṣṭiyār, Khwāhish) and Taswūr, Kāma and San-kalpa, Will and Imagination. From the standpoint of the individual self, it is the instinctive 'desire' of 'lust-hate', which 'blinds' first, then 'drives' into wrong action. Self-knowledge, Viḍyā, Irfān, Truth, counteracts and conquers these two, respectively; with the help of tyāga and vyavasāya, ṭark and mujāhidā, renunciation and perseverent practice of self-control, va-i-rāgya and abhy-āsa, mujānibat and munāzilāt, surfeited and dis-gust-ed turning away from the world, and resolute self-direction towards the Spirit; so it strengthens and perfects the virtues of spiritual love and compassion, of charity and altruistic service, sarva-bhūṭa-hiṭa (G.) or khiḍmaṭe-khalq (S.).

Sarvam Ātmani sampashyēt
saṭ ch-āsaṭ cha samāhiṭah ;

Sarvam Ātmani sampashyan
n-ādharmaṃ kuruṭe manah. (M.)

(See all in Self, truth, untruth, right and wrong ;
Whoever sees all in the Self, him-Self,
He cannot turn his mind to sin again.)

Love...God with all thy heart...soul...mind....
Love thy neighbour as thy-Self (God). On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.
(B., Matthew.)

St. Paul repeats the teachings of the *Véda*s, of the Old Testament (Proverbs), of Jesus ; and indirectly indicates that the working of the Golden Rule must be governed by a complete system of publicly proclaimed and recognised rights-and-duties; that, indeed, without a complete Social Organisation, with well-defined rights-and-duties, it is entirely unworkable:

Bless them which persecute you, and curse not. Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep. Be of the same mind with one another. As much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men. Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves. If thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him drink; for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire on his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good. ...Rulers are not [i.e., ought not to be, though they unhappily but too often are] a terror to good works, but to the evil...Render therefore to all, their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honour to whom honour. Owe to no man anything, but to love one another.

He that loveth another hath fulfilled the law. For this, thou shalt not commit adultery, not kill, not steal, not bear false witness, not covet; and if there be any other commandment; it is [all] briefly comprehended in this saying, namely: Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thy-Self.¹ Love worketh no ill to his neighbour. Love is the fulfilling of the law." (B., Romans.) "...The Truth [of the Unity of the Self] shall make you free [of all vice, sin, doubt, fear, sorrow]. (B., John).

A-samshayam, mahā-bāho !,
mano ḍur-ni-graham chalam ;

¹See pp. 312, 298, 64, 309, supra.

Abhyāsēna tu, Kauntēya !, vai-rāgyēṇa cha grhyaṭé.
 Yaṭo Yaṭo nish-charaṭi
 manash-chanchalam a-sṭhiram,
 Taṭas-ṭaṭo niyamy-aṭaḍ-
 Āṭmany-éva vasham nayéṭ. (G.)

(Hard to control, no doubt, this restless mind ;
 Yet by 'distaste', 'dis-gust', for things of sense,
 'Turning away from' fleeting worldly things,
 And by 'persistent turning to' the Self
 Of this most fickle mind, dragging it back Again and yet again with resolute will,
 Whenever it escapes to wayward ways,
 It can, no doubt, be brought under control.)
 Parāñchi khāni vy-aṭṛṇaṭ Svayam-bhūh ;
 Tasmāṭ parāñg-pasbyaṭi, n-āñṭar-Āṭman ;
 Kash-chiḍ-ḍhīrah Pratyag-Āṭmānam aikshaḍ
 Āvrṭṭa-chakshur-amṭaṭṭvam ichchhan. (U.)

(The Self-born pierced all senses outwards ; hence
 All human be-ings look Without them-Self ;
 One here, one there, desiring Deathlessness, Directs his mind aright, and looks Within.)
 Chashm band o gosh band o lab bi-band ;
 Gar na bīnī rūy-e Haq, bar mā bi khand. (S.)
 (Shut off thy eyes, ears, lips, and senses all,
 From outward things ; surely thou wilt see God.)

Ḍar nazar kun jumla ṭan rā, ḍar nazar,
 Ḍar nazar rau, ḍar nazar rau, ḍar nazar.
 Haq ba jāñ aḍar nihāñ o jāñ ba ḍil aḍar nihāñ,
 Ai nihāñ, aḍar nihāñ, aḍar nihāñ, aḍar nihāñ !
 Īñ chuniñ ramz-aṣṭ ayāñ, khud bé-nishāñ o bé bayāñ,
 Ai jahāñ aḍar jahāñ, aḍar jahāñ, aḍar jahāñ ! (S.)
 (Look within ; yea, look within ; yea, look within !
 See the make of thy body from within !

Life in the heart, Self in the life, behold !
 World within world, world within world, sans end !
 Such is the Secret, speechless, yet all plain ;
 Without or mark or word, yet everywhere !

Puṇyam cha pāpam cha pāpé. (Védānta maxim.)
 (Sin, merit, both are sins ; for both do bind
 The soul unto the whirling wheel of change.)

Chūñ nék o baḍ az Khuḍāe dīḍanḍ,
 Rūy-az hama ḍo ḍar kashīḍanḍ. (S.)

(The Wise saw Good and Evil both from God, Therefore from both they drew their heart aside.)

Jānāmi ḍharmam na cha mé pra-vrṭṭih,
 Jānāmy-a-ḍharmam na cha mé ni-vrṭṭih ;
 Kén-āpi dēvéna hṛḍi sṭhiténa
 Yaṭha niyukt-osmi ṭaṭh-ācharāmi. (Mbh.)

The good that I would do, that I do not ;
 The evil which I would not, that I do. (B., Paul.)
 Lā ṭaharraka zarraṭin illā ba a'zm-illāh. (H.)
 (No atom stirs except by God's command.)

As a western proverb says : "To understand all is to forgive all." And to understand all is possible only by understanding one's own heart, one's own Self, fully. The only way for each one of us to become really charitable towards all who may seem to be erring, or to be causing hurt to us, is to see, by introspection, a n ṭ a r ḍ ṛ s h t i, p r a ṭ y a k c h e ṭ a n ā, sair-i-nafas, how full of all possible weaknesses, wicked wishes, grievous mistakes, our own heart and life are.

I am the Truth, the Life, the Way. (B.)

Saṭyam saṭsu saḍā ḍharmah...
 saṭy-ākārās-ṭrayo-ḍasha ;

Trayo-dash-aīc-ṭi-balā...

a-saṭyāṭ shaṭravah smṛtāh.

(Mbh., Shānti-parva, chs. 160 and 161.)

(Thirteen chief virtues are but forms of Truth ;

Thirteen chief vices too rise from Untruth.)

Aṭ ṭoī, Mazaḍā !, ṭēm maīnyum asha-okshayanṭāya sarédyayāo khāṭhrā maēṭhā mayā vahīshṭā varéṭū mananghā ayāo aroī hākurénēm yayāo hachinṭé ūrvāno.
(Z., Gāthā, 33. 9)

(May this my Conscience, Mazaḍā !, show to me

The Truth, Thy Inmost Spirit, Greatest Good,

Ideal of Ideals, to guide me

Aright in ways of Righteousness always.

Having achieved that goal, I will have gained

All lesser things to which my soul inclines.)

Saṭyān-n-āṣṭi paro ḍharmah. (Mbh., Shānti, ch. 160.)

(Religion there is none higher than Truth.)

As-Sūfī lā mazhabu laḥū illā mazhab-ul-Haq. (S.)

(Religion else than Truth Sūfis know not.)

The Truth of the real Identity of separate-seeming selves appears as Love in the aspect of Emotion. Love for elders, superiors, becomes Reverence, Adoration, Worship ; for younger, inferiors, Tenderness, Compassion, Pity ; for equals, Friendship, Affection, Esteem. These words, expressive of feelings, indicate the corresponding virtues and duties also. Where the Truth of the Uniting Higher Self reigns, there, inevitably, 'joy becomes duty, and love becomes law', and all virtues wait attendant. Even so, the Untruth of Separateness becomes Hate, which sub-divides into, Fear of the stronger, Anger against equals, Scorn of the weaker, with numerous degrees and modifications.¹

The imperial Rescript of Japan issued in 1890, which is the foundation of the moral education of the growing generations in all the schools of that great nation, and has been a vital factor in its marvellous rejuvenation, paraphrases these same eternal and perennial teachings.² Loyalty, filial piety, family affection, conjugal harmony, truth, friendship, modesty, moderation, benevolence, learning, arts, public good, common ¹For details on this point, the reader may see The Advanced Text Book of Hinduism, Pt. III; The Universal Text Book of Religion and Morals, Pt. II, edited by Dr. Annie Besant; and The Science of the Emotions, chs. 4, 5, 7, 8, by the present writer.

²The above, ré the Imperial Rescript of Japan, was written in 1930. Internal psychological causes, and external political causes and world-causes, have, between that year and the present (1939), driven Japan also within the ambit of the awful Cyclone of War-Mentality; which has been raging, latterly, between rival Imperialist-Militarist-Capitalist-Nationalist Powers, on the one hand, and, on the other, between the antagonistic Ideologists of Socialism-Communism and of Facism-Nazism, respectively; all which only illustrates the difficulty of following the just middle course that Confucius taught equally to both China and Japan; (despite which teaching, China has been torn by internal wars all along, and has now been invaded fiercely by Japan, to forestal others, practically since 1931); and emphasises the need for distributing very extensively and intensively the Spiritual Bread that has been rained interests, respect for just laws, courage, faithfulness, reverence—these are the virtues the Rescript emphasizes, and, as shown above, they all are the sweet and healthy fruits of the tree of non-separateness. The sense of non-separateness, the opposite of separatism, is the source of righteousness, right dealing with one another, whence trust, 'solidarity', 'fraternity', strength, 'alliance for existence'. "Righteousness exalteth a nation;" (B.). Per contra, imperialistic, selfish, ruthless, unrighteous aggressiveness and exploitation abases the nation which practises them, and overthrows it sooner or later by breeding distrust and 'struggle for existence' inside and outside it.

Only he who is wise with the wisdom of the Higher Self can steer safely the difficult course of virtue between vices:

Be straightforward, yet mild; gentle, yet dignified; strong, but untyrannical; energetic, but not arrogant; tolerant, yet stern; mild, yet firm; complacent, but reverent; incisive, yet considerate; docile, yet daring; magnanimous, but discerning; resolute, yet sincere; courageous, but just. (C., Shu King).¹

7. GOD IN MAN.

All religions therefore pre-eminently proclaim the Recognition of the Universal Self, as like manna from Heaven, by all the the Lovers of Mankind, and which only can allay all heart-burnings, assuage all heart-hungers, and create Love in place of Hate, if anything can, at all.

¹See p. 38, supra.

the one sure guide in all situations, the one certain means of effectively subordinating man's lower nature to his higher nature, his lower self to the Higher Self, khudī to Khudā, the nafs-i-ammārā (the sense-ward-driving desire) to the nafs-i-Rahmāni (the Divine Element in man), a-ham-kāra (egoism) to Brahma-bhūya (Universalism, the state of all-including infinite Brahma or God), a-shubhā vāsana (impure desire) to shubhā vāsana (pure desire), a-n-ékātā, bhēda-buddhi, taf-raqā, infisāl, ghairiyat, (sense of separateness), to éka-tā, a-bheda-buddhi, wahdat, ittisāl, a'iniyat, (sense of unity), sv-ārtha to par-ārtha and param-ārtha, khud-gharazī to bé-gharazī, doshas to guṇas, razāel to fazāel, egoism to altruism and universalism, selfishness to unselfishness, vices to virtues, competitiveness to co-operativeness, individualism to socialism and communism in the finest and only true sense; viz., in the sense of spiritual equality, or rather, identity, and material equitability (not an impossible material equalitarianism).¹

¹The reader may see Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism, by the present writer, for fuller considerations.

A doubt may arise here. It is said above that the recognition of the Universal Self enables us to subdue our lower Self. But on the other hand, it is also true that unless change of heart takes place, the vision of the One does not arise. Apparently there is a vicious circle. What is the solution? This: Both

In the system of Confucius :

Jen is the fundamental virtue. It is sympathy, fellow-feeling. This fellow-feeling is the reason of the Golden Rule. It is the Tao ; it is the road which must be travelled by every human being. The Tao is the feeling of fellowship, and the feeling of fellowship is the Tao. Without it, one will not be kept from doing to others what one would not have done by others to him. All virtues spring from Jen, the high and the low are ever-present, ever bound together, in every one of us, in all Nature, God's Nature, our nature. They are always turning round and round each other. Now the one is uppermost ; again the other prevails. The going down of either, coincides naturally with the rising up of the other. This phenomenon appears in the human mind as the wish and effort to put one down and lift up the other. A friend once asked : "I have acquired an intellectual understanding of the Vêdānta—the doctrine of the One Life ; but how can I realise it ?" I asked : "What distinction do you make between intellectual understanding and realisation ?" He said : "Keeping the truth always in mind, and acting it out in all deeds." "Very good ; now, what is the difference between some times and always, some deeds and all deeds ? Is it not one of degree only ?" "Yes." "The same is the difference between intellectual understanding and realisation, paroksha and a-paroksha, śanīdāh and āīdāh, 'the heard' and 'the seen'. There can be no intellectual understanding without some degree of realisation, at least in imagination. Continuous understanding and corresponding constant action—is only a higher degree, much higher, let us grant, of intellectual understanding".

loyalty, filial piety, courage, wisdom, propriety, faithfulness, righteousness, long-suffering, humaneness, benevolence. There are only two moral principles, fellow-feeling or Altruism, and its opposite, Egoism. Jen, fellow-feeling, is man himself. Jen is the reason of love. Only different shades of meaning of Jen are, prosperity, kindheartedness, charity, sincere sympathy, and unselfishness. When a man behaves as his heart desires, yet never transgresses the mean, he has reached perfect adjustment between natural impulses and moral discipline. He is now Jen itself. He is Seng Jen, a holy man. He behaves as freely and innocently as a child fresh from the bosom of nature, and all that he does never deviates from the Middle Way, Chung Tao.¹

We have only to read Jen and Tao as the Higher Self to see that the above is nothing else than Védānta and Ṭasawwuf. Jen as fellow-feeling flows from non-Egoism, un-self-ishness, the suppression and denial of the lower self; which in turn, is the result of the conscious or sub-conscious predominance of Jen as the Higher Self; on identification with which, the sage is known as Seng Jen, Brahmābhūṭa, Jīvan-mukṭa, Insān-i-kāmil.

N-iṣṭ anḍar jubba-am ḡhair az Kḥuḍā. (S.)

(There's naught within my robe but God Him-Self.)

Lisā fī jnbbatīn siwā Allah. (S.)

(What else-than-God is there within my cloak?)

Brahm-aiva san Brahm-āpyēti.

¹ Abridged from Suzuki, History of Chinese Philosophy pp. 51-56, in his own words.

Brahma véda, Brahm-aiva bhavaṭi.
 Taḍ Brahm-āsmī-aham A-dvayam. (U.)
 Brahma sam-paḍyaṭé taḍā. (U., G.)
 (He knoweth Brahm' who is already Brahm' ;
 'Brahma am I, other-less, secondless.'
 Cleansed of all sins, holy in body-mind,
 Knowing the cyclic process of the world,
 His being, all and whole, becometh Brahm'.)
 Ā'rīf o mā'rūf ba mā'ni yak aṣṭ ;
 Ā'n ke Kḥuḍā rā be-shināsaḍ Kḥuḍā-st. (S.)
 (The Knower and the Known are but the same Who knoweth God is God ; God knows Him-Self.)

Uṭṭamā saha-jā-vasthā... ;
 Brahma-bhūyā-ya kalpaṭé.

Kantakam kantakén-éva,
 yéna tyajasi tam tyaja.

(Purāṇa, G., U.)

(The nat'ral state is best...the state of Brahm'.
 As when a thorn has pierced into the foot
 Men with another thorn do draw it out,
 And then cast both the thorns away from them,
 So, now that worldly things have been renounced,
 Renounce renunciation, and be Free.)
 Sar-barahna n-iṣṭam, dāram kulāhé chār tark,
 Tark-e-dunyā, tark-e-uqbā, tark-e-Maulā,
 tark-e-tark. (S.)

(Upon my head I bear a four-fold helm ;
 Of four renunciations is it made ;
 Renunciation of (1) this world, (2) the next,
 (3) God personal, (4) renunciation too.)

Tyaja dharmam a-sankalpād,
 a-dharmam chāpy-alipsayā,
 Ubhé saty-ānṛṭé buddhyā,
 buddhim param-nishchayāt.

Ṭyaḃa ḁharmam a-ḁharmam cha,
 taṭhā saṭy-ānrṭé ṭyaḃa,
 Ubhé saṭy-ānrṭé ṭyaktvā
 Yéna ṭyajaṣi ṭan ṭyaḃa.

(Mbh., Shānti, 329-344.)

Vāsanās-ṭvam pari-ṭyaḃya
 Moksh-ārḥiṭvam aḃi ṭyaḃa. (Muktika U.)
 Na pāpam na cha vā punyam, na baṇḁho n-āḃi mokshaṇam,
 Na sukhām na cha vā ḁukḁham
 iṭy-éshā param-ārṭhaṭā. (U.)

(Cease to initiate new acts, so shalt thou cease
 To make new bonds of 'merit' ; cease from greed
 Of any gain, so shalt thou cease from 'sin' ;
 Pass from the relatively true and false—
 By judging well the nature of the two ;
 Then quitting that for which thou givest up,
 Renouncing 'worldly false' and 'worldly true',
 Rise above both, fast holding to the One.
 Give up desire for e'en Deliverance.
 Nor sin nor merit ; neither bond nor free ;
 Nor joy nor sorrow—this, the Verity.)

Mam-éṭi baḁhyaṭé jaṇṭur-, na mam-éṭi vi-muchyaṭé,
 Aham-ṭā-mama-ṭé ṭyaktvā,
 mukṭo bhava, mahā-maṭé ! (U.)

(Bondage is—"mine" ; Freedom—to say
 "not mine" ;

Give up I-ness and mine-ness and be free !)

Qalam anḁar ba sūraṭ ḁhvésh bar zan,
 Hisāré-nafs rā az béḁḁ bar kan.
 Tā na garḁaḁ nafs ṭāba' rūḁ rā,
 Kai ḁawā yāḃi ḁilé majrūḁ rā. (S.)

(Thy pen strike through the writing of thy 'self' ;
Dig up this fortress of thy lower self !
Until this lower self (nafs) submits itself
Unto the higher Self (ruh), till then thy heart, Thy wounded heart, will know no rest from pain.)

A western poet has put the same idea in other words :

Love took up the harp of life,
And smote on all the chords with might ;
Smote the chord of 'self,' which, trembling,
Passed in music out of sight. (TENNYSON.)

Christian mystics have put the idea more powerfully and nobly than this poet :

Though Christ a thousand times in Bethlehem be born
But not within thyself,
thy soul will be forlorn ;
The Cross of Golgotha thou lookest to in vain,
Unless within thyself it be set up again.
(SCHEFFLER.)

The Sūfīs have said, similarly :

Nūh guft, 'Ai sar-kashān ! man man na-yam,
Man zi jān murdam, zi Jānāu mī ziyam.
Chūn bi-murdam az hawās-é-bul-bashar,
Haq ma-rā shud samm o idrāk o basar.
Chūn ki man man n-īstam, īn dam zi-Ūst,
Pēsh-e īn dam har ke dam zad kāfir ūst. (S.)
(Said Noah to his disobedients :

Ye faithless ones !, have faith !, I am not I ;
Believe that my small self died long ago ;
The One Life of all life now lives in Me !
When all the senses died within my being,
Of sep'rate individuality,

Then Truth, God, came and dwelt within my heart,
And was my understanding, ear, eye, speech.

Yea, only since my death I truly live ;
Whate'er lived in me ere that was my foe.)

And the Buddha too :

(They call me Gauṭama who have no faith
In what I say ; but they who do believe—
As the Enlightened One, the Buddha, they Call Me, the Teacher, and the Blessed One.
And this is right ; for even in this life,
Have I passed to Nirvāṇa, and the being
Of Gauṭama has been extinguish'd.)

And Enoch walked with God ; and he was not ;
for God took him. (B.)

He that findeth his life shall lose it ; and he that loseth his life for My sake shall find it. [And again]
Whosoever will save his life shall lose it ; and whosoever will lose his life for My sake shall find it. [And again] He that loveth his life shall lose it ; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal. (B.)

Sira rākhé sira jāṭa hai, sira kāté sira hoe ;
Jaisé bāṭī dīpa kī,
kati ujyārā hoe.
Sīsa uṭarai, bhuṁ ḍharai,
ṭā para rākhai pāo,
Ḍāsa Kabīrā yon kahai,
aisā ho ṭo āo. (KABIR.)

(Wilt keep thy head ? Then it will be cut off !
But cut it off thyself, thou'lt grow a better !
Snip the burnt wick, a brighter flame will glow !

Cut off thy head, thy smaller selfish self,
And place thy foot upon it fixedly !
If thou canst do so, then come unto Me !)

Jesus says :

Believest thou not that I am in the Father and the Father in me ? The words that I speak unto you,
I speak not of myself ; but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works. (B.)

And St. Paul :

I live, and yet not I, but Christ liveth in me. (B.)

So the Qurān, though uttered by the Prophet
Muhammād, was spoken by God :

Gar che Qur-ān az labé Paighambar aşt,
Har ke goyađ Haq na gufta Kāfir aşt. (S.)
(The Qurān through the Prophet's lips did come,
But whoso says God spoke it not, speaks false.)

Ishvarah sarva-bhūtānām hrđ-dēshé-(A)rjuna ! tisthhaṭi, Bhrāmayan sarva-bhūtāni
yantr-ārūdhāni māyayā. (G.)

(God dwelleth in all hearts and turneth them Around, as by machinery, at will.)

Sarv-ājīvé sarva-samsthé brhanťé
Asmin Ham-so bhrāmyaté Brahma-chakré,
Prthag-Ātmānam Preritāram cha matvā ;
Jushtas-taṭas-Tēn-āmṛtaṭvam éti. (U.)
(This Whirling Wheel of Brahma, vast, immense,
This 'Planetarium', 'Asterarium',
In which all souls are whirling without rest,
And being born and dying o'er and o'er,
So long as they believe they are the 'whirled',
Fixed on the spokes and tyres, all separate
From the Fixed Whirler at the Central Nave—

Whoever glimpses his Identity
 With It, at once gains Immortality
 And finds himself at Rest in Heart of Peace.)
 Shrēsthām vāṇijyam ṛtām amṛtām cha mē-stī !
 Māṛtyén-āham krīṭa-vān asmy-Amāṛtyam.
 Jānāmy-aham shevaḍhīr-ity-anītyam,
 Na hy-a-ḍhruvaḥ pr-āpyatē hi Ḍhruvam Ṭaṭ ;
 Ṭaṭo mayā, Nachī-kēṭash !, chiṭo-(Agnih) ;
 A-nītyair-ḍravyaḥ pr-āṭa-vān-asmi Nītyam !
 (Behold ! My trafficking is truest, best,
 And profitable most ! For I have sold
 My mortal 'pottage' all, and bought with it
 My 'birthright' of Immortal Affluence !
 I know all store of worldly goods doth pass,
 And the un-sure can never win the Sure ;
 Therefore have I invoked the Fire Divine
 And burnt up in It all these transiencies,
 And by that sacrifice of mortal things
 Have I obtained th' Immortal Self of All !

God (the Sense of Oneness with all, and all that that means) descends into and fills wholly, He blooms and blossoms in, the soul that opens itself out to Him by Love Universal. God loves His lover and identifies Himself with him, so that whatever the latter does, he does in the Great King's name, and by His Royal Warrant.¹

¹As has been said by a great teacher, "Personality is the synonymn for limitation ; the more selfish, the more contracted, the person's ideas, the closer will be cling to the lower spheres of being, the longer loiter on the plane of selfish social intercourse." Yet this experience of even intense personality, of existence as an individual separate from other individuals, is

Yé bhajanṭi tu Mām bhakṭyā,
 Mayi té tēshu ch-āpy-Aham. (G.)
 (Who love Me are in Me, and I in them.)
 Dāsānām anu dāso-(A)ham. (Bh.)
 (I am the servant of My servants ever.)
 (Whoso advanceth but a span to Me,
 I go a cubit unto him—saith God.) (H.)

No man can come to Me except the Father...draw him...Abide in Me and I in you.....I am in my Father, and ye in Me, and I in you. We know that we dwell in Him, and He in us, because He hath given us of His Spirit. (B.)

F-azkurūni azkarakum w-ashkurūli
 wa lā takfurūn. (Q.)
 (Avoiding gratefully all sense of separateness, Think of Me e'er, and I will think of you.)
 Yo Mām pashyaṭi sarvaṭra,
 sarvam cha Mayi pashyaṭi,
 Tasy-Āham na pra-ṇashyāmi,
 sa cha Mé na pra-ṇashyati. (G.)
 (Who seeth Me in all, and all in Me,
 I ne'er lose hold of him, nor he of Me.)

Obviously, the purpose of Love-Devotion is Union; Marriage, in the case of physical bodies; Identification, in the case of jīva and Īshvara, necessary, unavoidable, on the arc of descent. The craving for immortality begins as a conscious craving for personal immortality, at the junction point, where Descent ends and Ascent begins; it ends with the realisation that Immortality belongs to the Impersonal, and that personalities are not separate from each other, but are all, always, ever, everywhere, identified in and with the Impersonal and Universal.

rūh and Rūh-ul-arwāh, individual soul-spirit and Universal Spirit. The Samskr̥t word na mah, 'salutation', interpreted according to the methods of the Nirukta, means na, not, ma h, 'I', i.e., 'not I but Thou'; 'Thy will, not mine'; not the individual ego, but the Universal Ego. In some Védic prayers, the closing words are, more expressly, na ma ma, 'not mine'. This is the inner significance of 'I bow to thee', i.e., 'I bow to Thy Will', 'I submit to and will carry out Thy command.'

Whatsoever thou lovest
That become thou must ;
God if thou love God,
Dust if thou love dust.

If thou dwellest on the lowest
Then the lowest must thou be ;
Fix thy thought upon the Highest,
And the Highest shalt thou be.

(ENGLISH POETS.)

Har ān chīzé ke mā'būdē to āmaḍ,
Hamān Maulā-e-mā'būdē to āmaḍ ;
Har ān chīzé ke ḍāyam ḍar ḍilē ṭ-ust,
Hamān, hush ḍar, ākḥir hāsile ṭ-ust.
Gar gul guzaraḍ ba khāṭir-aṭ, gul bāshī ;
Wa-r bulbule bé-qarār, bulbul bāshī ;
Ṭu juzw-ī, wa Haq Kul aṣṭ; gar rozé chand,
Andēsha-i Kul pésha kunī, Kul bāshī. (S.).
(Whatever with thy heart thou dost desire,
That is thy God adored, undoubtedly ;
Whatever thing is in thy heart alway,
That, be thou sure, thou shalt attain, at last.
If rose be in thy heart, thou'lt be a rose ;

If nightingale, then that sweet-singing bird.
 Thou art a part, God is the Whole ; if thou Engage and occupy thy-self, some while,
 With that Great Whole, it will fill all thy being,
 And make thee Whole. The Part becomes the Whole.)

Shraddhā-mayo-(a)yam purushah,
 Yo yaṭ-shraddhah sa éva sah.
 Anṭa-kāléc cha, Mām éva
 Smaran, mukṭvā kalévaram,
 Yah prayāṭī sa Maḍ-bhāvam
 Yāṭi, n-āsty-aṭra samshayah.
 Yam yam vā-pi smaran bhāvam
 Tyajaṭy-anṭé Kalévaram,
 Tam ṭam ev-aiti, Kauntṛya !
 Saḍā ṭaḍ-bhāva-bhāviṭah. (G.)

(The man is what he loves with all his heart,
 And places utter faith in as the Truth.
 Whatever thought he harbours in his mind
 Most closely at the time that he does cast
 His body off—to corresponding state,
 In the next world, and in this world again,
 He comes, in-form-ed and guided by that mood.
 If he should pass out of his prison of flesh,
 Thinking of Me, fixing his heart on Me,
 Then, let none doubt, he will come unto Me, Become One with Me, and attain My Being.)

On this metaphysical and psychological law seems based the beautiful Christian ceremony of administering the Last Unction and receiving the Confession of Faith, before the departing soul withdraws all sign of earthward consciousness ;
 the other religions also enjoin more or less similar solemn ceremonies for the purification of the last thoughts of the departing soul; after which, the inward and upward retirement should not be disturbed even by whispered Vêda-hymn or Qurân-verse or other scripture-reading, however sacred.¹ And, since the law of analogy

¹“At the last moment the whole life is reflected in our memory, and emerges from all the forgotten nooks and corners, picture after picture, one event after the other. The dying brain dislodges memory with a strong supreme impulse, and memory restores faithfully every impression entrusted to it during the period of the brain's activity. That impression and thought which was the strongest, naturally becomes the most vivid, and survives, so to say, all the rest...No man dies insane or unconscious....Even a madman, or one in a fit of delirium tremens, will have his instant of perfect lucidity, at the moment of death, though unable to say so to those present. The man may often appear dead. Yet from the last pulsation, from and between the last throbbing of his heart and the moment when the last spark of animal heat leaves the body—the brain thinks, and the Ego lives, in those few brief seconds, his whole life over again. Speak in whispers, ye, who assist at a death-bed, and find yourselves in the solemn presence of Death. Especially have you to keep quiet just after Death has laid her clammy hand upon the body. Speak in whispers, lest you disturb the quiet ripple of thought, and hinder the busy work of the Past casting on its reflections upon the veil of the future....It is a wide-spread belief among all the Hindus that a person's future pre-natal state and birth are moulded by the last desire he may have at the time of death. But this last desire, they say, neces-prevails throughout, since the small is as the great, and deep sleep is similar to death ; therefore, little children should be tenderly and reverently taught, and all grown-up men and women should make it a rule, to recite some beautiful, holy, soul-elevating, heart-refining verses of earnest prayer, before they go to sleep each night ; so, their dreams will be beautiful, their minds will make sub-and-supra-conscious progress, and their subtler inner bodies will develope rightly.

Where the identification between the individual and the Universal Soul has been really and genuinely made ; when the individual body, by purity, self-denial, wisdom, has become 'fit temple for God' ; then only may 'miraculous powers' be entrusted to, and be exercised by, it, without danger :

Whatsoever ye ask in My name,
that shall be done. (B.)

Kḥāsān-i-Khudā Khudā na bāshand, Lékin ze Kḥudā judā na bāshand. (S.).

sarily hinges on to the shape which the person may have given to his desires, passions, etc., during his past life. It is for this very reason, viz.—that our last desire may not be unfavorable to our favorable progress—that we have to watch our actions, and control our passions and desires throughout our whole earthly career ;" The Mahatma Letters, pp. 170-171. This is for the ordinary human being ; the daily prayers and worships and ethical injunctions of all religions help towards such happy ending. The conditions of Y o g a - s i d d h a - s are, of course, different.

(The favorites of God may not be God,
But neither are they separate from God.)

Mayi dhārayaṭash-chétah,

Upa-ṭishthanṭi siddhayah. (Bh.)

(He who hath fixed his heart, his soul, in Me,
My Powers and Perfections wait on him.).

The Yoga and Védānta mention the grades of Siddhas and Rṣhis; Sūfis speak of such as Kāmil, Akmal, Mokammal, etc.; Buddhism mentions Chohans, Dhyān Chohans, Boḍhisattvas, Buddhas; Jainism, Arhaṭs, Siddhas, Munis, Tīrthan-karas, etc.; Christianity also mentions hierarchies of Saints and Angels, etc.¹

Angels...principalities...powers;...gods, whether in heaven or in earth,...gods many and lords many;...principality, and power,...and dominion;...principalities and powers in heavenly places...(B., Romans, Corinthians, Ephesians, etc.)

A GREAT DANGER. As on the Path of Knowledge there is the great danger of mistaking the lower self for the Great Self; so, on the Path of Devotion, there is that of supposing love of some one person or personal deity to be the whole of true Universal Love; mistaking ishq-i-majāzī (selfish love) for ishq-i-haqīqī (selfless divine love); imagining kāma and rāga to be bhakti and préma. Kḥudā must be very carefully distinguished from kḥudī; the nafs-i-lāwāmā, (the soul that warns, the warning voice), the nafs-i-mutmainna, (the soul of peace), the nafs-i-mulhima, (the soul that receives divine inspirations), and the nafs-i-rahmāni, (the soul of divine compassion), from the nafs-i-ammārā, (the earth-ward soul of worldly sensuousness);¹ the shuddham manas, the pure mind, from the a-shuddham manas, the impure mind; the higher Svā from the lower sva; otherwise, indeed, Svārāj, Self-government will become devil-government.

¹See pp., 200-201, sup

Dvā Suparṇā sayujā sakhāyā

Samānam vṛkṣam paṇi-shasvajāṭe;

Ṭayor-ékah pippalam svādu aṭṭi,

An-ashnan anyo abhi-chākashīṭi. (U.)

(Two birds of wondrous plumage rest awhile

On this most curious tree of bodied life;

One eats the sweet-sour fruits with eager greed,

And suffers many ills in consequence;

The other looketh on compassionately.)

Very subtle is this dangerous Error of egoism. A hair's-breadth divides heaven from hell. Both are ever-present in us. Now the one prevails; now the other. The wish to save, is heavenly; the wish to become a saviour, may lead to purgatory.

Innahū jasro jahannum wa inna alaihe mamarro jamī-il-khalq, aḍaqqo minn-as-shair wa aḥaḍḍo minn-as-saif. (Q.)

¹ Nafs-i-ammārā may be regarded as the equivalent of trshṇā-chiṭṭam or vyuṭṭhāna-chiṭṭam; nafs-i-lawwāmā, of ni-shédha- or ni-roḍha-chiṭṭam; nafs-i-muṭmainna, of pra-shama-chiṭṭam; nafs-i-ruhmānī, of mahā-karuṇā-chiṭṭam; nafs-i-mulhīma, of praṭi-bhā-chiṭṭam or yoga-chiṭṭam. See p. 204, supra.

(Over Avernus runs, thin as a hair,
Sharp as a sword, a bridge o'er which must pass
All souls—only the good can safely cross it.)

Kshurasya dhārā nishīṭā ḍur-āṭyayā
Ḍurgam paṭhas-ṭaṭ kavayo vaḍanti. (U.)
(Sharp as the razor's edge is th' ancient path,
Most difficult to tread—the wise ones say.)

Ashīma ashāī vohu kshathrēm mananghā...fro ṭāish vīspāish Chinvato frafro pérētum ..yéng khé ūrvā khaéché khraoḍaṭa ḍaénā hyaṭ aībī-gémén yaṭhrā Chinvato pérētush, yavoī vīspaī ḍrujo démānāī aṣṭayo...Yā isho ṣṭaonghaṭ ā paīṭhī ākāo aróḍréng ḍémāné garo séraoshāné. (Z., Gaṭha, 46. 10, 11 ; 50. 4.)

(With Conscience, Rectitude, and self-control
As Guides, enable us to cross the Bridge,
Chinvat, 'Discriminating' right and wrong,
And 'separating' good from evil souls.
'Th' unhappy souls whose Self condemns themselves,
When they come to the Bridge that 'separates',
Are thrust away into the House of Lies,
And have to suffer there long lengths of time.
I worship Thee, O Lord !, that on the way
Unto the house of Beatific Song,
The Song of Deep Devotion unto Thee,
I may pass safely, e'er adoring Thee.)
(The soul of man, in joy of holiness,
Of perfect holiness, walks o'er the bridge,
Far-known, well-kept, the mighty Chinvat Bridge, Safely and steadily by virtue's aid.)

(Z., Vishtasp, vi, 42.)

Strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it ;
[yet also] the kingdom of God is within you. (B.)

The meaning is that the higher Self is within us, and the lower self is also within us; to pass from the one to the other is very, very, difficult; and yet also very easy. A geometrical line runs between our higher nature and our lower nature; each is always trying to pull the soul over this line to its own side.¹

¹In the Védic and Purāṇic mythos, one of the Creator Brahmā's mānasa-puṭra-s, 'mind-born sons', Kashyapa (an anagram of Pashyaka, the 'Seer', Sūri, Sūrya, the Sun) marries A-ḍiṭi and Ḍiṭi (the spiritual and the material aspects or natures of the Earth); by the former, he procreates the āḍiṭya-s, ḍéva-s, gods; by the latter, the ḍaṭiṭya-s, titans. The 'step-brothers' are ever at war, and prevail by turns.

Ḍévaśh-cha Asurāśh-cha prakṛṭayah.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHARYA, Bhāṣhya on Chhāṇḍogya U.)

(Gods, titans—the two Nature-qualities,

Good, evil; altruism and egoism;

Both are inherent in each living thing.)

In the Hebrew, Christian, and Islamic legend, God creates angels; and the highest of them, Azazel, promptly developes pride, ahamkāra, khubdā, rebels, and becomes Satan, the prince of d'evils. God then creates the Garden of Eden (the far past Satya-yuga, the Golden Age); puts Adam, sexless, there; then takes a 'rib' out of Adam and makes Eve; which signifies that man gradually became hermaphrodite, androgyne, and then separated into two different sexes. God forbade the two to eat of the fruit of the Tree of Knowledge. But Satan entered the Garden and beguiled them into eating it; i. e., into knowing each other carnally; and they 'fell' out of the Garden, and clothed themselves in skins; i. e., they sank deeper and deeper into matter, and were born into denser and denser bodies; and the Human Race knew the joys and woes of involution and evolution. Such was the 'original sin', 'a-viḍyā', 'error'. Bye and bye, when Christos, the 'anointed with Spiritual Wisdom', arises within man, he attains the 'second childhood' of pure and perfected 'Nocence', in place of the 'in-nocence', 'ignorance', of first childhood; and then he re-enters Heaven.

THE ONE SAFEGUARD. All souls that would

A witty English writer has remarked: "Adam was the first cad; he peached against his wife; when questioned by God, he said, 'She tempted me'." He has done injustice to his primal progenitor. What Adam meant was obviously what a child would mean if he said: "The mango tempted me and I did eat", i. e., the mango was tempting. Even so, those first human children of God were tempting to each other, and 'in-nocently' committed 'the original sin'. With this sin are connected all possible emotions, 'sense of shame and guilt' of selfish sexuality, as well as 'sense of fulfilment, satisfaction, (honest and righteous 'pride', the opposite of 'shame'), and virtue of unselfish parenthood—which is the redemption of that sin.

In the wider and deeper sense, 'the original sin' is the putting on at all of a body of matter, however ethereal at first. This 'error' of identification of the Infinite with a 'finite' is the prime cause of all 'misery', kléśha, (as well as corresponding pleasures). In terms of the Yoga, from this original a-viḍyā, arise successively, asmitā, rāga, dvéśha, abhinivéśha, i. e., egoism, like, dislike, 'stubbornness', (clinging infatuation, confirmed sentiment, 'complex' personality walk on this sword-edge bridge-path and pass through this strait gate safely, must cultivate made up of loves and hates and all sorts of derivative emotions. 'Pleasures' as well as 'pains', inseparable, are both included under kléśha, 'misery', by Védānta and Yoga, from the standpoint of the vivékī, 'the sensitive and discriminating thinker'; not from that of the ordinary person, immersed in the world.

We look before and after,
And pine for what is not;
Our sincerest laughter
With some pain is fraught;
Our sweetest songs are those
That tell of saddest thought.

(SHELLEY).

In the Zoroastrian Scheme, Spēta Mainyu and Angra Mainyu, 'the bright mind' and 'the dark mind', are the ever-working ever-opposed forces. (One is tempted to think that the English word 'anger' is connected with this Zend word 'angra', and the Skt. 'angha', to blame, and 'agha', sin). Popularly, but not correctly, Ormuzd (Hormuzd, Ahura-Mazada) has been substituted for Spēta, (Skt. shvéta, white), and Angra-mainyu has been transformed into Ahriman. Philosophically, Ahura-Mazada is the source of both Spēta and Angra.

Thus, always, everywhere, has the human mind recognised the inevitable ineffaceable 'antagonism' of the Dual Principles; an 'antagonism' which is also a 'protagonism'; for, without both, the World-process were impossible.

Yad dévā akurvams-ṭad-ḍaityā
abhi-ḍṛṭya pāpmanā avidhyan. (U.)

Love Universal selflessly, by constantly meditating on the presence of the Self in all.

(What the gods made, the titans ran behind
And stained with sin ; hence nothing in the world
Is free of either virtue or of vice.)

N-āṭy-anṭam guṇa-vaṭ kin-chin-

N-āṭy-anṭam ḍoṣha-vaṭ ṭaṭhā. (Mbh.)

(Nothing is wholly good or wholly ill.)

The Indian maker of famous hymns, Sūr Dās, sings,

Dayā-niḍhi ! Tērī gaṭi lakhi na parai !

Akarama karama, karama tēn a-karama,

A-ḍharama ḍharama karai ! (SŪR DĀS.)

(Lord of Pity ! We know not thy way !

Out of sin Thou drawest virtue ; from it, sin in play !)

The renowned Scotch novelist, Sir Walter Scott, has included a song to Ahriman, in his story, The Talisman, which is a commentary on the text quoted above from the Upanishads.

Dark Ahriman ! whom Irak still Holds origin of woe and ill !...

Sure art thou mixed in Nature's source

An ever-operating force,

Converting good to ill ;

An evil principle innate,

Contending with our better fate,

And, Oh ! victorious still !

Where'er a sunny gleam appears,

To brighten up our vale of tears,

Thou art not distant far ;

'Mid such brief solace of our lives,

Thou whett'st our very banquet-knives

To tools of death and war.

Mitṛasya chakshushā sarvāṇi bhūṭāṇi paśhyéyam. (V.)
(May I behold all beings with the friend's eye.)

Evam tu paṇḍitair jñātvā
sarva-bhūṭa-mayam Harim Kīyaṭé sarva-bhūṭéshu bhaktir-a-vyabhi-chāriṇī.

(Vishṇu-Purāṇa.)

Yas tu sarvāṇi bhūṭāṇi
Ātmany-év-ānu-paśyaṭi,
Sarva-bhūṭéshu ch-Ātmānam,
taṭo na vi-jugupsaṭé. (U.)

(The wise, who see the Lord enshrined in all,
Give service unto all in consequence.
Who seeth in all beings the Self, him-Self,
And all in the same Self, he hates no more.)
Ai ba chashmān-ī-dīl ma-bīn juz doṣṭ,
Har che bīnī bi-ḍāu ke mazhar-ī-Ū-st. (S.)
(Friend! with the loving vision of the heart
Naught else than friend canst thou see anywhere.
Thou knowest now that all are but His forms.)

Ab haun kāson baira karaun,
Phirata pukāraṭa Prabhu nija mukha tēn
Ghata ghata Haun biharaun. (SŪR DĀS.)
(How may I bear hate now to any one,
When my own Lord goes round proclaiming loud

[Lurking and working ever, thou,
The human heart within,
All wish, most virtuous-seeming now,]
Thou goadest into Sin !
But also, on the other hand,
An ever greater glory springs
From ruins of the broken past ;
And sin its own repentance brings,
Till Man stands Perfected at last.

With his own blessed lips : "I am at play Hidden behind the beating of all hearts.")

Jo gḥair kū āp kar pichāné,
Phir kyūn karé ḍushmanī, dīwānē !

(S., BAHRI, Man-lagan.)

(O lunatic !, if thou dost recognise That others are thy-Self, whom canst thou hate ?)

Hama dost, 'all are friends', is the necessary consequence of Hama Ū-st, 'all is He.'

Such is the Way of Devotion, the way of tasfiya-i-dil, (from safā, clean, pure, whence also Sūfi and *Tasawwuf*¹, or chitta-parikarma or chitta-prasādanam, (as the Yoga-shāstra calls it), 'the cleansing of the heart,' 'the toilette of the mind,' 'the purification of the soul'—with its disciplines and practices, its vows and observances, negative and positive, its storing and perfecting of the five virtues and the further virtues, its casting off of sins, its gradually complete self-effacement, its extinction of the lower smaller worse egoistic self. It is but another and inherent aspect of the Way of Knowledge, for the realization of the identity of all selves in the Universal Self.

THE CROWNING VIRTUE OF HUMILITY. A very important teaching of all religions is that we should welcome the strokes of fortune as coming from God, our own Inmost Self, for our soul's chastening and refinement and further progress on the Path of Ascension, Ūrdhva-gaṭi, Āroha, ¹See p. 246, supra.

Qaus-i-Urūj, the Arc of Ascent, the opposite of the Path of Declension, Aḍh-o-gaṭi, Āv-āroha Qaus-i-nazūl, the Arc of Descent.

Whom the Lord loveth, He chasteneth. (B.)

Yasy-ānu-graham ichchhāmi

ṭasya sarvam harāmy-Aham. (Bh.)

Ārṭo, jīñāsar-arṭh-ārṭhī, jñānī cha, Bharat-arshabha !

Chaṭur-vidhā bhajanṭe Mām,

janāh sukrṭino-(A)rjuna ! (G.)

(Whom I wish well unto, I rob of all

That he holds dearest and most near his heart ;

Thus stricken from the world, he comes to seek

With deadly earnestness to know the Truth

Of how the wealth of Happiness is found ;

And then he learns the Supreme Final Truth

That Happiness is Self and in the Self—

Such the four states of him who loveth Me.)

Ezā ahabb Allāho a'bḍan

agḥtammahū b-il-balāc. (H.)

(When God doth love a servant, then he sends

Sorrows to try him, and embraces him

Around the neck with arm of adverse fate.)

Wa la nablowannakum be shai-im min al-khaufe w-al-jū-e wa naqsim min al-amwālī w-al-anfusi w-as-samarāt ; wa bashshiris sābirīn allazīna ezā asabaṭa-hum musībaṭun qālu, inna l-illāhi wa inna ilaihi rāje-ūn, ulā-ika alaihim salawāṭum miṭrrabehim wa rahmah ;
wa ulāika humul moḥṭadūn. (Q.)

(Ye will be tried in many ways, indeed ;

With fears and hungers, yea, with loss of fruit,

And loss of property and life itself.

But unto those who, when afflictions fall

Upon them, say, calmly and patiently,

'We all are God's, to Him shall we return,'
 Unto them give this good news that ye are
 The foll'wers of the right course on which rest
 The Mercy and the Blessings of the Lord.)

Fuqr bhī hai Haq kī bakhshāyish kā ganj
 Jis sé khush ho dé usī bandē ko ranj. (S.)
 Fahm o khāṭir tēz kardān n-īst rāh
 Juz shikāṣṭa mī na gīraḍ fazl-i-Shāh. (S.)
 (Want is a blessing in disguise from Him ;
 Who pleases Him, to him He sendeth pain ;
 To sharpen th' intellect is not the Way ;
 The Royal Gift is for the broken heart.)

Kshudhā-ṭrsh-ārtā janānīm smaranti.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA.)

(Children forget the mother, in their play,
 Until they feel a-hungred and a-thirst.)

Heaven makes hard demands on faith.

(C., Shi King, THR., 38.)

Humility is the root of honour, lowliness the foundation of loftiness ; the world's weakest overcomes the world's hardest.

(T., Tao Teh King, THR., 102.)

Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall....The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge. (B. Prov.)

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation ; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him.
 (B., James.)

Té aṭi-mānén-aiva parā-babhūviré ; tasmān n-āṭi-manyéta ; parā-bhavya h-aītan mukham, yaḍ aṭi-mā-
 nah. (V., Shatapatha Brāhmaṇa.)

(The titans took great pride ; therefore they fell.
Let no one therefore overween himself.
Pride is the very gateway to defeat.)

Pérésā chā nāo yā hōī ;...
Rafédhrāya vōuru-chashāné dōīshī mōī
yā vé avifrā. (Z., Gāṭhā, 43. 10 ; 33. 13.)
(Put tests and questions on me, Mazaḍā !
Whate'er afflictions Thou mayst put on me,
As blissful favours will I take them all.)

Blessed are the poor in Spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven...Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth...Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you...for great is your reward in heaven. (B.)

The Kingdom of God cometh not with observation ; neither shall they say, lo here !, or lo there ! ; for behold, the kingdom of God is within you. (B., Luke.)

It is better to hear the rebuke of the wise, than... the song (of praise) of fools. (B., Eccles.)

Yam pra-shamsanṭi kīṭavāh,
Yam pra-shamsanṭi chāraṇāh,
Yam pra-shamsanṭi bandhakayah,
Na sa jīvaṭi mānushah. (Mbh.)
Sulabhāh purushāh, Rājan !,
Saṭaṭam priya-vāḍmah ;
A-priyasya cha paṭhyasya
Vaktā shrotā cha ḍur-labhah.

(VALMIKI, Rāmāyaṇa.)

(The man who fills with joy and swells with pride,
When he is praised by gamblers and paid bards
And vicious women—he is dead though living.
Easy to find are men who always speak
Soft, pleasing, honeyed words of flattery ;

Rare—who speak fearless, and who humbly hear,
Words that are harsh to hear but good to heed.)

Even if we brothers over the whole earth give good examples of holiness and edification—in that is not the perfect happiness; even if we spoke all tongues and knew all wisdom and the whole of the scriptures, and were able to reveal the future and the secrets of the heart; even if we spoke with the tongues of angels and knew the courses of the stars and the powers of herbs, and all the treasures of the earth were revealed to us, and all virtues and powers of birds and beasts and fishes and also the properties of mankind and of trees and stones and roots and water—even in that there is not perfect happiness. When we endure abuse of words and wickedness of treatment, without becoming angry, when we instead think in humility that we are really deserving of it all—that is perfect happiness. If we endure patiently hunger and cold and blows, and all sorts of suffering, injustice, contempt, and harshness, and regard them as trials and crosses, and think how much more we ought to suffer—that is perfect happiness. (ST : FRANCIS of Assissi.)

Sorrow is better than laughter; for by sadness... the heart is made better. The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of fools is in the house of mirth. (B., Eccles.)

The hurt child is clasped closest to the mother's breast.

V a i - r ā g y a, mujānibat, a very storm of revolt from the world of the senses, and of passionate compassion for all who suffer, is indispensable for a b h y ā s a, munāzilāt, turning towards and finding the world of the Spirit.

Who can by searching find out God ? The Kingdom of Heaven is taken by storm. (B.)

Later on, when the world of the Spirit has been found, the world of matter is assigned its proper place in subordination to it ; and the great passionings and extreme efforts needed to achieve success, sink into tranquil routine of newly understood and freshly organised duties, after that success has been achieved.

N-āyam Ātmā pra-vachanēna labhyah,
Na mēdhayā na bahunā shruṭēna,
Yam ēv-aisha vr̥ṇuṭē ṭēna labhyah,
Ṭasy-aisha Ātmā vi-vr̥ṇuṭē ṭanūm svām.

N-āviraṭo ḍush-chariṭān,
n-āshāṇṭo, n-ā-sam-āhiṭah,
N-āshāṇṭa-mānaso v-āpi
prajñānen-amam āpnuyāt. (U.)
Dhyāna-yoga-paro nityam, vairāgyam sam-up-āshriṭah,
Vimuchya kāmam kroḍham cha,
Brahma-bhūyāya kalpaṭē. (G.)

(By eloquence this Self may not be found,
Nor by much learning, nor sharp intellect ;
But if a soul loves It with its whole heart,
Then It too gives Its love unto that soul,
And unto it Its loveliness unveils.

Unless man turn away from evil ways,
Unless he cease from quivering restlessness,
Unless his greed for worldly things die out,
Unless his mind resign and quiet down,
Unless he long for It with all his strength,
He will not gain the Luminous Insight,
The Radiant Vision will not dawn on him.

always running up to it, whenever any mishap threatens. We have seen before, that the Higher Self is always watching, and wishing well to, and endeavouring to redeem the lower self. Īshvara-prasāda, shubhānu-dhyāna, anu-graha, ṭawajjuh-i-Ilāhi, ṭawajjuh-i-Ilqāi, the 'grace' of God, also guru-kṛpā, mehr-i-shékḥ, the compassion of the spiritual preceptor and guide, is always helping the worthy seeker, silently. It is true that the seeker must walk the way with his own legs, and must see the Face he seeks with his own eyes; yet is a true guide very helpful, nay, almost indispensable, to make the journey straight, short, safe, and to provide a lamp for illumining the deep darkness. But the guide cannot force himself on the pilgrim; he attracts and influences supra-consciously, always; but must be sought by the Pilgrim consciously, before he can help consciously.

Ham Khudā khwāhī wa ham dunyā-i-ḍūn,

Īn muhāl aṣṭ o khayāl aṣṭ o junūn.

Na gum shud ke rūy-ash ze dunyā bi-ṭāṭṭ

Ke gum-gashta-é khwésh rā bāz yāft. (S.)

(God thou desirest, and the world also—

Absurd thy thought, and insane thy desire !

If thou wouldst find thy God, turn thou away

Thy face from worldly things; and do not fear

Thou wilt be lost if so thou turn away;

Rather thy lost Self thou shalt gain again.)

Ye cannot serve God and Mammon both. (B.)

Vipaḍah sanṭu nah shashvaṭ ṭaṭra ṭaṭra, Jagad-Guro !,

Bhavaṭo ḍarshanam yaṭ syāḍ
a-punar-bhava-ḍarshanam. (Bh.)

(May ills befall us o'er and o'er again,
O Thou Benignant Teacher of the Worlds !
For so alone are we compelled to think
Of Thee, and pray to Thee, and turn to Thee
With our whole heart, whole being, and then see Thy Face Divine—whereafter sorrow ends.)

Lau ya'lam-ul-momīn niālahū min-al-a'jrē f-il masāyab laṭamanna annahū qurēza b-il-maqārīz. (Q.)

(The man of faith—if he but understood
What blessings would flow unto him from strokes
Of what men deem ill-fortune, he would crave
That he be cut with scissors piece by piece.)

Kā'ba Kā'ba hai, Sanam-khānā Sanam-khānā,
Lék tūtā ḍil hi aslī manzilē Jānāna hai. (S.)

(Kābā is sacred Kā'bā doubtlessly,
And Fane of worshipped Image sacred Fane
Also, for sure—but yet the Broken Heart
Is the true permanent abode of God.)

'Tis only through the broken heart
That Christ can enter in.

(ENGLISH POET)

The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit ; a broken and a contrite heart, Thou wilt not despise. (B.)

Love not the World, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof, but he that doth the will of God abideth for ever. (B., John.)

Parikshya lokān karma-chiṭān, brāhmaṇo nirvédam āyān ; n-āstī kṛtam kṛtēna ;
 Ṭaḍ-vijñān-ārtham sa gurum év-ābhi-gachchhét,
 samit-pāṇih, shroṭriyam Brahma-nishtham. (U.)
 (Now hast thou tasted to the full, the sweets,
 And even more, the bitters, of the worlds
 Thy Karma earned ; hast deeply tested them.
 If thou hast had enough, wantest no more
 Of those embittered sweets that burn the mouth,
 Hast seen such cannot rest thy souls unrest,
 Then, Child of Brahma ! turn thee now to seek,
 Thy long-forgotten Father ; then, for help
 In that Great Questing, go with humble mind,
 To some true Teacher, wise, benevolent,
 Who knows the Sacred Science, and is fixed,
 Steadfast, in Brahma-Super-Consciousness.
 Make fuel of thy heart, and offer it
 Unto the Sage ; and he will light therein
 The Fire Divine that maketh all Life new,
 And shows—thy Father and thy-Self are One.)

O men and women ! when your passion, inherently rooted in you, will have exhausted its vitality and been torn out, when sinful thoughts have been abolished, then will you be rewarded for that great achievement ;
 therefore gird up your loins for that high emprise ;
 otherwise, in the end, you will have to exclaim, Alas !
 Alas ! (Z., Yasna, iii. 7.)

Foxes have holes and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head. (B.)

And therefore, because he gave up all parigraha, all sense of possession, sense of 'egoistic mine-ness', and embraced uttermost poverty, fuqr, sukn; nish-kinchana-tā, therefore the Son of Man became and was the Son of God. The soul which ties itself to nothing, no-thing-in-particular, necessarily includes everything, the All.

A recent western poet, whose path in life was very full of sadness and care, has illustrated the same ancient teaching of the great teachers and lovers of mankind, with such profound and genuine emotion of heart, that his words deserve to be reproduced here.

When so sad thou canst not sadder,
Cry—and upon thy so sore loss
Shall shine the traffic of Jacob's ladder
Pitched betwixt Heaven and Charing Cross.
Yea, in the night, my Soul, my daughter !
Cry, clinging Heaven by the hems,
And lo ! Christ walking on the water,
Not of Gennesareth but Thames.

O World invisible ! we view thee,
O World intangible !, we touch thee,
O World unknowable !, we know thee,
Inapprehensible ! we clutch thee !
Does the fish soar to find the ocean,
The eagle plunge to find the air,
That we ask of the stars in motion
If they have rumour of Thee there ?

Not where the wheeling systems darken
And our benumbed conceiving soars,
The drift of pinious, would we hearken,
Beats at our own clay-shuttered doors.
The angels keep their ancient places,
Turn but a stone and start a wing !

'Tis ye, tis your estranged faces
That miss the many-splendoured thing !

(FRANCIS THOMPSON.)

Nīrbala ké bala Rāma. (Hindī proverb.)
(God is the strength of the weak and the meek.)

Repentance, humility of spirit, utter faith in and self-surrender to God, (at first a Personal, ultimately the Impersonal and All-personal)— this is the only way to Salvation.

Alam Kalau vraṭais-tīrṭhair-
Yogaih śāstrair-alam makhaih,
Alam jñāna-kāṭhā-lāpair-
Bhaktir-ék-aiva mukṭi-dā.

(Bhāgavata-Māhātmya.)

(Enough of pilgrimages, vigils, vows,
Porings o'er books, and Yoga-practices,
Put by all sacrificial rituals,
Have done with philosophic arguments—
Give all thy heart, give all thy love, to God ;
So only from all fear wilt thou win free.)

Saḍ kiṭāb o saḍ waraq ḍar nār kun,
Jān o ḍil rā jānib-é-ḍil-ḍār kun. (S.)
(Fling all thy piles of books into the fire ;
And turn thy heart unto the Hearts' Desire !)

In the ages of Kali, of perpetual warrings ; of ruthless riot and revel of egoism, lawlessness, disorder ; of tyrannical oppression of the weak by the strong ; of the torturing of innocents by wolves and tigers in human shape ; in such periods, renunciation of the world, absolute surrender to God, and life in convents, monasteries, m a t h a-s, kṣhāneqāhs, or the forests—is the natural refuge of the weak and the sensitive. But horrors follow them there also.

When we happen to come across descriptions of the debaucheries, abortions, infanticides, in these 'houses of religion'; and of the doings of the Inquisitors in mediæval Europe; and of other religious fanatics elsewhere; of their burnings and burings alive, their flayings, mutilatings, rackings, of men, women, and children—such horror grips the heart that it becomes difficult to read on, and the whole soul cries in agony: Why, why dost Thou permit such dire cruelties! The only, and sufficient, answer and consolation is that truly does God, the God in the victims, suffer it all Him-Self, for the extreme experience, (in the deepest sense 'en-joy-ment'), of the tragic side of the World-Drama; for the greater glory and bliss of the 'victims' in their after-life; for their exaltation in heaven and on earth as the martyrs whose blood is the seed of the tree of Virtue; for making enviable use of them as exemplars with which to infect the world with heroism; for expiating wholly all their possible past sins, making them reflect poignantly on the nature of the world-process and the meaning of life, teaching them to put their faith in the Self, and not in anything or person else; for taking them to His Infinite Heart the more closely; for creating the indefeasible desire for expiation in the souls of (the inversed God or Satan, the pseudo-God, in) the 'victimisers,' by inevitable reaction and revulsion of feeling, whereby they too will be compelled from within to expiate their grievous sins, will be regenerated in due course, and will regain the paradise they have now lost; and, finally, for the teaching to all, turn by turn, age after age, of the lesson of Satya, 'steadfastness in Truth,' A-himsā, 'non-violence,' Tyāga, 'self-sacrifice,' Brahma-charya, continence, self-control, and Nir-a-ham-kāritā, 'denial of and freedom from ego-ism, the lower and smaller self'; from which conquest of the lower self, 'self-effacement,' flow all the other virtues and perfections of the soul, especially 'the crowning virtue of Humility', tawakkul, Ishvara-pra-ṇi-dhāna, resignation, submission, surrender to and utter trust in God, the Universal Self. Truly is Humility, with its patience under suffering, the crown of virtues, since it means that the false separative ego, which asserts itself as 'other than others,' has been let out, and God, the Universal, all-pervading, all-including Ego, has been let in.

Humility is indeed only another name for non-egoism. That, in its fullness, results from Satya, Truth, not only the practice of truthfulness in speech, but the realisation of the Ultimate Truth of the Oneness of all selves in the Universal Self. From non-egoism arise naturally all the five principal, and the many derivative, virtues spoken of before, in ever greater perfection. Of the five principal virtues, three may be regarded as including the other two, and as being the counter-actives of the three 'appetites,' root-desires, mentioned earlier. A-himsā, non-violence, is the opposite of L o k a - i s h a ṇ ā, Hirsi-dunyā, hawas-i-zindagi, Hunger of mind and body, wish for self-maintenance, (which cannot be fulfilled without hurting some one else, more or less), and consequent K r o d h a, K ṣ h a s m, Hate of others; truthfulness of speech may be regarded as part of this, for untruthfulness is intended to hurt others, directly or indirectly. B r a h m a - c h a r y a, P ā k - d ā m a n ī, Par-héz, Contenance, purity, is the opponent of Ḍ ā r a - s u t a - i s h a ṇ ā, Ā r z ū - e - t a w a l - l u d, and K ā m a, Shahwat, Lust, sexuality, wish for self-multiplication. A - p a r i - g r a h a, T y ā g a, Fuqr, Sukn, renunciation of possessions and property, is the opposite of V i t t a - i s h a ṇ ā, T a m a ' i - z a r, and L o b h a, T a w a l l a', Greed, acquisitiveness, wish for self-aggrandisement; non-stealing is obviously included in it. Thus is Truth the fount of all virtues, and Humility the crown of them.

Be it remembered, here, that, for the Path of Descent of the soul and of Pursuit of Matter by it, the three appetites, in due degree, are the sources of the (1) religious and legal, (2) the property, and (3) the home and family instincts and institutions—all righteous, in due degree.

Another reminder must be given here also, again, in connection with the practice of the virtue of humility, viz., that 'Duty varies with Circumstance.' While everyone should feel humble in heart, and before the Supreme Self; it will not do always to show humility to every vicious human being one may have to deal with. The task, the duty, of acting with discrimination, can never be shirked without grave danger. To reflect, to discriminate, is no doubt often more difficult than to act on the spur, the impulse, of the moment. Yet it is not safe. Advance in human evolution means clear thinking and wise discernment. The simple mind naturally wants to be given some very simple rule to go by. We have seen before, that a companion of Muhammad's asked him to name just one virtue which covers all; and that a similar request was made to Confucius by a disciple. Arjuna also said to Kṛishṇa :

Vyā-mishrēṇ-éva vākyéna
 budḍhim mohayas-īva mé ;
 Tāḍ ékam vaḍa nish-chiṭya,
 Yéna shréyo-(a)ham āpnuyām. (G.)

(Thy speech, commixt of many subtle thoughts,
 Confuses my poor mind. Therefore tell me
 Some one thing, sure and certain, beyond doubt,
 By following which I may attain to Good.)

So also does Shaunaka say to Ugra-shravā, the son of Roma-harshaṇa, the great reciter of ancient legends :

Bhūrīṇi bhūri-karmāṇi
 Shroṭavyāni shruṭāni cha ;
 Tasmāt sādho !-(a)tra yaṭ sāram,
 Tāḍ ud-ḍhṛtya manishayā,
 Brūhi nah shraḍ-ḍaḍhānānām,
 Yén-ātmā sam-pra-sīḍati. (Bh.)

(Many the pious acts, many the rites
And ceremonies that the books lay down ;
And more the ethics and philosophies ;
Impossible to compass, for weak men.
Good friend and benefactor ! if thou wouldst
Help us, then thou must teach to us, in brief,
The essence which thou hast extracted thence,
By thy superior intelligence,
So that our souls may rest in peace at last.)

The Great Teachers have, all of them, themselves felt the need of summing up all their injunctions and counsels in some simple formula ; and have, accordingly, all enunciated the Golden Rule. But we have seen above that it is impossible to obey it satisfactorily in daily life, without the back-ground of a wisely thought out complete Social Organisation, fitted with a whole network of clearly defined duties and corresponding rights. The same considerations apply equally to the active exercise of the virtue of Humility.

The five virtues, placed in the forefront of their teaching, by Manu, Moses, Buddha, Christ, Muhammad, all alike, are not merely 'other-worldly' virtues. They are of the greatest and most immediate practical use in this world. They are the cement which enables human beings to cohere in an organised society. As soon as they fall below a minimum degree in any community, that community begins to decay and break up. Is it not plain that reckless 'violence' towards, and hurting of, others, for the satisfaction of one's own 'hunger' of body and 'ambition' of mind, and consequent widespread hatreds; deliberate 'falsehood' to cheat others of their dues, false propaganda and false advertisements on enormous scales, and consequent all-pervading mutual distrusts and fears; over-indulgence in 'impure foods and drinks', and excess of 'lust' and 'sensuality' in wedlock and in adultery, and consequent over-population, endless diseases, insanities; and excessive 'covetousness', 'greed for property and possessions,' and 'theft' of neighbour's goods, with frantic competition, and vast exploitation of the weaker—is it not plain that these, the vicious opposites of the five virtues, all aggravating each other, are the root-causes of civil wars, class wars, economic wars, national and racial military wars, and world-wars which threaten to destroy civilisation and fling man back into the beast? Very practical, very real, very physical, very material, then, is this aspect of Religion, though its only foundation is the theoretical, ideal, Metaphysical, Spiritual Fact of the Unity of all selves in the Universal Self.

Dharmāḍ-arṭhash-cha Kāmash-cha,
 Sa kim-arṭham na sévyatē ? (Mbh.)
 Khudā ko pāyā ṭo kyā na pāyā
 Khudā milā ṭo sabhī milā hai. (S.)

(All Riches and all Pleasures flow from Law—
 The law of rights-and-duties that is shown
 In final truth by Religion alone—
 Men ! Why do ye not then follow the Law !
 If ye gain God, what can remain ungained ?

Find God and ye shall surely find all else ¹⁾

Achieve righteousness and all things else shall be added. (B.)

THE MUTUAL BALANCING OF PLEASURE AND PAIN. After all, Pain is the inseparable companion of Pleasure. The Metaphysical, Divine, Law of Polarity, Duality, Opposition, dvandvam, 'Two-and-two,' Ziddain and Zaujain, 'Opponents-Spouses', necessitates both. That man deliberately, sadistically, inflicts torture upon fellowman—excites the sense of horror to its utmost, no doubt. But willing submission to such torture, for a noble cause, in the name of the Universal Self, develops Heroic Humility to its utmost, also. And there is the consolation, that the unfailing Law of Action and Reaction makes adjustment inevitable. The souls of all, victim and victimiser, have to pass through all kinds of experience, in the course of the vast eons of cyclic evolution.¹ The victim has been ¹Some sects of Christianity, e.g., the Calvinists, are said to hold that some souls are pre-destined to eternal Hell, and others to eternal Heaven. There are corresponding sects in Hinduism and Islam, which also believe in *nīṭya-nāraṇika*s or nāriyān and *nīṭya-svārgika*s or nūriyān. The element of truth in these beliefs is that 'heaven' and 'hell', love and hate, bliss and misery, are eternal facts; but the souls that dwell in those regions, and pass through those states, are always changing; like the inmates of the pleasure parks and the prisons of a great city. Each 'person' has to taste all experiences, of all joys and all sorrows, the victimiser. The victimiser shall be the victim. So far as the mere physical pain is concerned, Nature's winds, waters, fires, earthquakes, accidents of all kinds, predaceous, reptiles—are always inflicting awful tortures upon human beings as well as animals. Human beings have to learn to keep an equable mind in pain as well as pleasure. What right have we to take all the mass of pleasure (no whit less, by metaphysical calculus, than the total mass of pain, in the universe) which we derive from 'the world beautiful', as our due, and give no thanks for it, and not balance it against the pain, which we equally derive from 'the world horrid?' What right have we to only cry out and make complaint against the latter?

Aṭr-aiva svargah, aṭr-aiva narakah. (Bh.)

(Heaven is here, in us, and so is Hell.)

Gḥair-haq guṭṭand ke bar ālam-e-bālā-sṭ Bahisṭ;
H ar jā ke waqṭe-kḥushé rū dīhaḍ, āñ jā-sṭ Bahisṭ.
(S.)

(They err who say that Heaven is on high; Wherever there is joy, there Heaven is nigh.)

Duḥkḥeshv-an-uḍ-vigna-manāh, sukḥéshu vi-gaṭa-sprhah,
Vīṭa-rāga-bhaya-kroḍhah,
sṭhīṭa-dhīr-munir-uchyaṭé. (G.)

turn by turn, one after another. Indeed, Love is Heaven, and Hate is Hell; and both may be found anywhere and everywhere, on this planet and plane, or on any other planet or star and plane, which is as far from this, as this is from that.

Dukkhé dukkḥ-ādhikam pashyét,
 sukhé pashyét sukh-ādhikam ;
 Sukha-dukkha-mayam sarvam
 jñātvā t̥péna muchyať. (Purāṇas.)

(Not 'whelmed by sorrow, nor elate in joy,
 Of others' greater pains and pleasures think,
 To check despair and overweening pride.

Who thus sees weal and woe spread everywhere,
 He casts off lust, hate, fear, and gains the Peace.)

Whoever shall humble himself as this little child,
 the same is the greatest in the kingdom of Heaven...
 Whoever shall exalt himself shall be abased, and he who shall humble himself, shall be exalted...God giveth grace to the humble. (B.)

(Pride bringeth loss ; humility, increase ;
 This is the way of Heaven. He comes to ruin
 Who, says that others do not equal him.)

(C., Shu King, THR., 101.)

Inna Allah lā yohibbo kulle mukḥṭālin fukḥūrīn. (Q.)
 (God loveth not the self-conceited proud.)

Sukham shéťé hy-ava-maťah sukham cha praťi-budhyaťé, Sukham charaťi lok-ésmin ;
 ava-manťā vi-nashyaťi. (M.)

(The wise who bear slights humbly, sleep, wake, walk
 With tranquil mind ; the slighter perisheth.)

Thus does God's Nature educate all into true Humility ultimately, and into the Duty of mergence of the individualistic into the Universal (and therefore social) Will, the true Spiritual Communism and Socialism.

DEVOTION TO DUTY. The ultimate lesson of it all, for purposes of practical action in daily life, is : Do your Duty devotedly. But to do our duty, we must know precisely what our duty is.

Avarénāya vīchiṭṭahyā narém

narém svakhyāi ṭanūyé. (Z., Gāthā, 30.2.)

(Let each man ascertain with heed and care
What he ought, what his duty is, in life,
That which is good and right for him to do.)

Duty is what is 'due', 'debt', déya (Skt.), dād (Per.), dāṭha (Z.), 'something to be given to another,' which 'ought' to be done, which is uchiṭa (Skt.), ushṭā (Z.),¹ 'desirable', right and proper. Obviously, what is right and proper to do, 'Duty', differs with circumstances, as noted before², with position in life, profession, age, special situation, (normal or abnormal, fortunate or unfortunate, straitened or prosperous), of the person concerned. The child, the youth, the middle-aged, the old; the student, the householder, the retired publicist, the religious; the educator, the ruler, the merchant, the workman; all have different duties. The same man in health, and in illness, has different duties. The duty of the Educator may be said, in terms of 'family feeling', to be Maternal Tenderness, Compassion, nourishing of the mind and body of the younger generation; that of the Ruler-Protector, to be Paternal Justice, Regulation, Disciplining, Balancing; that of the Trades-man, Fraternal Helpfulness and Charity; that of the Workman, Filial Service, Obedience, abdiyat. But the general rule, for the mature of mind and body, is :

¹ Shri J. M. Chatterji, Gāthā, (p. 148), connects the Zend word ushṭā with the Skt. root vaśh, to 'wish', the past participle of which is vashiṭa. The Skt. root iśh also means to 'wish'; its p. p. is iśṭa, the 'wished-for', the 'desirable'.

² See pp. 74, 307-317.

Do your Duty, your Farz, your Kṛtya, to your fellow-beings; in the spirit of philanthropy, of Devotion to the forces of Good in the World-Drama; in good fortune and ill, without thought of gain for yourself; undeterred by indolence or doubt or fear of suffering; content with 'the remains of the sacrifice' if any, and without even them if there are none; full of utter faith in the Omniscient Wisdom of the Universal Supra-conscious, with complete submission and surrender of your small self to that Infinite Self. This is the ultimate practical lesson of all Religion.

Tao is near, and men seek it at a distance. Duty lies in what is easy, and men seek it in difficult tasks. Let each man love his parents, and respect his elders; there will then be tranquillity in all the land. (Mencius, quoted by Inazo Nitobe, Japan, p. 346.)

Uṭṭhānam ch-āpi ḍaivasya

hy-an-uṭṭhānam cha ḍaivaṭam ;

Prājñāḥ puruṣa-kārē tu

varṭantē ḍaivam-aśṭhitāḥ. (Mbh.)

(Inactive indolence, active emprise—

Both equally are caused by ḍaiva-Fate ;

We know not what is fated, what is not ;

Therefore the wise take action duteously

And strenuously, leaving result to Fate.)

Take no thought for the morrow...(Even) one sparrow shall not fall on the ground without your Father. The very hairs of your head are all numbered. ...(Yet) whatsoever (of duty) thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might. (B.)

Ishvarah sarva-bhūṭānām
 hr̥ḍ-dēśhē-(A)rjuna ! ṭishthaṭi,
 Bhrāmāyan sarva-bhūṭāni
 yanṭrā-rūdhāni Māyayā.
 Tasmād a-sakṭah saṭaṭam
 kāryam karma sam-āchāra :
 A-sakṭo hy-āchāran karma
 Param āpnoṭi pūrushah.
 Karmaṇy-év-āḍhi-kāras-té,
 mā phalēshu kaḍā-chana.
 Mā karma-phala-hētur-bhūr-mā té sang-ostv-a-karmaṇi.
 Yajña-shisht-āśminah saṇṭo muchyanté sarva-kilbīshāt ;
 Bhunjaṭé té tv-āgham pāpāh
 yé pachanty-ātma-kāraṇāt. (G.)

(God bideth hidden in the hearts of all,
 And turneth them around, as if they were
 All mounted on an infinite machine.
 Therefore the part assigned to thee do well,
 Thy Duty, and cling not to thought of fruit.
 So acting, with detachment from all thought
 Of selfish gain, thou hast already gained
 The Highest Gain there is to be attained.
 Only the remnants of thy sacrifice
 Are, by the Law, permitted unto thee.
 Who makes and tastes all tasteful goods and foods
 Himself, alone, he makes and tastes but sin.
 To do thy duty is thy only Right—

Duty of Service of thy fellow-beings ;
 No right hast thou to wish for other fruit.
 Think not of gain, nor of inaction either,
 And self-deluding slothful idleness.)

Qulūb-ul-khālāyak fī asābi-ir-Rahmān. (Q.)

Ramze "al-kāsib habīb Allah" shinau,

Az ṭawakkul ḍar sabab ḡhāfil ma shau.

Rau, ṭawakkul kun ṭu bā kasb, ai umu !

Jehḍ mī kun, kasb mī kun, mū-ba-mū. (S.)

(Around the fingers of Almighty God

The hearts of all His creatures ever twirl.

Therefore, the secret of all righteous will

Is, not to shirk, but to do manfully

Thy Duty in accordance with God's Will.

The Prophet said, "The worker loveth God

And is beloved of God". O ! be not blind,

But see the true import of what he said.

Surrender thy whole being unto God,

But be not negligent of this great fact

That only duteous action proves thy faith,

And that effects are not produced sans cause.

Thy effort, as a cause, is in His Will.

Prove thy submission by thy righteous deeds ;

Thy duty, by a hair's-breadth e'en, shirk not.)¹

¹The ever-recurring question of Free-will vs. Destiny has been dealt with before, at pp. 183—186. No one believes in Destiny so completely and sincerely as to make no movement to lift the morsel from his plate to his mouth, and allow 'Destiny' to do so for him. Of course, in the metaphysical transcendental sense, from the standpoint of the Infinite, every movement of every atom, every experience, is predestined, ultimately ; but every human effort is included in this

Supreme is the Bliss of such Mergence of the small will into the Great Will, of such Dutiful surrender, such Humility.¹ When mutual mergence, and identification of life, being, interests, of spouse and spouse, in finite human marriage, are so blissful; infinitely greater must be, is, the Bliss of the mergence of the Finite and the Infinite; the Joy of the realisation that jīva is Brahma, rūh is Rūh-ul-Rūh, Rūh-i-Ā'zam, that Man is very God. The ecstatic joy of this realisation has been described in all religions. God is Love. Love is God. Mutual Devotion, Devotion of one to All, of All to each—this is the goal of the Path of Devotion.

Pūrṇ-ānand-aīka-rūpa-Rasa-boḍhah...

Raso vai sah...Sa śha rasānām Rasa-ṭamah...

kṛtsno Rasa-ghana ēva...

Ātmanas-ṭu kāmāya sarvam vai priyam bhavaṭi.

'every movement'. From the empirical standpoint of the Limited, every human experience depends, immediately, upon, and is necessarily connected with, an effort of some sort, negative or positive; i.e., will-ful, or careless, or lazy non-exertion also is to be regarded as 'negative effort', as contra-exertion.

Purusha-kāra-pūrvakṣvāṭ sarva-pravṛtṭinām, upāyah praṭyayah. (Vāṭsyāyana, Kāma-sūtra, I. 1. 38.)

(All human movements and experiences are preceded by human effort; hence effortful means must be regarded as the cause of the results desired.)

¹How ascertain the Great Will?'—this question is dealt with at p. 81, supra.

Ānandam Brahmaṇo vidvān

na bibhēti kuṭash-chana. (U.)

(One taste, sap, Savour of Life-Consciousness,

One relish, one full feel of Bliss compact—

He is the only Saviour in the world,

He is the flavour-essence by which all

The savors of the world are flavoréd.

Whate'er is dear is Dear for sake of Self.

He who has known the Taste of that Great Bliss

Of gain of Self—he knoweth fear no more.)

Ye are the temple of God...Ye are the salt of the earth...If the salt lose its Savor, with what shall it be flavored?...What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world but lose his own soul? (B.)

Rejoice in the Lord, always, and again I say,

Rejoice. (B., Paul.)

He saith: "I am the ground of thy beseeching." Wouldst thou learn thy Lord's meaning in this thing? Learn it well: Love was His meaning. Who showed it thee? Love. What showed He thee? Love. Wherefore? For love. (Mother JULIAN of Norwich, Revelations of Divine Love.)

Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God, and everyone that loveth is born of God and knoweth God. He that loveth not, knoweth not God. For God is Love. (B.)

Ma bādā héch dīl bé ishq-bāzī,

Agar bāshaḍ haqīqī yā majāzī ;

Majāz āyīna-ḍār-é-rūy-e-mā'nī-st,

Sar-é-īn jalwa ham ḍar kū-e-mānī-st. (S.)

(Be there no heart wholly devoid of love—

Be that love human or be it divine;

For human love too mirrors love divine;

The flame of this lights up the path to that.)

Better to have loved and lost
 Than never to have loved at all.
 Love wisely—that is best ; for to do that
 Is to love all the living things of God,
 And to give each its due of loving justice ;
 But if thou canst not, then love foolishly ;
 'Tis better far than not to love at all.

A western writer has said well :

God is love in essence. Love is God in solution.
 In so much as we love we are in God and God is in us,
 and in so far as we do not love we are without God, in this world or any other. The Ideal Church of all religions and philosophies is the same. It is the union of all who love in the service of all who suffer.

The lower love, of the lower self, one's own little particular separative self, kḥudī, a ha m - k ā r a, desires to take ; the higher love, of the larger Self, the Universal all-embracing Self of all, desires to give. "He wants my body ; I want his soul." The conflict between Pleasure and Duty, Préyas and Shréyas, Sv-ārtha and Param-ārtha (V.), Lābha and Nibbān (Bu.), Druj and Ashā (Z.), Gharz and Farz (S.), Heart and Head, selfishness and selflessness,
 Egoism and Altruism ; this conflict is dissolved, and the antagonists are reconciled, only when ego and alter realise their identity, when every alter, 'other', becomes an alter-ego, the small self becomes the All-Self.¹ Then 'worthiness' and ¹In western philosophy, Epicureanism is regarded, popularly, as the school of thought which holds that refined sensuous pleasure is the best aim of life ; and Stoicism

'pleasurableness' become identical; Joy becomes Duty and Duty becomes Joy, Law becomes Love and Love becomes Law. The mother lives, in and for the baby; her altruistic tending of the baby, with utter disregard and sacrifice of her personal comfort, is the means of her own 'personal' comfort, of her very life. Such is the open paradox of love, Mother-love, God-love. The soul still lingering on the Path of Descent, Pravṛtti, Nazūl, naturally clings to the smaller self; the soul which has turned the junction point, and crossed over to the Path of Ascent, Urūj, Nivṛtti, equally naturally clings to the Larger, the Infinite Self.

Ṭyāgēn-aikēn-āmṛtaṭvam ānashuh. (U.)

as that which thinks that virtue alone brings happiness, and that the performance of duty, at the cost of whatever pain may be involved, is the highest end of life. The distinction commonly made between 'hedonism' and 'eudaimonism' is much the same. But, strictly, the difference between the views of Epicurus and Zeno, both Greeks, and contemporaries, (340-270 B.C.), was not at all so sharp. Thus Epicurus is reported as saying: "If thou wilt make a man happy, add not unto his riches, but take away from his desires", and "We cannot live a life of pleasure which is not also a life of prudence, honor, and justice; nor lead a life of prudence, honor, and justice, which is not also a life of pleasure": (Baldwin, Dictionary of Philosophy, art. 'Epicureanism'). This is sound Vēdānta and Vaidika Dharma also.

(They only can taste Immortality,
Who can eschew the taste of mortal joys.)

Ṭrṣṇā-kshaya-sukhasy-aṭṭé
n-ārhaṭah shodashīm kalām. (Bh.)

(These earth's delights that thou hast listed out,
They weigh not e'en as much as one-sixteenth
Of the deep Joy of Ceasing of Desire.)

Na viṭṭéna ṭarpaṇīyo manushyo ;
Lapsyāmahé viṭṭam aḍrākshma chét tvā ;
Jīvishyāmo, yāvaḍ īshishyasī tvam ;
Varas ṭu mé varaṇīyah sa éva. (Katha U.)

(‘Man lives not by material bread alone’.

No vastest wealth can satisfy the soul.

Death ! while we see thee not, so long we live !

And, with the body, earthly goods all die.

The soul craves immortality, not wealth !)

But—the Dharma tells us, as the Bible does, that there is a time for everything, a time for duly regulated Desire, and a time for Desirelessness.¹

Shrýash-cha Prýash-cha manushyam éṭah ;

Ṭau sam-par-īṭya vi-vinaktī dhīrah ;

Shrýo hi dhīro abhi prýaso vrñité,

Prýo maṇḍo yoga-kshémāḍ vrñité. (U.)

(The Good comes unto Man ; also the Pleasant.

Each asks to be accepted. The wise man,

Of steady and calm mind, compares the two,

Discerningly discriminates 'twixt them,

And chooses not the Pleasant but the Good.

The hapless child-mind chooses otherwise.)

Anyach-chhrýo anyad-uṭ-aiva prýah...Ātmā-yam jyészthash-cha shrészthash-cha (prészthash-cha)..prýah puṭrāt, prýo viṭṭad, prýo-(a)nyasmāt sarvasmāt. (U.)

¹See p. 74, 75, supra.

(The Good is one ; the Pleasing is another...
 But Self is both. It is the Greatest Good;
 It is the Dearest and most Pleasing too ;
 And Ancient-most by far. It is more dear
 Than riches, spouse, or child, or any thing.
 Whate'er is dear is dear for sake of Self.)

Anyā hi lābh-opaniṣhā,

Anyā nibbāna-gāminī. (Dh.)

(The way of worldly gain is one ; another,
 The way that leadeth unto the Great Peace.)

It has been well said that "Every question of conduct, to be finally settled, must be carried up for decision to the court of the Supreme Mother". As the particular is to the Universal, the part to the Whole, so is each duty to Virtue in general. Each immediate end, purpose, aim of or in life, is more or less consciously subordinated to or connected with another beyond it; until, in the case of a consistent life, we finally trace them all up to the final aim. This aim, in all religions, is the finding of, and the merging into, the Supreme Self or God. In other words, each question is tied to some other question; that to another; until we come to the final question, 'Who am I, and What is This, and What is the Relation between I and This'. The answer to this answers all questions; including those relating to the reconciling of various particular duties with each other and with Virtue in general; and also those pertaining to the reconciling of the Pleasant in general and the Good in general.

The gain of one's own soul, recognition of one's own and of all others' identity with the Universal Self, and the permanent tasting of that Divine Savour, is the goal of the Devotional aspect of the Tri-une Way called Religion.

Kulle shayīn hālikun juz wajh-i-Ū.
 Gar tu-ī ɖar wajh-i-Ū, haṣṭī ma jū,
 Chūn na-ī ɖar wajh-i-Ū, haṣṭī ma jū. (S.)
 (All forms appear and pass. His Being lasts.
If thou art in that Being¹—as thou art,
 Since how else couldst thou say 'I am,' 'I am'—
 Then thou art sure of deathless Being too,
 And there is nothing more for thee to seek.
 If part and parcel of Him thou be not,
 Vain then thy search for Deathlessness would be.)

The joy of that Divine Union, the only and the final cure for all the world's sorrows, must be, and is, inevitably, unconsciously at first and consciously afterwards, striven for and achieved by all souls.

Bīshkanad ɖaṣṭé ke kham
 ɖar garḍané yāré na शुद्ध,
 Kor beh chashmé ke lazzaṭ-gir ɖīḍāré na शुद्ध. (S.)
 (Be paralysed the arm that knows not Rest
 In tender curve around the Loved One's waist;
 Be blind the eyes that tasted ne'er the Bliss
 Of the sweet Vision of the Loved One's face.)

¹In theosophical phraseology, 'If the fifth principle, Manas, has attached itself to the sixth, Buddhi, which is inseparable from the seventh, Ātmā'; in Védānta-language, 'If the individualised self, jīva, has attained the consciousness of being identical with the Universal Self, Brahma'.

Shakle-insāñ meñ chhipā Ṭū,
 mujhe mā'lūm na ṭhā ;
 Chāñḍ bāḍal meñ chhipā thā,
 mujhe mā'lūm na ṭhā. (S.)

(I saw Thee not before—I see Thee now,
 Belov'd ! Thou peepst forth from every face !
 I saw Thee not before—behind the clouds
 Belovéd ! Thou didst hide, I see Thee now !)

Ṭaḍ yaṭhā priyayā śṭriyā sam-pari-shvaktāḥ, na bāhyam kin-chana véḍa n-āñṭaram, taḍ vā asya éṭaḍ āṭṭa-kāmam a-kāmam rūpam shok-āñṭaram. (Bṛhad U.)

(As loving man and wife, when they embrace,
 Are both dissolved in but one feel of Love,
 One feel of Unity, and know naught else,
 Outside their body or inside their mind ;
 E'en more, the Soul when it embraces God,
 And feels its Unity with the All-Self,
 Passes beyond all sorrow, all desire ;
 For all desire is now for e'er fulfilled.)

Yuvaṭīnām yaṭhā yūni,
 Yūnām cha yuvaṭau yaṭhā,
 Mano-(a)bhi-ramaṭé, ṭaḍ-van-

Mano mé ramaṭām Ṭvayī. (Śṭotra.)

(As maid delights in youth, and youth in maid,
 So may my mind rejoice in Thee, my Lord !)

If the soul is to go on to higher spiritual blessedness, it must become woman—yes, however manly you may be among men. (Cardinal NEWMAN.)

Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth.
 For Thy love is better than wine....Behold, Thou art fair, my Beloved, yea, pleasant...Also, our bed is green...His left hand is under my head, and His right hand doth embrace me. (B., Song of Songs.)

Mīrā ké Prabhu gahira gambhīrā !

Ādhi-rāṭa Prabhu ḍarshana ḍéngé

Prema-naḍī ké ṭīrā !

Hirḍaya rākho ḍhīrā !

(Be patient, O my heart ! for Mīrā's Lord
Is very shy ; He comes not till midnight ;
Then will He show His Beauty unto Thee
On the steep bank of Love's deep-flowing stream !)

Upon an obscure night,

Fevered with Love's anxiety,

—O hapless happy plight !—

I went, none seeing me,

By night, secure from sight,

And by a secret stair, disguisedly.

Without a light to guide,

Save that which in my heart, burnt in my side.

That light did lead me on,

More surely than the shining of noon-tide,

Where, well I knew, that One

Did for my coming bide.

Upon my flowery breast,

Wholly for Him, and save Him-Self for none,

There did I give sweet rest

To my Belovéd One.

The fanning of the cedars breathed thereon,

All things I then forgot.

My cheek on His, who for my wooing came,

All ceased, and I was not,

Leaving my cares and shame

Among the lilies and forgetting them.

(ST. JOHN OF THE CROSS.)

A REMINDER. A reminder is needed here.
Man's Duty is to obey God's Will, his own Inmost Self's Will. That Will is, (if the teachings of the Scriptures, quoted before, and also of Science, be worthy of faith), that the soul should pass into Life Mortal, and then pass again through Death into the Life Immortal. Man can carry out this Will best, and attain to the Summum Bonum, the Greatest Good, Paramam Shréyas, Khair-i-Mahz, Nis-shréyasa, Wājib-ul-Wujūd, Supreme, Pure, Self-complete Being, Surūr-i-Jāwédānī, Immortal Happiness and Peace; by diligently and faithfully discharging the duties of the four successive natural stages of life, and by following some sub-variety of one of the four main classes of human professions, occupations, means of livelihood, during the second stage of life. Human beings pass through these stages everywhere, more or less, by inner compulsion as well as outer force of circumstances, but they have been deliberately systematised in Védism (i. e. Vaidika Dharma or Hinduism). Thus :

Rṇāni tṛṇy-apā-kṛtya
 mano mokshé ni-véshayét,
 An-apā-kṛtya tṇy-éva
 moksham ichchhan vrajaty-aḍhah. (M.)
 Āḍau vayasi n-ādhītam,
 dviṭiyé n-ārjītam ḍhanam,
 Triṭiyé na ṭapas ṭaptam,
 chaṭurṭhé kim karishyasi. (Hīṭ-opaḍésha.)

(The son of man, in being born, is born
 With three great 'social debts' upon him; first,
 The debt unto the ḍéva-angels, who
 By God's command have made this Nature-World.
 Of th' objects of the senses which he tastes;

The next to his Ancestors, who have given
 His body to him wherewith he knows life;
 The third is to the Sages who have stored
 Knowledge, age after age, to light his mind.
 By pious public works he pays the first;
 By rearing virtuous progeny, the next;
 By handing knowledge on, he pays the third;
 He who, without repaying these great debts,
 Strives to win Freedom

—stronger grow his bonds;
 Instead of soaring height—deeper his fall.
 If in the first part of thy life thou didst
 Not gather precious knowledge virtuously;
 Nor cherish spouse and child, nor earn fair means,
 In the next quarter; nor perform good deeds
 Of self-denial, charity, sacrifice,
 In the third portion of thy mundane life;
 How in the fourth, the age of feeble eld,
 All unprepared, can'st find thy Self and God!

Only the person who has honestly discharged these three congenital debts can be permitted to sell his body of earth, made thus into one of high worth, and buy therewith the Immortal Body of Ethereal Light.

PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL DEVOTION. The danger, of mistaking devotion to a person, for devotion to the Impersonal or All-personal, has been referred to before.¹ Yet the former is a ¹See p. 348, supra. The language of préma, bhaḥakṭi, ishq-i-haqīqī, love of and devotion to God, is so similar to the erotic utterances of kāma, ishq-i-majāzī, carnal love of and devotion to a person of the opposite sex, that the two become practically necessary stage on the progress to the latter. The final perfection of devotion, as Love Universal, has to be preceded, in the evolution of the soul, by the love personal.

indistinguishable ; see, f.i., the passages quoted at pp. 39, 227, 231-234, 256-259, 262-263, 387-389, supra. In conduct also, since it is easier to roll down than to climb up, facilis descensus averni, in the case of even the most sincere and earnest cultivators of 'spiritual' love, it only too often runs into the 'carnal'. The past history, and the reports of the current doings, of many 'religious' orders and cults, (—and new ones keep cropping up all over the world—), especially of some of the b h a k ṭ i-cults and so-called sūfī-sects of India, are proof. Of course, besides the sincere aspirants who go astray, or are cruelly deceived, there are many groups composed of 'faith-giving fools' who wish to be gulled and fleeced and debauched, and of 'faith-demanding knaves' who pose as 'spiritual guides, preceptors, mentors', and will to dupe and rob and corrupt, under cover of 'religion'. Or, why go outside for warning knowledge? Everyone can, indeed, find enough evidence of the danger, if he will only look into his own heart. We have noted (p. 321, supra) that the seeds of all the vices and all the virtues, all the angels and all the devils, are ever present in every human heart ; the set which prevails, makes the 'character' of the person, makes him good man or bad man, sinner or saint. There are only two poles to the human axis, the cerebro-spinal column ; the soul has only two courses open ; to travel laboriously towards the upper pole, the B r a h m a - r a ṇ ḍ h r a the pituitary and the pineal glands, k a ṇ ḍ a - s,

This personal love has many grades and degrees, according as it gives more and more of service, and takes less and less of return. The human being begins as a baby, with intensely

c h a k r a - s, and regain the lost Paradise ; or to slide easily down towards the lower pole and the sexual plexuses. Each half of the pole has its own 'branchings' and 'complexes', and the two sets often mix. When the soul makes an effort to ascend, but fails to gain assured foothold, and slips, it takes down with it a higher quality of mentality, a refinement, which makes sensuous enjoyments keener and more alluring. A western writer has observed well that there is no voluptuousness like to mystic voluptuousness. The 'religious' and 'mystical' experiences of many 'brides of Christ', 'milkmaids of Kṛṣṇa', 'shaiḍās of Muḥammad', and devoted disciples of g u r u - s, pīr-s, murshids, sheikhs', etc. become but too often experiences of carnal voluptuousness ; some of the worst perversions take place under cover of Vāma-Shakṭi-pūjā, in the East and the Black Mass in the west. Love, attempted to be transferred from the physical to the superphysical, too frequently falls back to the physical plane with added momentum. What the psycho-analysts call 'transference', is partial illustration of the same fact. The emotions that should flow towards the physical spouse, or the superphysical ideal, begin to flow towards the physical psycho-analyser, or the physical g u r u, pīr, priestly 'mediator', 'father-confessor', 'spiritual guide'.

The finer superphysical love, so long as it does not become wholly (i. e., predominantly) transmuted from 'psychical' into 'Spiritual', experiences all the selfish love for the mother, and ends as a parent, with selfless love for children. Especially selfless is the love of the mother, all-giving, all-for-transports, agonies, ecstasies, elations, depressions, deadly jealousies, humble reconciliations, bitter wrongs, generous forgivings, shames, restorations of trust, in short, all the infinite shades of all sorts of passions and emotions that form the turbulent retinue of the common carnal love. Only, in the case of the 'psychical' love, they are all of correspondingly subtler quality ; at least they ought to be ; though they often are not ; as witness the violent, even murderous feuds, caused by jealousy, between even the immediate disciples and followers of even every Founder or Reformer of Religion. In fact, Jealousy and Love are very closely connected ; They are the two end-links of the chain of the six main passions, (see p. 318, supra). Jealousy is, in a sense, the very culmination of the 'miseries'. It includes all the other five. It is responsible for the greatest, most extensive, failures of humanity ; failures with the most wide-reaching consequences, and on the largest scales ; as in politics. The gates of besieged towns and forts have often been opened to the foe by jealousy. Battles, which have changed the course of history, have often been lost through treachery born of jealousy. Great causes have been betrayed by jealousy. The word 'envy' or 'jealousy', occurs on almost every page of Plutarch's Lives ; the name of no other human emotion occurs so often.

K ā m a, in the broad general sense of Desire, is the very root-cause of the Universe ; and we have seen that Sex-kāma is the climax of Desire, though it is not its fundamental form.

giving. The mother is nourishing Mercy incarnate ; the father protective and instructive Justice. She represents the jamāli aspect, the m ā ḍ h u r y a, ḍ a y ā, k a r u ṇ ā, ḍ h ā ṭ ā, k a l y ā ṇ a attributes, the Beauty and Sweet Tenderness, of

Kāmas-ṭaḍ-agré sam-avarṭaṭ-āḍhi

Manaso réṭah prathamam yaḍ-āsīt ;

Saṭo bandhum asaṭi nir-avindaṇ

Hrḍi praṭishyā kavayo manīshā.

(Rg-V., 10. 29. 4.)

Kāmah Sanātana-ṭamo-(a)bhavaṭ.

(Mbh., Anu. ch. 131.)

Jyāyān samuḍrāḍ-asi Kāma Manyo.

(Aṭhurva-V., 1x. 2. 2. 3.)

Samuḍra iva hī Kāmah.

(Tait. Brāh., II. 2. 5. 6.)

Kāma-bandhanam-ēv-ēḍam,

N-ānyaḍ-ast-iha bandhanam. (Ibid., 8. 9. 5.)

Kāma-maya ēv-āyam purushah.

(Br.-U., 4. 4. 5.)

Saṭyam pushpa-phalam viḍyāḍ

Añ-ṛtam mūlam Āṭmanah. (Bh.)

(Kāma arose the first, foremost of beings,

Preceding and presiding over all.

It was the germ of Mind. The wise ones saw,

Deep searching in the heart with all their mind,

Its Falsehood was half-brother unto Truth.

Kam'-Error is manure ; Truth, flower and fruit.

Kāma is the most ancient of all ancients,

More deep, far-spread, than seas or Space itself.

The bonds of Kāma are the only bonds

That bind the Soul of man ; indeed the soul

Is naught else than a vortex made of Kāma.)

When such is the very constitution of God's own

God; he, the jalālī aspect, the aishvarya, prabhu-tva, pra-tāpa, ni-yanṭā, vidhātā attributes, His Awe-inspiring and Compelling Order-liness. She embodies the ministrant

Nature, it is obviously not possible for any one to avoid all risks of falling back, even while treading most carefully and assiduously the Path of Ascent. We have noted that each and every soul must, by metaphysical law, because it is identical with the All-Soul, pass through all experiences in Infinite Time and Space and Motion. Failure, falling back, striving again, and rising again, higher and higher, is part of such total of Experience; in fact, a very common part, in all departments and phases of life. But it is possible, and right and proper, for persons who have arrived at a certain stage of evolution, to be on guard, to the best of their ability, against slipping back from the upper half to the lower half of the pole. In such guarding, a thorough grasp of the nature and varieties of the emotions is of great help; for, obviously, the guarding is self-guarding, against the baser Emotions, and by means of perpetual self-examination, sva—ch i ṭ ṭ ā—p a r ī k s h ā, Kṛud-hisābz, constant awareness of what is going on within one's own mind.

In the Samskr̥t literature of Vēdism are included systematic expositions of Bhakti-shāstra, 'The Science and Art of Divine Love'. The ends of human life are, primarily, two, Kāma or Vishay-ānanda, Sense-Enjoyment, and Moksha or Brahm-ānanda, Spiritual Bliss. But refined Kāma, through Marriage and Family-life, is not possible without Artha, Property, and that is not possible without Dharma, Law-Religion. Hence the one end, K ā m a, becomes triple, and promotive functions of the State ; he, the constituent and preventive. But human maternal devotion to children, though so sweetly selfless, is generally exclusive, limited to one's own children. It seldom extends to even the nearest neighbour's families. But God's Family is the Whole Universe.

As in the life of the family, so in the larger life, which includes the life beyond this life and also the life of the community, society, nation, humanity, and even the other kingdoms of nature,

Dharma—Artha—Kāma. So Moksha also becomes triple, Bhakti—Yoga—Moksha. Each of these becomes the subject of a Shāstra, a science ; and has text-books devoted to it. The works on Bhakti-shāstra contain much helpful information on the subject of the emotions and their sublimation. A noteworthy feature is that they distinguish many forms which are expressed in language very different from the erotic : thus, the love of the servant devoted to his master, as of Hanumān for Rāma ; of friend devoted to friend, as of Arjuna for Kṛṣṇa ; of parents devoted to child, as of Dasha-raṭha and Kausalyā for Rāma, of Mary for Jesus, of Fāṭimā for Hasan and Husain ; and of children for parents. This last is the safest form, of Devotion to God, for human beings to cultivate. Nature prompts us to regard God and His Nature as our Father and Mother. All religions instruct us also to the same effect. In the cultivation of this Spiritual Emotion, there is least danger of going astray. Yet it too is not wholly safe ! There is the danger of becoming too dependent, of wanting and begging too much, of shirking self-reliant exertion.

the soul passes through stages. The guru, āchārya, Brahma-viṭ, murshid, shéikh, pīr, ā'rif, Haq-shinās, priest, saint, spiritual preceptor, godly counsellor, 'knower of God', is the father-mother here. If he or she is the physical parent also, the relationship is best and safest. But it is difficult for all parents to discharge the sacred and delicate function of spiritual guide too. Therefore all religions have evolved and differentiated out a class of such. But very evil consequences have arisen, after certain limits. Such is the way of Nature. She follows a Law of perpetual Swing, from Extreme to opposite Extreme, back and forth. Vaidika Dharma, by express provision in its Social Organisation, includes the vocation of priests as that of a sub-class under the general class of those following 'the learned professions'. This general class, it is enjoined, should be made up of persons who are by temperament, 'men of vidyā and t̥ap̥as, irfān and zohd, men of knowledge and of philanthropic virtue and self-denial.¹ But spiritual preceptorship of the children by the parent in each family is also encouraged. Buddhism, Jainism, Christianity, Islām, beginning with missionary bhikshus, shramaṇas, kshapaṇas, yaṭis, apostles, disciples, asaḥāb, companions, momins, faithful ones, imāms, khalīfās, etc., have also (—even despite some efforts in some cases, especially in Islām, to avoid it—) inevitably developed very potent priesthoods. Such are very good, very self-denying, very helpful in the beginning; but they always degenerate (as do 'kinghoods'), pass over to the opposite extreme, and develop tendencies to demoniac treachery; so that the shepherd and the sheep-dog devour the sheep which they are set to guard from all harm. History may be said to be largely the history of the martyrdom of humanity at the hands of its trustees, its 'mother' and 'father', its priests and its rulers, its 'edu-subsist between 'minister' and 'ministered', 'pastor' and 'flock'. Organised bodies, it is well-known, can do more good than individuals; but, if the spirit becomes perverted, can become far worse tyrants than individuals. In Vēdism, the practice has been for each family to choose its own priest or rather priest-family. That system has also its disadvantages as well as merits. It is always the old story of 'the mean between extremes'; some organisation and also some individual freedom; neither rigidity nor looseness, but elasticity. And, do what we may, we cannot escape evil, altogether, until we give up good also. Life is a perpetual choice between evils. Wisdom consists in choosing the lesser, in any given circumstances.

¹ Védic 'priesthood' is not organised into a Church and a Hierarchy (—unless, perhaps, in a very loose sense, by simply popular recognition of greater or lesser learning or other merit—) as it is in the case of Buddhism, western State-Churches, Roman Catholicism. Strict organisation of a priesthood, necessarily imparts to it, the faults (together with the merits) of 'bureaucracy' and 'mechanisation'. These faults are peculiarly incongruous with the intimate, personal, un-'official', confidential, loving, spiritual relations, which ought to

cators' and its 'protectors', its 'spiritual power' and its 'temporal power'.

Yasy-ānké shira-ādhāya
janah svapiṭi nir-bhayah,
Sa éva ṭach-chhirash-chhindyāt,
tatṭra kam pari-dévayét. (Mbh)

Sarvam ṭam par-ādād-yah Ātmano-anyaṭra brahma-
...kshaṭṭram...lokān...dévān....bhūtāni....sarvam véda.
(Br. U.)

(The child goes trustfully to sleep, with head
Upon the parent's knee ; if that same parent
Cuts off the head, and murders his own child,
How and to whom may the slain child complain ?
Whoever placed his faith without reserve,
Not on him-Self, but some one Else-than-Self,
Brāhmaṇa, Kshaṭṭriya, Vaishya, or god,
Or other living or non-living thing,
Whate'er he made himself dependent on,
That thing or person did give him away,
And did betray that purblind trust, some day.)

If the spiritual guides and the temporal protectors of the people themselves betray their trust, and prey upon the people, who can redress that awful wrong ? The only answer is : The People themselves, under Divine impulsion from within, specially focussed in new great leaders.

Ai basā Iblīs Ādam-rūy aṣṭ,

Pas ba har ḍaṣṭé na bāyaḍ ḍāḍ ḍaṣṭ. (S.)

(Many a fiend doth wear the human shape ;
Give not the hand of trust to every hand.)

Guravo bahavas-tāṭa !, shishya-viṭṭ-āpa-hārakāh ;
Viralā guravas-té yé shishya-san-tāpa-hārakāh.

(Guru Gītā.)

(Many the guides who take away full soon
The pupil's goods, but very few, alas!
Those that can take away his ache of heart.)

The Scriptures themselves warn us against false priests and false prophets. Manu says:

Pāshandino vi-karma-sṭhān
baidāla-vratikān shathān, Haitukān baka-vṛttimsh-cha vāṅ-mātrēṇ-āpi n-ārchayēt.
Na vāry-api pra-yachchēt tu baidāla-vratiké dvi-jé,
Na baka-vratiké vipré
n-ā-véda-vidi dharma-viṭ.
Yé baka-vratino viprah
yé cha mārjāra-linginah,
Té paṭanty-andha-tāmisré,
(kr̥tvā) sṭrī-shuḍra-dambhanam.

(M., iv. 30, 190-200.)

(Priest-hypocrites, immoral, evil-living,
That purr, and pry, and pounce on prey cat-like;
That argue much; or pose, with downcast eyes,
Looking devout, calm, modest, like to herons,
But ever watchful, snapping up like lightning,
Any unwary fish that may pass by—
Avoid such; do not even speak to them.
Not even water should be given to such
By him who Duty knows, and right from wrong.
Such vicious priests, who ever do deceive
The ignorant and simple men and women,
Will surely fall into the darkest hells,
Created by their own conscience for them,
And suffer there until they change their heart.)¹

¹There is a current notion that Manu-smṛti, the chief religious law-book of Védism, held in reverence

Muhammad warns his followers against impostors :

Yakṭobuna ba ayḍihim wa yakuluna hāzā min ind-illāh, wa mā howā min ind-illāh. (Q.)

(With their own hands they write, and yet pretend,
And tell you falsely—This is writ by God.

Indeed it is not writ by God at all.)

Believe not every spirit, but try the spirits, whether they are of God, because many false prophets are gone out into the world. (B., John.)

Beware of false prophets, which come to you in next only to the Vēdas, has been written by brāhmaṇas for brāhmaṇas, and therefore praises them inordinately, and gives them supreme authority in every respect. Such a notion is based on insufficient and prejudiced study of the original, and on observation of the current absurd claims and evil behavior of priests. An impartial study of the whole book, (though it probably, almost certainly, has some spurious interpolations, as now available), shows that the ancient Law-giver has based his Scheme of Civilisation on the triple foundation of (1) the spiritual-hearted self-denying Educator (the true brāhmaṇa), (2) the chivalrous self-sacrificing Protector and Defender (the true kṣhatṛiya); and above all, (3) the selfless Mother (the true woman; see pp. 288-292, supra). These three, when they strenuously live up to the ideal he places before them, he praises to the skies, he ranks above all the gods. But when they fall from that ideal, and become corrupt, then he condemns them down to the deepest hells. Which careful student of human history is prepared to say that genuine civilisation, anywhere and anywhen, has flourished where these three have been corrupt; or has not flourished, where these three have done their duty?

sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. (B.)

...Take heed that no man deceive you: for many shall come in My name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many. Then if any man shall say unto you, Lo, here is Christ, or there, believe it not. For there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and... they shall deceive the very elect....The scribes and the Pharisees sit in Moses' seat...All their works they do for to be seen of men; they make broad their phylacteries, and enlarge the borders of their garments, and love...the chief seats...and greetings, in the markets, and to be called of men, Rabbi, Rabbi...But woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretence make long prayer...ye are like whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men's bones and of all uncleanness. Even so ye also outwardly appear righteous unto men, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.

(B., Matthew, chs. 7, 23, 24).

Such evil priests and kings must be thrust away, and replaced by virtuous ones, by the people themselves¹, under the direction of trustworthy leaders of ascetic philanthropic quality, and eminent in knowledge. The scriptures enjoin upon the People to do so; and history shows how this has been done, over and over again.

¹ Manu, chs. 4, 7, and Mbh., Shānti-parva, chs. 90, 91, 92, say: "The tears of the weak consume the deceiver and oppressor more surely, at last, than the hottest fires. Power, entrusted to the ruler, for the general good, if misused, turns against him, and destroys him root and branch. The priest-scientist, who takes gifts from such a vicious ruler, instead of restraining him, falls into many hells together with that ruler.

Experience of such awful treacherousness has its own uses, necessarily, in the providence of God's Nature. The soul of the victim receives a terrible shock which transforms it. Its own latent selfishness is exposed to itself; it desired worldly advantages too much, and not spiritual gains also sufficiently, and had made itself small, mean, petty, pitiable, pitiful, kṛpāṇa; it is now thrown back upon its Higher Self, by a violent revulsion; it plumbs far depths and touches unknown heights, (which heights and depths are all within its own infinite consciousness in fact), at a bound; it gains the true humility; also the appurtenant courage and power, (for true humility becomes the same as true majesty, since it regards all selves as equal, spiritually, and not itself as smaller than all others); and then it attains freedom, sooner or later, from spiritual as well as all other enthrallment to others, to another, to any Other.

We have seen before¹ that every one is himself, ultimately, the sole judge over all religions and all preceptors, since he can accept or reject any he likes. After all, who is to decide between the 'true prophets' and the 'false prophets', the 'true Christs' and the 'false Christs', the 'true g u r u - s', and the 'false g u r u - s', the 'mediators to God' and the 'mediators to Satan' ? Only he can decide, and ultimately has to decide—he, the man in the street, to whom these prophets and Christs and g u r u s and mediators say: 'Accept me', 'accept me'. He alone can judge, for him-Self, by him-Self, which of these is true, which false. The miseries brought by excessive faith in any, arouse this almighty, but till now sleeping, Self within him, and he realises vividly the truth of the scriptural declaration :

¹See pp. 56-59, 162, supra.

Yah Ātmano-anyatra brahma vā, kshaṭṭram vā, lokān vā, dēvān vā, bhūṭāni vā, sarvam va, véda, ṭam sarvam par-ādāt; brahma, kshaṭṭram, lokāh, dēvāh, bhūṭāni, idam sarvam yaḍ ayam Ātmā. (U.)

(Whoever made himself dependent, blind,
Utter and slavish, upon anything,
Regarding it as other than him-Self—
Outside and independent of him-Self—
Priests, rulers, worlds, gods, living or dead things,
Any, or all ;—that other will deceive,
Betray, and ruin him, until he learns,
That all these are within him-Self, the Self,
And knows him-Self as Master of them all.)

The conscience, the higher soul, of the betrayer also unavoidably awakens some day ; he too undergoes revulsion of feeling, and helplessly makes expiation by equal suffering, and also learns the same humility.

Very cruel, as well as very beautiful, is this process ; all this World-process. Faith, Trust, Love, is very beautiful ; Deception, Betrayal, Murder of Innocents, is horribly cruel. But the God within, has Him-Self chosen to pass through all experiences, before returning to the Primal Peace.

Anéka-janma-sam-siddhas-

ṭaṭo yāṭī parām gaṭim. (G.)

(After the tasting of full many lives—

Of pleasures, pains, joys, utter miseries—

The Soul regains its Fullness, and returns

Unto the state of Perfect Wholeness, lost

By Its Self-willed wilful Obliviscence—

Transforméd into Reminiscence now.)

Inna Ilaiḥā rāje'un...laṭarkabunna ṭabaqan an ṭabaq. (Q.)

(Back unto God, ascending stage by stage,

Must ye return with labor and with pain.)

Ordinarily, the soul developes slowly the purer aspect of family relationships and affections, and the accompanying self-denial, ishq-i-majāzī, muhabbat, isār, préma, priṭi, anurāga, ṭyāga. It also cultivates, side by side with these, love of, faith in, and reliance for refuge upon, a living spiritual preceptor, and also a higher unseen barzakḥ or 'mediator', a messiah, a nabī or prophet, a rasūl or messenger of God, an avatāra, or incarnation of divine power, an insān-ul-kāmil, perfect man, an ishṭa-déva or beloved form of deity represented by high déva or angel, that manifests one ism, nāma, name, aspect, i. e., power or energy, of God—all which are facts in Nature. Through such mediator it seeks to reach God—whatever the highest conception, (generally that of a Personal God, separate from the devotee and from all creation), which the devotee concerned may be able to form.

And these mediators¹, in every religion, are indeed very near and dear to God :

Khās-ān-e Khudā Khudā na bāshand,
Lékin ze Khudā judā na bāshand. (Š.)
(The devotees of God may not be God, Yet neither are they separate from God.)
Dāsānām anu-ḡāso-(A)ham. (Bh.)
(I serve My servants—thus declareth God.)

He that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do ; because I go unto my Father. And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye ask anything in my name, I shall do it....This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends....Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you. Henceforth I call you not servants ; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doth ; but I have called you friends. (B.)

¹The distinction between mediators and mediums should be understood clearly. (See H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, pp. 487—488). It is, possible for persons of each of the two types to be either beneficent or maleficent ; but, usually, mediators are spiritual adepts, holy persons, pure in thought and deed, and strong of will, the superhuman morality and sanctity of whose lives (whatever their outer creed) attracts pure, beneficent, high, and powerful spiritual influences to them, for the helping of human beings. Mediums, on the contrary, are spiritual or rather psychical slaves, weak.

So long as the soul is not able to get over the sense of personality, personal sin, weakness, danger; so long as it clings to a separate body of its own and desires to continue a separate individual existence; so long it must tie itself to some such highly advanced soul, embodiment of spirituality, in-carna-tion of the Spirit; even as children must seek the protecting help of parents, until they attain maturity; and it must evoke such help by its own loving reverence and earnest cry for it in the way of whole-souled prayer.

After the vision, the realisation in oneself, of the Impersonal has been reached, through such very help; after that, the love and reverence for the spiritual preceptor and the mediator, ought to, and do, become deeper than ever, and a profound gratitude is added to them, in every truly illumined soul; even as the right-minded son and daughter, nourished and fostered tenderly, by parents, until they have reached majority of body and mind, feel, if possible, greater love and reverence and gratitude than they did, or even could, for those parents, while they were little children.

Herein is large part of the satisfaction of the requirements of personal emotion, of the of will, sickly of nervous system, unable to resist evil influences; more often than not they are taken possession of, obsessed, by evil spirits, either disembodied human spirits, or nature spirits, i.e. 'sprites', which normally belong to other planes and kinds of matter than humans do.

needs of the heart, that religion is expected to, and does, bring to all sincere souls. Clearly, there is no conflict here between head and heart; but much soothing, nay, very joyful, harmony instead.

If the followers of different religions quarrel with one another—one saying that Kṛṣṇa is the only personage who should be followed and honored, another that Zoroaster is the only such, a third that Moses, a fourth that Buddha, a fifth that Jina, a sixth that Christ, a seventh that Muhammad, is the only such, then the plain cause is that they are not sincere devotees but arrant egoists; that none of them really honors and follows the great Master whom he pretends to honor and follow; but that each really loves his own narrow and conceited little self; and wishes to impose that little self and its small-minded opinions upon all the world; for the satisfaction of his own vanity, and the tasting of a false greatness, under cover of the true greatness of the Master; which true greatness he only belittles and drags in the mire by his own false understanding of it. But they will all grow wiser, bye and bye, turn by turn, each in his own due time.¹

On the other hand, in the name, for the sake, by the example, of each great Master, have men, and women, and even little children, over and over again, throughout history, risen, and are rising today, here and there, to great heights of self-denial and self-sacrifice, of uttermost suffering and death for love of fellow beings, of heroic martyrdom to bear witness to their faith; heights of heroism, dharma-shūratā, shahā-dāt, which may well evoke envy and shame, and greater sweetness than before, in the breasts of even the angels.

¹See pp. 68-73, supra.

Because I naturally love and honor my own parents beyond the parents of others, is that a reason why I should insist that others should also love and honor my parents beyond, or instead of, their own? If I am at all right-minded, and not insane, I should be the first to say to my neighbour: Even as I revere my parents most, so should you yours; but, as I regard and love you as my cousin, so I shall, next after my parents, revere your parents as the cousins or brother and sister of my parents, and therefore as my uncle and aunt; and even so should you revere my parents as your uncle and aunt. Your parents have done for you what mine have done for me. They have washed you of soiling vices, fed you with the milk and bread of life, tended you day and night, guarded you from the dangers and illnesses of sin, taught you anxiously the same soul-wisdom, and brought you to majority of years and maturity of body and mind, so that you can now stand upon your own feet, and even help and care for others, even as you have been helped and cared for. Your first duty, therefore, is to your parents, even as mine is to mine.

Also, the Teachers themselves advise us, nay, command us, to think, not of them, but of the teachings :

Unzur elā mā qāla, wa lā țanzur elā man qāla.

(Hazrat ALI.)

(See what is said ; do not see who says it.)

Kḥuz mā safā, dā mā kađar. (H.)

(Gather the good, and cast aside the bad.)

Yukṭi-yukṭam up-ā-dēyam

vachanam bālakāđ-api ;

Anyat ṭṛṇam iva ṭyājyam

apy-ukṭam Padma-janmanā.

(Yoga-Vāsishtha.)

A-mitrāđ-api sađ-vrṭṭam

bālāđ-api su-bhāshṭam. (M.)

(What stands to reason, take it readily,

If uttered even by a little child ;

That which offends the reason, put aside,

Though it be said to be part of God-spell.)

Jagađ-éva gurur-Jagađ-guruh. (Skt. proverb.)

Az zamāna moađđibu. (H.)

(The one World-Teacher is the World itself.

Take needed lessons from the March of Time.)

If the followers of the several religions, (or rather of the re-proclaimers, of the same One Universal Religion, in different languages and times and climes), were only thus loving, simple, straight of heart, only a little reasonable ; they would fill their own homes and all other homes of the whole world with loving paeans of joy, and with mutual service and the real blessings of religion ; instead of filling them, as they have been doing, century after century, with the cruel cries of hate and war, bloodshed and torture, and turning religion from the greatest blessing into the worst curse of mankind.

The soul which has learnt the true humility, cannot behold these conflicts without the greatest agony of heart. Its only consolation is the faith that they also must serve the ultimate purpose of the World-Drama, planned and operated by the Divine Will-and-Imagination. The worst and most saddening feature of these terrible conflicts is that they are all about the merest words and names, utterly non-essential forms and superficial trivialities. If instead of hastily and excitedly 'misunderstanding', men would only endeavour quietly and leisurely to 'understand', each other, then they surely would, instead of hating, honor the founders of other religions, even though in a lesser degree than the founder of their own, and would multiply their joy, by giving and receiving sympathy and congratulations, on all appropriate occasions, of the holy-days of each religion, instead of marring it wholly, by mutual antipathy and obstructions, and even riots, looting, arson, bloodshed, murders.¹

¹A western clergyman, Dr. Westcott, has well said: "It requires a serious effort to enter with a living sympathy into the character of another man, or of another class, or of another course of thought; to feel, not with a sense of gracious superiority, but of devout thankfulness, that, here and there, that is supplied which we could not have provided; to acknowledge how peculiar gifts or a peculiar environment, how long

To the soul which has seen the great Vision of Self-in-All and All-in-Self, meum and tuum are reduced to a minimum, if they cannot vanish altogether while fleshly tenement lasts. Religions, in the plural, disappear for him; only Religion, in the singular, remains.

Guft-o-gū-e Kufr o Dīn

ākhir ba yak jā mī kashad ;

Khwāb yak khwābē-st, ammā

mukhtalif tā'bīr-hā. (S.)

(Doubt, Faith, both turn around, and end in, One Th' interpreters differ, the Dream's the same.).

Hama kas tālib-e Yār an che hushyār o che mast,

Hama jā khāna-e ishq ast,

che masjid che kanisht. (S.)

(Sane and insane, all are asearch, love-lorn,
For Him, in mosque, fire-temple, church, alike.

The only God is the One God of Love,

And Love calls from all these, each one His home.)

discipline or intense struggle, have conferred upon others the power of seeing that which we cannot see". If the ways of education were different, i. e. better, there would be no serious effort required for this very desirable attitude. It would be the natural thing to appreciate the good points of others, instead of depreciating.

Right education, if any god at all, is

"The god which can the giftie give us

To see ourselves as others see us."

If we all were diligently taught, in our earliest years to see with other's eyes as well as our own, we would see much more, and our life would be so much the richer, with others' special and peculiar virtues and experiences and gifts as well as our own.

Yé-py-anya-ḍevaṭā-bhaktāh
 yajanté shraḍḍhay-ān-viṭāh,
 Ṭé-pi Mām-éva Kauntéya !,
 yajanty-a-vidhi-pūrvakam.
 Yé yaṭhā Mām pra-paḍyanté
 tāns-ṭaṭh-aiva bhajāmy-Aham
 Mama varṭm-ānu-varṭanté
 manushyāh, Pārṭha ! sarvashah. (G.)

(They who do worship other gods with faith,
 They also indirectly worship Me.
 From all sides are men coming unto Me ;
 I meet them on whichever way they come.)

Ṭrai-guṇya-vishayā Védā, nis-ṭrai-guṇyō bhav-Ārjuna ! (G.)
 Nis-ṭrai-guṇyé paṭhi vicharaṭo
 ko vidhih ko ni-shédhah.

Na varṇā na varṇ-āshram-āchāra-ḍharmā,
 Na Mé ḍhāraṇā-ḍhyāna-yōg-āḍay-opi,
 Na ḍuhkham sukham n-aiva bandho na mokshas-
 Ṭaḍ-éko-vashishtah Sh i v a h kévalo-(A)ham.

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA).

(The Vedic ritual deals with finite things,
 Objects of finite thoughts, desires, and acts.
 Pass on beyond these three unto the One.
 He who has passed beyond the three and seen
 The One, and steadfast moves upon Its Way,
 He no more needs from others 'yeas' and 'nays' ;
 He has become a law unto him-Self.
 No caste, class, creed, or stage of life are Mine,
 No concentration, meditation, yog',
 No sorrow, joy, bonds or deliverance ;
 I am the Restful One and all is Mine !)

Guṭṭam-Ash, "Ṭā chaṇḍ ḍar
 paḍah nihān khwāhī shuḍan,

Waqt ān āmaḍ ke dīgar rū na poshānī ze man !"
 Guft, "Man bē-parḍah am,
 gar parḍah bīnī, ān tu-ī !
 Ta tu hastī, ḍar hazārān parḍah pinhān-ī ze Mā !"
 (MUINUDDIN CHISHTI).

("For how much longer", so I asked my Lord,
 My Lover and Belovéd, My heart's God,
 "For how much longer wilt Thou keep Thy Face
 Close hid behind this screen ? Sure, it is time
 That Thou unveil Thyself to Thy slave's eyes !"
 He said, "I ever am, without a screen !
 Seest a screen ? Then that screen is thy-self,
 Thy separative and egoistic Self !
 While thou art, fixed in sense of separateness,
 Countless as living bodies are the veils
 Thou flingest o'er Me, keeping Me unseen !
 Thy separatist small self itself is screen !
 My-Self is by the self-less ever seen !)

Che ṭaḍbīr, ai Musalmānān !,
 Ke man khud rā na mīn ḍānam ;
 Na Ṭarsā na Yahūdī am
 Na Gabr am na Musalmān am.

(SHAMS ṬABREZ.)

Sūfī shud n-īst, n-īst rā mazhab n-īst ;
 Bā Yār rasīḍa rā ḍigar maṭlab n-īst.
 Rab-ras Rab shud ; ṭamām Rab rā Rab n-īst.
 Har jā khurshēd hast ān jā shab n-īst. (S.)
 Shauq hai jab ṭak pasé parḍah jamālē Yār hai,
 Hat gayā parḍa ṭo phir ḍīḍār hī ḍīḍār hai. (S.)

Haḍīse muṭrib o mai go,
 Wa rāze ḍahr kam-ṭar jo,
 Ke kas na kushūd o na kushāyaḍ
 Ba hikmaṭ īn moammā rā. (S.)

Asrār-i-azal rā na tū dānī wa na man,
 Īn harf-i-moammā na tū khwānī wa na man,
 Haṣṭ az pas-e parḍah guft-o-gū-e man o tū,
 Chuñ parḍah bi-yuftad, na tū mānī wa na man.
 (S.)

(What can I do, friends !, I know not myself,
 I have forgot my-self, quite lost my-self !
 I am not Christian, neither Jew am I,
 Nor Zoroastrian, nor Musalmān ;
 I only know that I am only I !
 The Sūfī is no more—his lower self
 Is now no more—and that which is no more
 Any religion can possess no more.
 He, who has found his God, is God, is Self ;
 Who is all God can need no other God ;
 Where the sun shines night can no longer be.
 So long as the Belovéd's Loveliness
 Is hid behind a veil, love's longings last ;
 But when the veil uplifts, all longings go,
 And only Vision face to face abides.
 Strike on the harp of thine own inner being,
 And drink to fill, the wine of Love Divine.¹
 No argument may ope the mystery
 Which the deft touch of Love alone can ope.
 While there remains the sense of 'I' and 'thou',
 Nor 'thou' nor 'I' can probe this mystery

¹ Literally translated, the verse means : "Don't bother your head about unfathomable mysteries ; enjoy yourself while you may, with wine and music". Esoterically interpreted, muṭrib, (a Persian stringed instrument) is sā iya m dāivī vīṇā, 'this divine harp' of the nervous system, on which the Self plays, the Self whose Nature and ways are understood, not by arguing, but by insight, intuition ; the song is the

Of the World's Dawning ; neither 'I' nor 'thou,'
 Can read this mystic rede illegible.
 With screen between, is talk of 'me' and 'thee',
 The screen of this gross flesh and blood and bone,
 This curtain of dense selfish egoism ;
 When the veil lifts, there's no more 'thou' and 'I,'
 But all the Uni-verse grows On (e)-ly I.)

This chapter on the Way of Devotion may well close with a noble song by a great devotee, who bore witness splendidly to his faith, by the martyrdom to which he went, with compassion on his face for those who slew him, knowing no better, and with a verse on his lips, of reminder to all, of the Spiritual Race of the lovers and helpers of humanity :

Sarmaḍ ! gila-go na शुḍ,
 niko शुḍ ke na शुḍ ;
 Lab bé-huḍa-go na शुḍ,
 niko शुḍ ke na शुḍ.
 Minnaṭ-kash-e Charkh na mī
 shuḍī ākhire-kār,
 Kār-é ke niko na शुḍ,
 niko शुḍ ke na शुḍ.

a n ā h a ṭ a n ā ḍ a, 'the voice of the silence', heard within the 'head' or the 'heart', when all the physical senses have been closed ; (some 'esoteric' schools teach concentration in the heart, some in the head); the wine is the wine of 'love divine', and also a superfine secretion, a - m a r a - v ā r u ṇ ī, 'the wine of the immortals', 'the elixir of life', which forms in the brain and the nervous system, when listening to that 'unuttered sound' is practised. Such is the indication of old books and wandering ascetics.

Sarmad ! ba kū-e ishq baḍ-nām shudī !
 Az dīn-e Yahūd sū-e Islām shudī !
 Mālūm na shud, kaī az Khudā o Ahmad
 Bar-gashṭa, ba sū-e Lachhman o Rām shudī !
 Sarmad ! ḡham-e ishq bul-hawas rā na dīhand !
 Soz-e-dīl-e parwāna magas rā na dīhand !
 Umr bāyaḍ ke Yār āyaḍ ba kinār ;
 In ḍaulate-Sarmad hama kas rā na dīhand !

(Sarmad ! thou ne'er didst't cringe and whine and pray,

Nor ever let thy lips abase thy-Self,

Even before the rolling vault of Heaven !

They say, 'Twas not well done' ; but Sarmad says,

'It was well done that it was not well done' !

Sarmad ! they scorned thee, treading lone the lane

Of Love, amidst the towns of Judah's creed,

And of the faithful followers of Islām,

Then also of the votaries of Rām.

Lovers of their small selves alone thou found

Mostly ; and very few of the One Self.

Sarmad ! the blissful ache of Love Divine

To seekers of the senses is not given.

The flame of heart is for the moth alone ;

The fly upon the filth can know it not.

A whole lifetime of yearning, sad and mad—

Then only thy Loved One came to thy arms !

This Wealth Infinite that belongs to thee,

Sarmad ! alas ! to all may not be given !)¹

¹Sarmad was a spiritual descendant of Mansūr who was martyred by the then Khālīfā of Baghdād, in 920 A. C., for going about the streets exclaiming An-al-Haq, ('I am God', A h a m B r a h m a). After wandering about, in search of God, in the western countries of Asia, Sarmad came to Delhi, in the days of Aurangzeb, became a Sūfī-Vēdāntī, and went about in the streets, God-intoxicate, careless whether there was any clothing on his person or none at all, shouting An-al-Haq, like Mansūr, from time to time. Aurangzeb ordered him to be killed. He went to his martyrdom, with sad smile of compassion on his face for those who 'knew no better', and song of triumph over Death, on his lips, for the instruction of the future generations :

Arsa būd, awāza-é Mansūr kuhan शुद्ध,
 Man jalwa dīham bār-e dīgar dār o rasan rā !
 (Long years have passed since Mansūr gave the world

 His message ; and its holy influence Grows faint ; I must revive it now, and give Fresh power to it with the help of these,
 The headsman's binding ropes and block of wood !
 Death gives a larger Life to Sons of God !)

CHAPTER IV

The Way of Works, or the Volitional Constituent of Religion

IN life, cognition-desire-action, jñāna-icchā-kriyā, ilm-kḥwāhish-fa'l, are always rotating. We perceive something; we feel a desire for or against it; we act to secure or remove it. New activity brings new knowledge; that engenders new desire; that causes new movement. Thus are the three life-functions always circling round and round; inseparable, though distinguishable. The same three factors are the distinguishable but inseparable components of Religion. We begin life, as infant, with desire (for nourishment) predominant; then pass on, as child, to (aimless-seeming) restless activity; then slowly develop intelligence and gather knowledge, connected, systematic, organised; then have larger desires, ambitions; more complicated activities, enterprises. So in Religion, the first stage is desire (more or less inchoate) for 'nourishment for the soul', for something more than this life offers; then comes activity, 'the way of works', sharia't, karmā-mārga, rites and ceremonies; then a somewhat clearer notion of the other worlds, and of God; then more earnest desire for God, 'the way of devotion', bhakti-mārga, tarīqat, yearnings, fervors, ardours, worships, internal prayers and beseechings, passionings and compassionings; then the 'action' of intense study, reflection, v i - c h ā r a, ghaur, kḥauz, 'mental exploration', 'intellectual diving, moving, searching all round', the 'internal' side of y o g a-practices; then 'the way of knowledge', 'illumination', 'the Finding of the Sought', j ñ ā n a - m ā r g a, haqiqat or ma'ārifat; after which, there is deliberate desire for the good of all, conscious philanthropy, (not only temperamental goodness as that of a good child), and deliberate appropriate dutiful activity, all three in one.¹

Yogās-ṭrayo Mayā pr-oktāh,
 Nṛṇām shréyo-vidhiṭsayā ;
 Jñānam, Karma cha, Bhaktish-cha ;
 N-opāyo-ny-ostī kuṭra-chiṭ.
 Nir-viṇṇānām Jñāna-yogo
 Nyāsinām iha karmasu ;
 Tēshv-a-nir-viṇṇa-chiṭṭānām
 Karma-yogas-ṭu karminām ;
 Yadrchchhayā Maṭ-kathā-dau
 Jāta-shraddhas-ṭu yah pumān,
 Na nir-viṇṇo n-āṭi-sakto
 Bhakti-yog-osya siḍḍhi-ḍah.

(Bhāgavata, xi. ch. 20.)

(Three ways have I declared, for helping men,
 Walking which, they may gain the Highest Good ;
 The Ways of knowledge, Love, and Pious Works.
 For the child-mind that clings yet to the world,
 There is the Way of Rites and Pious Works.
 For those not clinging nor yet surfeited,
 Who have heard rumours of Me, and have felt

¹See p. 86, supra.

Vague longings and strong stirrings of the heart,
 The Way of Worship is the helpful way.
 For those who are world-weary, 'dis-illusioned',
 Seek but for rest from all this Vast Illusion
 Of whirling purgat'ries and paradises,
 And have no wish left to initiate
 New enterprises, but only to pay
 All unpaid 'debts', do 'duties' undischarged—
 For them the Way of Knowledge is the Way.)

For the soul which has found the Final Object of all Seeking, the three Ways have merged into one. For the yet seeking and slowly and steadily progressing, the three are distinguishable. Since 'action' is most 'manifest'; desire and cognition are hidden; they manifest in and through action; therefore, differences, quarrels, also 'manifest' most in the 'actions' of 'children', 'child-minds'.

Accordingly, differences between religions are most apparent in the third department, viz., Karma-kāṇḍa, Sharīyat or Mā'milāt, sacraments, rites, ceremonies and observances. Yet the differences are only apparent. There is very substantial similarity underneath the surface. The dresses of men seem to differ greatly; yet because the human shape en clothed by them is the same, all dresses have to shape themselves to it more or less closely.

1. The Vedic sandhyā-upāsānā, the Christian prayer, the Muslim namāz—are the same. The essential parts of all are almost exactly the same. Indeed they are almost like translations of one another. They all pray to the Ultimate Source or Reservoir of all Cosmic Energy, Mental, Physical, Biotic, for Right Intelligence and Righteous Will, inner illumination and guidance, protection from evil temptations, and strength of mind to do the right duty. Obviously, if the intelligence is right and righteous, and the will strong and guided by that intelligence, everything will go right.¹

¹Psychologically, prayer is essentially prayer to the God Within All, the Collective Consciousness, the Principle of Consciousness, Omnipresent, Omnipotent, Omniscient. The latest 'scientific' name of this Ultimate is the 'Total Unconscious'. It is a new and significant variant of the old 'Unmanifest', a - v y a k ṭ a , bāṭin, 'hidden'. 'Praying' is, mostly, an 'unconscious' i.e. unwitting, non-deliberate, (in a comparative few, a deliberate), wishing and willing that this 'Unconscious' may become conscious, in the person praying. A scientist, an inventor, 'concentrating' upon the solution of some problem, is thus praying, performing y o g a, that the all-knowing Unconscious within him, may become conscious in his brain in respect of that part of All-Knowledge which he (the person praying) desires. Young souls can only gradually transfer their prayers from 'a god without' to 'the God within'. As children, we pray to our father, mother, elder, guardian, for everything. When grown up, we 'pray' to ourselves, we insist upon ourselves, we wil, to stand upon our own feet, and avoid troubling others with requests for help, as much as possible. But this is not always possible. Then we, (even though grown-up, yet not grown sufficiently strong), have to seek the help of others; who are senior,

Aum ! Bhūh, Aum ! Bhuvah, Aum ! Svah.
 Aum ! Ṭaṭ Savit̥ur-varēnyam bhargo Dēvasya dhīmahi, dhiyo yo nah prachodayāt. Aum !

(V., Gāyatrī.)

stronger, superior. Always in the last resort, the final work has to be done by one-Self. The mother and the father may give food, the teacher information ; but the eating, masticating, digesting, absorbing, understanding, assimilating, must be done by one-Self. So are there prayers to the personal gods, ī s h t a - d ē v a - s, malāyak, aulyā, r s h i s, pīr-s, mediators, angels, saints ; and behind them all is the perpetual unavoidable 'prayer' to the Impersonal Omnipresent God. Of this 'perpetual prayer', the incessant act of breathing, 'praying to the god of air', atmos, is a primary simple manifestation. In its spiritual aspect, this 'breathing' is called, in Vēdism, the a-japā gāyatrī, 'the unuttered inaudible, prayer'; in which, every breath signifies, 'That am I', 'That am I', 'I am That', 'I am That', So(A)ham, Sah Aham, or, reversed, Aham Sah. Without the perpetual in-filling, in-coming, of that Great Pure I, and the out-going, out-casting, of the impurities of the small I, the small I cannot live at all.

Har nafasé ke furo mī rawaḍ,

Mumiḍḍ-e hayāt ast;

Wa chuñ bar mī āyaḍ,

Mufarreh-e zāt;

Pas ḍar har nafasé ḍo némuṭ

Maujūḍ ast,

Wa bar har némaṭé shukré wājib. (S., Sā'ḍī.)

(Each breath that goeth in strengthens the life ;
 Each that comes out, the body purifies.

Aum ! Agné ! naya supathā rāyé
 Asmān, vishvāni, Déva !, vayunāni vidvān ;
 Yuyodhy-asmaj-juhurāṇam éno
 Bhūyishthām té nama ukṣim vidhéma.
 Aum ! (V.)

Aum ! Vishvāni !, Deva ! Savitar !, ḍurītāni parāsuva, yaḍ bhaḍram ṭan na āsuva ! Aum ! (V.)

Each breathing in-and-out two blessings brings ;
 Then think of Him with each, with twofold thanks.)

Praying for display of piety, is obviously wrong ; and not only useless but harmful. Ordinarily, prayer in secrecy and solitude is sincerest and most full of deep emotion. In conditions of widespread, profound, national surge of feeling, in the presence of great danger or actual calamity, mass-prayer is obviously commanded by nature itself. Congregational prayer is right, useful, effective, in other circumstances also, if sincere and single-minded. Solitary study has its own uses ; so has joint class-room study. It all depends upon the object in view, the temperaments and the requirements, of the persons concerned, and the general surrounding conditions.

“Prayer opens the spiritual sight of man, for prayer is desire, and desire developes into will. The magnetic emanations proceeding from the body at every effort—whether mental or physical—produce self-magnetisation and ecstasy...Jesus has given the advice : ‘When thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are ; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men...But when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father in secret’....” (H. P. Blavatsky, Isis Unveiled, I. 434.)

Aum !

Yaj-jāgrato dūram udaiti Daivam,
 Taḍ-u suptasya tatha-iv-aṭi,
 Dūraṅ-gamam jyotiṣhām jyotiṣ-Ēkam
 Tan-mé Manah shiva-sankalpam aṣṭu !
 Yaṭ prajñānam, uṭa chéto, dhṛtiś cha,
 Yaj-jyotiṣ-antar-Amṛtam prajāsu,
 Yasmān na ṛtē kinchana karma kriyaṭé,
 Tan-mé Manah shiva-sankalpam aṣṭu !
 Yén-édam bhūtam bhuvanam bhaviṣyaṭ
 Parigrhītam Amṛténa sarvam,
 Yasminś-chiṭtam sarvam oṭam prajānām,
 Tan-mé Manah shiva-sankalpam aṣṭu !

Aum ! (Iṛ.)

Aum !

Yo dévānām prabhavash-ch-oḍbhavash-cha,
 Viśhv-āḍhipo, Rudro, Maharshih,
 Hiraṇya-garbham janayāmāsa pūrvam,
 Sa no budḍhyā shubhayā samyunakṭu !

Aum ! (U.)

Aum !

In the three worlds, planes, states of consciousness,
 Waking, and Dreaming, and Deep Slumber too,
 Father of all, may Thy Supernal Light
 Inspire, illuminate, and guide our minds ;
 We ope them to that Radiance Divine !

Aum !

Aum !

Supreme Director ! Lord of Warmth and Light,
 Of Life and Consciousness, that knowest all !
 Guide us by the Right Path to happiness !
 And give us strength and will to war against
 The sins that rage in us and lead astray !
 We bow in reverence and prayer to thee !

Aum !

Aum !

Father Divine !, all sins ward off from us,
And all auspicious virtues grant to us.

Aum ! (V.)

Aum !

This Mind Divine of mine, which wanders far
When I am waking, and comes back in sleep—
May this far-reaching light of lights will right !

This Mind of mine, which is intelligence
All-knowing ; which is living consciousness,
And patient self-maintaining fortitude ;
Which is the inner and immortal light
Without which we are naught—may it will right !

This Mind of mine, which in eternal grasp
Holds past and present and the future, all,
In which all other minds are interwoven
As warp and woof—may it will ever right !

Aum ! (V.)

Aum !

Who did create and is the Lord of all,
Senses, sense-objects, souls, or high or low,
Rudra, the Seed of I-ness, and all-knower,
Maharshi, Who did generate at first
The Golden Egg wherein are interlinked
The wheeling globes by Prime Intelligence—
May He endow us with the righteous Mind.

Aum !

Bhadrām karṇébhiḥ śrṇuyāma, Dēvāḥ !
Bhadrām paśhyém-ākshabhir-yajatrāḥ ;
Sthirair-angais-tushtuvāmsas-tanūbhir-
Vyashémahi dēva-ḥiṭam yaḍ-āyuh. (V.)

(May we hear words of sweetness with our ears ;
May we see joyous sights with our eyes ;
With firm and healthy limbs, may we live on
For so long as is good for our organs,

Sensor and motor, through which ye do live,
 Ye gods ! ye Nature-forces !¹ Living thus Shall we express and hymn your glories well !)

B-ism-illāh-ir-Rahmān-ir-Rahīm.

Al-hamdu lillāhi Rabb-il-ā'limīn.

Ar-Rahmān ir-Rahīm ! Mālik-i-yaum-id-dīn.

Iyyāka na'buḍu, wa iyyāka nasta'in ;

Ihḍin-as-sirāt-ul-mustaqīm,

Sirāt-allazīna an amṭa a'laihim,

Gḥair-il-maghzūb-i-a'laihim

wa lā-azzallīn. Āmīn ! (Q.)

Praise be unto the Lord of all the worlds !

O Lord of Mercy and Beneficence !

Master Supreme of the great Judgment Day !

Thee do we serve and Thee beseech for help ;

Show us the Path on which Thy blessings rest,

The Straight Path ; not of those who go astray,

On whom descends thy wrath and punishment !

Āmīn.)

Rabbana āṭina f-id-duniya hasanaṭan, wa f-il-ākhirati hasanaṭan, wa qinā azāb-un-nār. (Q.)²

(O God of all !

Bestow on us all blessings in this world,

And also in the other future world ;

And save us from the fires of sin and hell.)

¹ The d é v a - s, 'gods', are the nature-forces of the 'five elements, ākāsha-ether, air, fire, water, earth', with which the five sensor and five motor organs are connected, in Védicist 'natural philosophy'.

² We have seen before, p. 285, supra, that the Védic 'Messiah' as well as the Biblical 'Nabī' have prayed for the 'daily bread'. In the above text, the Qurānic 'Rshī' does the same. The Védic verse, quoted just before, praying for long life of the physical

Our Father which art in heaven !
Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come.
Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven.
Give us this day our daily bread.

And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.
And lead us not into temptation ; but deliver us from evil ; for Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen ! (B., N. T.)

Lead me, O Lord, in Thy righteousness. Make Thy Way straight before my face. Cleanse Thou me from secret faults. Keep back Thy servant from presumptuous sins ; let them not have dominion over me.
Wash me thoroughly from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin.

body and for auspicious sense-objects, has the same significance. The affairs of this world are by no means to be neglected and despised. Quite obviously, by the declarations of all religions, right conduct in this world is the necessary condition of welfare in the next. That there is a next world, all religions are agreed ; and if the question were to be decided by the 'democratic' method, and were put to a universal plebiscite, the vast majority of the two thousand million human beings who inhabit this earth, including the 170 or so millions of even the Soviet Russia of today, would surely say 'Yes' ! Therefore, it is right that we should pray for, and exert ourselves to win, well-being in both worlds. The Védic Rshi, indeed, declares expressly that "Religion is that which secures happiness here as well as hereafter".

Yato Abhy-udaya-Nis-shrtyasasiddhiih sa Dharmah. (Vaisheshika-Sūtra.)

Search me, O God !, and know my heart, try me and know my thoughts, and see if there be any wicked way in me ; and lead me in the Way Everlasting.

Show me Thy Ways, O Lord ! Teach me Thy Paths ; and lead me in Thy Truth ; Thou art the God of my Salvation. Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of Thy law. Quicken thou me according to Thy Word. Remove from me the way of lying. (B., O. T., Psalms.)

Shemaa Israel ! Adonai Elohenu, Adonai Ehad !

Yehi rason millefanekha, Adonai Elohenu velohe abothenu, shettargilenu Bethoratheka vethadbikenu bemisswotheka, ve-al tebienu lide het velo lide abera velo lide nissayon velo lide bizzayon vetharhikenu miyesser haraa ; vethadbikenu beyasser hattob veth-nenu lehen velhessed velrahmin be-énekha vebene kol roenu veghomlenu hasadim tobim. Barukh Atta Adonai gomel hasadim tobim leammo Israel. Amen.

(Hear, O Israel ! the Lord is our God, the Lord is One. May it be Thy will, O Lord our God, and God of our fathers, to cause us to walk in Thy law and cleave to Thy commandments ; and lead us not into sin, transgression, temptation, and contempt. Remove from us every evil inclination and cause us to adhere to the good. Oh, grant us grace, favour and mercy in Thy sight, and in the sight of all that behold us, and bestow gracious favours on us. Blessed art Thou, O Lord, who bestowest gracious favours on Thy people Israel. Amen.)¹

¹The original Hebrew words of this prayer, in roman characters, and also the translation, included in the text above, are taken from the pamphlet, a book of prayers of all faiths, published by the Theosophical

The 'Honovar'-prayer, (so named because of the words 'ahu-vairaya' or 'ahuna-vairayo' which occur in it), is held as sacred in Zoroastrianism as the 'Gāyatrī' prayer is in Védism. It is :

Yathā ahu vairayo, athā Raṭush, ashāt chit ha chā, vanghéush ḍazaḍā manangho, shyaōthanānām anghéush Mazadā-i kshathrém chā Ahurāi ā. Yim dreguvyo ḍadāt vāstārém.

(Fix we our minds in worship on the Lord,
Of Right and Might, of Wisdom and of Power,
Who gives us Conscience to do godly deeds,
And also gives Detachment from the World,
And patient Resignation whence we gain
Solace in time of weakness and of pain.)¹

Publishing House, Adyar, Madras, in 1925, under the title of "Union of all Faiths in a Common Act of Worship". The word 'Israel' is said to be composed of 'Isr', 'righteousness' and 'El', 'omnipotent'; hence it means, 'those who walk righteously in the Law of omnipotent God'. The reader, if he happens to be curious in matters of philology cum philosophy, may consult those mines of occult lore, H. P. Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled and The Secret Doctrine, (with the help of the Indices) for the connections between Indian, Phoenician, Hebrew, and Greek Dyaurnishā, Divā-nisham, Dionysus, Adonai, Adonis, Adam-Adami, Adam, Āḍi-Manu, Āḍi-nāṭha, Eden, A-D-N-Y; and between Indian A-I-U-M, Ê-O-M, A-I-A-O, H-A-Y-A-V-A, and the western I A O, Jaho, Jah, Jahveh, Jehovah, Jove, Eve, Yahveh, Yahya, I-hi-we, Hawwā, J-H-V-H, Iachchus, Oe-Ao-Hoo, Oi-Ha-Hoo; Dyaus-pitr, Jupiter; etc.

¹This rendering is based on the interpretation made by Shri J. M. Chatterji, Ethical Conceptions of

...Apāno ɖarəgo jyāitīm, ā kshaṭṭhrēm vanghéush manangho; ashāt ā éréjush paṭho yaéshu Mazadāo Ahuro shaétī. (Z., Gāthā, 33. 5.)

...Ahmāt avā mananghā yā véréjyē-īdyāyī manṭā vāṣṭrayā...(33. 6.)

...Ahuro Mazadāos chā āрмаitīsh chā ashém chā frādaṭ gaéthém manas chā vohu kshaṭṭhrēm chā... ādāi...(33. 11.)

the Gāthā, (2nd edn.), pp. 11, 532; so also are all the other renderings of Gāthā-texts, given in this book, based on his. Scholars can check and correct by the original texts, reproduced here in roman letters. Another version of the Honovar is as below; it is only a versified form of the words (slightly altered for purposes of metre) of the English translation by Dr. Irach J. S. Taraporewala (see p. 47, supra), which appeared in The Bombay Theosophical Bulletin for September, 1937.

(As the earth's sovereign ruleth o'er the earth,
E'en so the Spiritual Teacher rules
The Mind of all, because of the Great Power
Of Rectitude and all the other gifts
Of the Good Mind. The Strength of Ahura,
And all those other gifts that go with it,
Are given to him who worketh for the Lord
In service of his brethren to his best.
May the Good Mind inspire us so we may Bring solace to the souls of all in need !)

Dr. Taraporewala says that, like all the other Saviours "after years of struggle with his lower self, Zarathustra gets Illumination", and begins the work of his mission with the utterance of "the Ahuna-vairya, 'the Holy Word of sacrifice'..."

Yā shyaothanā yā vachanghā yā yasnā améréṭātēm ashém chā taībyo dāonghā, Mazadā ! kshatṭhrēm chā haurvātāto aeshām toī, Ahurā !, éhyā pōuruṭemāish dāsté (34. 1.)

Aṭ chā hoī sachantū mananghā ukhḍhāīs shyaothanāīs chā ; kshnum Mazadāo Vahmāi ā fraorét yasnās chā...Dāongho éréjush paṭho yām dāénām Ahuro
Saoshyānto dādat (53. 2.).

(Grant me long life, Lord Mazadā !, Fortitude,
And the right mind ; and show me

the Straight Path,

O'er which Thou broodest, and which leads to Thee.

Lord ! give me such a Mind as makes men Wise

And dutiful...The wealth of Rectitude,

From which all other wealth flows of itself,

And Conscience Just, and Patient Fortitude,

And right Activity, bestow on me.

Come unto me, Great Mazadā ! with Thy hands

Full of those duties, righteous words and deeds,

Which bring Spirituality, detached

Aloofness from the world, Salvation thence.

Right thoughts, right words, right

deeds—by these we gain

Knowledge of Mazadā, and thence of Brahm' ;

The Straight Path that the Loving

Lord Soshyānt

Gave us—may we not ever err from it.)

Aṭ toī, Mazadā ! tēm mainyūm asha-okshanṭāya sarēdyayāo khāṭhrā maēthā mayā vahisṭā varētū mananghā ayāo aroī hākurenēm yayāo hachinté ūrvāno.
(33. 9.).

(May this my mind, Lord Mazadā ! show to me

The Truth, Thy inmost Spirit, Greatest Good,

Ideal of Ideals, to guide me
 Aright in ways of Righteousness always.
 Having achieved that goal, I will have gained
 All lesser things, to which my soul inclines.)

Sīshā nāo ashā paṭho vanghūsh khaētēng manangho. (34. 12.)
 (Teach us the path of conscious Rectitude, Great Lord ! wherem Conscience rests satisfied.)

Ashā, Rectitude, Right Desire, Vahishtam Manah, Right mind, Right knowledge, Ārmāitī, Right will, Right action, Kshat-thrām, Patient and Steady Detachment, and Mananghā, thoughts, Vachanghā, words, Shyaothanā, deeds—these words are of very frequent occurrence in the Gāthās.

A brief, and very common, Védist prayer to be cleansed of sins, and be forgiven, is :

Pāp-oham, pāpa-karm-āham,
 pāp-ātmā pāpa-sambhavaḥ,
 Pāhi mām, Pundarik-āksha !,
 sarva-pāpa-haro bhava. (Mbh.)

(Sinful am I, sin-acting, and sin-born, Sin-natured. Cleanse Thou me from all my sin !)

It may be noted that Aum (pronounced as Om), Amīn, Amen, respectively used by Vaidika Dharma, Islām, and Christianity, are the same word, all meaning, "Be it so", besides other meanings.

A Jaina prayer-hymn is :

Arahanṭa namo ! Bhagavanṭa namo !
 Param-ēshvara Jina-rāja namo !

Prabhu pāran-gaṭa, parama mahodāya,
 Avināshī, akalanka, namo !
 Ajara, amara, aṭi-shaya aḍbhuṭa-niḍhi,
 Pravachana-jaladhi-mayanka, namo !
 Kēvala-gyānā-ḍarshē ḍarshiṭa,
 Lokā-loka-sva-bhāva, namo !
 Nāshiṭa-sakala-kalanka-kalusha-gaṇa,
 Duriṭa-upaḍrava-bhāva, namo !
 Asharaṇa-sharaṇa, vi-rāga, nir-anjana,
 Nir-upādhika, Jagad-īsha, namo !
 Boḍhi ḍīnu an-upama ḍān-éshvara,
 Gyāna bimala, sūr-īsha, namo !¹
 (Thou that deservest every praise !
 The Lord of every glory, Thou !
 Our God Supreme ! We bow to Thee !
 Stainless, decayless, wonderful,
 Exhaustless fount of marvels all ;
 The One Sole object of all hymns,
 Who can be glimpsed but in the glass
 Of Soli-tary Consciousness,
 That has negated all the taints
 Of restless sins, disturbances,
 Attachments to false fleeting things,
 That stain Thy Purity of Peace !
 Thou Refuge of the refugeless !
 Thou Formless, Moveless, Passionless !
 Lord of the Worlds ! Thee we adore !
 Most Generous of givers, Thou !
 Give us that greatest gift of all—

¹This prayer is also taken from the Theosophical publication mentioned before, pp. 430-431, supra. For some verses from another Jaina prayer, in Samskr̥t, see pp. 145-146, supra.

The Luminous Intelligence
And Final Knowledge of Thy-Self !
Give us this gift ! We bow to Thee !)

The Buddhist prayer, in most common use, is :

Buddham sharaṇam gacchhāmi,
Dharmam sharaṇam gacchhāmi,
Sangham sharaṇam gacchhāmi.

Aum ! maṇi padmā, Aum !

(Ah ! Blessed Lord ! O High Deliverer !
Ah ! Lover ! Brother ! Guide ! Lamp of the Law !
Source of all Wisdom, Fountain of all Light !
I take my refuge in Thy name and Thee !
I take my refuge in Thy Law of Good !
I take my refuge in Thy Order ! Aum !
The gem-like drop of dew—my little soul—
Ah ! may it pass into the Lotus-bloom
That floats upon the Sea
Of Thy Infinity !)

A few verses from Sikh prayers are :

Sarab Kāla hai Piṭā apārā,
Dévi Kalikā Māṭa hamārā,
Manuyā Guru mohi, Manasā Māyī,
Yin mo ko saṭ-kriyā parhāi.
Dévi Shivā ! vara mohi yahai
Shubha karmoni té kabahūn na turūn,
Na darūn ari sé jaba āi larai,
Nishchaya kari apanī jīta karūn.
Thādha bhayé kara jora kar,
Vachana kahā shira nāe,
Panṭha chalai Tava jagaṭa mēn
Yav Tūm karo sahāe.

(GURU GOVINDA SINHA, Vichitra Nātaka and Chandī Charitra.)

(Th' Eternal is my Father measureless,
 My goddess-Mother is Eternity,
 My Teacher is my Mind ; its Intuition
 Is my good Nurse. They teach me to do right.
 Thou blessed Consort-Nature of the Lord !
 Grant me this boon that I may never turn
 From the Right Path of Duty ; never fear
 To war 'gainst evil ; and may always win !
 I fold my hands in humble prayer to Thee !
 I bend my head in lowly reverence !
 Ordain that Thy Path may be trod by all !
 Give me the strength to make it plain to men¹ !

Another great prayer, common to the several religions, common because it arises spontaneously from the unsophisticated human heart, which is the same all over the earth, for Darkness, outer as well as inner, is the great enemy of the good, and Light their great friend, may be noted :

Aum ! Ṭamasō mā Jyotīr gamaya,
 Asaṭo mā Saḍ gamaya,
 Mrtyor Amrtam ! Aum ! (V.)

(Lead me from Darkness unto Light; lead me
 From the Unreal to the Real; lead Me from the mortal to th' Immortal Self !)

Il allazīna āmanu yukhrijahum min az-Zulmāti il an-Nūr ! (Q.)

¹These last three prayers, Jaina, Buddhist, and Sikh, have some words in them, which make it possible, according to the mood of the devotee, to regard them as addressed to a 'personal' embodiment of the Supreme, viz., Mahāvīra Jina, or Buddha, or the goddess Durgā.

(Those who have found the faith are taken out Of Darkness into Light, ye faithful ones !)

Nūrun alā nūrin yahḍillāhū

lī nūrihī maṇyashāo. (Q.)

(Light blazing upon Light, God guideth him,
To whom He gives His grace, unto His Light.)

(Ocean of mercy ! dwell within our heart
Ever, and give such Light unto our mind,
That we may love, serve, worship Thee, our God !
Ever Thy presence may we feel near us,
Thou art our Father, Mother, Master, all !)

(Si., THR., 31.)

Lead, kindly Light, amid th' encircling gloom,
Lead thou me on !

The night is dark, and I am far from home,
Lead thou me on !

(Christian Hymn, by NEWMAN.)

An old Greek hymn to Minerva, goddess of Wisdom, sprung from the head of Jupiter, (which implies that she is the personification of the aspect of omni-science of the Supreme),
sings :

Great Goddess, hear !, and on my darkened mind,
Pour thy pure Light in measure unconfined ;
That Sacred Light, O all-preceding Queen,
Which beams eternal from thy face serene.
My soul, while wandering on the earth, inspire
With thine own blessed and impulsive Fire.

(PROCLUS, translated by Thomas Taylor.)

All the old 'dead' religions, and many of the living, but smaller and less known, religions of the less-developed, primitive or degenerate, peoples, have similar prayers for "illumination" of the mind and body, for guidance and inspiration, for being shown the right way and given the strength to tread it.

Let us note that most of these great elemental heart-prayers are prayers for the collective 'we', 'us', rather than the single 'me'; and even where the singular is used, the intention is plain, of righteous and loving relationship with all. Indeed, prayer without love, love of fellow-men as much as of God, (because the former is the beginning of the latter), is hollow, is mockery. The measure of the power of prayer to help is the measure of the love in the heart which prays.¹

¹Some other purposes and benefits of prayer may be noted. It is as the toilette of the mind, the soul. It is bathing in the pure waters of spiritual emotion; looking into the mirror of introspective self-examination; making sure that no unseemliness is left uncorrected, before presenting oneself before and to the Supreme, and then going forth to work among fellow-creatures, or retiring to rest for the night. Detailed considerations, in this regard, are offered in the writer's The Science of Social Organisation, I, 376-392. As to the times for prayer, obviously all times are good in which the soul feels the need for it. The significance and value of the a-japā-gāyaṭrī have been referred to, at p. 424, supra. The more advanced, the more pure, the more (wisely) 'child'-like the soul, the more it performs every act, 'keeping near' to the Parent, desirous to please the Parent, as if the Divine Father-mother is looking on and approving. Still, for the ordinary

2. But since men cannot always avoid temptation, and darkness falls upon their hearts and eyes, from time to time ; nay, but too frequently ; and they err into sin again and again ;

person, and for regulation of the day's routine, the hours of sunrise and sunset are recommended by most religions. The glories of God's Nature are most manifest then. Three beautiful English hymns may be quoted, to illustrate :

An Hour with Thee.

An hour with Thee ! when earliest day
Dapples with gold the eastern grey !
O what can frame the mind to bear
The toil and turmoil, cark and care,
New griefs which coming hours unfold,
And sad remembrance of the old ?

One hour with Thee !

An hour with Thee ! when sun is set !
O what can teach me to forget
The thankless labors of the day,
The hopes, the wishes, flung away,
Th' increasing wants, the lessening gains,
The master's pride who scorns my pains ?

One hour with Thee !

Ave Maria.

Ave Maria ! blessed be the hour,
The time, the clime, the spot, where I so oft
Have felt that moment in its fullest power
Sink o'er the earth, so beautiful and soft,
While swung the deep bell in the distant tower,
Or the faint dying-day-hymn stole aloft,
And not a breath crept through the rosy air,

therefore all religions prescribe expiation; and all in three steps: pa sh ch ā ṭ-ṭ ā pa, pr a-k h y ā pa na, pr ā ya sh-chi ṭ ṭ a; nadm, éṭarāf, kaffārā; repentance, confession, expiation.

Bāz ā, bāz ā, un-che haṣṭī bāz ā,
 Gar kāfir o gabr o buṭ-parasṭ-ī, bāz ā;
 In ḍar-gahe Mā ḍar-gahe nā-umedī n-īṣṭ;
 Saḍ bār agar ṭauba shikaṣṭī, bāz ā ! (S.)
 (Come back, come back, whate'er thou art, come back—

And yet the forest-leaves seemed stirred with prayer.
 Ave Maria ! 'tis the hour of prayer !
 Ave Maria ! 'tis the hour of love !
 Ave Maria ! O that face so fair !
 Those downcast eyes beneath th' Almighty Dove !
 Ave Maria ! may our spirits dare
 Look up to thine and to thy son's above !

Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal !
 Come, ye disconsolate !, where'er ye languish,
 Come to God's altar, fervently here kneel,
 Here bring your wounded hearts,
 here bring your anguish,
 Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal
 Joy of the desolate, Light of the straying
 Hope, when all others die, fadeless and pure,
 Here speaks the Comforter, in God's name saying,
 "Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal !"
 Go, ask the infidel, what boon he brings thee,
 What charm for aching hearts can he reveal,
 Sweet as the blessed promise that Hope sings us,
 "Earth has no sorrow that Heaven cannot heal !".

Sceptic, or worshipper of stone or fire !
 My House is not a house of hopelessness !
 If thou hast broke thy vow a hundred times,
 Yet still repent, and come again to Me !).

Apī chét su-ḍur-āchāro
 bhajaṭé Mām ananya-bhāk,
 Sāḍhur-éva sa maṇṭavyah
 samyag-vy-ava-siṭo hi sah. (G.)

(However gross his sins, if he will turn
 To Me and love Me with unswerving heart,
 He is a saint, he has resolved aright.)

When in the wrong, do not hesitate to amend.

(C., THR., 47.)

(Be not ashamed of your mistakes, for you
 Will thereby aggravate them into crimes...
 Do not defend, and do not try to hide,
 That which was wrong and sinful in your past.)

(C, Shu King; Liki, THR., 111.)

(If one has done bad deeds of wickedness,
 But afterwards repents and mends his way,
 Resolving not to do such any more,
 But practise reverently all that is good—
 He, in the long run, will be sure to gain
 Good fortune, and will change calamity
 Into sweet blessing through the lessons learnt.)

(T., Tai-Shang Kan-Ying Pien, THR., 50)

Khyāpanén-ānu-ṭāpéna, ṭapasā-ḍhy-ayanéna cha,
 Pāpa-kṛn-muchyaṭé pāpāṭ...
 prāyash-chiṭṭaiḥ prṭhag-vidḥaiḥ.
 Yaṭhā yaṭhā naro-(a-)ḍharmam
 svayam kṛtvā-nu-bhāshaṭé,
 Taṭhā taṭhā, ṭvach-év-āhiḥ,
 ṭén-ā-ḍharména muchyaṭé.

Yathā yathā manas tasya
 dush-kr̥tam karma garhaṭi, Tathā tathā sharīram taṭ
 tēn-ādharmēṇa muchyaṭé.
 Kr̥tvā pāpam tu san-ṭapya
 tasmāt pāpāt pra-muchyaṭé,
 N-aiva kuryām punar-iṭi
 Ni-vṛṭṭiyā pūyaṭé tu sah.

(M., xi, 46, 227, 228, 230.)

(Burning remorse, confession, and amends
 And expiation in the proper ways,
 And sacred studies and ascetic life—
 By such are sinners washed clean of their sins.
 As he repents his evil acts committed,
 As he confesses them with deep remorse,
 As he resolves he will not sin again,
 His sins peel off from him as snakes' dead skins,
 And he feels clean again in body and soul.)

Except ye repent, ye shall all perish...Repent ye, and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out...
 If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. (B.)

(They who, when they commit a crime or wrong,
 Remember God and beg Him to forgive,
 And do not persevere in what they did,
 But turn their heart from sin, repent, amend—
 They will gain pardon surely from the Lord.)

(THR., 49 ; Q., 2. 155 ; 5. 43 ; 6. 54 ; 3. 129, 130 ; 16. 20 ; 4. 145.)

The 'new' science of psycho-analysis, with much groping and many mistakes and corrections, is slowly developing a modern form and technique, for this ancient method of the purging of the soul, from 'sin' and 'toxic' passion and emotion, which make both soul and body sick with 'psychoses' and 'neuroses'. The latest advance of this 'new' science is embodied in the word 're-education'; i. e., psycho-analytic treatment, to be safe and successful, must 're-educate' the patient. 'Re-education' is the new name for what was formerly called 're-generation', 're-birth' 'the second birth', 'conversion', 'change of heart'. The old words had become hackneyed and lost significance. The old priest-doctors had forgotten that significance and become quacks or worse. A change was necessary. Therefore, nature, collective human nature, is bringing it about. Religion is becoming scientific. Science is becoming religious. The new healer will have to be a healer of body and soul both, simultaneously; for both always fall ill together, though, usually, the one more and the other less. The future 'medicine-man' will have to be such, on the high level of 'spiritual scientist', 'scientific priest'. The new tendency towards 'prison reform' and 'prisoners' education' is working in the same direction; but it seems to be suffering from one serious and dangerous defect, viz., it does not guide the criminal to make repentant expiation to the victim; the consequence of which is likely to be that jail may come to be regarded as a desirable place of comforts, which can be easily secured by crime.

3. All religions equally enjoin discriminate 'charity' to the deserving, pāṭrē dāna, zakāt, and the construction of "pious works," churches, mosques, temples, alms-houses, rest-houses, wells, tanks, hospitals, schools, roads, aqueducts, and plantations of groves and avenues of fruiting, flowering, and ornamental trees, etc.—all dedicated for public use in the name of God. The modern 'secular' way of satisfying this need of the individuo-social heart is, 'subscriptions' and 'donations' to public institutions or movements, educational concerns, schools, universities, libraries, scientific institutes, hospitals, charitable endowments of all sorts.

4. All call their Scriptures by names having the same significance, viz., 'the Word of God': B r a h m a - v ā k y a, Kalām-ullāh, Go(d)-spel(l). All arrange them in the same way, a ḍ h y ā y a and m a n ṭ r a, 'chapter and verse', sūrah and āyat. All have written immense and numerous b h ā s h y a s, commentaries, tafsīrs and tashrihs on them. All have evolved a M ī m ā m s ā, Science of Theology and Exegesis, Fiqah. All interpret them in various ways, literal, allegorical, mystical, moral, anagogic, arithmetical, 'prophetic', etc. All believe their respective religions to have two aspects; one, for the masses; another, for the few advanced souls. As the Upanishats are the r a h a s y a, 'secret', of the Vedas; so the Qabbalah is that of the Old Testament or Hebrew part of the Bible; Bāṭinī Ṭasawwuf, that of the Quran; the Gnosticism and Mysticism of St. John and St. Paul and the Book of Revelation, that of the New Testament, the Christian part of the Bible; and these 'hidden', 'esoteric', 'occult' teachings of all the religions are almost exactly the same. All believe in a four-fold source of religious law : Qurān—Ḥaḍīṣ—Ijmā'—Qayās ; Revelation — Tradition — Canonical Regulation (i.e., Episcopal Legislation, Learned Opinion, Good Custom, also Example of the Wise and Godly)—Conscience ; Shruti—Smṛti—Sad-āchāra—Ātma-tuṣṭi (or Hṛday-ābhya-nu-jñā) ; which all correspond to the modern legal Statute—Custom—Precedent—Equity.¹

5. Because man clings to form, being himself naught else than God incarnate in a form, and finds it difficult to turn at once to the Formless, therefore all religions try to take him, step by step, from outer worship to the Inner Worship. But religion becomes ruthless priestcraft, when, instead of leading the people on from step to higher step, endeavour is assiduously made to stultify their intelligence, and fill it with irrational and debasing superstitions and fears, and keep them fixed to the lowest step for ever, in order that they may be preyed upon the more easily.

¹The 'cha' in Manu's verse: (1) Shruti, (2) Smṛti, (3) Sad-āchārah, (4) Svasya cha priyam Ātmanah—indicates that all four are inter-dependent ; all are needed to make good sound law-dharma acceptable to all. The first three represent Society and Socialism, the last, the Individual and Individualism. This last, since the 'Individual' is in essence the 'Universal', 'law unto him-Self', ultimately becomes Universalism, when the Individual is such as has consciously realised its identity with the Universal.

Apsu dēvā manushyāṇām,
 dīvi dēvā manīṣiṇām,
 Bālānām kāshtha-loshtéshu,
 budhasy-Ātmani dēvaṭā. (Agni Purāṇa.)

(The child-soul's gods abide in wood and stone ;
 Of average man, in holy lakes and streams ;
 Of the intelligent, in heavenly orbs ;
 The wise man's God is his Immortal Self.)

The Christian Scriptures distinguish between "milk for babes" and "meat for the strong". We have recorded before, Kṛṣṇa's counsel : "Those who know more should not shake the minds and the faiths of those who know less, too violently"; and Muhammad's advice : "People should be spoken to and taught according to the measure of their intelligence."¹

A western poet makes a repentent sinner say :

I thought I could not breathe in that fine air
 That pure severity of perfect light,
 I wanted warmth and color.....Now I know
 Thou art the highest and most human too.

(TENNYSON)

Zoroastrianism eschewing all worship of forms, has yet established the Agyāri, the Ātash-Bahrām, the visible fire, symbol of the Spiritual Fire of Life and Consciousness, the Fire round which all human beings should gather to derive therefrom Heat and Light, warm Vitality, and En-light-enment of Mind, common Consciousness of Unity and Brotherhood, and common Purpose of General Welfare and United Effort to achieve that Purpose. This Agyārī, (Skt. Agni-agārā, the 'storing-place of fire') is the correspondent of the 'Agni-hotra' ceremony of Vēdism.

¹See pp. 150-151, supra.

An Islamic legend says that Moses rebuked a simple-hearted cobbler for praying to God to appear to him, so that he might put a pair of fine shoes on His feet. But the Voice of God, from within him, rebuked Moses, in turn :

Ṭū barāyé wasl kardān āmaḍī,

Nai barāyé fasl kardān āmaḍī. (S.)

(Thou wast sent down to bring souls near to Me,
And not to thrust them thus away from Me.)

So, the chronicles of Roman Catholic Christianity record that, once upon a time, there was a juggler, who made his living by going about and showing his tricks to the village-folk and townsfolk, with balls and knives. He attained great skill, and therefore even fame, in his art; though he could not always earn enough for his meals. One day he went into a church, and saw monks praying before a beautiful image of the Madonna, the holy Virgin Mary. He had a very simple heart, and a great love for the Madonna suddenly entered into it. When the monks went away, he, wishing to show his devotion to the Virgin, and knowing no other way, began to perform his tricks, with his head on the floor and feet in the air. The monks returned, happened to peep in through the chinks of the closed door, and saw the clown. They felt angry, and wished to enter, and remove him by force. Suddenly a haze came upon their eyes. Through it they saw a 'vision': the Madonna descended from her pedestal, and with her mantle wiped the sweat that was streaming from his brows. They fell upon their knees, and bowed their heads to the floor, murmuring: "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

The Bhakti-legends of Hinduism are full of similar stories, of soul-purifying 'visions', won by simple heart and faith undoubting, the faith that can move mountains, through child-like works of worship, very acceptable to the All-pervading Spirit of Love.¹

¹Hari Dās, (from whom Akbar's famous musician Tān-sén acquired his art), was a great devotee of Kṛṣṇa. The beautiful youthful dancing form of the deity was the object of his special adoration. When he used to play on the vīṇā and sing a dancing-song in ecstasy, he and his disciples often had the 'vision' of 'the azure image' descending from its pedestal and dancing before them. The legends say that the emperor went to Hari Dās' cottage in disguise, in company with Tān-sén, in the right mood; and the 'glorious vision of Beauty Incarnate' was vouch-safed to him also. Tulasī Dās is the author of the famous Hindī Rāmāyana, which has been the Bible of the Hindū people for the last three hundred years. He was a contemporary of Hari Dās. He was devoted to the Rāma-incarnation. At first, he was a householder; and, devotee as he was, the times being troublous, his piety was tinged

Image-worship would serve its rightful purpose, if it is kept within strict limits; not positively encouraged; and if the elders and spiritual ministers keep constantly reminding the people that the image is only a symbol, a remembrancer, of the One God. Islāmic tradition says that, when Umar expressed doubts as to the utility of kissing the Black Stone, Hajr-ul-aswad, fixed within the Kā'ba, (which ceremonial kissing Muhammad had ordained), Ali explained to him :

Al hajru Yamīn-ullāh f-il ard.

(The stone is as God's right hand on the earth.)

Accordingly, all religions have their specially sacred shrines, sacred bathing places, sacred with anxiety for his goods. One night, he had occasion to come out of his house, soon after midnight. He 'saw' a magnificently handsome and mightily manly youth, armed with bow and arrows, pacing up and down, sentry-wise, in front of the house. He went up eagerly and asked : "Who are you, and why pacing up and down?" A sweet rich-toned voice answered : "A friend of mine lives in this house and is anxious for his household goods ; so I am keeping guard." And, with a smile, the youth vanished. A great awe and a great joy and a great shame filled the soul of Tulasī Das, and made tumult therein : "I have seen my Lord ! But I have put Him to so much trouble by my sordid worry over some wretched pots and pans!" At once 'he gave them all away, and followed Him', and became the author of the Hindu's 'New Testament.' Such are the beautiful heart-purifying soul-uplifting legends, of the true devotees, of all races and religions.

towns, places of pilgrimage, etc. The purpose of all is to keep the mind fixed on higher and higher religious thoughts, spiritual ideas and virtues. To the soul not yet advanced to the stage of capacity for abstract contemplation, the attaching of progressively abstract, first super-physical, then meta-physical, concepts with concrete physical objects, acts, movements, of various kinds, is of very great help, nay necessary.

Hinduism has, from time immemorial, its well-known seven P a v i t r a - p u r i - s, Sacred Towns of Pilgrimage. These are, from north to south, Māyā-purī (now Hara-dvāra, Hardwar), Maṭhura (Muttra), Ayodhyā (Ajodhya), Kāshī (Benares), Avantikā (Ujjayini, Ujjain), Kānchī (Conjeeveram), and Dvārakā. These were all great seats of learning, centres of education, b r a h m a - p u r i - s, v i d y ā - p i ṭ h a - s, in the earlier days, like modern 'university' towns. Kāshī still is such, and has continued to be so, unbrokenly, for at least three thousand, and probably five thousand, years. Another set of four 'holy places' of pilgrimage, c h a ṭ u r - ḍ h ā m a, consists of Badarī in the Himālayas, Jagan-nāṭha on the eastern sea-coast, Rām-éshvara on the southern sea-coast, Dvārakā on the western sea-coast. Hundreds of new temple-towns, (like the cathedral-towns of medieval Europe and mosque-towns of western Asia), have sprung up within the last two thousand years, of which a score or so now come only next after the above-mentioned seven and four, in public estimation.

The Buddha, shortly before leaving this world, advised his followers to make centres of pilgrimage of four places, viz., those of (1) his birth, Lumbinī-vana, (2) his enlightenment, Buddha-Gayā, (3) his commencement of his work of mercy and preaching, Sār-nāth¹ in Benares, and (4) his passing into Para-nirvāṇa, viz., Kushi-nagara. He did so, presumably, to satisfy the unconquerable human craving for something visible, something tangible, even in religion; and to create external means of binding human hearts together, by establishing common interests and meeting-places for persons from all parts of the world, in a religious atmosphere and a pure mood of spiritual exaltation and aspiration. Trade and commerce and ideas all travel along ¹There seems to have been a great temple of Shiva, here, in the days of the Buddha; and the deity was imaged as 'the Lord and Protector of deer', of which, there seem to have been great herds here, then, specially protected and preserved from (not for) hunting, by local public religious feeling. As such Protector, the image of Shiva was named Sāranga-nātha, now shortened by non-literary popular usage into Sār-nāth; and the place was known as Sāranga-vana, 'Deer Park'. Compare the great saying of Christ: "Other sheep have I, which are not of this flock" (i.e. Jews). Christ is the 'shepherd'. Humane feeling towards animals, 'religious' in India, is beginning to express itself 'secularly' in the west, in such institutions as the Yellowstone Park of the U.S.A., in Zoos, and in laws for the protection of wild life, here and there.

such pilgrim-routes and help to spread common culture, common sympathy, humanism.

The Prophet Muhammad destroyed the three hundred and sixty idols of Macca, because he perceived the ill effects of excessive idolatry. Yet, realizing the needs of the human heart, he preserved one, viz., the Temple built by Abraham, Kā'ba, the Cube, with its Hajr-ul-Aswad and Hajr-ul-Yamān; and, with great foresight, made it the principal place of Islāmic worship, a uniting centre of an ordained pilgrimage, the Hajj. Muslims, offering prayers at the prescribed hours, always turn their faces in the direction of the Kā'ba, in whatever part of the world they may happen to be. But Muhammad omitted not to teach that, though enjoined for common practice, it was not spiritually essential. For, indeed :

Wa lillāh-il mashriqu w-al maghribu, fa aina mā
 ʔowallu fa summā Wajh-ullāhī ; inn-Allāhā wāseūn alīm
 ...Laisal birra an ʔowallu wujūha-kum qibal-al-mashriqī
 w-al-maghribī, wa lakinnal birra man āmana b-illāhī w-al-yaum-il-ākhirī w-al-malāyakāʔi w-al-kiṭābi w-an-nabīyīna. (Q.)

(Since God is omni-present, all-pervading,
 Since He is in the east as well as west,
 Whichever way ye turn, God's Face is there ;
 His Presence doth pervade the Universe...
 It is not righteousness to turn the face
 To east or west, but to believe in God,
 And in the Day of Judgment when you must
 The consequence of your good deeds and ill
 Meet with unfailingly, and to have faith

In angels, scriptures, and the prophets too.)

Lā inḍa Rabbi sabahun wa lā māsun. (H.)

Wa hua mākum aynama kunṭum. (Q.)

(For God there is no morning and no eve ;

And He is with you wheresoe'er you are.)

The courtyard, the corridors around the central Cubical Temple, and the sacred Zam-Zam well near the centre of the courtyard of the Kāba, are very like the precincts of the great temples of South India. The method of worship too has many items quite similar to those which prevail in Indian temples. The pilgrims drink the water of the well and sprinkle it over their bodies, and put on two pieces of ehrām or unsewn cloth, like the Indian avasīya (ḍhaṭī, ḍhoṭī) and uṭṭariya ; make ṭawāf, pari-kramā, circum-ambulation, of the temple ; kiss the holy stones, the Hajr-ul-Aswad, the Black Stone, and the Hajr-ul-Yamān, the Brown Stone, fixed inside the cubical room ; and sit in meditation. These stones are said to be meteorites, left, as they fell from the heavens, unshaped by human hands, like the Shiva-lingas in some famous Indian temples.¹ Pilgrimages, hajj, yāṭrā, are made by Islāmic pilgrims to other sacred places also, especially Medina, and Najaf, Karbala, Meshed, etc. The Islamic tradition is that the Kā'ba

¹The Bible also, (Exodus, 20) says : "If thou wilt make me an altar of stone, thou shalt not build it of hewn stone ; for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou hast polluted it."

temple was originally erected by Abraham, also known as Khalil.

The holy place of the Hebrew religion is Jerusalem.

The Christian religion too, naturally and rightly holds in great veneration, and regards as places of pilgrimage, the places which have been sanctified by the birth of Christ, Bethlehem; by his upbringing in early years, Nazareth; his baptism, the river Jordan; his ministry, the sea of Galilee or Gennesareth, and the towns on its shores, Tiberias, Capernaum, also the town of Jerusalem; and finally, his crucifixion, Calvary. Besides these, it has its holy towns, like Rome, Kiev, Canterbury, Lourdes, etc., and its specially sacred shrines and churches, where the images of the Blessed Virgin and the Bambino are worshipped with incense, lighted candles, water-sprinklings, (by persons of the Roman Catholic persuasion), much in the Hindū way, and miracles are believed to be performed, especially of healing.

The worship of the ideal Mother and Babe is, indeed, not only common to all religions, but is their purest, sincerest, most natural, and most ennobling part. So necessary is it for the human heart, that Buddhism in China has found out a Kwanyin Buddha, a female Buddha with a divine babe, to worship; she is the 'Goddess of Mercy', the 'Hearer of the World's prayers'.¹ And ¹F. W. S. O'Neill, The Quest for God in China, pp. 153-154.

Fātimā and Hasan-Husain are as prominent in Islām, as Madonna and the Babe in Christianity; or Yashodā and Kṛṣṇa, and Kausalyā and Rāma, in Hinduism.

But here, as elsewhere, the human heart runs to excess, and converts good into evil. The followers of Islām, not content with the one central Temple, also worship tombs and mausolea which are as uselessly and mischievously numerous as the Hindū temples and images; though the wisest elders of Islam and Christianity and Vaidika Dharma say :

Dilā ! ṭawāf-i-dilān kun, ke Kā'ba-é makhfi-st,
 Ke ān Kḥalīl binā karḍ, wa īn Khudā khud sākht.
 Ṭā kai ziyāraṭ-i-maqābir, ai afsurḍah !
 Yak gurba-i-zinda beh az hazār shér murḍah ! (S.)
 (Thy-Self, the Self in all hearts, O my heart !
 Go, circum-ambulate, circle with love !
 For every living heart is made by God
 And is the inner mystic Kā'ba true ;
 While th' outer Kāba was built by Kḥalīl.
 How long, what for, wilt thou make pilgrimage,
 O luckless one ! to dead tombs ? One live cat
 Is better than a thousand lions dead !)

Purṇasy-āvāhanam kuṭra,
 Sarv-ādhārasya ch-āsanam,
 Pra-ḍakṣhiṇā hy-An-anṭasya,
 Hy-A-ḍvayasya kuṭo naṭih. (Parā-pūjā.)

(How can the All-pervading, Who holds all,
 Be brought into a temple and confined
 To a small image on a pedestal ?
 How fix the Omnipresent to one spot !

How can the Infinite be circled round
By pigmy man ! How may we bow to Him
Who has no Second that could bow to Him,
Who is our very Self, naught else than We !)

Na nāka-prshthé, na Mahéndra-loké,
Na nāga-rājyé, na rasā-ṭalé vā,
Na parvaṭ-āgré, na samudra-garṭé,
Na ch-āshta-siddhishv,-an-iḍam hi Mokshah.
Na pātālam na cha vivaram girīṇām
Na-iv-āṇḍha-kārah kukshayo n-oḍaḍhīnām,
Guhā yasyām nihiṭam Brahma shāshvaṭam,
Buddhi-vṛṭṭim avishishtām kavayo vedaṇṭé.
(Yoga-bhāshya.)

(Not in the heavens, nor the underworlds,
Not in the hollow caves of trackless mountains,
Nor in black darkness of the ocean's deeps—
The cave where Brahma shines is the heart-cave
Of Mind which is filled with the Consciousness
"I am not any finite passing This.")

Bā-wujūdé ke muzhḍa-e Ṭérā, nahn-o-aqrab,
Safahe Masahaf pai likhā ṭhā,
mujhé mā'lūm na ṭhā. (S.)

(Though it is writ plain in the Holy Writ,
God sayeth, 'I am nearer unto thee,
O purblind man ! than thine own jugular vein !'
Yet, being blind, I could not read that writ.)

It is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off. It is not in heaven, that thou shouldst say, "Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us that we may hear it and do it ?" Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldst say, "Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us that we may hear it and do it ?"

But the Word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayst do it.

(B., Deuteronomy, 30, 13-14,)

That which thou art thou dreamest not ; so vast
That lo ! time present, time to be, time past,
Are but the sepals of thy opening soul
Whose flower shall fill the universe at last.
Thou ponderest on the moon, the stars, the sky,
When the winds gather, how the waters run,
But all too lightly deemest of thy-Self
Who are a thousand miracles in One !

(JAMES RHODES.)

So, too, have the followers of the Buddha taken to image-worship in excess Philologists tell us that the very name, invented by the neighbouring Persian-speaking peoples, for "idol," viz., but, is but a corruption of the word 'Buddha'; because the countless images, which they saw scattered all over the tracts now called Afghānistān, Turkistān, etc., were all described to them, by the worshippers, as 'Buddha'-images. Yet none has declared more emphatically than the Buddha, that "Within our-Self deliverance must be found," and not from images.¹ His very last words were :

¹Prof. B. K. Sarkar, in his paper on 'Religious Categories', (pp. 191-217 of The Religions of the World, vol. I, pub. by the Rāma-Kṛṣṇa Mission, Calcutta, 1938), describes how Confucius, who died a disappointed and un-appreciated reformer, was, some two hundred years later, described by Mencius as "the embodiment of highest perfection"; "three hundred years after his death

Āṭṭa-dīpā viharatha,
 Āṭṭa-saraṇā, an-añña-saraṇā,
 Vaya-dhammā sankhārā,
 appamādeṇa sampādeṭṭha. (Bu.)

(Be lamps unto your-Self, and refuge too.
 Seek not for refuge from aught else than Self.
 Desires, and tendencies made by them, pass.
 The Self abides. Achieve It heedfully.)

he was made Duke and Earl"; another two hundred years later, Sze Ma-chien described him as "divinest of men"; by the end of the first century A. C., "his birthplace became a goal for pilgrims," emperors included; "in A. C. 178, a likeness of his was placed in his shrine, instead of the commemorative wooden tablet"; "in 267, an imperial decree ordered the sacrifice of a pig, a sheep, and an ox, to Confucius, at each of the four seasons; the first complete Confucian temple was built and dedicated in 505 A.C.; about 555, it was exacted that a Confucian temple should be built in every prefectural city". Prof: Sarkar also says that "Muhammad's death...surprised even Caliph Omar as something impossible or inconceivable...Subsequent generations enriched his life-story with details of his miracles. In the third century after his death, Ibn Habbān of Andalusia went so far as to say that Muhammad was not a human being subject to hunger and thirst." These instances are typical of how extravagant beliefs gradually grow up round the memories of great persons. The child-mind cannot see the miraculousness of the 'familiar'. It invents romances. They are its nourishment; and should not be wholly forbidden; otherwise, the child-mind will languish. But, also, when the stage of adolescence and youth has been reached, they must be replaced more and more-

It is well-known that the teaching of Mahāvira Jina is not different from that of the Vedānta, even in words, so far as the most important of them are concerned.

Nayaṭy-Ātmānam Ātma-iva,
 Janma, Nirvānam ēva, vā,
 Gurur-Ātmā-(Ā)īmanas, ṭasmāt,
 N-āny-ostī param-ārthataḥ.
 (J., Samādhī-shuṭaka.)

(The Self doth lead it-Self to a new birth;
 Or to Nirvāṇa's freedom from such birth.
 No other Master has the Self than Self.)

These are almost the very words of Védism:

Ātma-iva dévaṭāḥ sarvāḥ, sarvam Ātmany-ava-sṭhiṭam,

by the miracles of the familiar, the so-called 'real'. Similar myths have grown up around the names of Kṛṣṇa and Christ. Those connected with Kṛṣṇa are specially imaginative; because they have had many more centuries to grow. The Quran (13. 38 ; 21. 7, 8 ; 25. 20) itself expressly declares that prophets are mortal, and eat food, and go about in the markets, and have wives and children, like other human beings. No prophet has claimed immortality for his physical body. Nevertheless, extravagant, fantastic, superstitious beliefs grow up about them. There are sects of excessively 'faithful' ones, which believe that the bodies of Kṛṣṇa and Jesus Christ were made, not of ordinary, but some peculiar ethereal, matter. In the past, the odium theologicum of utterly senseless, yet very bitter, controversies between rival sects, over such subtleties and hair-splittings, has caused much bloodshed.

Ātma hi janayaṭy-éshām

karma-yogam sharīriṇām. (M., xii. 119.)

(The Self is all the gods; all's in the Self;
The Self it-Self puts on the bonds of Karma;
And then it frees it-Self from them, again.)

Yet there is a great deal of worship of images of the Tīrthaṇ-karas, among the Jainas to-day; though less so, and perhaps in a more refined form, than among the Hindūs; and there are a considerable number of Jaina temples, some exceedingly beautiful, scattered all over India, and located on admirably selected sites. Competent judges have recorded their opinion, that from the viewpoint of art, the Ḍilwārā Jain temples on Mount Abu rank immediately after the Tāj Mahal of Agra.

The Founder of the Sikh reform of Hinduism, Guru Nānak, has also taught the very same essentials of Vedānta.

Kahe re, mana !, bana khojana jāī !

Sarab-nivāsī, saḍā alékhā, ṭo saṅg rahaṭ saḍāī.

Puhupa māñhi jasa bāsa basaṭu hai,

Mukura māñhi jasa chhāyī,

Ṭaisé hī Hari basaṭa niraṇṭara

Ghatahi mén, khojahu, bhāī !

Bhīṭara bāhara Ékahi jānau,

Yaha Guru gyāna baṭāī.

Kahe Nānaka, binu Āpā chīnhé,

Mitai na Bhrama kī kāī !

(Why wilt thou go into the jungles, Why !
What hopest thou to find there, O my mind !
E'en as the scent within the flowers dwells,

And as thy image in the glass is held,
 So God within thine own heart ever bides ;
 Seek Him with earnestness—and find Him there !
 Also in everything and everywhere !
 Outer and Inner, know, are but the same—
 So does the Teacher teach thee finally.
 Until thou know thy-Self, so Nānak says,
 From the World-Mirage thou canst not get free.)

Another hermit of the Punjab has sung in his own mother-tongue :

Dhūndné-hār nū dhūndh khāñ tū,
 Pāyā paraṭ dē ghar dā ras tain nū,
 Kahīñ tū hī na howai Yār sab dā,
 Phirai dhūndhaṭā jangalāñ bichcha jin nū.
 (But seek the Seeker for a while, O friend !
 He whom thou seekest in all others' homes,
 And in thick jungles, getting lost thy-Self,
 Haply He is thy-Self, the Friend of all !)

Yet is there much reversion to image-worship among Sikhs too ; much merely formal repetition, without realization of the meaning of their sacred book, the Grantha Sāhab, (a collection of the noble and elevating hymns and writings of the Gurus) ; and even ritualistic worship of copies of it, wrapped in costly cloths, placed on ornamental stands, with whisks made of expensive kinds of animal hair waved over them by devotees, in the great and beautiful central Golden Temple at Amritsar, and in subordinate sanghats in many towns.

As said before, such formal worship is unavoidably craved by the child-mind. Within due limits, it is desirable and indeed indispensable. As apparatus, exercises, games, social work, of various kinds, are needed in kindergarten, school, college, university, for physical, intellectual, and one important part of moral, education and character-formation; even so, such worships are needed, in the beginning, for the spiritual, and the rest of the moral, and emotional, education of the growing soul. But, obviously, such apparatus ought not to be clung to, after its work is done, its utility exhausted. The means should not be allowed to overpower and destroy the end.

Excessive clinging to external things is weakness and not wisdom. It should be diligently discouraged. Multiplication of images, eikons, idols, tombs, mausolea, etc., and of temples, pagodas, churches, mosques, etc., beyond a due proportion to the population, should be diligently discouraged, and not encouraged, by the wise and the learned of each religion. As a fact, Islām teaches that a new mosque should not be built within reach of the voice of the mua'zzin (the caller to prayer) of an existing mosque; and, similarly, Hindū scriptures say that it is much greater piety to maintain an existing old temple in good repair than to build a new one¹.

¹The real purpose of pilgrimage is excellently illustrated in a conversation which a Musalman saint, Junaid, held with a person just returned from Mecca: "From the hour you began journeying away from your home, have you been journeying away from your sins also ?" "No." "Then you have made no journey. At every stage where you halted, had you advanced a stage towards God ?" "No." "Then you have covered no stages. When you changed your ordinary clothing for pilgrim's garb, did you discard your vices and put on virtues ?" "No." "Then you have not put on the pilgrim's garb. When you stood at the mount Arafat, did you stand in contemplation of God ?" "No." "Then you have not stood at Arafat. When you went round the Kā'ba, did you behold all aspects of the immaterial Spirit ?" "No." "Then you have not gone round the Kā'ba. When you ran between Safā and Marwā, did you achieve Purity (Safā) and Considerateness (Murawwat) ?" "No." "Then you have not done any real running. When you reached the place of sacrifice, did you sacrifice your worldly desires ?" "No." "Then you have not made sacrifice. When you threw the pebbles, did you throw away whatever sensual ideas were in your mind ?" "No." "Then you have not thrown the pebbles, and have not performed the pilgrimage."

6. All have pageants, eikon and bambino processions, Maulūd and Kathā and Kāla-kshépa, Dulḍul and Tāziā, Rāma-līlā and Kṛṣṇa-līlā, Muharram and Pitr-

All religions have similar rites and ceremonies, all of which are "outward symbols of inward graces", some more refined, some less. If done in the right spirit, under right guidance, they are as 'initiations', and leave behind permanent impressions of great value. The Eleusinian mysteries have been referred to before, at p. 77, supra.

pa k s h a, holy-days of fasts, festivals, lamentations, Ēk ā ḍ a ś h ī and Ramzān and Lent; though few of these are in accord with the injunctions of the basic scriptures. All have a sabbath-day; Védism on the first, eighth, and eleventh days of each lunar fortnight; Judaism on Saturday; Islām on Friday; Christianity on Sunday; and so forth; for rest and recuperation.

Incidentally it may be noted that all the finest products of the fine arts, and some also of the useful arts, poetry, drama, dancing, music, painting, sculpture, architecture, clothing, metal-work, town-planning, gardening, tree-planting, road-making, etc., have found their greatest patron in, and drawn their most splendid inspiration from, religion, in all ages, and in all countries. This is but natural; for true religion ministers to, and further sublimates, the most elevated emotions, whose conscious expression is 'fine art'; and, if philanthropy be the noblest of all emotions and the active essence of religion, as it surely is, then all 'useful art' also. Religion has thus secured some of the purest joy to humanity, even in the life of the senses. Correspondingly, when religion has degenerated, by excess, by hypocrisy, by lack of intelligence, by low and evil nature, of custodian and of follower, or has been strangled, suffocated, buried, cremated, by overbearing and overpowering materialism, then art has also degenerated into coarse, vulgar, sensual, or even outright barbarous, savage, brutal, horrible forms.

If the religious leaders of the various communities had only sufficiently large heart and wise head; if they would sit down together and consult with each other benevolently; if they would make a good selection from all these very varied forms of manifestation of religious or religion-colored emotion, especially from the festivals; and would advise their respective followers to join with the others in all those selected forms and festivals; then they would double and treble the joy of each community; instead of marring it all, by promoting separateness, antagonism, riots and fatal fights, and ever-rankling revengefulness; as throughout the medieval ages in east and west alike, and as even at present in India. Such mutual consultation and co-operation, between religious leaders, is as necessary today as between politico-economic leaders; for rapid earth-encircling transport and communication have mixed up all nations, races, religions; and the only alternative to 'organising for war', and the destruction of civilisation, is systematic 'organisation for peace', over the one double problem, 'adequate and equitable distribution of (a) Spiritual and (b) Material Bread'.

7. All religions have sacraments, samskāras, sunnats, initiations, solemn ceremonies, originally intended to refine and improve mind and body, and to bring about 're-generation', 'the second birth', 'becoming as little children again', 'consecration', taqḍīs, u p a - n a y a n a , ḍ v i ṭ i y a - j a n m a , n a v a - j o ṭ (Z.)¹

All insist on cleanliness by frequent bathings and washings, snāna, shaucha, wuzū. Zoroastrianism emphasises it more than almost any other virtue; indeed, it includes all virtues under 'purity' in the broad sense.

Purity is for man, next to life, the greatest good; that purity which is procured by the law of Mazada for him who cleanses himself with good thoughts, words, and deeds." (Vendīdād, Fargard, x. 18, 20.)

The Christian saying is well-known, that "Cleanliness is next to godliness."²

8. All use physical appliances to help concentration of the mind during devotions, like the tasbīh, the mālā, the rosary; and enjoin special postures and movements of body and limbs, during prayers.

¹Some of the finer sacraments are such that if they were duly performed by wise and spiritual-minded 'scientist-priests', much of the nervous and mental disease, that is now dealt with by psycho-analysts and psychiatrists, would be avoided.

²An anecdote is related of a young candidate for ordination as Christian priest, who was asked by a senior, during examination, to expound "next—on which side of godliness?" (i. e., next before or next after). He promptly and rightly said, "on both sides." In current Hinduism, this vitally important scientific principle of cleanliness has been reduced to the absurdity of senseless 'don't-touchism', as between thousands of mutually exclusive 'castes' and 'sub-castes'.

9. All have japa, azkār, litanies; upavāsa, roza, fast; jāgarana, shab-bédāri, vigil; to fix heart on God and God in heart.

10. Vaidika Dharma, Islām, Judaism, all, unhappily, as currently practiced, believe that the Great God (and not only evil sprites) can be propitiated by ceremonial bloodshed; and all therefore practise animal-sacrifice; but all, happily, believe that ṭark-i-haiwānāt, māmsa-varjana, avoidance of flesh-meats, and nafs-kushī, ṭrshnā-tyāga, indriya-nigraha, asmitā-nirodha, self-sacrifice, are the higher and better way of life and worship, and refrain from animal food on 'holy' days. The real and profound meaning of animal-sacrifice is that the animal-in-man, the beast-in-man, the lower base selfish nature of man, his lust, anger, pride, timidity, egoism, symbolised by the goat, the buffalo, the horse, the camel or the cow, and lastly man, should be slain.¹ But that same selfishness, ¹Another, and very good, explanation also is suggested in Gangā Prasāda's The Fountain-head of Religion, (pp. 140-143), on the basis of Haug's Essays. The ceremony of go-méza is described in the Zend Avesta. The word is obviously nothing else than the Zend form of the Skt. go-médha. Dr. Haug says: "Gēush-urvā means the universal soul of Earth, the cause of all life and growth. The literal meaning of the word, soul of the cow, implies a simile, for the earth is compared to a cow. By its cutting and dividing, ploughing is to be understood. The meaning of that decree...is that the soil is to be tilled...as a religious instead of allowing itself to be slain, twists the scriptural metaphor into literal service of itself; slaughters innocent animals and feeds itself with their flesh, while professing that it is feeding God duty." Gangā Prasāda adds that "G o - m é ḍ h a means (1) exoterically, in its ā ḍ h i - b h a u ṭ i k a sense, the ploughing of land for agriculture, and (2) esoterically, in its ā ḍ h y - ā ṭ m i k a sense, the control of one's senses". In Skt., g o or g a u h, from the root g a m, to go, means 'whatever goes'; hence, the earth, which goes round the sun; the senses, which go after their objects; the rays of the sun; cattle; arrows; speech; etc. Along this line of interpretation, each sacrifice may be regarded as intending the fostering, in special ways, of the kind of domestic animal after which it is named. But it must be admitted that the detailed descriptions of the ceremonies, mean, by the letter, much slaughter of animals, revel and carousal, hail and wassail.

In Mbh. Shanti-parva, ch. 345, (Kumbhakonam edn.) is described a great dispute between the ṛ ś h i - s, 'sages, saints, seers', and the ḍ é v a s, 'gods' ('those who play through the senses'), as to whether sacrifices should be bloodless or bloody. The ṛ ś h i s decided in favour of the bloodless.

Bījair-yajñēshu yashtavyam iṭi vai Vaidīkī Shruṭih,
 Aja-sanjñāni bijāni,
 Chhāgam no hanṭum arhaṭha.
 N-aisha dharmah saṭām, devāh !,
 Yatra badhyēta vai pashuh,
 Idam Kṛta-yugam shrēsthām, kaṭham badhyēta vai pashuh. (Mbh.) therewith. No sacrifice can be acceptable to God, the Rahmān, the Shiva-Shankara, the Benign, Auspicious, Merciful, the Universal Life, except the sacrifice of one's own lower self and selfishness.

Go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice. (B., Matthew.)

I desired mercy and not sacrifice ; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings." (B., Hosea.)

To obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams." (B., I Sam.)

(God sayeth :) If I were hungry, I would not tell thee, for the world is mine, and the fullness thereof. Will I eat the flesh of goats, or drink the blood of bulls ? Offer unto God thanks-giving, and pay thy vows unto the Most High. (B., Psalms.)

(The Vedas say ye shall make sacrifice
With vegetable seeds and grains of corn.
A ja, the word which ye would say means 'goat',
Means grains unsprouted, and not goats at all.
Ye must not slay these harmless animals ;
Must not create blood-guilt and cruel sin
In this the Age of virtuous Innocence,
And change it into th' Age of murderous War.)

Buddha's most manifest reform has been the practical abolition of such formal blood-sacrifices in India ; and though he did not succeed in abolishing animal food, he has, no doubt, reduced it among large sections of the people. His interruption of king Bimbisāra's sacrifice has been made famous by that unique poem, The Light of Asia, of Sir Edwin Arnold. The Jainas are well-known for their extreme avoidance of killing.

I delight not in the blood of bullocks, or of lambs, or of he-goats...Bring no more vain oblations...When ye make many prayers I will not hear; your hands are full of blood. (B., Isaiah.)

The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit. A broken and contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise. (B., Psalms.)

Shall I come before God with burnt offerings; with calves a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil?...He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what does the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? (B., Micah.)

"He that killeth an ox is as if he slew a man."

(B., Isaiah.)

Sacrifice and offering thou didst not desire; mine ears hath thou opened; burnt offering and sin offering hast thou not required....I will praise the name of God with a song and will magnify him with thanksgiving. This shall please the Lord better than an ox or bullock that hath horns and hoofs. (B., Psalms, chs. 40 and 69.)

He that findeth his life (egoism) shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for My sake (the sake of the Self, Universalism) shall find it (as the Immortal Universal Life). (B.)

Jehd kun đar bé-khudī, khud rā bi-yāb,

Zud-țar, w-Allāhu-ālam b-is-sawāb.

Chand đar bandé khudī? Az khud bar ā!

Ekhl in nālain f-anzur māț-rā! (S.)

(Plunge into selflessness to find thy Self

At once, most certainly—God knows 'tis true.

How long wilt thou be bond-slave of thy self?

Come out of thy small self into the Great!

Put off those dirty shoes of outer forms,
Enter the Temple, and its marvels see !)

Jab main̄ thā ṭab Hari nahīn
Ab Hari hai main̄ nāñhi;
Préma-galī aṭi sāñkarī,
Wā men̄ ḍo na samāñhi. (KABIR.)

(When I was, God was not; now that God is,
I am no more; yea, very strait the lane
Of Love Divine, it has no room for two !)
Ham moṭaqiḍ ḍā'wa-i-bāṭil nahīn hoṭé;
Sīnéñ men̄ kisī shakḥs ké ḍo ḍil nahīn hoṭé. (S.)
(How can we e'er accept the claim absurd
That there can be two hearts in the same breast.
God fills me—and for 'me' no space is left.)

Lisā fī jubbaṭin siwā-Allah. (S.)

Lisā fiḍ-ḍarain ḡhairi. (S.)

N-iṣṭ anḍar jubba-am ḡhair az Khuḍā. (S.)
(Who is there in my cloak but God Him-Self ?
Who is there in both worlds except My-Self ?
There is naught-else-than-God within my clothes.)

Lañyan al-Allāhā lohumohā wa lā ḍemāohā, wa
lākin yan al-ohuṭṭaqwā min-kum. (Q., ch. 22.)
(Neither the flesh nor yet the blood of these—
The sacrificial victims—reaches Him.
Keep your-self pure—that is what reaches Him.)

For the higher progress of the Soul, abstinence from blood-meats of all kinds is regarded as indispensable by Yoga and Sulūk. Ali, nephew and son-in-law of Muhammad, and said to be the first Sūfi in Islām after the Prophet himself, is reported as having advised the higher aspirants :

Lā taja'lu buṭṇakum maqābir-ul-haiwānāt. (ALI.)
(Make not your stomachs graves for animals.)

In Vaidika Dharma, apart from the higher metaphorical meaning of animal-sacrifice, the cumbrous ceremonial prescribed for the sacrifice of each animal is said to have been intended to restrict killing and drinking, and, at the same time, to give regulated and minimised vent to the sadistic and orgic tendencies of human beings when uncontrollable.¹ But though the formal 'sacrifice' may have diminished among some peoples (e.g., Christians have none), flesh-foods and spirituous drinks are but too common all over the world, particularly among the well-to-do.

Loké vyavāy-āmisha-madya-sévāh
Nṛtyās-tu janṭor, nahi ṭaṭra choḍanā ;
Vyavasthītis-ṭāsu vivāha-yajña-
Surā-grahair, āsu nivṛtṭir-ishtā. (Bhāgavata.)
(The urge of sex, flesh-hunger, and wine-thirst,
Are ever there and need no stimulus.
The institutions of the marriage-bond
And ceremonial sacrifice were made
To limit them ; better is abstinence.)

If they cannot contain, let them marry ; for
It is better to marry than to burn. (B., Cor.)

¹There are periodic carnivals, Saturnalia, Bachchanalia, and festivals of unrestrained indulgence and riotous license, unfortunately, within the pale of every religion, even as there are intestines full of faecal filth within even the most beautiful human body. The inexorable indefeasible Law of Duality necessitates it.

11. The followers of all religions wear outer marks of one kind or another. Some wear tufts of hair on their heads, some on their chins, some practise tonsure. Some wear a yajnopavīta, 'sacrificial or sacred thread', across the chest over the left shoulder, and paint marks on their foreheads, some wear the zunnār round the waist, some wear helāl and siṭāra, crescent and star, on their caps, some carry a cross by a chain round their necks. All believe in the mysterious potency of special objects, and wear on their persons, tāwīz, yantra, amulets, phylacteries.¹ All have special forms of dress, often national, but sometimes religious also. If these distinctive marks and dresses were worn with an eye to artistic effect and mutual appreciation as well as to devoutness, it would all make for variegated beauty, interesting novelty, and greater total richness of social life. Instead of this, at present they often serve only as 'red rags to the bull,' mutually; because religious mis-leaders cultivate ferocity in their followings more than humaneness and rationality, and teach them assiduously that those who do not wear their hair in the same way (on the top of the head, or on the jaws and chin), or dress differently, or eat and drink other things, or speak and pray in another language, are strangers to be avoided, even enemies to be suppressed.

¹And the potency is a fact; subjectively, because strong faith in something-else-than-self, however ima-

12. All call their places of worship by names which have the same meaning, viz., 'House of God' (church), Dév-ālaya (mandira), Bait-Ullāh (masjid). All build them with heavenward-aspiring shikhara, kalasha, gopura; munārā, ṭa'arum, gumbad; tower, dome, cupola, spire, steeple.

13. All have calls to prayer, a'zān, ghantā, bell.

14. All offer prayers, masses, fāṭihā at chehlum, shrāddha, for the dead; and have ceremonial funeral feasts, bhoja-s, kandūri-s.

15. All believe in special spiritual relationships of guru—shishya, pīr-murīd, saint—disciple.

16. All have rites and ceremonies, and ways of sitting up and down, or bending and kneeling and prostrating, or turning round and round, or carrying the hands to various parts of the body, and uttering special words, during sandhyopāsana, namāz, prayer. If one ginary, as a helper (or a hinderer), actually produces mental concentration, mind-force, will-force, energy, and efficiency, (or the opposite), in the believer him-self; as 'the new psychology of the unconscious' illustrates freshly; and also objectively, for as we have seen before, pp. 191-202, and 214-222, supra, religion and science, both, justify belief in the existence of benign as well as malign living forces, of other sorts and types, than those cognisable by our physical senses, which can be attracted by the strong belief and emotion of human beings.

has an āsana, another has a corresponding sajjāda, or a pew.

17. All have priests: sexton, sacristan, beadle, verger, almoner, churchwarden, deacon, curate, chaplain, parson, vicar, rector, canon, prebendary, archdeacon, dean, suffragan, diocesan, prelate, bishop, Protestant archbishop and primate, Romish curé, abbé, cardinal, pope, Greek archimandrite, metropolitan, patriarch; pandās, pujāris, puro-hiṭas, *yājaka*s, pandits, dharma-dhikaris, sampradāy-āchāryas, temple-attendants of many degrees and names; mua'zzins, mujāwirs, muṭawallis, mullās, muftis, ulemā, mujtahids, imāms, khalifās; daṣṭurs, mobeds (Pārsis); scribes, pharisees, levites, rabbis (Hebrews); bonzes, phoongyes, talapoins, lamas (Buddhists); etc.—far too many of them.

18. All have sannyāsis, yatis, mandalishas, sādhus, bairāgis, udāsīs, math-ādhiśhās, saṇṭs, mahanṭs; faqīrs, miskīns, darveshas, auliyās, sajjāda-nashīns, sheikhs, pirs, murshids, ṭakiya-dārs; bhikshus, sṭhānaka-vāsīs, shramanas, kshapanas, théras, mahā-théras, lāmās; anchorites, cenobites, monks, nuns, friars of scores of sect-or-order-names, abbots, priors, prioresses, abbesses, canonesses, novices—in excessive numbers, and very few genuine ascetics.

All have mathas, akhārās, dharma-shālās; monasteries, nunneries, almshouses; viḥāras, lāmāseris; ḍargāhs, ṭakiyās, khāniqāhs

—mostly very badly mismanaged and only too often put to very sinful uses.¹

19. All have subdivided into much too numerous sects, sam-pra-dāyas, pañths, firqāhs; literally hundreds, in Hinduism; also hundreds in Christianity, which is not generally known; and scores in Islam.²

¹Max Muller writes in Chips from a German Work-shop, I, 187: "The late Abbé Huc pointed out the similarities between the Buddhist and Roman Catholic ceremonials with such a naïveté, that, to his surprise, he found his delightful Travels in Thibet placed on the Index (Expurgatorius), 'One cannot fail being struck,' he writes, 'with their great resemblance with Catholicism. The bishop's crozier, the mitre, the dalmatic, the round hat that the great lamas wear in travel...the mass, the double-choir, the psalmody, the exorcisms, the censer with five chains to it, opening and shutting at will, the blessings of the lamas, who extend their right hands over the heads of the faithful ones, the rosary, the celibacy of the clergy, the penances and retreats, the cultus of the saints, the fastings, the processions, the litanies, the holy water; such are the similarities of the Buddhists with ourselves.' He might have added tonsure, relics, and the confessional."

²Very troublesome and disturbing to peace, this, no doubt. Yet, 'the darkest cloud has a silver lining', and 'the worst wind blows somebody good'. The patent fact that men interpret and modify and reshape the 'religion' of the Founder into any shape of any sect as they please, is proof patent that they are the masters of religion; not religion, their master. That they can.

20. Vaidika Dharma is supposed to have one feature, viz., the "caste-system," which is peculiar to it, and not to be found in any other religious scheme. The supposition is not quite correct, nor wholly incorrect. In every civilised society—and every civilisation is connected with a religion—the seeds, marks, outlines, of such a 'caste'-system are discernible; because they are inherent in human psycho-physical individual-social nature. The seeds are sprouted, the outlines filled in, most fully, in Vaidika Dharma. All religions, directly or indirectly, sanction some laws and social institutions for the regulation of property, of the family-life, the administration of justice, the defence of the people, the wielding of executive authority; and so on. Vaidika Dharma enjoins a social structure, dealing with all aspects of human life, directly, comprehensively, systematically.

Let us recapitulate a little; for the subject has exceeding great importance.

The one craving of Humanity is for Bread; (a) Bread Spiritual, and (b) Bread Material. The one problem of problems is, How provide an adequate and equitable supply of the two to all. All religions seek to minister to both needs. Degenerations set in, in the practice of the religions, because of the growth of excessive selfishness in the custodians and trustees. Everything that is and do change from any religion wholly into any other, is conclusively strong proof.

born, and grows, must also decay, and pass away, yielding place to new. Re-generations, new births, necessarily follow. Everything that dies, must be born again, in a new form. The soul, the idea, the ideal, the principle, remains the same. The em-bodi-ment, the expression, the vehicle, changes. In the Life of the Human Race, the present times, with their characteristic civilisation, of predominantly physical science and machinist intellectuality, require a 'democratic and socialist' Religion, which will include a 'democratic and socialist' Polity, i. e., a complete Social Organisation.

We have repeatedly noted before, that it is not enough to pray, however sincerely, that God's Will be done on earth; it is necessary also to know what that Will is; if we are to subserve it, to act in obedience to it. It is not enough to be willing to do one's Duty without greed for reward; it is necessary also to know what exactly that Duty is; if we are to discharge it actively and efficiently. It is not enough to be ready, even eager, to obey the Golden Rule of Conduct; we must also know what, in any given situation, we ought to wish, or not wish, for self and therefore for others; if we are to act according to that Rule usefully, without creating confusion all round.

Spirituo-Material Science, as taught in the great utterances and writings, the 'scriptures', of highly evolved members of the Human Race;

(a) avaṭāra-s, r̥shi-s, nabi-s, rasul-s, messiahs, prophets, religious 'supermen', possessed of the 'divine fire', and of superhuman faculties of subtler sensation, perception, (clairvoyance, telepathy, clair-audience, 'prophetic vision', 'real dreams', etc.), and of finer intellection and intuition, and (b) scientific 'supermen', endowed with ab-normal, extra-ordinary, powers of observation, intellection, intuition, and tireless application and research ; such spirituo-material science gives us the needed knowledge. It tells us, in the first place, (I-a) in broad outlines, what God's Will is, on the infinite-and-infinite-simal scale, what the Nature of the World-Process, and the Meaning of Life, are, and (I-b) what Man's General Duty is ; and, in the second place, (II) how Human Society should be organised, and Individual Life planned, with clear specification and partition of all particular rights and corresponding duties, so that each one of us may be able to ascertain readily what his duty and corresponding right is, in any given situation, and both our needs, spiritual and material, may be duly satisfied, in accordance with that Nature and Meaning.

The normal human being is not a solitary. He is born in a family which lives amidst a community of families. He lives, grows, decays, dies, in a family amidst a community. His joys and sorrows are unavoidably and inseparably bound up with those of others. It is impossible for any individual to carry out the Divine Will, observe the Golden Rule, perform his Duty, and achieve any reasonable amount of Happiness here and hereafter, (i. e., secure Material and Spiritual Bread); (i) if the community, the society, amidst which he is born, lives, and dies, is not systematically organised for peace and prosperity, (which includes, as a subsidiary, organisation for defence); and (ii) if the life of the individual is not correctly mapped out and planned, and fitted into that social organisation, in such a way, that each person, in accord with his special temperament and vocational aptitude, (a) receives appropriate education, (b) readily secures, or is provided with, a suitable occupation for his and family's livelihood, with regard to that aptitude as ascertained and developed by his educators, (c) retires from bread-winning work in right time, to take up some one or more out of numerous kinds of honorary unremunerated public duties, in keeping with his special capacities, and, finally, (d) spends the last years of his physical life in ever greater absorption in spiritual exercises, meditations, well-wishing to the world at large, and promoting the general welfare by pouring into the moral atmosphere, a continuous stream of benevolence, 'good-will', and the powerful influence of high example of life well-lived in the past, and now incarnating God's blessings of renunciant selflessness, contented repose of soul, and all resignedness and spiritual peace.

Because Religion, to justify itself as the helper of mankind, has to secure for them, happiness here as well as hereafter; therefore it will not be out of place to give some account, briefly, of how Védism endeavours to secure the former; in other words, of what its conception is, of the kingdom of God and His Righteousness on earth, in practice, for man as now constituted.

The Védic Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation.

The main great declarations of all Religions and of Science, on (I) the nature of the World-Process and the Meaning of Life, have been sketched in chapter II above; and those on the General Duties of the human being, in ch. iii. In the briefest terms:

(I-a) The Infinite Spirit descends into denser and denser finite forms of matter, and then re-ascends back out of them, on all possible scales of Time, Space, and Motion, from minutest atom and microscopic animalcule to vastest star-system; and (I-b) at the stage of the human form, on the return journey, 'We should do unto others as we would be done by'.

As regards (II), Vaidika Dharma prescribes a Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation, applicable to the whole Human Race, which makes an equitable partition, between the several human 'types', according to temperament, of different kinds of 'work-and-wages', 'labour-and-leisure', 'hardship-and-pleasure', 'rights-and-duties'; makes it possible to ensure 'necessaries' for every one; gives opportunity to each person to win additional, temperamentally suitable and desired, 'comforts' and 'luxuries', by special good work; provides appropriate incentives to such good work, for all; secures regulated and just play for all human instincts, egoistic as well as altruistic; reconciles individualism and socialism, imperialist capitalism and communist proletarianism, by vigilantly guarding against the one Sin, 'Excess', through the sedulous cultivation and practice of the one Virtue, 'the Golden Mean'; and, by doing all this, it enables every one to know precisely what his particular duty, and corresponding right, is, in any particular situation; and gives, to every one, just opportunity as well as instruction for securing happiness, here and hereafter, as far as is humanly possible.

The details of this Scheme have been dealt with elsewhere.¹ They cannot be expounded here. But the main principles may be summed up in a few tetrads.

There are :

1. Four main types of human beings, by temperament and vocational aptitude; not by mere 'heredity', but by individual 'mutation' or 'spontaneous variation': (a) men (and women) of knowledge; (b) of action; (c) of acquisitive desire; (d) of undeveloped undifferentiated mentality and capacity, of general labor, of unspecialised work.

2. Four main classes of vocations, occupations, professions, with numerous sub-divisions under each: (a) the learned; (b) the executive; (c) the commercial; (d) the industrial or laboring.

3. Four main kinds of livelihood,: regulated (a) honoraria, fees, presents; (b) taxes, tributes, public salaries; (c) profits; (d) wages.

¹In the present writer's Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism; more briefly, in The Science of the Self, ch. vii; in much greater detail, in The Science of Social Organisation, Vols. I and II, a third being in preparation.

4. Four main stages of life: (a) student; (b) householder; (c) honorary unremunerated public worker, retired from competitive bread-winning; (d) renunciant ascetic, hermit, anchorite, recluse.

5. Four main physical appetites, urges, of: (a) hunger; (b) acquisitiveness; (c) sex; (d) rest, recreation, amusement, play, health, sense of physical well-being.

There are subordinate quartettes under each of these four. (5-i) Four kinds of food: (a) bloodless, light, easily-digested, but non-volatile, bland, mostly fruit-and-milk diets, for the spiritual scientist, who needs lucid mind and long calm steady thinking; (b) strong, stimulating, energy-producing foods, for the administrator, the executive officer, who has to decide and act quickly and meet emergencies; for soldiers, even flesh-foods and strong drinks, in moderation, (allowable, not desirable); preferably the flesh of wild animals that damage crops and multiply fast; not of animals to be reared for slaughter and eating; (3) 'staying' cereals, milk-foods, (also the flesh of crop-destroyers as above), for the tradesman and the agriculturist; (4) heavy foods, (nitrogenous), producing capacity for long-continued bodily exertion, for the workman and laborer.

(5-ii) Four kinds of special possessions, suited for the four temperaments, and for the carrying on of their professions, respectively, e.g., (a) books, and objects and means of observation and investigation; (b) weapons and subsidiaries; (c) machinery and other means of production and distribution; (d) implements of work.

(5-iii) Four kinds of marriages: (a) settled by wise elders; (b) by mutual self-choice, or by love-chase, and 'capture'; (c) for monetary consideration; (d) by blind passion.

(5-iv) Four kinds of recreation: (a) communion with Nature, contemplation of her beauties; (b) sports of various kinds, involving quickness of mind as well as body, hunting, racing, fencing, animal taming and training; (c) trials of luck with money-stakes, supervision of charitable works, home-athletics; (d) gymnastics, fairs, shows, simple games. The pleasure of 'pilgrimage' is appreciated by, and is open to all types; and pilgrimages may be and are performed during any of the four stages of life; but they are recommended for the last two. To the practical worldly benefits of pilgrimage, indicated on pp. 452-453 supra, may be added the liberalising education and aesthetic enjoyment that are derived from wide travel, and the seeing of other towns, cities, peoples, ways and manners, monuments of human art, and Nature's grand and ever-varied scenery, woods, waters, mountains, deserts, snows, and seas, which make Her poetry of the sublime, awful, beautiful, ever and everywhere the wonderful.

It must be borne in mind, always, that there is nothing exhaustive or exclusive about the lists given or distinctions drawn in any of the quartettes mentioned here; but only an indication of the predominant feature or quality. Patently, all organs and all functions are present in every living human Mind-Body; equally clearly, some are more strong and prominent in one, some in another; wherefore we call one person a professor, another a captain, another a banker, and a fourth a shepherd or mill hand; though all are men.

6. Four main psychical appetites, incentives, 'luxuries', cravings, for: (a) honor (public esteem); (b) power (official authority); (c) wealth (artistic possessions); (d) en-joy-ment (of one-self; compare the common phrase, 'we enjoyed our-selves thoroughly').

7. Four main 'ends' of life : (a) (observance of) lawfulness-and-morality, (which regulate) (b) wealth, riches, (which refine) (c) (psycho-physical) pleasure ; (d) (spiritual) happiness, (en-joy-ment of the Great Self).

8. Four main social institutions : (a) Religion ; (b) Property ; (c) Family ; (d) Government-Church-State.

9. Four main 'powers' of the State : (a) science power ; (b) valour (military) power ; (c) finance (bread-and-money) power ; (d) labor power.

10. Four main sets of rights-and-duties, for the four main temperaments and professions : (a) duty to gather and to spread true and useful knowledge of all sorts ; right to receive honour ; (b) duty to develop the needed ability, and give protection to all who need and deserve it, and to maintain law and order and peace in the land ; right to be entrusted with official authority and power of command ; (c) duty to arrange for the production and distribution of all necessities and comforts, in accord with the laws of the state ; right to receive price (which will yield reasonable profits, within the limits permitted by the laws) ; (d) duty to give help and service to the others ; right to receive adequate wages and be provided with amusements, (panem et circenses). Besides the special rights above mentioned, the general right belongs to all, to receive necessities of life, and suitable means, in accord with their capacities, of discharging their duties properly, (a) e. g., libraries, laboratories, facilities for travel and research, (b) weapons, munitions, office apparatus, (c) machinery and all requisites for production, distribution, transport, (d) implements of work ; and also the right to be provided with the respective livelihoods (and none other) which have been mentioned in section 3 above.

11. Four main duties of the older generation towards the younger, and of the state towards the people, viz., to: (a) educate, (b) protect, (c) nourish and cherish, (d) help in all other ways as needed. Briefly, to (a) teach, (b) guard, (c) feed, (d) serve. The constituent or preventive functions of the state are covered by (b); the ministrant or promotive, by the other three.

12. Four main interlinked subordinate organisations, which together make up the total Individuo-Social Organisation of the State or People as a whole: (a) educational; (b) protectional, (political, administrative, executive, military); (c) economic; (d) industrial. Only such a 'totally' complete organisation of the 'total' People makes the true 'totalitarian' State.

The (a) educational organisation is made up of the learned 'class' or professions and the student order or 'stage', i. e., of educator and educand in the broad sense; the (b) protectional, of the executive professions and the order of honorary publicists to guide and supervise them; the (c) economic, of the commercial professions as producers and distributors and of the order of householders as consumers; the (d) industrial, of the workman class, the laboring professions, of many grades, as the physical helpers of the community, and the order of renunciant ascetics as the spiritual servants.

13. Four main congenital social 'debts', laden with which, every human being is born: (a) to the 'gods' i. e., the forces of Nature, which spread out the universe of objects on which our life and senses feed, and all our experience is based; (b) to the 'ancestors', who have given to us our body, in and through which our life is lived; (c) to the 'sages, seers, scientists' of the past, who have left to us the stores of knowledge which differentiate us from the lower kingdoms and refine and ennoble our life ; (d) to the Supreme Self, which has given us the spark of life, our soul.

14. Four main ways of repayment of those debts and winning final Release, Spiritual Freedom, Moksha, Najāt, Salvation : (a) performing 'pious works', (such as plantation of trees, re-afforestation of denuded tracts ; construction of water-works, wells, tanks, reservoirs, lakes, canals ; protection and promotion of useful and beautiful animal life ; purifying of the psychical and physical atmosphere by burning incense, chanting holy hymns and reciting scriptures and noble epics, lighting sacred fires and lights with special substances ; whereby the stores of Nature, 'ether', air, fire, water, earth, which we use up or pollute, and also our depleted and struggle-and-passion-soiled mental powers, are replenished and sanitated ; (in modern conditions, devising and carrying out measures for abating the 'smoke-nuisance', the 'noise-nuisance', for preventing the contamination of water and the growth of disease-germs, for converting sewage into manure and food for the soil, and such other 'public works', represent what in the earlier times were called 'pious works') ; (b) rearing worthy progeny, neither too many, nor too few, (to preserve balance between produce and consumers), of the best quality possible ; (c) giving knowledge, or helping the learned class to give it, to the new generation ; also adding to the existing stores of knowledge, or enabling others to do so ; (d) retirement from competition, renunciation, spiritual meditation, realisation of the identity of the individual with the Universal, and earnestly and constantly wishing well to all.

In the first two quarters or stages of each person's life, the individualist or egoistic instincts are given regulated play ; in the last two, the socialist or altruistic instincts are brought to culmination. In this way are all 'isms' duly balanced and reconciled ; the State exists for the Individual and the Individual lives for the State ; each is for all, all are for each ; to each is given according to his need, from each is taken according to his capacity.

We have noted before that all the factors of all these tetrads are inter-dependent, like the head, arms, trunk, and legs ; or like the nervous, muscular, glandulo-vascular, and skeletal systems ; of a single living human organism ; also that only the main factors, groups, classes, can be broadly distinguished ; while the subdivisions intermingle, pass into, permeate and pervade each other, so subtly and inextricably, that attempt at any precise demarcation is bound to fail. As said in the Gītā : 'definition is a passing from the indefinite to the indefinite'. The arrangement by tetrads is also a matter of convenience only. The facts and factors may be, and elsewhere have been, grouped in duads and trinities as well as quartettes. The variety in the presentation of the ideas should, to the scrutinising mind, bring out the basic truths only the more clearly. Also, in detailed working, subordinate tetrads may be distinguished and formulated usefully, under each of the others, as under (5), above.

Such is a brief sketch of the ancient Vedic Individuo-Social Organisation. It is an essential part of Védism, one of the names of which is Varṇ-āshrama Dharma, 'the Duty of Social Vocational Classes and Individual Life-Stages.'

Some elucidative comments, and correspondences in the other religions, may be added.

A tree or animal, in its fullest development, shows only that which was latent in the seed or zygote. A 'civilisation' is only an explication of what is implicit in human nature. That nature is three-fold, cognitive-desiderative-active; or, if we wish to pursue the scheme of tetrads, also 'rest-ive', 'wishing to rest', 'to sleep in the unconscious', 'unwilling to keep awake and go forward'. Every civilisation has three corresponding aspects; the fourth being that of reactive weakening, fatigue, decay, after attaining zenith. The three are: (a) its stores of peculiar kinds of knowledge; and its special language, which embodies one out of the infinite shades of the All-Spirit; (b) its characteristic arts, recreations, ideals, aspirations, buildings, towns, worships, religion generally; (c) its ways of living, forms of government, enterprises, colonisations, conquests, commercial and mechanical activities of all sorts.

Each civilisation shows some differences from others, in respect of all these; but the general facts are the same in all.¹ Every human face and figure is different from every other; but the general features of all human bodies are the same. The more advanced and complex the civilisation, the more specialised and differentiated the three types (and many sub-types) of persons who carry on the three main (and many subordinate) functions of the three main aspects. But the three main types, with the fourth residual plasmic type, are to be found in all grades of communities of human beings; primitive, barbarous, 'semi-civilised'; as well as those which regard themselves as 'very advanced' and 'very highly civilised; even though, unhappily, these commit the most extensive and intensive mass-crimes of exploitation and butchery; as is shown by all known history; side by side with some humane and beneficent deeds of true greatness and glory, and many magnificent achievements, to-day, of science and valour combined; outracing the eagle and the wind itself high in the heavens, the giant fish in the depths of the ocean, leaving the fastest racer far behind on the land, capturing voices and music from all parts of the earth at once in any home they please; all which achievements, however, subserve only the very same fundamental 'appetites', though with 'longer circuiting.'

¹"We see the elaborate drainage-system of Knossos" (of the ancient times of king Minos in Crete) "and at once feel at home; the cosmetics found in an ancient grave strike us as pathetically up to date; the surprise which a visitor to a Museum expresses at the age of a given object is in exact proportion to his recognition of the object's essential modernity"; Sir Leonard Woolley, Digging up the Past, (Pelican Books, 1937), p. 14.

The Vēdic Samskr̥t names for the four types are, (a) brāhmaṇa, (b) kṣhaṭṭriya, (c) vaiśhya, (d) śhūdra. The Islāmic Arabic-Persian names are, (a) ul-ul-ilm, also ul-ul-alhāb, (b) ul-ul-amr, (c) zurra, (d) muzd-war; the three first occur in the Quran; simpler and more commonly used forms are, (a) āl'im, (b) ā'mil, or amīr or āmīr (from amr, to command), (c) īājir, (d) mazdūr. The Zoroastrian names are, (a) airyamnā, (b) véřejēn, (c) khaētush, (d) go-vāstrā.¹

¹These are possibly connected with the Skt. words, aryamā (which means the sun, also a friend, for the sun is the 'friend' and benefactor of all the world); vīrya-vān, (the virile, the mighty), or rājanya, (which is a synonym for kṣhaṭṭriya); kṣhīṭisha or kṣhētrī, the owner or tiller of the soil, the field; the go-vāsī or go-vēshi,

Akhyā chā khaētush yāsaṭ; ahyā
véřejéném maṭ airyamnā. (Z., Gāthā, 32. 1.)

Khaētēush chā țarémaīțīm, véřejanakhyā chā najadishțām đrujém, airyamanas chā nađénțo, géušh chā vāșțrāț achishțém mantūm. (33. 4.)

Ké airyamnā, ké khaētus, dāța is amhaț
yé véřejenāi vam-ūhīm frasașțīm. (49.7.)

(The khaētus, the airyamnā, also

The véřejen, runs seeking after this,

[The easy lazy pleasures of this world].

Be not our khaētus renunciant,

Do-nothing, indolent; our véřejen

Be not too violent; our airyamnā,

Be he not ignorant, lacking in knowledge;

Nor our gé-vāșțrā, who serves all the world,

Be e'er downcast in spirit...In bad times,

When foes attack, what can th' airyamnā do?

And what the khaētus? The véřejen Alone, with God's keep, can defend us then !).¹

the dweller among the cattle, the keeper of the domestic animals.

¹Ganga Prasada, M.A., M.R.A.S., in his excellent work, The Fountain-head of Religion, at pp. 91-93, quotes from Dr. Haug's and Prof. Darmestetter's and others' writings on Zoroastrianism and translations of its books, and says that the Zend names for the four castes were: "Athrava, priest; Rathaestao, warrior; Vāșțriyofshyas, cultivator; Huites, workman"; also that "in the later scriptures of the Parsi religion", the names were changed to "Horisțaran, Nurisțaran, Rozisțaran, Sorisțaran; ...in Pahlavi, Rașhornan (priests, Skt. Atharvan); Rașhesșțaram (car-warrior, Skt. Rașha-sțha;

In Britain they used to speak of 'the three estates of the realm', (a) clergy, (b) nobility, (c) commons, to which a fourth has to be added now, (d) proletariat, (labor, workmen, industrialists). The other countries and languages of Europe have corresponding classes and words. Japan has, (or until recently had), (a), kuge (court nobles, kinsmen of the emperor), (b), bushi, or buki, or sāmurai (warriors), (c), heimin, (the common people), (d) eta, hinin (like 'outcastes').¹ China has (or until recently had), (a) scholars (literati, including officials, mandarins), (b) farmers, (c) artisans, (d) traders, merchants.² Very fortunately, it has never insisted on 'heredity'.

Compare the following verses from the Vēdas :

Mukham kim asy-āsīt, kim bāhū,
 kim ūrū pādā uchyété?
 Brāhmaṇ-osya mukham āsīd,
 bāhū rājanyah kṛṭah,
 Ūrū ṭaḍ-asya yaḍ vaishyah,
 paḍbhyām शुद्रो ajāyāta.
 Purusha év-ēdam sarvam,
 yaḍ bhūtam yach-cha bhavyam ;

Hoṣkshan (agriculturists, etc.) ; and Bastaryoshan (who render all kinds of service)."

¹ Ency Brit., 14th. edn., xii, 940, art. 'Japan'.

² Ibid., v. 514, art. 'China'; Lin Yutang, My Country and My People, p. 182. It is remarkable that 'soldiers' are not included in this grouping ; they have been regarded practically as 'out-castes' in China all along ; hence, "the Chinese are the world's worst fighters", Lin Yutang, ibid., 56 ; but the long-continued war between Japan and China is changing all this ; see, e. g. Mowrer in China (Penguin Series), pub. 1938.

Sa bhūmim sarvaṭaḥ spr̥ṭtvā aṭy-aṭishthaṭ dash-āṅgulam.

(Ṛg-Vēda, 10. 90. 10, 11, 12.)

Rucham no dhēhi brāhmaṇēshu, rucham rājasu nas-kr̥dhi,
 Rucham vishyēshu shūdrēshu,
 mayi dhēhi ruchā rucham.

Yath-émām vācham kalyāṇīm
 āvaḍāni janēbhyaḥ,
 Brahma-rājanyābhyām, shūdrāya
 ch-āryāya svāya ch-āraṇāya cha.

(Yajur-Vēda, 18. 48; 26. 2.)

Priyam mām, Ḍarbha ! kr̥ṇu, brahmarājanyābhyām, shūdrāya ch-āryāya cha ; Yasmai cha kāmāyāmahé
 sarvasmai cha vipashyaṭé.

(Aṭharva-Vēda, 19. 32. 8.)

(What was the head of this Great Cosmic Man,
 Humanity ? What were its arms, its trunk
 And thighs, and what did constitute its legs ?
 The man who had Brahm'-Wisdom was its head ;
 Who shone with guarding valour was its arms ;
 The settler and food-grower was the trunk ;
 Who ran at bidding, docilely, was legs.¹
 This Cosmic Man, the whole vast Human Race,
 Embodied Principle of Consciousness,
 Is everything that was, is, is to be ;
 Its universal mind includeth all.
 With its ten organs, sensor, motor too,
 It overspreads the earth, all-compassing.

¹The interpretation in those four lines, of the four familiar, and now much misused, names is in strict accord with the etymology of the four words, brāhmaṇa, rājanya (kshaṭṭriya), vaishya, shūdra.

O Lord of All ! give mutual pleasantness
And love to all of us, our brāhmaṇas,
Our kṣhaṭṭriyas, our vaiśhyas, śūdras, all.
May we speak pleasing words unto each other,
Always, we brāhmaṇas and rājanyas,
We gentle shudras, and we Ārya-vaiśhyas
Who are the refuge of us all for food.
Thou who articulatest all the parts
Of all this world, and organisest them !
Bind us in the strong bonds of love with all,
Our brāhmaṇas, rājanyas, śūdras, āryas,
And all we like ; and make our foes, our friends.)

The different countries, peoples, civilisations, have varied in the ranking of the classes ; in the attaching of greater importance to one or another ; in the forbidding or allowing of transfer of persons from one to another. The competition for higher rank, status, power, has generally lain between the 'medicine-man' of the tribe and its 'chief' ; the 'magic-lord' and the 'war-lord' ; the 'priest'-pope and the 'soldier'-king ; the 'civil (temporal, military) power' and the 'spiritual power' ; the 'scientific knowledge', and the 'valorous fighting prowess'. But, in modern times, finance power seems to have reduced both to service of itself ; and, in turn, is now threatened with subversion and submersion by 'labor-power'. All which means only lack of just balance between the four powers. Also, in India, for many hundreds of years now, the principle of 'mutation' has been thrust aside by 'vested interests', and the four types, or 'castes', have been made rigidly 'hereditary', as nowhere else. A peculiar result has followed. Human nature being what it is, 'mesalliances' have been always occurring ; and new sub-castes have been always forming, in ever increasing numbers. This has created a social agglomeration of a unique kind, an incoherent jumble of castes, sub-castes, and sub-sub-sub-castes; each 'hereditary', all mutually exclusive in respect of dining and marrying, and consequently, of fellow-feeling; which, still, are all, though very loosely and more and more ineffectively, tied together by the name 'Hindū', (i.e., 'Hind-ian', 'Ind-ian') and by something which may be called the remnants of a common culture.¹

¹The Indian Census Report, for 1891, stated the total number of 'castes' as 2378. The Census Report for 1931 says that the work of making a new and complete list was abandoned, and the population-figures of only the more important ones given, because there was constant fluctuation going on in the thousands of the minor sub-castes (especially among the so-called 'untouchables'), by fissions, on the one hand, and coalescences of small groups, on the other. The Enc. Brit., (14th. edn., 1929), iv. 979, says: Caste "has resulted in the creation of some three or four thousand social units, many of which are, however, not altogether homogeneous, so that these figures do not represent all its ramifications." But the disastrous absurdity of this insanely endless and utterly irrational fissiparousness, its destructive effect on social cohesion, co-operation, solidarity, is being realised more and more, by the at all thoughtful and public-spirited members of the community; new forces, ideas, ideals, are working in the 'collective Hindu mind;' a movement is growing stronger, every day, for a reversion to the original four main 'caste-classes', in the first place, and, secondly, for placing them on the basis of personal temperament and actual profession, instead of mere birth; and bills for validating inter-caste marriages are being repeatedly introduced in the legislature, with success in part.

'Caste', or rather 'sub-sub-sub-caste', means today nothing more than a group of families, whose members dine and marry among themselves, and not with the members of any other group; who will not take food which has been 'touched' by persons of other castes. Whatever may have been the causes, in past times, (many speculations have been advanced as to these, fear of poisoning among others), there is no sense left in the practice, now.

The very sound scientific reason for avoidance of indiscriminate interdining and intermarrying is, of course, obvious. If we are to preserve and promote individual and racial health, we must eat pure food, drink pure drink, in company with clean-living sympathetic friendly persons of similar habits; and marry with persons of parity of temperament and compatibility of tastes, interests, likes and dislikes. But what is obvious to dispassionate reason, is made very obscure by perverse passion. "Time makes ancient good uncouth"; time meaning, here, the growth of cunning vested interests and tyrannical selfishness, wishful to grab all powers and avoid all responsibilities, on the one hand, and of weakness and superstition, on the other. 'Good customs by excess corrupt themselves'; excess, here, being, excess of effort to specialise, differentiate, fix, under the impulsion, not of reasonable far sight, but of very interested short sight. Other countries evolved only 'the divine right by birth of kings and patricians'. India evolved 'the divine right of superiority, of whole classes of priests, as well as of fighters, by birth'; and 'the God-ordained duty of inferiority, by birth', of other

A somewhat radical one was introduced by the present writer, in the Indian Central Legislature, of which he was then a member, in 1936; but could not be carried through.

whole classes of traders, agriculturists, 'untouchables', (like that of negro--slaves in America until the Civil War between North and South). Insurmountable barriers were created by forbiddal of interdining and inter-marriage. The remarkable fact is that, instead of fulfilling the scientific laws of healthy dietetics and eugenics (not only physical, but even more, psychical), the present practice, in regard to these matters, only too often causes gross violation of those fundamental laws. Unclean food, cooked by dirty and diseased persons, is often eaten, because the cook bears the same caste-name as the eaters. Disastrous mismatings are often perpetrated, because the parties bear the same caste-name. Such marriages are called sa-varṇa i.e., 'of persons of the same varṇa'. In reality they are extremely a-sa-varṇa, i.e., are marriages of persons of not the same varṇa. The word varṇa, by etymology, means (1) 'that which describes' (the position of a person in Society, viz., his occupation, his means of living), (2) 'that which he chooses' for himself, (again, his profession), (3) 'that which envelopes and covers him', (his color, his complexion). In no way does it mean what it is at present made to mean, i.e., a separate 'birth-caste'. That it continues to show, even in its perversion, the impress of its original and etymological sense, is proved by the fact that a very large number of the caste-names are names of occupations. The followers of each little limited 'occupation' became converted into rigidly hereditary 'castes'. Probably, they served the purposes of 'close' trade-guilds, at one time. But, before long, it seems, the purpose became confined to inter-dining and inter-marrying. Persons whose caste-name indicated a certain occupation, began to follow quite other occupations. At present, all sorts of 'castes' are following all sorts of 'occupations', excepting the 'priestly'. This last continues to be a jealous monopoly, but is beginning to be encroached upon.

All this gross perversion and de-rationalisation of 'caste' is coming to be seen more and more clearly by the new generation, under the tremendous stress of the times and world-movements; and they are breaking through the trammels in increasing numbers. But, as usual, there is the danger of going to the opposite extreme, of 'license' and 'licentiousness'.

What has been said above does not necessarily mean that 'hunger' and 'sex' are much worse mis-managed in the east than in the west. Competent eastern as well as western observant travellers have recorded that family life, on the whole, is not more unhappy in the east than in the west. Sex-slave traffic, prostitution, adultery, assault, violation, rape, group-rape, the horrors of life in brothels managed by brothel-keepers who trade in woman's flesh more ruthlessly than butchers in animal flesh, are to be found in every country, in varying forms. If one aspect is worse in any country, another is better. There are 'nature's compensations'. The safe conclusion is that there is much need and room for improvement in both these respects in every country. Such improvement is possible in these, as in all other respects, only by careful wise testing and training of temperaments and vocational aptitudes, by competent educators; and the providing of suitable occupations and livelihoods to all; within the setting of a comprehensive 'Planning', a systematic Social Organisation. Hunger and Sex are at the very roots of life. We cannot be too careful in regulating and refining their satisfaction. The subject has been referred to before (pp. 271-297, supra). Sinning against the laws of food and marriage, laws of religious science and scientific religion, the observance of which laws alone fully 'sanctifies' both—such sinning is the parent of all sins and crimes, is the cause of all the manias, wars, perishings of great civilisations. The Manu's solemn warning, of how such sins are visited upon generation after generation, has been quoted before (pp. 182-183, supra). Indeed, they tend to become aggravated with each succeeding generation, unless strong checks and remedies are applied from outside, until the end in disaster. It is certain that the community which allows that holy of holies, the mother-heart and the mother-body, to be polluted, corrupted, perverted, tortured, murdered, "that community is blasted by the thunder-bolts of God," (so Manu declares expressly, iii. 58). These thunder-bolts take the plainly visible shapes of 'rot' of body and mind, epidemics of infectious and contagious virulent diseases, and the mutual butcheries of war-madness; not to speak of floods, famines, plagues of many sorts (animals as well as epidemics), volcanic eruptions, earthquakes, and even more gigantic cotaclysms of Nature. The direct connection of these last with human sin is not plainly visible, but 'religious beliefs' (and 'occult science') assert it; and it need not be brushed aside too brusquely, for the chain of causation is very subtle, and all-pervading.¹

¹ Annāḍ bhavaṇṭi bhūṭāni,
 parjanyaḍ anna-sam-bhavah,
 Yajñāḍ bhavaṭi parjanyaḥ,
 yajñāḥ karma-sam-uḍbhavah.
 ...Sankaro narakāy-aiva,
 kula-ghnānām kulasya cha. (५.)

The stern warning in the Bible to the same effect, is well-known, and may be reproduced here, with some comment.

"Thou shalt have no other gods before Me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven above, or the earth beneath, or the water under the earth. Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I, the Lord thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate Me; and showing mercy unto thousands of them that love Me, and keep my commandments". (B., Exodus, 20.)

The results (in stultification of intelligence, weakening of Self-reliant will, growth of irrational superstition) of excessive image-worship, and some nature-facts connected therewith, we have noted before (pp. 474-475, 446-463, and 191-208, supra.); also how the intense faith of a devotee may 'vitalise' the 'image', created by his 'imagi'-nation (as a statue by a sculptor), make of it a focus, attract into it a ray of the all-pervading Life, or, perhaps, an already individualised denizen of another plane of matter (as a person enters into an actor's dress or a soldier's accoutrements); and convert it into a (for the time being) real angel (or devil, according to the quality and desire of the devotee). But 'graven images and likenesses' do not exhaust the list of 'other (Good conduct and self-sacrifice bring rain ;

Thence food ; thence nourishment of living things.
...Adultery leads all concerned to hell.)
Abr n-āyaḍ az payé mana'é zakāṭ,
W-az zinā uftaḍ balā andar jehāṭ. (S., Rūmī.)
(Clouds do not come where charity has ceased ; Misfortunes crowd all round on lawless lust.)

gods', mentioned in the first, and separate, verse quoted above. Nor are the commandments, alluded to in the last, only these, viz., against images and likenesses. Far worse than any other gods are Bacchus and Priapus, the gods, rather the devils, of 'evil eating' and 'evil mating'. The terrible consequences of the sins which are involved in the worship of these two, are much more glaringly patent, not only 'unto the third or fourth generation', but very many more, in the shape of awful hereditary venereal diseases, and alcoholism, piles, asthma, phthisis, insanity; strictly speaking, all possible diseases that are due to congenital defects and weaknesses of bodily organs and of mind, but some more glaringly manifest and painful, some less. Therefore, God has given commandments in respect of these two appetites in all religions; and the full commentary upon those commandments, which, if what has been said above be correct, are perhaps the most far-reaching and important, is supplied by spiritual, psychological, physiological, medical, science. We may rightly regard every well-proven Law of Nature, (and Nature is God's Nature), as one of God's Commandments. Such of these laws as are more directly and intimately concerned with the healthy conducting of human life, are regarded as God's Commandments more particularly; and have been prominently embodied in the several scriptures of the race. To love, or hate, 'Me', is to love, or hate, to obey, or break, the Commandments of the Supreme Self, "in Whom all things live and move and have their being".

Philosophy and psycho-physical science, applied to the administration of human affairs, give us the complete Scheme of Social Organisation sketched above. Each of the quartettes is important and inseparably related to all the others. But the most prominently important is that of the Four Types of human beings. The birth of these is governed by the two laws, of (1) Heredity, and (2) Spontaneous Variation or Mutation. The former arises from the Oneness of the Self, Spirit; the latter, from the Manyness of the Not-Self, Matter. Metaphysically, mutation is included in heredity; since the Many is included in, indeed created by, the Ideation, the Will-and-Imagination, of the One. All possible sorts of children are included in the parent; because each parent is the child of an infinite number of ancestors. There can be no effect which is not pre-existent, in seed-form, in the cause. "All is everywhere and always", because the One which contains all, is omni-present.¹

In the latest terms of biology, we may say that all sorts of 'genes', 'potencies', are present in every germ. The idea of 'id-s' (biophor-id-s, 'determinants', composing the 'bio-phore', the unit of life) put forward by Weismann, some decades ago, seems to have been somewhat similar. Western scientists say they do not yet know why there is any mutation; (Julian Huxley, We Europeans, ch. iii). The philosophical and psycho-physical chapters of the old Indian works on Āyur-Vēda, medicine, suggest that the psycho-physical moods and conditions of the parents and the surrounding circumstances, the 'environment', stimulate some of these 'potencies' more than the others, at every conception; whence the peculiar character of each child. These potencies are countless, because of the countlessness of the possible 'combinations' of the countless possible 'quantities', 'amounts', 'degrees' of the three guṇa-s, 'attributes' of God's Nature, saṭtva-rajas-tamas; (see pp. 87, 264, supra).

¹See pp. 212-214, supra; The Science of the Self, pp. 21, 49-50, 54, 95; The Science of Peace, generally.

If the circumstances are similar, and similar 'potencies' (or 'gene-s') are stimulated, at a number of conceptions, the resulting children, of the same pair of parents, will be similar in face, figure, mentality, character. Therefore, twins are the climax of similarity, and illustrate best what is commonly understood by 'heredity'. If differing circumstances stimulate differing 'genes', the resulting children, of the same pair, will be dissimilar; these illustrate 'spontaneous variation'. The old Indian 'Science' of Jyotiṣha, Astrological Astronomy, fully supports and supplements the statements of Āyur-Véda, and states what conditions, times, etc., of conception will produce what kind of progeny.

Thus, then, from the transcendental stand-point, all 'mutations' also are covered by 'heredity' in the 'infinite' sense, for all possible potencies are pre-existent in the One Universal Parent; or, in the infinite multitude of particular parents from whom each germ is derived, each child is born; since each child has two parents; each of these parents, two; and so on, ad infinitum; and there is nothing really new, in any birth; but only a greater developement of some potencies in some cases, and of others in others. The atavisms, regressions, dominants, recessives, mutations, modifications, of present-day biology, and indeed the origin and evolution of all possible species, seem to be possible to explain only in this way. Only, for the practical purposes of every-day usage, from the empirical stand-point, it is best to regard the two laws, of heredity and of spontaneous variation as distinct, and even competitive; now the one prevailing over the other, in one case; and again, the other prevailing over the one, in another case.

All civilisations have instinctively endeavoured to organise their societies in accordance with the natural fact of these four types and the two laws of their manifestation. They have succeeded and prospered in proportion to the degree of their assimilation, though unconscious, of these principles. The old Indian civilisation seems to have recognised, enunciated, and essayed to apply, the principles, consciously, clearly, deliberately. It has had, perhaps, a longer life than any other civilisation (except, perhaps, the Chinese). But ever since its classes of Educators and Protectors, or Spiritual Scientists and Benevolent Rulers, began to degenerate, to develop excessive selfishness, to push specialisation and differentiation beyond the bounds of human nature, for their own purposes; began to call themselves 'higher' and the others 'lower'; to exaggerate the principle of 'heredity' in favor of the 'higher' castes and against the 'lower' castes, and to ignore and suppress the principle of 'mutation'; since then, Indian civilisation began to decay. That it has not died out altogether, is due, probably, to the continued presence therein, of some remnants and memories of 'Spiritual Science', 'Essential Religion'.

It should be added here that, though the element of 'heredity' has been grossly exaggerated and made rigid in India, it has not been possible to suppress the working of spontaneous variation altogether. Changes of caste, even from 'lower' to 'higher', have been going on, all the time; surreptitiously, of individuals; and, openly, now and then, of whole groups, which have decided to give themselves the name of a 'higher' caste, (brāhmaṇa or kṣhāṭṭriya), which name cannot be snatched away from them, particularly in the present conditions. Yet the solidarising articulating virtue of the truly scientific socialism of the old scheme has disappeared completely, and, instead, the vicious consequences of endless separatism and exclusiveness are rampant.

While in the Indian practice, 'heredity' has swamped 'variation', in the western systems of social 'structure' (not yet 'organisation') 'variation' and blind competition are too much to the fore; though heredity is necessarily at work also, all the time, and large numbers of persons naturally follow the family occupation, generation after generation. It is a very hopeful sign that in the more advanced western countries, educationists are making efforts to ascertain, in good time, the vocational aptitudes of their pupils; and some countries have begun to even appoint 'career-masters' in their schools. In a proper Social Organisation, based on psychological and physiological science, both the laws, of heredity and mutation, would be taken into account duly; but the latter would be made the deciding factor, whenever unmistakable, for the purpose of assignment to a vocation. The one law reflects the Unity, Wahdat, Ēka-ṭā, of the Self; the other, the Diversity, Kasrat, An-ékā-ṭā, of the Self's Nature, i. e., Matter, the Not-Self which is the garment of the Self or Spirit.

As in the politico-economical life of nations, 'trustees' are always making themselves 'beneficiaries'; leaders are always becoming mis-leaders; protectors, oppressors; feeders, devourers; public servants, public masters; and are, thereby, perennially, causing rebellions and revolutions, and the appointment of new 'trustees' by the real 'beneficiaries', i.e., the People at large; so, in the socio-religious life, the 'spiritual power' is always trying to absorb the 'temporal power' (and vice-versa); the 'presbyter', 'priest', 'elder' is ever degenerating into the deceiver; the confessor is ever becoming the seducer and blackmailer; the saint, the sinner; the ascetic, the debauched and debauching voluptuary, even orgiast, and sadist; and is causing repeated secessions, revolts, re-forma-tions. In fact, every religious re-form is, in origin and in issue, a social, economic, and political revolution also; and, therefore, invariably gives rise to a new civilisation. When a man's body falls sick, a physician is needed to cure it; when the oversoul of a whole people falls sick, it requires, as history shows, a fresh influx of the Divine Spirit, a new advent of a new Son of God, an Avatāra, a Messiah, a Rasūl, to cure it, and give it a fresh birth in a new body, of 're-established Law' and 're-constructed society'; (p. 216, supra). Without right social structure, the noblest religio-ethical principles and exhortations have no chance; neither in a theo-cracy (ecclesiasticism, sacerdotalism), nor a timo-cracy (feudalism, militarism), nor a pluto-cracy (capitalism), nor a mobo-(or 'demo-') cracy (proletarianism). The four 'powers', the 'four estates of the realm', must be duly balanced for ethical teachings to have a chance.

Buddha, and his contemporary, Mahā-vīra Jina (the founder of the Jaina religion), endeavoured to shift, and largely succeeded in shifting back, the basis of the Indian Social Organisation, from crass artificialised 'heredity', to elastic, rational, natural 'spontaneous variation' in respect of vocational temperament; thereby gave, to the Indian People and their civilisation, a new period of re-generation, a new lease of life, for about twelve centuries; and gave rise to an astonishing efflorescence of varied science and noble literature, (due to generous emulation between the Vaidikas and the Baudḍhas), and to great empires rivalling the contemporary Roman, Macedonian, Persian, and Chinese empires. Unhappily, the evil in human nature, the forces of a-v i ḍ y ā, selfish erring, de-generation, again succeeded in resuming their sway.

A whole chapter of the Buddhist Dhamma-paḍa, named 'Brāhmaṇa-vaggo', is devoted to the exposition of the nature of the true b r ā h m a ṇ a.

Na jatāhi, na goṭṭé hi,
 na jachchā hoṭi brāhmaṇo ;
 Yamhi sachchan cha, dhammo cha,
 So suchī, so cha brāhmaṇo.
 Yassa kāyēna, vāchāya,
 manasā, naṭṭhi dukkaṭam,
 Samvuṭam ṭhi thānchi,
 ṭam aham brūmi brāhmaṇam.
 Na ch-āham brāhmaṇam brūmi
 Yoni-jam maṭṭi-sambhavam ;
 A-kinchanam an-āḍānam
 ṭam aham brūmi brāhmaṇam.
 Divā ṭapaṭi ādichcho,
 raṭṭim ābhāṭi chaṇḍīmā,
 Sannaḍḍho khaṭṭiyo ṭapaṭi,
 Jhāyī ṭapaṭi brāhmaṇo.
 Akkosan, baḍha-bandham cha,
 a-ḍuṭṭho, yo ṭiṭikkhaṭi,
 Khaṇṭi-balam bal-ānīkam,
 ṭam aham brūmi brāhmaṇam. (Dh.)
 Na jachchā vusalo hoṭi,
 na jachchā hoṭi brāhmaṇo,
 Kammanā vusalo hoṭi
 Kammaṇā hoṭi brāhmaṇo.
 (Bu., Vusala-sutta of the Sutta-nipāṭa.)

(Not matted locks, nor birth in any clan,
 Or family, or from some mother's womb,
 Can make a man a real brāhmaṇa.
 He who is true, pure, dutiful ; sins not

In deed, word, thought ; gathers not worldly goods ;
 Bears patiently hard words, bonds, beatings too,
 And lets not anger rise within his mind,
 Strong with the strength of all forgivingness ;
 Him do I call a real brāhmaṇa.
 Mere birth makes not a real brāhmaṇa ;
 Nor makes a shūdra ; deeds and ways of living,
 Appropriate, make either one or th' other.
 The sun doth make the day ; the night the moon ;
 Courageous chivalry, the kshaṭtriya ;
 Wisdom and thoughtfulness, the brāhmaṇa.)

Buddha not only clearly recognises and supports the four types or classes, but is full of praise of the true brāhmaṇa, in many of the other verses of the chapter. But he does not believe in ‘caste by birth’. Instead, he very strongly condemns it, and all pretensions based on it. He recommends vocational classes by worth, i. e., by suitable character, mental and moral constitution, and occupational disposition.

Jainism is, if possible, even more explicit.

Manushya-jāṭir-ék-aiva,
 jāṭi-nām-oḍay-oḍbhavā ;
 Vṛṭṭi-bhédād hi ṭaḍ-bhédāchchāṭur-viḍhyam ih-āshnuṭé.
 Brāhmaṇāḥ vraṭa-samskāraṭ,
 Kshaṭtriyaḥ shaṣṭra-ḍhāraṇaṭ,
 Vaṇij-orṭh-ārjanān nyāyāṭ, shūdrā nyag-vṛṭṭi-samshrayāṭ.
 (Quoted in Jaina Dharma kā Mahatṭva, a work in Hindī.)
 Kammunā bambhaṇo hoi,
 kammunā hoi khaṭṭiyo,
 Kammunā vaisō hoi,
 Suddo hawai kammunā.

Sakkham khu dīśai tavo-viséso,
Na dīśaī jāi visésa kōī.

(J., Uttur-ādhyayana Sūtra.)

(The Human Race is one, though 'tis made up
Of many tribes with many names. But four Broad classes may be plainly seen therein,
Caused by the differences of ways of living.
The men of studious vows are brāhmaṇas ;
Who practise use of arms are kṣhaṭṭriyas ;
Who gather wealth by lawful merchantry
Are vaiśhyas ; those who live by service-wage
Are śūdras. By their occupations only
Are the four thus marked off ; no otherwise.
The 'birth' of any one cannot be seen
Upon his face ; his actions can be seen.)

Only one or two well-known verses of Védist scripture need be quoted here. Many others have been gathered in Gangā Prasāda's work above referred to,
and in the present writer's The Principles of Sanātana Vaidika Dharma.

Na vishesh-oṣṭi varṇānām
Sarvam brāhmam iḍam jagat, Brahmaṇā pūrva-sṛṣtam hi,
karmabhir varṇatām gaṭam.
(Mbh., Shānti-parva, ch. 186.)
Ēka-varṇam iḍam sarvam pūrvam āsīd, Yuḍhishtira !,
Kriyā-karma-vibhāgēna
chātur-varṇyam vy-ava-sṭhītam.
(Ibid., Anushāsana-parva.)
Chātur-varṇyam Mayā sṛṣtam guṇa-karma-vibhāgashah ;
Karmāṇi pra-vibhaktāni
sva-bhāva-prabhavair-guṇaih. (G.)

Sāttvikō brāhmaṇah prokṭah, kṣhaṭṭriyas-tu rajo-guṇah,
 Ṭamo-guṇas-ṭathā vaiśyah
 guṇa-sāmyāt ṭu shūḍṛaṭā.

(Bhaviṣhya Purāṇa, III., iv., ch. 23.)

(All are the sons of Brahmā, brāhmaṇas all,
 And brothers, since created by One Father.
 No rooted difference is there twixt them.
 All had one occupation formerly.
 Slowly developing diverging ways
 Of living have created four class-types.
 God's Nature-plasm has three chief attributes,
 Sāttva, rajas, and ṭamas—principles
 Of knowledge, action, wish, respectively ;
 Inseparable all, always, and everywhere.
 Whichever one prevails in any one,
 That sets his type or class. Thus, in accord
 With natural qualities, this four-fold scheme
 Of Social Structure has been made by God.
 Sāttva prevailing, makes the brāhmaṇa ;
 Rajas predominant, the kṣhaṭṭriya ;
 Ṭamas, desire to gain, does mark the vaiśhya ;
 Unspecialised and inchoate is shūḍṛa).

So long as the human body has the shape it now has, of head, arms, trunk, legs ; is constituted as it is, of nervous, muscular, vascular, osseous systems ; so long as the human mind works in three clearly distinguishable functions with the sub-consciousness, or instinct, as a fourth)—so long every community of such human beings will inevitably tend to become organised, more or less definitely, on the lines of these four main classes. The community which organises itself on them deliberately, with just and equitable partition of rights-and-duties, as indicated in the many tetrads described above, will be organised for peace, will prosper exceedingly, and will be in no danger from others; because it will automatically include a strong defensive military organisation. Also, and far better, it will set a beneficent example to other less advanced communities, and will help to organise them all for peace, in the same way. By creating a just balance of 'the four powers' within each nation, such an organisation automatically creates a balance of all kinds of powers between all nations. By making each people self-supporting and self-complete, it minimises cause for aggression by one on another; and instead, maximises inducements for intelligent, active, sympathetic co-operation of all the four classes of all nations, for the deliberate promotion of the good of all.

It should be re-iterated here that, for the successful balancing of the powers aforesaid, an indispensable requisite is the balancing of the production of consumable goods, especially 'the necessities of life', and the consumption, i. e., the number of consumers. If there is disproportion here, if the former is small and the latter large, no other balancing will be possible peacefully. Fish multiply too fast; they cannot but devour one another. If men multiply beyond the power of the land (even where wisely and scientifically cultivated) to support them, they will not be able to help looting and murdering one another; or being destroyed wholesale by epidemics, famines, etc. Inordinate lust will inevitably breed inordinate hate; (see pp. 372-373, supra). Self-control, and thence birth-control, is the foundation of all other control. To control death, we must control birth. Brahmacharya, 'continence', (within scientific limits), is the way to strengthen and prolong the individual as well as the racial life. Kāma-Eros unbridled, is our worst enemy. To war against and subdue it, (not destroy, until the third and fourth stages of life), is the best and most truly 'moral equivalent of war'. Battling against the 'forces of nature', to utilise them as far as possible, and against predaceans, is the rest of the moral equivalent. To the extent that the 'moral war' succeeds, 'physical wars and crimes' will diminish. Of course, complete abolition of all evil is obviously impossible; only a reduction is possible. Social Organisation and the 'Moral War' help each other, in a virtuous circle. The former promotes balancing of production and consumption and inducement for self-control and birth control, and these, in turn, strengthen and stabilise the former.

Such a Social Organisation achieves the Golden Mean in all respects. It gives duly regulated opportunity for the venting and purging of the egoistic instincts, the six (or seven) 'deadly sins' and 'manias' (see pp. 317-318, supra); because it provides them with appropriate objects and occasions; and thus transmutes and sublimates them from wrongful into righteous; e. g., lust into conjugal passion of love between spouses, 'sanctified' by parity of temper and compatibility of temperament between them, and therefore by public recognition and law and religion; hate into just indignation against wrong-doers; jealousy into laudable zeal in the guarding of public rights against private encroachments. We have seen before (pp. 74, 308, 317, 377, supra) that "to everything there is a season." Anything and everything is right, if placed or done in the right time, the right place, the right manner; wrong, in the wrong. The Scheme provides a solidarising mould into which can be poured, into appropriate parts and places, harmoniously, all the individuals of all the countless tribes, clans, families, 'castes', races, nations, dialects, religions, of the whole Human Family. Its tetrads are not in conflict with any particular creed or science. Instead, it is based upon and utilises all the best established principles of all such sciences as psychology, physiology, biology, anthropology, sociology, eugenics, politics, eco-nomics, pedagogics. The Scheme tells us the right times, places, manners, for anything and everything, in great broad principles and outlines. By ordaining the retirement of the older generation from competitive bread-winning or money-making into honorary public service, after the second quarter of life, it abates all conflict between it and the younger generation; and at the same time ensures a constant supply of experienced, disinterested, benevolent, advisers and public workers. It fulfils all that is reasonable in the requirements of the Marxian and other Socialists and the Freudian and other Psycho-analysts. It makes unnecessary the premature tragic retirement of the very young into the refuge of ascetic 'orders', monasteries, etc.; which is, only too often, no refuge at all, but, instead, a falling from the frying pan into the fire. It secures active, unrepressed, but regulated, self-expression for youth; and also honorable and desirable repose for age. It tells us the Meaning of Life, reconciles heart and head, harmonises emotion and intellect, heat and light, and makes it possible for us all to fulfil all Life's purposes and realise all its aims and ends.¹

¹Dr. Lin Yutang, "combining immense learning with a shrewd eye and lively humanity", also a brilliant and at times exceedingly witty style, has produced "the truest, profoundest, most complete, most important book yet written about China," (as Nobel laureate Pearl Buck and others say), in the shape of My Country and My People (pub. 1938). He writes (pp. 93-102, 119):

"Still the question comes back eternally, like the sea-waves lapping upon the shore: What is the Meaning of

If representative, large-hearted, broad-minded Elders of the Nations would only sit together in a genuine League of All Nations and Religions, and Life...The question has perplexed western philosophers, and it has never been solved...There are moments in our lives...when a sense of death and futility overcomes us, when we live more than the life of the senses and look over the visible world to the Great Beyond...Confucius was a realist, positivist, humanist. (Asked about death) he said: "Don't know life, how know death?" Confucianism, strictly speaking, was not a religion. It really never quite satisfied the Chinese... That deficiency was made up for by a Taoist or Buddhist supernaturalism...In times of national disorder, as during the change of dynasties, a great number of scholars shaved their heads and took monastic orders, as much for personal protection as out of feeling for the helpless chaos of the world... Many beautiful and talented girls at the end of the Ming dynasty took the monastic vow through disappointment in love caused by these catastrophic changes..."; (see pp 71-72 supra).

Asceticism has been practised in all known times and climes, but, "Throughout the first and second centuries A. D., there was an almost world-wide resort to such repudiations of life, a universal search for 'salvation' from the distresses of the time...Amidst the prevailing slavery, cruelty, fear, anxiety, waste, display and hectic self-indulgence, went this epidemic of self-disgust and mental insecurity, this agonised search for peace even at the price of renunciation and voluntary suffering:" H. G. Wells, A Short History of the World, ch. xxxvi; (pub. 1938).

C. G. Jung, leading psycho-analyst, writes: "Among my patients from many countries, all of them educated seriously consider the principles and outlines of the Vedic Scheme of Organisation of the Whole Human Race; and either realise and endorse its virtue, and take steps to saturate the minds of the younger generation with those principles and outlines, and thus effectively commence bringing it into universal practice at once; or think out a better one, if they can; if they would only do so, and not otherwise, Humanity would win Peace and Happiness and establish heaven on earth.

21. Finally, we may note one more point of similarity between the living religions, which is matter for sad reflection upon the human weakness of egoism which insists on venting itself in religion also. All have split up into scores, some into hundreds, of sects and sub-sects, because of opinionatedness and personal quarrels. This is bad enough; but there is worse. Every shine must have a deep shadow also somewhere. Within the pale of every religion there have grown up secret sects of 'black magic', jāḍū, yāṭu, vāmā-mārga, the dreadful 'left-hand path' of fiend-worship, wherein the foulest rites and practices are indulged in, down to murderous human sacrifices of innocent children. Such sects and practices have to be constantly watched and warred against; even as the foul excretions persons, there is a considerable number who came to see me, not because they were suffering from a neurosis, but because they could find no Meaning in Life or were torturing themselves with questions which neither present-day philosophy nor religion could answer....I too had no answer to give": Modern Man in Search of a Soul, pp. 256-267.

produced by the fairest living organisms, or the ashes, refuse, dirt, thrown up by the best machinery, have to be continuously wiped and washed away. Again, the agreement of all religions, fallen from their high estate into the evil hands of false priests and cruelly selfish mis-leaders, is so great that the mis-guided followers of the several religions all agree in the disastrous error also of saying : "My religion is the only true and wholly original one, or, at least, is far better than all others, and all others are heathen, pagan, kāfir, mléchchha, and must be suppressed !"; though it is patent that all beings are matter of the same Matter and spirit of the same Spirit'.

FORMALISM AND CATCHWORDS. Yet underneath this so disastrous error is the profoundest Truth hidden immediately. Interpret "my religion" as "the Religion of Me, the I, the Universal Self," and you pass at once from the most violent turmoil into the most blissful peace.¹

¹Also another truth which too is important, though less so, may be discerned beneath the excessively worded claim. Each religion, besides the general value, has a special value, i. e., emphasises some one aspect of the truth, some one virtue, some one kind of pious work, more than the other aspects, virtues, works, though all are needed. It does so, because of the special conditions, the peculiar time, place, and circumstance, in which it arises. Thus, it may be said, Vaidika Dharma emphasises the All-Pervading Self, Duty, all-comprehending Order, and Balancing of all Duties; the Hebrew religion, the strict Justice of God, and His special Protection of those who place their faith in Him;

"My religion is the only true religion, what I believe is the only right belief, what I do is the only correct practice"—this amazing self-conceit, this outrageous self-importance, this enormous megalomania, this infatuation, this madness, of the false, illusory, most petty and paltry, individual egoistic self, is only the reversed reflection of the wondrous conception, the infinite import, the boundless greatness, the infallible beneficence and Saviourship, of the perfect Truth, Beauty, Goodness and Guidance of the eternal, immortal all-embracing Universal Self. The Religion of that Me is indeed the One and on(e)ly Religion, but it runs through all religions, and gives to each, whatever value of helpfulness to men it has; it makes peace between them all, when otherwise they would destroy each other. Who is greater than the Universal I which contains the whole universe? What is smaller than the individual I which is contained within a few Zoroastrianism, Rectitude and Purity; Buddhism, Renunciation and Compassion; Christianity, Non-Resistance of evil, Resignation, submission to God's will, self-sacrifice for others; Islam, Brotherly Equality and Resistance of Wrong: and so on. But, in the later developments of the civilisation belonging to each religion, the original ideas generally become so transformed as to be almost unrecognisable; the mediatorship, between God and man, of the particular founder of that religion, is especially regarded as indispensable for all human beings; and no other person is allowed to be such mediator or guide at all.

pounds of flesh and blood and bone and is perpetual slave to their caprices of birth, youth, age, death, their incessant swings between health and disease? Yet this so small self apes the measureless greatness of the Great Self! It does so because it is that Self in essence;¹ it does so in grievously and ludicrously wrong fashion, because it has imposed upon itself the Error of imagining it-self to be limited to that same handful of flesh and blood and bone. Having made the Limitless limited, it tries to make the limited Unlimited! Demon est Deus inversus. Satan is God inverted. Khudī is the imaged reversal of Khudā. Jiva is the denial of Brahma. Untruth is the tinsel imitation of Truth. The finite is negation, inkār, nāstika-tā, 'a-theism', 'nihil-ism' of the Infinite.²

¹As observed before, this is proven, if by nothing else, then by this single simple indubitable fact that any individual can change his particular creed for any other creed at will, can transfer his faith from any one religion to any other, thereby proving that there is Something in him which is superior to all particular religious, and which can assert itself at will; even if the mind, through which it so asserts itself, be not educated, be even illiterate.

²It has been said by a western writer, that "the unique character of a religion is to be judged, not by the material it possesses in common with others, but by the special stamp it impresses upon it." This is very true, indeed obvious. If we want to see whatever 'uniqueness' there may be in any religion, we must, of course, 'differentiate', separate, must stress the 'differen-

A GREAT DANGER. We have seen the danger on the Path of Knowledge, of the great error of taking one's own particular, individual, small self, for the Universal Self immanent in all living tial', not the common, elements. But do we, should we, want to? Is it useful, desirable? Will it help the world? Every individual differs from every other, in appearance, tricks of manner, etc., and in mind also; so does every family, every clan, every tribe, every race, every nation, from every other, in some respects. But is it useful or necessary to accentuate these 'distinguishing' features? Is it not enough simply to recognise and allow their existence? Every human being has a 'unique' voice, by which he can be recognised in the dark; therefore, when two persons utter the same words, shall we refuse to recognise that they mean the same thing, simply because they have uttered them in their different voices? Is it not desirable, in the present condition of the world, to soften all differences as much as possible; without trying or even wishing and hoping to abolish them—which would be to abolish Nature's Law of Diversity (amidst Unity)? Have not Individualism, Familism, Clanism, Tribalism, Nationalism, Racialism, gone too far, much too far, already? Is it not desirable to emphasise now Humanism, the common features, the Law of Unity (amidst Diversity), which alone makes society, socialised existence, genuine socialism, and Brotherhood possible? (see pp. 70-71, supra.)

Ke rā kufr-é Haqīqī shud piḍīdār,
 Ze Islām-é Majāzī gasht bēzār. (S.)
 (He who True Infidelity hath seen—
 The Disbelief in the small lower self—Disgusted with the Outer faith hath been.) beings; also the similar error on the Path of Devotion, of regarding any one personal, separate, limited deity, as the whole of that same All-pervading, Impersonal, All-personal, Infinite, Eternal Self.¹ The corresponding error on the Path of Works, of ritual, of observances, is to cling tooth and nail to any one particular set of formalities as the only good and right set, in all times, in all places, in all circumstances, for all persons; and to insist upon their being observed by all, always, everywhere. It will be seen that all the three errors are only aspects of one another, all are manifestations of egoism, the one prince of all d'evils. Forced conversion, fanatical tabligh, bigoted shuddhi, murderous persecutions of heretics, the horrors of inquisitions, religious wars, (wars and religious!), the utter corruption of the moral atmosphere of whole countries, and the debasement and enslavement of the mind and body of whole nations, are the consequence.² Solemn ritual, intended to draw the minds of all to God, becomes the cause of the drawing of swords against one another and of mutual butchery; even though the use of force

¹Pp. 132, 348, 391.

²"According to the calculation of Voltaire, no less than ten million 'heretics' were burned to death 'at the request of the Church'...": Henry Thomas, The Story of the Human Race, p. 246, (pub: 1935). This is the work done in the name of one religion; no similar calculations seem to be available for similar work done, no doubt, in the names of other religions.

in matters of religion is expressly forbidden by the religion supposed to be the most energetic and successful in proselytising.

Thus, the Qurān says:

Lā ekrāhā f-iḍ-ḍīn.....La-kum ḍīnu-kum walé yaḍīm.....Uḍu' elā sabīli Rabbekā b-il-hikmaté w-al mauezzaṭil hasanaṭé. (Q.)

(There must be no compulsion exercised
In matters of religion.....Unto you
Your faith be welcome; so my faith to me...
Let those who know not God be led to Him,
By those who know, with words of gentleness
And wholesome and wise counsel, in kind ways.)

And again :

Lī kullin ja'lna min-kum shira'tan wa minhāja,
wa lau sha-Allāho la ja'alakum ummaṭaṇ-wāhiḍah
.....wa lākin leyabul-lowakum fī mā āṭa-kum fā-ṣṭabequ-l-khairaṭo ... Yā ayyoh-allazīna āmanu lā yaskhar qaumun min qaumin. A'sa aṇyakupū khairam minhum. (Q.)

(To every people have we given a law
And a way whereby they may reach to God.
If God had wished it so, He would have made
You all one people. He has not done so.
Wherefore let every people, on the way
Prescribed for it, press forward to good deeds.
And let none laugh at any other men;
Perchance they may be better than themselves.)

Great is the Māyā of words, their power for good or for evil. Riots, pogroms, serious and widespread social disturbances, wars, the misleading of whole nations for generations, in all departments of life, may be, have been, caused by the excessive prevalence of false catch-words and catch-phrases; or by the use of different words by different persons, who all mean the same thing, but do not properly understand one another's words. Almost all disputes and wrangles are due to the unwillingness or the inability to look behind and through the word to the meaning; and, as said before, almost all benevolent diplomacy and successful composition of differences and peace-making means only industrious explaining of the meaning of the parties concerned to one another. Not to understand is to misunderstand; to misunderstand is to be hostile; every stranger, whose language is at all strange, must be an enemy.

Thus, e.g., in the physician's science and art of physical healing, which ought to be as philanthropic and beneficent to the body as the priests' science and art of spiritual ministration ought to be to the mind, medical practitioners of different schools hold each other in contempt, and disagree, firstly, because they have more amour propre of various kinds than earnest wish to cure the patient, and, secondly, because each uses a special set of technical words, of the sounds of which he becomes so enamoured that he has no inclination and no power left to see that other sets mean very much the same thing. But while the doctors know and choose their respective words and drugs, the layman knows and chooses his doctors, knows who cures most and who kills most, and he can sense the common ideas behind the different sets of technicalities. He feels that the vaidya's three prakṛti-s, (corresponding to the three functions of the mind mentioned before), the hakim's mizāj-s, the homeopath's 'temperaments', and the up-to-date modern 'scientific doctor's' (as yet inchoate and unclassified) 'personal idiosyncracies' (under cover of which comparatively recently invented expression he now accepts what he tried long to reject, viz., peculiarities of psycho-physical temperament or constitution, which result in the fact, proverbially known to common sense, but not always recognized by 'scientific' practitioners, that what is food for one is poison for another)—the layman feels that these all at bottom mean the same thing; and he knows, in a general way, which system or method of treatment most suits a particular kind of constitution or disease, and is able to utilise all. The layman is, after all, the parent of the expert, and rears and feeds and clothes him and keeps him going. Even so in matters religious, while word-blinded pandits and maulavis and clerics may dispute endlessly, in exclusive praise of their own respective 'unique' books, rites, ceremonies, and masters, the impress and the power of the One Supreme Spirit are so strong in the heart of even the most unlearned, that he decides and chooses at will which outer religion to doff and which to don, even as clothes.

Seeing the potency for mischief in the excessive clinging to words and outer forms, the great Teachers of all religions have warned us again and again not to attach undue importance to them. The Protestant revolt against Roman Catholicism may, in one way, be regarded as at least partly a revolt against the misuse of religious terminology and the degradation of ritual into mummary by self-seeking or ignorant priests. Similar movements for reform within the folds of Vaidika Dharma (such as Buddhism; Jainism; Shankara's Advaitism; Rāmānanda's, Chaitanya's, Tulasī-dāsa's Bhaktism; Kabir's irenean Mysticism, Nānak's Sikhism; and latest, Dayānanda's Aryanism); and within Islām (e. g., Sūfism of many schools and shades of view and methods of yogic practice; Sunnism, Shīa-ism, Ahl-i-Hadisism or Wahābism, Bābism, Bahāism, Aghā-khānism, and, latest, Qāḍiyāni Ahmadism); which have been started from time to time, may also be regarded in the same light.

The Yoga makes it even an important part of the soul's discipline to discriminate between the śabḍa, the 'word,' the artha, the 'thing meant,' and the jñāna, the 'cognition or perception' of it, involving the element of the personal factor which requires adjustment and equation.¹

The whole, and most valuable, work and wisdom of Socrates consisted in this discipline, viz., that he compelled persons, by close cross-examination, to make their own minds clear as to what exactly they meant by the words which they so glibly used, but which, in the mouths of most of them were, and are, only catch-words, without any precise, or sometimes even any, meaning.

¹ Yoga-sūtra, 1, 42.

Scriptural writings counsel us: "Do not cling to the letter which killeth, but to the spirit which giveth life eternal." "Look at the things of the flesh with the eyes of the Spirit, not at the things of the Spirit with the eyes of the flesh." Following this counsel, we will avoid hate and cultivate and promote love universal, which is the whole and sole object of religion.¹

"In the glass of things temporal,
See the image of things spiritual."

LIVE AND DIE IN AND FOR THE UNIVERSAL LIFE. As preliminary preparation for that final renunciation of all egoism, the Teachers advise us to begin by offering up all our actions to God. Pray for light, for guidance, and then do everything in the name, for the sake, as if by command, of God. So, the mood, the prayer, "Thy will be done, not mine," will gradually become a permanent part, and then the very ¹One very effective and useful way to get behind the sound to the sense, to distinguish between the word and the thought, to overcome letter-worship, to transcend Védo-latry, Qurāno-latry, Biblo-latry (more subtle fetters upon the soul than idolatry), is to study many languages, and compare parallel passages; and so to learn to recognise, with resolute and un baffled intelligence, the same thought, the same familiar friendly face, behind many masks of many languages. (see pp. 68-70, supra).

essence, of our life and being; and thus the identification of our-self with the Supreme Self, of tu, tvam, thou, with Haq, Taṭ, That, will become realized by and in Works, through and in Devotion, up to and in Illumination.

Wa yuṭemūn aṭ-ṭa'ma alā hubbehī miskīnau wa yaṭīmau wa asīrā. Innama nuṭa'ma-kum le wajh-illāhī lā nurīḍo min-kum jaza-an wa lā shukūra. (Q.)

(The poor, the orphan, and the captive—feed
Them for the love, the sake, of God alone,
Desiring no reward, nor even thanks.)

Qul inna salāṭī wa nosokī wa mahyāya wa mamāṭe
l-illāhī Rabb-il-ālamīna. (Q.)

(My prayer, my sacrifice, my life, my death,
Are all for God, the Lord of all the worlds.)
Alaihi ṭawakkalṭo wa hua ne'm al-Wakīl. (Q.)
(On Him do we rely with our whole heart,
He is our only refuge, safest, best.)

Man-manā bhava, Maḍ-bhakṭo,

Maḍ-yājī, Mām namas-kuru;

Aham ṭvām sarva-pāpēbhyo

mokshayishyāmi mā shuchah.

Kauntēya ! praṭi-jānīhi,

na Mé bhakṭah pra-ṇashyaṭi. (G.)

(Turn mind to Me, love Me with all thy heart,
Do acts of sacrifice for My sole sake,
Bend thy whole soul to Me, the Self of all,
And I shall wash thee clean of all thy sins.
Listen and know and trust, I promise thee,
No votary of Mine can e'er be lost.)

Yaṭ karoshi, yaḍ ashnāsi,

yaj-juhoshi, ḍaḍāsi yaṭ,

Yaṭ ṭapasyasi, Kauntēya !,

ṭaṭ kurushva Maḍarpaṇam. (G.)

(Whate'er thou dost, eating, or giving alms,
 Ascetic discipline, or sacrifice,
 Do it for My sake, offer it to Me.)

Come unto Me, all ye that are weary and heavy-laden and I will give you rest (B.)...Love God with all your heart...Whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord; whether we live, therefore, or die, we are the Lord's...Whether, then, you are eating or drinking, or whatever you are doing, let everything be done to the glory of God. (B.)

"Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom...For I was anhungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink...naked and ye clothed me." (B., Mat. xxv.)

Lāo-tse, the great Teacher of China, says :

It is the way of Tao not to act from any personal motive, to conduct affairs without worrying about results, to taste without being aware of the flavor, to account the small as great and the great as small, to recompense injury with kindness. (T., Tao-Te-King.)

...Zarathuštro ŧanvas chīṭ khakhyāo ūshṭaném ḍaḍā-iṭī paūrvaṭāṭēm mananghas chā wanghéūsh Mazaḍāi...Aroījī huḍā-onghaho wīspāish Mazaḍā kshmnāvasū savo. (Gaṭha, 33. 14; 34. 3.)

(Yea! Zarathushtra dedicates to Thee,
 Lord Mazaḍā!, his body and his soul...
 In everything the righteous worker doth,
 He sacrificeth unto thee, O Lord!)

(Each step that my feet take is but a part
 Of circumambulation of the All;
 Each act of service, at His bidding done;
 Each lying down, for sleep, is at His feet
 Prostration worshipful, and utter mergence
 Of my small self in Him; each utterance

Voices His praise and Him ; each meal, each drink,
Is offering of food and drink to Him ;
He eats, drinks, sleeps, speaks, walks, acts, lives in me.)¹ (KABIR).

Let the Osiris go ;² ye see he is without fault...
He lived on truth, he fed on truth...The God has welcomed him as he desired...He has given food to My hungry, drink to My thirsty ones, clothes to My naked. (Egyptian Book of the Dead, quoted in H. P.
Blavatsky's Isis Unveiled, II. 548.)

Pāṭr é dāna m ; anna - dāna m ; viḍyā - dāna m, the giving of physical food and of mental food,
i. e., knowledge, to the deserving, is eulogised and enjoined in the Indian scriptures over and over again.
'Sacrifice', study, charity, i j y ā, a ḍ h y - a y a n a,
dāna, are the three permanent duties of the 'regenerate' classes. (M., G.)

KNOWLEDGE AND DEVOTION STERILE WITHOUT WORKS. We have to bear in mind that the emotional enjoyment of self-surrender and devotion to the Supreme, wholly legitimate as it is, is not enough. The 'freed' man has to slave for the 'slaves' who are yet bound by the fetters of doubts and fears and worldly desires. He has to realise, in his actions, that all mankind, nay,

¹Unfortunately, the note of the original of this was lost and could not be traced while the pages were being taken through the press.

²The soul, found blameless, after death, by Osiris, the Egyptian Lord of Truth, (same as Vēdic Yama, and Islāmic Al-Qābiz and Al-Muhsiy, Lord of Death and Judgment), is given by the Deity the same status and name as His own, because blameless.

all living things, are one Infinite Brotherhood. Right knowledge and devotion, wedded to one another, are both sterile if they give not birth to good works. Faith and reason without works are worse than useless. Works witness the faith. The man's innermost heart-conviction is that according to which he acts. Deeds, not words, prove the real faith. The blood of the martyrs is the proof, and therefore the seed, of the faith.

By their fruits shall ye know them. (B.)

Sthāṇur-ayam bhāra-hārah kil-ābhūḍ-
 Adhītya Vēdam na vijānāti yo-(a)rtha m ;
 Artha-jña-iṭ sakalam bhaḍram ashnuté,
 Nākam éti Jñāna-vidhūṭa-pāpmā. (Nirukṭa)
 Āchāra-hīnam na punanti Vēdāh
 Yaḍy-apy-adhīṭāh saha shadbhir-angaih ;
 Chhandāmsy-énam mrtyu-kālē tyajanti
 Nīdam shakuntā iva jāṭa-pakshāh. (Vasīṣṭha-Smṛti)
 Évam pravartīṭam chakram
 n-ānu-varṭayaṭi-ha yah
 Agh-āyur-indriy-ārāmo
 mogham, Pārtha !, sa jīvaṭi. (G.)

(But block of wood, supporting a dead weight,
 Is he who knows the Vēda all by heart,
 And yet knows not its sacred secret sense.
 He who knows that, and also does good works
 In keeping with that knowledge, he avoids
 Down-dragging binding sins and gaineth heaven.
 The Vēdas cannot help, however hard
 They have been studied, and with all their six Subservient sciences, the man of vice ;
 They leave him at the moment of his death,
 As fledglings leave a nest that has been fouled.

This Wheel of Life that I have set a-whirl—
 He who helps not to keep it cycling on,
 In the fixed ways of virtue, he does fail
 In duty, living sinful life in vain.)

Bahum pi ché samhitam bhāsa-māno,
 Na takkaro hoti naro pamatto,
 Gopo va gāvo gaṇayam parésam,
 Na bhāgavā sāmānyassa hoti. (Dh.)

(Who talks much, learnedly, but acts not right
 That senseless man is like one who should count
 The cows of others o'er and o'er again,
 But cannot have a sip of milk from them.)

Āchārah paramo dharmah, shruty-ukṭah, smārta éva cha ;
 Tasmād asmin sadā yukto
 nityam syād Ātma-vān dvi-jah.
 Āchārād vichyuto vipro
 na Véda-phalam ashnuṭé ;
 Āchāreṇa tu sam-yukṭah
 sam-purṇa-phala-bhāg-bhavét. (M.)

(Right conduct and good deed—this is the highest Dharma ; so all the Védas, Smṛtis, teach.

The wise man, therefore, having seen the Self,
 Acts gently and performs good works amain.
 Who fails in conduct, Védas help him not ;
 Who does not fail, all life's just ends he gains.)

Pathakāh, pāthakāsh-cha-iva, yé ch-ānyé shāstra-chintakāh,
 Sarvé vyasanino mūrkhāh,
 yah kriyāvān sa paṇḍitah.

(Mbh., Vana-parva, ch. 314.)

(Students and teachers, and all others, who Read the mere words of ponderous books, know naught,

But only waste their time in vain pursuit
Of words; who acteth righteously is Wise.)

Ilm chandān ke béshtar khwānī,
Gar a'māl ḍar tū n-īst, nādān-ī,
Chār-pāy-é bar-ū kiṭāb-é chand,
Na muhaqqiq buwaḍ na ḍānīsh-mand. (S).

(However great thy knowledge, if good deed
Is not thine also, then thou knowest naught;
But beast of burden thou, loaded with books,
Strutting along, and knowing not their sense,
Lacking all wisdom, ignorant of truth.)

Sayyad-ul-quam khādim-ul-qaum. (H.)
(The leader of the tribe—who serves it most.)

Those who aspire to greatness must humble themselves. (T., Tao Teh King.)

The meek shall inherit the earth, and theirs is the kingdom of heaven...Whosoever will be a chief among you, let him be your servant; whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister...Whosoever shall exalt himself, shall be abased; and he who shall humble himself, shall be exalted...(B.) He that is greatest among you shall be your servant. (B.) He that is greatest among you, let him be as the youngest; and he that is chief, as he that doth serve. (B., Luke).

Inna akramakum inḍ Allāhé atqākum. (Q.)
(Nearest to God and greatest in His eyes
Is he who is most good amongst you all.)

Sam-mānāḍ brāhmaṇo niṭyam uḍ-vijēta vishāḍ-iva,
Ava-mānasya ch-ākānkshēḍ amṛtasy-éva sarvaḍā. (M.)

(The man of God doth ever shrink and flee
From marks of honour, as from poison-sting,
And welcometh indignity and task
Of lowliness as if 'twere nectar-draught.)

Ba ehsān āsūda kardān dilē
 Beh az alf rakā'ṭ ba har manzilē. (S.)
 Dīl ba ḍaṣṭ āwar ke hajjē-akbar aṣṭ;
 Az hazārān K'āba yak dīl beṭṭar aṣṭ.
 Dīl guzar-gāhē Jalīlē Akbar aṣṭ,
 Kā'ba bun-gāhē Kḥalīlē āzir aṣṭ. (S.)
 (To bring joy to one heart, by loving help,
 Is better than a thousand litanies.
 To reach and clasp a human heart with love—
 This is the Greater Pilgrimage; the other,
 To the stone K'āba, is the smaller one.
 Better far is one living human heart
 Than a whole thousand Kā'bas built of stone;
 Within the former lives the Life of God,
 The other's the dead work of Abra'm's hands.)

Tāpas tīrṭham, kshamā tīrṭham, tīrṭham indriya-nigrahah,
 Sarva-bhūta-ḍayā tīrṭham,
 Dhyānam tīrṭham an-uṭṭamam,
 Ētāni pancha tīrṭhāni,
 śatyaṃ shashtam pra-kīrṭitam,
 Déhé tishthanṭi sarvasya;
 tēshu snānam sam-ācharēt.
 Dānam tīrṭham, ḍamas-tīrṭham,
 saṇṭoshas-tīrṭham uchyatē,
 Brahma-charyam param tīrṭham
 tīrṭham cha priya-vāḍitā,
 Jñānam tīrṭham, dhṛṭis-tīrṭham
 Tāpas tīrṭham uḍ-āhrṭam
 Tīrṭhānām api taṭ tīrṭham

Vi-shuddhir-manasah parā. (Mbh.)
 The glow of self-denial, sense-control,
 Forgivingness, and gentleness to all,
 Dwelling on God in mind, and truthfulness,
 Contentment, charity, and chastity,

Soft words of friendliness, and fortitude,
 Enlightenment, and purity of heart,
 And knowledge that the Self is All in All
 —Most blessed shrines, holiest of waters, these ;
 And all within your being, ever near ;
 Bathe in these sacred waters, worship here !)

Na nagga-chariyā, na jatā, na pankā,
 N-ānāsakā, ṭhandila-sāyikā vā,
 Rajo-vajallam, ukkutika-ppaḍhānam,
 Soḍhēṇṭi machcham aviṭṭha-kankham.
 Kin ṭe jatāhi, ḍum-mēḍha ! kin ṭe ajina-sātiyā ?
 Abbhaṇṭaram ṭe gahanam, bāhīram pari-majjasi !
 (Dh.)

(Nude endurance of sun, rain, heat and cold,
 Long tangled hair, smearing with earth and ashes,
 Fasting, sleeping on stone, tormenting postures,
 And self-inflicted pains of every sort,
 Can purify thee not, friend !, until thou
 Wash clean thy heart of all unclean desire.
 What is the use of matted hair, and what
 Of raiment made out of the wild goat's skin ?
 Within thee there is ravening and sin,
 Only the outside dost thou try to clean.
 Different the way, from sin the heart to wean.

Now do ye Pharisees make clean the outside of the cup and the platter, but your inward part is full of ravening and wickedness. (B.)

Vēḍās, ṭyāgash cha, yajñāsh cha, niyamāsh cha, ṭapāmsi cha,
 Na vi-pra-ḍushta-bhāvasya
 siḍḍhim gachchhaṇṭi karhi-chiṭ, (M.)
 (Study of scripture and ascetic life,
 Ritual and sacrificial offerings,
 Observances of rules and practices

Of orthodox religion, even gifts—

Avail him not at all whose heart is bad.)

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love Him...Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this: To visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world...What doth it profit, my brethren, though he say he hath faith, and have not works? Can faith save him?...By works was faith made perfect?...For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also. (B., James.)

Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but the keeping of the commandments of God (is everything). (B., Corinthians.)

The good that I would, I do not; but the evil which I would not, that I do. (B., Rom.)

Jānāmy-aḍharmam na cha mé ni-vṛṭṭih;

Jānāmi ḍharmam na cha mé pra-vṛṭṭih;

Kén-āpi dēvéna hr̥ḍi sthiténa

Yathā ni-yukṭ-osmi tathā-charāmi. (Mbh.)

(I know the right, yet cannot do the right;

I know the wrong, and yet I do the wrong.

It is as if some force dwells in my heart,

And drives me, and I helplessly obey.)

Have we not all one Father? Hath not one God created us? Why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother? (B., Malachi.) One is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are brethren. (B.)

There is one Body and one Spirit. (B., Ephesians.)

As the body is one and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body, so also is Christ. For, by one spirit are we all baptised into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free...We have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office...There are diversities of gifts,...of administrations,...of operations, but it is the same God, the same Spirit, the same Lord, which worketh all in all... And whether one member suffer, all the members suffer with it; or one member be honored, all the members rejoice with it. (B., Corinthians, viii; Romans, xii.) And this commandment have we from Him: That he who loveth God love his brother also. (B., John.)

(He who permitteth his left-hand to be
Defiled with dirt and doth not wipe it clean
With his right hand, will make his body soon
Unclean in all its parts. What makes the whole
But parts? And what the human bodies? Limbs.
Let each limb care for every other, then.) (Bu.)¹

In life we should be of use to others. (C., Liki.)
In seeking a foothold for self, love finds a foothold for others; seeking light for itself, it enlightens others also. (C., Analects.)

Brāhmaṇo-(A)sya mukham āsīt, bāhū rājanyah kṛtāh,
Ūrū taḍ Asya yaḍ vaiśyah,
paḍbhyām śūdro ajāyāta. (V.)

(The men of knowledge constitute the head,
Of macrocosmic Man, the Oversoul;
The men of action are His mighty arms;
Men of desire, His chest and abdomen,
And men of labor, all-supporting legs;
Thus are all human beings parts of One Whole.)

¹The note of the original Buddhist text was lost, unfortunately, and could not be traced while the pages were in the press.

Banī Ādam ā'zāe yak dīgar and,
 Ke dar āfrīnish ze yak jauhar and.
 Chu uzwe ba qarq āwaraḍ rozgār,
 Dīgar uzwa-hā rā na mānaḍ qarār.
 Tu k-az mihnate dīgar-ān bē-gham-ī,
 Na shāyaḍ ke nām-aṭ nihand ādamī. (S.)

(The progeny of Adam are all limbs
 Of but one body, since in origin
 And essence they are all identical.
 If one limb of the body suffer pain
 Can th' others ever rest in painless ease ?
 If thou art careless of thy brother's pains
 The name of man thou oughtest not to wear.)

Sāhab-dilē ba maḍrasah āmaḍ ze khāneqāh,
 Ba shikaste a'hde suhbatē ahl-ē-ṭarīq rā.
 Guftam : Miyāne ā'līm wa ā'bīd che farq būd,
 Tā ikhtiyār kardī az-ān īn farīq rā ?
 Guft : Ū glīm-e khwēsh ba dar mī baraḍ ze mauj,
 W-īn jehaḍ mī kunaḍ ke bi-gīraḍ ḡharīq rā. (S.)

(A hermit broke his vow of hermitage,
 And joined a school of teachers, good and wise.
 Asked why he chose the latter's company
 Above that of 'the men of practices,'
 He said : The hermits think to save their own
 Rag-blanket from the inundating waves,
 The teachers try to save the drowning men.)
 As-sayyo minnī wa iṭmāmo min Allah. (H.)

(Effort is mine, to grant success is God's.
 Man should propose, God only can dispose.)

Ṭarīqaṭ ba-juz khidmate-khalq n-ist,
 Ba ṭasbīh o sajjāda o ḍalq n-ist. (S.)

(None other Path to God is anywhere
 Than the whole-hearted service of His world.)

Repeating God's names, turning o'er and o'er
The rosary of beads, the prayer-mat,
The wrap of rags—these do not make the Path.)

...Fravarētā wāstrīm... no īt, Mazadā !, a-wāstrayo
da vānschīnā hūmérétoīsh bakshtā...(Z., Gāthā, 31.10.)

(Choose ye the path of Action Dutiful...

For the deluded one who giveth up

All action—he forfeiteth welfare too.)

...Ashéma dérēdyāi taṭ mōi dāo Armaīti rāyo ashīsh wanghéush gaēm manangho. (43. 1).

(Give me, Lord Mazadā !, the Activism,

Of Duty on the path of Conscience straight,

Which only can uphold the Rectitude

Through which alone come blessings to the world.)

Not learning but doing is the chief thing.

(Ju., Mishna, Aboth, ii. 17.)

He that turneth away his ear from the law, even his prayer shall be abomination. (B., Proverbs.)

When ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you; yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear; your hands are full of blood. (B., Isaiah.)

Rudrāksham, ṭulasī-kāshṭham, ṭri-pundram, bhasma-dhāraṇam,

Yātrāh, snānāni, homāsh-cha,

japā, vā dēva-ḍarshanam,

Na-ite punanṭi manujam

yathā bhūta-hite raṭih. (Purāṇa.)

(Bead-necklaces and many rosaries,

And triple paint on forehead, ash on skin,

Wand'rings to shrines and off'rings into fire,

Mechanical recital of God's names,

Looking at eikons—all these help not man,

As does work for the service of the world.)

Sva-dharma-karma-vi-mukhāh,
 Kṛshṇa-Kṛshṇ-ūti rāviṇah,
 Tē Harér-dvэшiṇo mūdḥāh,
 Dharm-ārtham janma yaḍ-Haréh.

(Purāṇa.)

(Who shirk their duty, and, for all to hear,
 Cry loudly, Kṛshṇa ! Kṛshṇa !, they are cheats ;
 They are not devotees but foes of God ;
 For God sends incarnations of high souls
 To make men do their duties, not cry words.)

Not every one that sayeth, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven ; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven...I will profess unto them, I never knew you ; depart from Me, ye that work iniquity. (B., Mat. vii.)

Na mīn goyam ke az ḍunyā juḍā bāsh,
 Ba har kārē ke bāshī bā Kḥuḍā bāsh. (S.)
 Cho mīn bīnam ke nā-bīnā ba chāh aṣṭ,
 W-agar kḥāmosh mī bāsham gunāh ast. (S.)

(I do not say : Go and give up the world.
 I say : Be near God in whate'er thou dost.
 If I should see a blind man with his stick
 Wending towards a well, and warn him not,
 Then I am surely guilty of his death.)

To share one's wisdom with others is called true wisdom ; to share one's wealth with others is reckoned meritorious. (T., Kwang Tzu.)

Brāhmaṇah sama-ḍṛk, shāṇṭo, ḍīnānām an-apékshakah,
 Sravaṭé Brahma ṭasy-āpi,
 bhinna-bhāṇḍāṭ payo yaṭhā. (Bh.)

(Even a saintly and impartial man,
 Free from all selfish loves and hates—if even
 Such should stand by, and see the poor oppressed,

And do naught to befriend them any way,
Then from them shall depart unfailingly
All learning and all virtue, as milk flows
Away from vessel leaking through a crack.)

Prāyasho munayo loké svārth-aik-ānt-oḍyamā hi té ;
Dvaipāyanas-ṭu bhagavān
sarva-bhūṭa-hiṭé raṭāh. (Bh.)
Na karmaṇām an-ārambhān
naish-karmyam purusho-shnuṭé,
Na cha san-nyasanāḍ-éva siddhim sam-aḍhi-gachchhaṭi.
Labhanṭé Brahma-nirvāṇam
sarva-bhūṭa-hiṭé raṭāh. (G.)

(Most anchorets strive only for themselves,
And therefore fail ; but those who truly know,
Engage themselves in service of the world.
Not by avoidance of activity,
Nor by renunciation either, may
Freedom of soul be gained, or perfectness ;
Only by constant service of the world
May the great peace of Brahma be attained.)

Uttamā sahaj-āvasthā, ḍvitiyā dhyāna-ḍhāraṇā,
Tṛitīyā praṭimā-pūjā, homa-yātrā vidambanā.
(Agni Purāṇa.)

(The natural state is best, the feel of self
At one with the Eternal Self of all,
In tune with the Immortal Infinite ;
The labored contemplation of the One
Is next ; lower, is fixing of the mind
On some material image ; ritualism,
Offerings and sacrifices, pilgrimage,
And movings up and down of hands and feet,
Are self-deception, mummery, or pastime.)

Karmany-év-ādhi-kāras té,
 mā phalēshu kaḍā-chana.
 Tasmād asakṭah saṭaṭam
 kāryam karma sam-āchara.
 Tena tyaktēna bhunjīṭhāh,
 mā grḍhah kasya-sviḍ ḍhanam.
 Brāhmané...cha...shva-pāké cha paṇḍitāh sama-ḍarśinah. (G., U.)

(To do thy duty is thy only right;
 Thou hast no right to crave reward or fruit.
 Do all thy work with a detached mind.
 Enjoy the joys thy fortune may bring thee,
 But with aloofness, ready to give up.
 Behold all, great and small, same-sightedly.)

If I have committed any sin against the law of brotherhood in relation to my father, mother, sister, brother, mate, or children; in relation to my leader, my next-of-kin and acquaintances; my co-citizens, partners, neighbours, my own townsmen, and my servants—then I repent and pray for pardon.

(Z., Paṭeṭ Pashēmānē.)

The beautiful poem, Abu bin Aḍham, must be brought in here with loving hands:

Abu bin Aḍham—may his tribe increase—
 Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
 And saw within the moonlight in his room,
 Making it rich, like lily in full bloom,
 An Angel writing in a book of gold.
 Exceeding peace had made bin Aḍham bold,
 And to the Presence in the room he said,
 "What writest thou?" The Vision raised its head,
 And with a look made all of sweet accord,
 Answered, "The names of those who love the Lord."
 "And is mine there?" asked Abu. "Nay, not so,"

Replied the Angel. Abu spoke more low,
 But cheerily still, and said, "I pray thee, then,
 Write me as one who loves his fellow-men."
 The Angel wrote and vanished. The next night,
 He came again with a great wakening light,
 And showed the names which love of God had blest.
 And, lo !, bin Adham's name led all the rest !.

FOLLOW THE SPIRIT, NOT THE LETTER.
 Warnings against false interpretations of scripture-texts by selfish, interested, or ignorant persons, desirous of increasing ritualism and formalism,
 are also given by all Teachers :

Yām imām pushpīṭām vācham
 pra-vaḍantya-a-vipashchīṭah,
 Véda-vāḍa-raṭāh, Pārṭha !,
 n-ānyaḍ-aṣṭ-īṭi vāḍinah. (G.)

(They lack all sense who prate perpetually
 About the Véda's ritual, and assert,
 'There is naught else' ; they verily know naught.)

Ṭam-éva dhīrō vijñāya
 prajñām kurvīṭa brāhmaṇah,
 Nā-nu-dhyāyéd bahūn shabḍān,
 vācho viglāpanam hi ṭaṭ, (U.)

(The One Truth which bestoweth wisdom seek,
 And think not many words, tis waste of Speech.)

Shāstrāṇy-abhyasya, méḍhāvī, jñāna-vijñāna-ṭaṭ-parah,
 Palālam iva dhāny-ārthī,
 tyajéd granṭhān a-shésha-ṭah. (U.)

(Study the linked words, no doubt, but look
 Behind them to the thought they indicate,
 And having found it, throw the words away
 As chaff when you have sifted out the grain.)

Study the sciences; master their heart;
Having done so, cling not to many books.)

Gar ze sirré mā'rifaṭ āgah shawī

Lafz bu-guzārī suyé mā'nī rawī. (S.)

(If thou wouldst learn the secret of the True, Let pass the word, the thought, the thought, pursue.)

Paḍa-jñair n-āṭi-nir-bandhah

karṭavyo muni-bhāṣitē,

Arṭha-smaraṇa-ṭāṭparyān

n-ādṛyaṇtē hi lakṣhaṇam.

(Let not grammarians scrutinise

Too close the language of the wise;

The seers think more of the thought

Than of the words in which 'tis caught.)

Iṭihāsa-Purāṇābhyām

Vēdam sam-upa-bṛmhayēt,

Bibhēty-alpa-shruṭāḍ Vēdo

mām ayam pra-ṭarishyaṭi. (M.)

(Read Vēda in the light of History,

The History of the Universe and Man;

The Vēda fears the man who knows not much:

"He will deprive me of my rightful sense.")

Ṭū Qurān gar bar īn nawa' khwānī,

Be-burī raunaqé Musalmānī. (S.)

(If thou interpretest the Qurān thus,

Thou murderest the beauty of Islām.)

And we are told that the real source of all true knowledge is within our-Self. Only he who has found that source will be able to understand the scriptures rightly. Praṭi-bhā, divya-dṛshṭi, yoga-ja-jñāna, intuition, iṣhrāq, ilm-i-huzūrī, kashf, is recognised by all religions, as distinguished from ṭarka, an u - m ā n, mashīyat, ilm-i-husūlī, intellectual argument, inference, reasoning. Various states, and degrees, of 'inner illumination', 'divine revelation', anṭah-prakāsha, divya-dṛśhti, manṭra-darshana, raushan-zamīrī, chashm-i-bāṭinī, ilhām, are distinguished.

Dar ramz o kanāya na ṭawān yāft Khudā rā,
Masahaf-i-dīl bīn, ke kitābé beh az īn n-īst. (S.)

(In books and signs thou never wilt find God !
Read thine own heart with reverence and heed,
No holier writ is owned by any creed.)

Saḍ kitāb-o saḍ waraq ḍar nār kun,
Jān o dīl rā jānib-é-Dīldār kun. (S.)
(Give thousand-paged tomes unto the fire, Give life and heart to the One Heart's Desire.)

Jo ilm-o-hikmat kā Wo hai ḍānā, ṭo ilm-o-hikmāt ke ham hain mūjīḍ,
Hai apne sīné meñ us sé zāyaḍ
jo bāt wā'ez kitāb mén hai. (S.)

(Since He knows all art and science,
we too can invent and know ;
In the human heart is hidden more than all the Scriptures show.)

Dar haqīqat khud ṭu-ī Umm-ul-kitāb,
Khud ze khud āyāt-e khud rā bāz yāb.
Laub-e Mahfūz aṣṭ ḍar mā'nī dīl-aṭ,
Har che mī khwāhī shawaḍ z-ū hāsīl-aṭ.

(Thy-self the parent of all God-spell thou ;
All scriptures thine own heart will give enow.
The Sacred Guarded Tablet—thine own heart ;
Whate'er thou wishest, ask ; it will impart.)

Sarvam Ātmani sam-pashyét
saṭ ch-āsaṭ cha sam-āhiṭah.

Sarvam Ātmani sam-pashyan
n-āḍharmé kuruté manah.

Ātm-aiva dēvaṭāh sarvāh,

Sarvam Aṭmany-ava-sṭhiṭam. (M.)

Sarvāsām viḍyānām hrḍayam ék-āyanam. (U.)

(Behold all truth, all error, in thy-Self ;

The Self is all the gods ; all's in the Self.

Who thus beholds the Great Self in him-Self,

He cannot set his heart again on sin.

The one storehouse of all the sciences,

Known and unknown, is our own living heart.)

By such realisation of the unity of All life in and through Action, by service of fellow-creatures, is completed the triple realisation of the Secondless and Other-less Oneness, Shuḍḍh-ādvaitam, Tauhīd-i-zāṭi, Bhāv-ādvaitam, Tauhīd-i-sifāṭi, Kriy-ādvaitam, Tauhīd-i-afā'li.

Lauh-i-Mahfūz, the Guarded or Preserved Tablet, is the hāfizā, the Omniscient Memory, of God, in which all past, present, and future is eternally contained and preserved. The corresponding Samskr̥t word is Chitra-gupta, the Hidden and Preserved Picture, or Ākāshic Record. God as Yama, Anṭar-yāmī, the Judge, the Inner Ruler, the As-Shakur and Al-Qābiz, the Giver of rewards and punishments, the Al-Muhsiy, the Recorder, has for Recording Angel, Chitra-gupta, Gupta-Chitra, the Secret Wonderful Picturer, Photographer; and the Record is His own Memory, Hāfizā, Lauh-i-Mahfūz, Smṛti. One of the names of Brahmā, Mahat-Buddhi, Aql-i-kul, 'Total Universal Mind', is Smṛti, the Divine Memory, the Nous-Demiurgos of the Greeks; also Chit, 'in which everything is stored up, collected'; (chi, to gather); also Sam-vit, 'that all-pervading Consciousness, Awareness,' (vid, to know) which is the changeless eternal witness, knower of all past, present, future. Human knowledge is only the successive manifestation of what is ever-present in the Eternal Now of Omniscience. We can know and invent only because all art and science is already ever-present in our Self. We borrow and bring to light infinitesimal portions of it in succession.

The source of all true knowledge being such, the quintessence of the religion of Works, which is the inseparable consequence of the religion of Devotion and of Illumination, is :

Ashraf-ul-īmāni un yamanak an-naso, wa ashraf-ul-Islāmi un yaslam an-naso mil-lessaneka wa yaḍeka. (Q.)

(Noblest religion this—That others may

Feel safe from thee ; the loftiest Islām

—That all may feel safe from thy tongue and hands.)

Perfect love casteth out fear. (B.)

Yasmān n-oḍ-vijaṭé loko,

lokān-n-oḍ-vijaṭé cha yah,¹

¹“Who giveth up the world, taking the vow, that he will cause no fear to any one, nothing can cause fear to him any more; all glorious worlds stand open unto him”: Manu, vi, 39-40.

Harsh-āmarsha-bhay-oḍ-végair-
 mukṭo yah sa cha Mé priyah. (G.)
 (Who causes no disquiet to the world,
 Nor is himself perturbed by the world,
 Who has won real Freedom, by being free
 Of the excitements and disturbances
 Of proud elations, fears, intolerances,
 —Yea, such an one is ever dear to Me!)¹

Namāzé zāhīdān qaḍḍ o sujūd-aṣṭ,
 Namāzé āshīqān ṭark-ē-wujūd aṣṭ. (S.)

(The formal prayer is—sitting up and down;
 The real—our own egoism to drown.)

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are; for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men...When ye pray, use not vain repetitions, as the heathens do, for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking...Enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret..." (B.)

Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing; but the keeping of the commandments of God (is everything). (B.)

¹*The Book of the Dead*, the chief available sacred writing of the dead religion of ancient Egypt, contains directions for the soul, when it appears before the Judge of the Dead. It should be able to say: "I have made no one weep". Of course, the words, 'by any wrong action of mine', are understood. Otherwise no judge could ever punish a criminal, particularly one who has relatives.

Ḍilā ! ṭawāf-i-ḍilān kun, ke Kā'ba é-makhfī-sṭ, Ke ān Kḥalīl binā kard, wa īn Kḥudā khud
sākht ! (S.)

(O ! circumambulate thy-Self, my heart !
Thou art the secret Kā'ba ! yea, thou art !
That outer Kā'ba Abraham designed,
Thou wast created by High God's own mind !)
Hajj che bāshad ? Ze khud safar kardan.
Bā kujā ? Jānibé Hıḍayaṭ-kār. (S.)
(What is the Pilgrimage ? To run away
From the small self. And travel whitherward ?
To the Great Self, whence all true guidance comes.)

Na hy-am-mayānī ṭīrṭhānī na ḍēvā mrch-chḥilā-mayāh ;
Té punanṭy-uru-kālēna
ḍarshanāḍ-éva sādḥavaḥ. (B.)
(Sanctums are not made of waters,
Nor gods of wood, clay, or stone ;
Very long they take to cleanse thee ;
Saintly heart is God's own throne.)

Aṭṭā hi Aṭṭano nāṭho, ko hi nāṭho paro siyā.
Aṭṭanā hi su-ḍantēna nāṭham labhaṭi ḍullabham. (Dh.)

(The Self is the protector of the self,
Who else than Self can be the Lord of self.
Who has encompassed and achieved him-Self,
Has gained That than which there's no higher gain.)

Ava-jānanṭi Mām mūdḥā
mānushīm ṭanum āshriṭam,
Param bhāvam ajānanṭo
Mama bhūṭa-Mah-éshvaram. (G.)

(Men slight Me, hidden in the human frame,
Thinking, benighted, I must be far off,
Unwitting of Me as the Lord in all.)

Uddharéḍ Ātman-ātmānam
 n-ātmānam ava-sādayéḍ ;
 Ātma-iva dévatāh sarvāh,
 sarvam Ātmany-ava-sṭhiṭam. (G. and M.)

(Uplift thy smaller self by the Great Self,
 And do not drag the High down to the low.
 The Self is all the gods, all 's in the Self.)

Āṭṭa-ḍīpā vi-haraṭṭha,
 Āṭṭa-saraṇā, an-añña-saraṇā,
 Vaya-ḍhammā sankhārā,
 Ap-pamāḍéna sampāḍéṭṭha.
 (Buddha's last words.)

(Be to your-Self the one and only Light ;
 Be to your-Self the one and only Refuge ;
 Seek not for help from other-than-your-Self ;
 All composites, all made-up things, are transient ;
 Remembering this, find watchfully th' Immortal.)

Yā nishā sarva-bhūṭānām
 ṭasyām jāgati sam-yamī,
 Yasyām jāgrati bhūṭāni
 sā nishā pashyato munéh. (G.)

(That which is night for others, therein wake
 The careful ; while that which is day for all
 Is night for him who sees the Inner world.)

Har ke bédār-āṣṭ ū ḍar khwāb-ṭar,
 Haṣṭ bédārī-sh az khwāb-ash baṭar ;
 Har ke ḍar khwāb-aṣṭ bédārī-sh beh,
 Haṣṭ ḡhaṭṭaṭ ain hushyārī-sh beh,
 Mahramé iñ hosh juz bé-hosh n-iṣṭ,
 Mar zabāñ rā musṭarī juz gosh n-iṣṭ. (S.)

(He who seems now awake is in deep dream,
 And he who seems asleep doth truly wake.
 The true sleep 's better than such wakefulness.)

Only th' Unconscious knows this Consciousness ;
The tongue's speech but the speechless ear can guess.)

Sālāhā dīl ṭalabé jāṃ-i-Jam az mā mī kard,
Un-che khud dāshṭ ze bégānah ṭamannā mī kard. (S.)
(Long years my heart for Jamshéd's wondrous Grail,

That mirrors all, begged others—all in vain ;
And then at last it found that what it hoped To gain from others, it-Self did contain !)

Bhūṭānām prāṇinah shréshthāh prāṇinām buddhi-jīvinah,
Kṛṭa-buddhishu kartārah
kartṛshu Brahma-védinah. (M.)

Na Mé, Pārṭh !-āṣṭi kartavyam ṭrishu lokéshu kinchana,

N-ān-av-āptam av-āptavyam,
varṭa-éva cha karmaṇi. (G.)

(Breathers of air are higher 'mongst living things ;
'Mongst them, they that live by intelligence ;
'Mongst them, again, they who have seen the Self ;
Highest are they who act accordingly.

Naught have I left to do in all the worlds,
Nor is there aught which I have not attained,
Yet am I working for the world alway.)

Kasé mardé ṭamām aṣṭ az ṭamāmī
Kunaḍ bā khwājagī kārē ghulāmī. (S.)

(He is the perfect man who, being lord,
Can still to serve the lowliest afford.)

Afzal-ul-ashghāl khidmat-ul-unnās. (H.)
(Finest of orisons—Service of Man.)

All religions put us on our guard against deceiving ourselves into indolence or carelessness or self-indulgence in vice, under cover of a false self-surrender to God, and of the pretence that whatever we do, even obviously immoral or evil, is done under impulsion from God, that we are helpless puppets, and 'therefore' cannot be held to punishment. In this 'therefore' is the great fallacy. The true 'therefore' runs thus: Since you regard yourself as helpless to avoid the doing of evil, 'therefore' you must regard yourself as helpless also to avoid the receiving of punishment. Causes and effects must be equated. Since we feel our-self able to act either the one way or the other, at will, therefore we should feel will-ing to bear the consequences also, of either.

Take no thought for the morrow (but) whatsoever (duty) thy hand findeth to do, do it with all thy might. (B.)

Ishvarah sarva-bhūṭānām
hrḍ-ḍēshé-(A)rjuna ! ṭishthaṭi,
Bhrāmāyan sarva-bhūṭāni
yanṭr-ārūṛhāni māyayā.
Mā karma-phala-hétur-bhūr-mā ṭé sango-sṭ-va-karmaṇi. (G.)

(God sits within the heart of every one,
Twirling all by His Magic, round and round,
As if bound firmly to a vast machine ;
Yet thou must not avoid a single duty ;
Only the wish for fruit must thou avoid.)

The Qurān holds the same language :
Qulūb-ul-khalāyaq fī asābe ir-Rahmān. (Q.)
(The hearts of living creatures are all fixed Upon the fingers of Almighty God.)

Yet the ordained duties must not be neglected.
All sayyo minni w-al iṭmāmo min Allah. (H.)
(Effort is mine, to grant success is God's.)
Daryā ba wujūd-e khwēsh maujé ḍāraḍ,

Khas pinḍāraḍ ke kashā-kash bā ū-st. (S.)
 (The ocean heaves in surges of its being,
 And the vast billows toss the straw about—
 The straw thinks it is struggling with the waves.)

Prakṛtēh kriya-māṇāni
 guṇaih karmāṇī sarvashah,
 Aham-kāra-vimūdh-ātmā
 kartā-ham-iti manyatē. (G.)

(Nature is operating everywhere,
 Her forces cause all motions of the world,
 But man, deluded by false ego-ism,
 Imagines, 'I am doing all these things.')

Kār-kun ḍar kār-gah bāshaḍ nihān,
 Ṭū bi-rau ḍar kārgah bīn-ash ayān,
 Kār-sāz-é mā ḍurūn-é kār-e mā,
 Fikr-i mā ḍar kār-e mā āzār-e mā. (S.)
 (The Moving Force is hid in the machine,
 Yet canst thou see Him working plain to view ;
 Thou the machine and He the moving force.
 He is the guiding motive of 'my' work,
 'My' worry o'er 'my' work is 'my' disease.)

Nahi kash-chiṭ kshaṇam api jātū tishthaty-a-karma-kṛt.
 Kāryatē hy-avashah karma
 sarvah Prakṛti-jair-guṇaih.
 Niyatam kuru karma tvam,...
 mukṭa-sangah sam-āchara,
 Nimiṭṭa-mātram (bhūtvā cha)...
 Param āpnoṭi pūrushah. (G.)

(None can stay still a moment actionless ;
 Nature drives all resistlessly to act ;
 Thy fixed duty do unfailingly,
 But with detachment, knowing that thou art

But instrument ; and so shalt thou attain
The One and Only Doer of all deeds.)

All religions tell us that God, the Universal Self, is the one True, Beautiful, Good. We know the True, the Real, that which is ; we desire the Beautiful, the Lovely ; we do the Good, the Right. The Self al-One is, is known to be the Real, utter True ; the Self al-One is the most desired, the best Be-lov-ed, the Supremely Beautiful ; the Self al-One, all-pervading, all-uniting, is the final cause, motive, source, of all and any doing, any activity, that is benevolent, beneficent, wholly Good. The Self is Satyam, lā maujūdah illā Hū, 'nothing else than It Is' ; the Self is Priyam, lā maqsūdah illā hū, 'nothing else than It is Be-lov-ed' ; the Self is Hiṭam, lā mā'būdah illā Hū, 'nothing else than It is Good and to-be-Served'.

MYSTIC, GNOSTIC, YOGA or SULŪK, DISCIPLINES. Thus may we see that all religions are in essence exactly the same ; and that that essence comes from God, and is intended in all to lead back to God by the same processes of Yoga or Sulūk. The seeds of such 'mystic, spiritual and psychical, exercise and discipline,' are sown in saṇḍhy-opāsanā, namāz, prayer, and its accompaniments. These are : yama, niyama, (ṭapas, chitta-pra-sādana, chitta-pari-karma), āsana, prāṇ-ā-yāma, praty-āhāra, dhyāna, dhāraṇā, (nir-vikalpa, etc.), saṁ-ā-dhi ; or ṭahzīb-un-nafs, ṭasfīya-i-dīl, (nafs-kushī, parhéz, pārsāi, riyā- zaṭ, tanqīya-i-qalb), zikr, fikr, mujāhidā, ashghāl, habs-i-dam, murāqibā, mukāshifā, (kḥālī-uz-zehn etc.) mushāhidā (hāl, diḍār, wajḍ, muā-yinā); i. e., vows, restraint of limbs and breath, abstraction of the mind from the senses, concentration, contemplation, absorption, rapt trance, ecstasy, beatific vision.¹

All religions finally declare that He is all, Hama Ū-st, Sarva m khal-vidam Brahma, 'All is God, the Universe is I'; from which it follows, in all religions, that since Man is in essence God, the service of fellow-men is the service of God.

In as much as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto Me. (B.)

Prāyasho loka-ṭāpēna
ṭapyantē sādḥavo janāh ;

¹*Ch'an* and Zen are respectively the names for dhyāna, meditation, in Chinese and Japanese Buddhism. They are probably the same word, (or also jñāna), with the pronunciation modified.

To each name of God, ism, nāma, corresponds a bhāva, kṣatrā, emotion, mood, force. Dwelling on a name, by means of japa, zikr, litany, opens up a whole world wherein that particular form of His Energy or aspect of His Nature, which is indicated by that name, is predominant.

Ṭaj-japas ṭaḍ-arṭha-bhāvanam...Yatas-ṭaḍ-vishayā maṭih....Yaḍ ichchaṭi ṭaḍ bhavaṭi. (Yoga Sūtra, Bh., Ū.)

(To dwell upon a name is but to dwell

Upon the meaning ; and a man becomes

What he dwells on and wishes ; mind is man.)

Param-ārāḍhanam taḍ hi

Purushasy-ākḥil-Ātmanah. (Bh.)

(The good feel all the distress of the world
To be their own distress ; this is best service
Of Him who is the Soul of all the world.)

Yéna kéna prakāreṇa

yasya kasy-āpi janṭunah,

Sanṭosham janayéd dhīmānstaḍ-év-Ēshvara-pūjanam. (Bh.)

(Give joy to any living thing—ye give Service and worship to the Life of God.)

Gar ṭajallī khās khwāhī sūraté insān bi bīn,
Zāṭ-ī-Haq rā āshkārā andarūn khaṇḍāū bi bīn.

(S.)

(Wouldst thou behold God wholly manifest ?
Look at thy brother's kindly face awhile !
Wouldst see Divinity at its sweet best ?
Then call forth on that brother's face a smile !)

Shakle-Insān meñ Kḥuḍā ṭhā,

mujhe mālūm na ṭhā ;

Chāṇḍ bāḍal meñ chhipā ṭhā,

mujhe mālūm na ṭhā. (S.)

(Behind the mask of every human face
He hid, God, very God—I knew it not !
The Glory of the perfect moon was screened Behind the fleeting clouds—I saw it not.)

Srshtvā purāṇi vivīdhāny-ajay-Ātma-shaktyā,
Vṛkshān, sarīsrpa-pashūn, khaga-damsha-matsyān,
Ṭais-ṭair-aṭushta-hrḍayo, manujam viḍhāya,
Brahm-āvabodha-dhishāṇam, muḍam āpa Dēvah.

(Bh.)

(House after house did God make for Himself,
Mineral, plant, insect, fish, reptile, and bird,
And mammal too. But yet was He not pleased.

At last he made Himself the form of Man,
Wherein He knew Himself, the Self of all.
And then the Lord of All was satisfied.)

Gauhar-é juz khuḍ-shināsī
n-īst dar bahr-é wujūd ;
Mā ba gird-é khwésh mī
gardém chuñ girdāb-hā. (S.)

(Like whirlpools round ourselves we whirl
In incessant strife ;

Self-knowledge is the only pearl
In the see of life.)

Daryā tan ast, wa dīl saḍaf,
wa Haq dar ū ḍur ast ;
Zīn bahr har ke ḍur baḍar
āraḍ bahāḍur ast. (S.)

(This body is the sea, the heart therein
The pearl-containing shell, the priceless pearl
Is God Him-Self ; he who can dive down deep
And find that pearl—the hero true is he.)

Lab bi baṇḍ o chashm baṇḍ o gosh baṇḍ,
Gar na bīnī rūy-e-Haq bar mā bi khaṇḍ. (S.)

(Shut lips and eyes and ears completely ; then
If thou see not the face of Truth, of God,
The secret Mystery of thine own Self,
Then tell me that I said what was not true.
Shut off the noises of the outer world,
And seek Him in the silence of your hearts,
And you will find Him and commune with Him.)

Sva-vishay-ā-sam-pra-yogé chittāsya Sva-rūp-ānukāra iv-ēndriyāṇām praṭy-āhārah...Kaivalyam sva-rūpa-praṭishṭhā vā Chīti-shaktih...Yogash-chitta-vṛtti-nirodhah....Tada Drashṭuh Sva-rūpé-(a)va-sṭhānam.

(Yoga-Sūtra.)

(When all the senses are withdrawn away

From all their outer objects, then the mind
Behind them all doth turn upon if-Self,
And takes the form of Self. Or, rather, say,
The Self itself, when movements of the mind
Are hushed, stilled utterly, beholds It-Self,
Feels Its own Sole and On(e)ly Being, wherein Nor space, nor time, nor any motion is,
And in at-one-ment with If-Self It rests.)

CHAPTER V

The One Way To Peace on Earth and Good Will among Men

The one purpose of Religion is to bind the hearts of human beings to each other and to God ; and the realisation of the Self in all as the God in all, and the consequent service of all as the service of God, is the perfection and completion of Religion.

Love God (thy Self) with all thy heart and love thy neighbour as thy-Self. (B.)

But the laws of duality, polarity, ambivalence, and of cyclic swing between the two opposite extremes, inherently condition the manifestation of the One in the Many, Ēka in An-ēka, Wahḍat in Kasrat.¹ Perversity becomes inseparable from Diversity ; Egoism and Error become necessary to throw into relief Universalism and Truth ; Sorrow, Joy ; Hate, Love ; proud Satan, the meek Son of God ; Ahrimān, Spitama ; Daityas, Dévas ; Asuras, Suras ; Sinners, Saints ; Titans, Gods ; Iblis, Malāyak ; Māra, Buddha ; Death, Life ; Other-than-Self (Iṭara, Ghair, Not-Self), the Self

¹*Wahḍat qar sāt, Kasrat-qar-sifāt ; Ēka-tā* in the Parama-Taṭṭva, the supreme Saṭ, the One Vishéshya, Dharmī ; An-ēka-tā, Nānā-tva, Bahu-tva, in the Guṇa-s, Vishéshana-s, Dharma-s ; Unity in Essence, Multiplicity in Attributes.

(Ā t m ā, Sva, Anā). Therefore, Religion also falls from its high estate, becomes utterly perverted away from the essentials into non-essentials, and then into gross and cruel superstitions; separates the hearts of men instead of uniting them; and instigates mutual torture and murder instead of peace on earth and good-will among men. It does so, for a time, to rise again, by re-action, re-pentance, re-generation, re-formation, to a higher station. Paradise is lost, in order that it may be regained with fuller and firmer appreciation. Adam falls into sin, asīrī, b a n d h a, the prison-house of fleshly matter, the sin and fetters of limiting satanic ego-ism, carnal lust, pride, khudī, a h a m - k ā r a, in order to rise again, through self-crucifixion, to salvation, najāt, moksha, deliverance, restoration, solution and dis-solution into the Ab-sol-ute God, ab-solv-ed from all limitations, Fanā-f-Ilāh, B r a h m a - n i r v ā ṇ a, annihilation into God, limitless divine universalism and loving tenderness, and the Peace beyond all loves and hates.

Within the purview of available history, the medieval ages, in east and west alike, have been full of religious conflicts. The wars between Christians and Muslims during and after the Crusades, and the doings of the triple Inquisition have been particularly horrible. Europe has now, for some time, freed itself from the entanglements of Catholic-Protestant religious strife. But scarcely quite yet; and mostly nominally. The breaking away of the Irish Free State from Britain, in 1921, was largely due to the same religious conflict. And in the whole of Europe the evil spirit has changed its form from communal to even worse politico-economic strife. The fires of hate burning underneath this are still the same as of old. The outer manifestation has taken on the shape of a conflict between excessively avaricious, ruthless, and sensuous individualism masquerading as patriotic nationalism, on the one hand; and, on the other, a communism or socialism which, wishing to share-and-share-alike, is truly spiritual and religious at bottom, but is so very sub-consciously, and is groping in the dark, and making many experiments and mistakes; because it is looking in the wrong direction and not finding the secret of true social organisation; because it does not realise that politics is rooted in economics, economics in 'domestics,' 'domestics' in psychophysics, and that in metaphysics, which, in its fullness, is nothing else than Spiritual Religion, Spiritual Science of the Infinite, which includes, as parts, all sciences of all finites.

But in India, the religious and the secular, the communal and the politico-economic, conflicts and problems continue to be inseparably interwoven. It is perhaps India's destiny to perish or to provide one solution for both at once. Asia has given birth to all the great living religions. East and West, ancient and modern, have met here in a special way. The first All-Asia Education Conference took place in Benares, in India, in December-January, 1930-1931. India is situated in the middle of Asia; it stretches out one arm to embrace Buddhist (and Shintoist, Taoist, and Confucian) Burma, China, Japan; another to embrace Islamic Afghanistan, Persia, Turkey, Arabia, Egypt, Africa, and also Hebrew and Christian Palestine and Europe; and it bears Buddhist Thibet and Islamic Turkestan on her two shoulders. The bulk of the now very small Parsi population of the world, following the Zoroastrian faith, has had its home in the south-west of this country for nearly thirteen centuries; also, it is undisputed that the Gāthās of Zoroaster are a branch of the Vēda, written in what may be regarded as another form of Vēdic Samskr̥t. There is a very remarkable colony of Indian Jews too, numbering some thousands of souls, in the south. Tradition says that St. Thomas, one of the twelve apostles, came and planted the seed of Christianity on the south-east coast, shortly after the ascension of Christ; and the Christian community of India numbers over six millions today. Hindus, Jainas, Sikhs, barring a comparative handful of emigrants, have no other home than India; which is Motherland to over seventy million Muslims also; besides being the birthplace of Buddhism and containing all the first sacred places of that religion. Confucianism, Laotsism, and Shintoism have practically all merged into an amalgam with Buddhism.¹ Thus are all the living religions of the world gathered in this land. Therefore India's mission may perhaps be to inaugurate a new Re-form, a Re-incarnation, of the Eternal Universal Religion, in the shape of Scientific Religion. In that Religion, Consciousness, Self-Consciousness, the Principle of the Conscious and the Unconscious (as two aspects of the Self), is the common meeting-ground, nay, the one loved and loving parent, of both Science and Religion. These can be nothing else than the two halves, or, better, only two aspects, of the same One Whole Truth.

¹ At Sār-nāth, where Buddha preached his first sermon,

This is an elemental fact which has to be taken to heart, especially by Hindus and Muslims in India. Kṛṣṇa has said :

Mama varṣm-ānu-varṣanté

manushyāḥ, Pārṥha ! sarvashah. (G.)

(The roads men follow—they all lead to Me,
At last ; though some are thorny and some fair.)

2500 years ago, in Benares, the centre of Védism, a great new temple of Buddha has been built, within the last few years, close to the old Ashokan stūpa and ruins. It has been adorned with mural paintings by Japanese painters. Another great temple is being built by a Chinese benefactor. Dharma-shālā-s, free rest-houses and guest-houses, have been and are being built by Hindu and Burmese donors. And a colony of Buddhist bhikṣhus and students is growing up. Also, in Benares, besides the old Hindu temples, there are many Muslim mosques, a number of Jaina temples, Christian churches, and Sikh sanghaṭs.

Muhammad has said :

Aṭ-ṭurqu il Allāhī kan nufūsu banī Āḍama. (H.)

(There are as many roads to God as souls.)

There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, neither male nor female, for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. (B., Paul.)

Na varṇā na varṇ-āshram-āchāra-dharmāḥ

...Ṭaḍ Ēko-va-shishtah Shīvah Kévalo-(A)ham,

(SHANKAR-ĀCHĀRYA.)

(The soul hath no caste, neither any creed ;

It is one with the Universal Life.)

N-aiva strī na pumān ésha

na ch-aiv-āyam na-pumsakah ;

Yaḍ-yaḍ-chharīram ā-ḍaṭṭé

ṭéna ṭéna sa yujyate. (Shvēṭa U.)

(Not female, male, or neuter is the soul ;

Whate'er the body that it putteth on,

For the time be-ing it becometh that.)

Hakīm Sanāī says :

Rūh bā a'ql o ilm dānaḍ zīst,

Rūh rā Pārsī wa Ṭāzī n-īst. (S.)

Maulānā Rūm paraphrases him :¹

Rūh bā a'ql aṣṭ o bā ilm aṣṭ yār,

Rūh rā bā Ṭāzī o Ṭurkī che kār. (S.)

¹The reverence in which Maulānā Jalāl-uḍ-ḍīn Rūmī is held among Muslims, has been mentioned before, (p. 75, supra). Another well-known saying about him is :

Masnawī-é Maulavī-é-Mā'nawī

Haṣṭ Qur-ān ḍar zabāné Pahlavī,

(The Masnawī of the great Maulavī,

Full of profoundest truths, of greatest value,

Is the Qurān itself in Pahlavī.)

By a slight further paraphrase, we may read :

Rūh rā bā Hindū o Muslim che kār.
 (Persian or Turk or Arab are not known,
 Or Hindū, Christian, Muslim, to the soul ;
 Wisdom and virtuous deed make the soul's life,
 Not racial names and not communal strife.)

Religion should be worn as a winning smile, as a beautiful ornament, out of the gladness of one's own heart, to gladden the hearts of all others who behold it; not as a repelling frown, or as menacing weapons, out of fear and cruelty, and stimulating fear and cruelty all round. It should be worn principally in the heart, as philanthropic love and piety ; not flaunted like sign-boards and labels, upon the face and forehead, in separative ways of wearing hair on head or lip or chin, or as differentiating paints or badges or clothes, for self-display and religion-advertisement, with purpose to emphasise separateness. Humanity, insāniyat, m a n u s h y a - t ā, —nay, divinity—is stamped by Nature, God's Nature, on the face of every human new-born infant; not any mark to show that it is Hindu or Muslim, Parsī, Christian, or Jew. Such distinctive marks

Masnavī is the name of the Maulānā's chief work. Pahlavī is the older name of the Persian language, now called Fārsī, in India. A famous Indian poet, (in Urdu and Persian), the late Sir Muhammad Iqbāl, has also written of the Maulānā :

Ke ū ba harf-e Pahlavī, Qurān nawisht.
 (He wrote the Qurān in the Persian tongue.)

are artificially created by men themselves afterwards. They may have had their uses in special times and places and circumstances. To continue to insist upon them today, seems to be but disastrous short-sightedness.

Muhammad says :

Kulla maudīn yulaḍu alā fiṭraṭ-ul-Islām. (H.) (Yea, every child is born acknowledging, Making submission unto, the One God.)

Vyāsa says :

Brahmaṇā pūrva-srshtam hi
sarvam Brāhmam idaṁ jagat. (Mbh.)
(Since Brahmā has created all this world,
All beings are His children obviously.)
Inn-Allāha khalaqa Āḍama alā sūraṭihī.
Fa innahu alā sūraṭihī.

Khalaq al insāna alā sūraṭ-ir-Rahmān. (H.)

These three sentences of the Hadīs are almost literal translations of the Biblical saying,
God created man in His own image. (B.)

Jīvo Brahm-aiva n-āparah. (U.)
(The individual soul is nothing else
In essence than the Universal Soul.)

Fiṭraṭ Allah ullaṭi faṭar annāsa alaiha. (Q.)
(On God's own nature has been moulded man's.)

A nobly worded remonstrance, in Hindustānī verse, embodying some deep truths common to all religions, has been addressed by a Musalmān poet and lover of humanity, to all concerned, with special reference to the communal riots that have been breaking out every now and then between Hindus and Musalmans in India, during the last few decades, and, latterly, much too frequently, because of special wholly artificial economico-political misleadings. It should be given a place of honor here, as it should be given in the courses of every Indian School and College. The chief cure for Politico-economic conflict is to teach to all, and to carry out in practice, the principles of Scientific Social Organisation. The chief remedy for Communal strife is to teach the new generation that All Religions are One in Essentials, as the poem indicates in a few pregnant words :

Yā Rām kaho, yā Rahīm kaho, donon kī gharaz Allāh se hai ;
 Yā Ishq kaho, yā Préma kaho, maṭlab to Usī kī chāh se hai ;
 Yā Dharma kaho, yā Dīn kaho, maqsūd Usī kī rāh se hai ;
 Yā Sālik ho, yā Yogī ho,
 manshā to dilē āgāh se hai.
 Kyon larṭā hai, murakh bandē !,
 yah tērī khām-khayālī hai,
 Hai pér kī jar to Ēk Wahī,
 har mazhab ēk ēk dālī hai.
 Banwāo Shivālā yā Masjid, hai īnt wahī, chūnā hai wahī,
 Me'mār wahī, mazdūr wahī,
 mittī hai wahī, gārā hai wahī ;
 Takbīr kā jo kuchh maṭlab hai,
 nāqūs kā bhī manshā hai wahī ;
 Yah jinko namāzain kaṭṭē haiñ,
 hai unke liyé pūjā hī wahī.
 Phir larné sé kyā hāsil hai !
 Zī-fahm ho tum, nāḍān nahīn !

Jo bhāi pe ḍaurēn ḡhurrā kar wah ho sakté insān nahīn !
 Kyā qatl wa ḡhārat, khūn-rézī—
 ṭārīf yahī īmān kī hai ?
 Kyā āpas mén lar kar mainā—ṭā'līm yahī Qur-ān kī hai ?
 Insāf karo, ṭafsīr yahī
 kyā Védon ké farmān kī hai ?
 Kyā sach-much yah khūn-khwārī hī ā'lā kḡaslat insān kī hai ?
 Tum aisé buré ā'māl pe apné
 kuchh to Kḡudā sé sharm karo !
 Paṭṭhar jo banā rakkhā tum nēn,
 is ḍīl ko zarā to narm karo !

(Say Rām, or say Rahīm, both mean but Him ;
 Say Prém, or Ishq, both mean the Love of Him ;
 Say Dharm, or Dīn, both mean the Way to Him ;
 Yogī, or Sālik, both are pure Heart filled with Him.

God—the One Root ; religions—each a shoot !
 Why will ye fight, then, like the mindless brute !
 Build mosque or temple—stone, brick, lime—the same ;

Workmen and master-builder—all the same ;
 The a'sān and the conch both call to Prayer,
 Name it Namāz or p ū j ā as you please.
 Why will ye fight ! Has not God given you mind !
 Scarce e'en the animals are so purblind !
 Murder and rapine—is this meant by Faith !
 The Qurān—does it teach to loot and slay ;
 Or does the Véd' command you to do this !
 Is this the noblest conduct in a man !
 Brothers ! soften your stony hearts, take shame
 A little, and foul not His holy name !

CHAPTER VI

Education and the Educationist

Such is a brief, and very feeble and imperfect survey, of the vast subject of the Essential Unity of All Religions. Endeavour has been made here to place before the reader only what seemed to be the core of the whole subject. It is desirable that something should be said, at the close, about its bearing on Education; as has been said at the beginning.¹

Education is the seed and root, civilization is the flower and fruit. If the cultivator sows good and wholesome seed, his community will reap sweet and wholesome fruit; if bitter and poisonous, then bitter and poisonous. Our cultivator, our culture-maker, is the teacher. That he may cultivate well and wisely, he should be a 'Man of God,' Brāhmaṇa, Maulavī, 'Divine,' Rabbi. These characteristic words of four religions, all mean exactly the same, 'Man of God, Brahma, Maulā, Deus, Rabb'. He should be a missionary of God, and not a mercenary of Satan, the opposite, opponent, Enemy, of God.

If the educationists, the priests, the scientists of Europe, its brāhmaṇas, maulavīs, rabbīs, divines, the men of all the learned professions, whose clear duty it was, had brought up the younger generations along right and righteous lines, occasion would never have arisen for the World-War of 1914-'18. If, after it had arisen, they had resolutely refused to surrender their souls and prostitute their learning, religion, science, law, to the Satan-driven militarist-*kshat̥triya*s and mammonist-*vaiśhya*s of those countries; if they had acted as true *brāhmaṇa*s; if they had concerted together and risen as one man, in their might of Spirit and of Science, against those false *kshat̥triya*s and false *vaiśhya*s; if they had proclaimed and led conscientious objection in all the belligerent countries¹; then Satan would surely have been defeated, the tremendous mischief would have been nipped in the bud, and the earth saved from the vast, sordid, senseless butchery, agony, and devastation; which originated in the whole-sale despiritualisation and demoralisation, by false educationists and false education, of great nations; and entailed world-wide misery, pauperisation, and yet further demoralisation.²

¹Pp. 30-32, supra.

¹There were honorable exceptions, f.i., Mr. Bertrand Russell, the scientist philosopher. He became a conscientious objector and suffered the penalty of imprisonment for a while.

²The conscience and the higher mind and the better judgment of the scientist-*brāhmaṇa*s of Europe is beginning to awake, too late. The famous Dr. Einstein took steps (in 1932), to start an anti-war association. (He is now, in 1939, a fugitive and exile from home, because of the anti-Jew drive in Germany

High ethical quality, the fatherly heart, is far more needed in the educator, as also in the legislator, the administrator, the head of every

and Austria). Prof. H. E. Armstrong wrote in Nature, with the purpose of awakening scientists to a sense of their duty: "A century of science seems to have brought us to a wonderful understanding of things that do not matter, while telling us little that will help to fill our bellies and suffer one another with equanimity, let alone gladly and with Christian amity... In future, the scientific worker, to be worthy of the name, must justify himself through social service, in the first instance." In other words, he must be a true brāhmaṇa, not only an intellectual and scientific guide, but also a spiritual, moral, domestic, civic, political, and economic guide, philosopher, and friend, or indeed, as a benevolent parent, to his people, counselling them wisely for their good in all departments of their life. Prof. Crew of Edinburgh, in an address on "Science and Society," (in Dec., 1931) said: "Science has been prostituted through man's greed... to serve his lusts... The greatest problems of the day relate to spiritual as opposed to material adjustment... In this world there is the knowledge and there is the power to refashion society. But there is not the will to do so, and we have no ideal toward which to aim. We know a little of the methods of supporting life... but not how to live, nor what to live for... Science has become the servant of man's lust for power and is now the tool of the tyrant. We need to discover what is good for mankind, and then see to it that the power that knowledge gives is used for that end. Knowledge without affection... has set the world alight in a blaze of hatred and misery... A new moral outlook family, firm, business, industry, concern, department, institution, where many are subordinate to one, than any amount of intellectual clever-is demanded. Whence will it come ?" Prof. Crew does not say. It can come only from that One Scientific Universal Religion which is the essence of all religions ; which tells us 'what is good for mankind' 'what to live for', what is the 'ideal toward which to aim', what is the Meaning, Purpose, End and Aim, of Life, and also tells us 'how to live', how the scientific worker can 'justify himself through social service'. It does all this by means of its Scheme of Social Organisation. Why is the righteous will absent ? Because the new generations are being born in lustful sensual materialistic carnal passion, not in loving spiritual affection ; because they are being grievously mis-educated ; because the sources of life are poisoned. The 'moral equivalent of war' is war against inner lower nature first, and outer nature-forces next ; Right Education would saturate the collective mind of the Human Race with this exceedingly Practical Truth.

The above text and foot-note were written in 1932. Since then, many peace-movements have been set afoot. A prominent one is the World-Fellowship of Faiths, which started work in Chicago, in 1933 "People of All Faiths, Races, and Countries (attended)...seeking spiritual solutions for man's Present Problems—such as War, Persecution, Prejudice, Poverty-amidst-Plenty, (Un-employment), Antagonistic Nationalisms, Ignorance, Hatred, Fear." The Theosophical Society was founded very much earlier, in 1875, in New York ; with three unquestionably laudable objects : (1) "To form a nucleus of the Universal Brotherhood of Humanity, ness. A good heart will take itself and also others very far on the right road, even without the help of a very clever head. A clever head, without distinction of race, creed, sex, caste, or colour ; (2) to encourage the study of Comparative Religion, Philosophy, and Science ; (3) to investigate unexplained laws of nature, and the powers latent in man." These objects work towards the same end, World-Peace and World-prosperity. The T. S. has its head-quarters now at Adyar, Madras, in India ; and branches in more than fifty countries. Parliaments of Religions have been held in important towns of several countries, since 1893, when the first was held in Chicago ; also to promote Peace. The League of Nations was instituted in 1920, "to promote International Co-operation and achieve International Peace". Associations of scientists have been formed in several countries, which are now beginning to give attention directly to the 'human' aspect of science, to the bearing of science on corporate human life. 'Science has far outrun morals', is an idea which is frequently expressed in public writings. 'The International Council of Scientific Unions', which has a special 'Committee on Science and its Social Relations', has its head-quarters in Delft, Holland.

All in vain. The scientists' awakening has come too late. More : it seems that even yet they do not realise that the greatest and most wonderful discoveries of physical science, merely, will not avail to stem the tide of evil, will only worsen its rush and violence, unless they first think out a technique for the working of the Golden Rule, a comprehensive Scheme of Social Organisation, which would not only make it possible to apply, but would offer effective psychic inducement to every one to help in applying, those discoveries, for directed by a bad heart, will mislead itself and others very soon into the pit; the cleverer, the sooner. It is much more important that education the promotion of the general welfare of all mankind, instead of the welfare of any one nation, or any one class or group of persons in that nation.

Every 'Great Power' has been increasing its armaments desperately, madly, during the last few months, and also talking of peace all the time. Over fifty-five million men are, at present, (in 1939), under arms, as standing armies and reserves, in the 'human' world. The expenditure on them, in 1938, is reported to have been just over thirty-five hundred million pounds. Out of this, the share of the seven Great Powers, viz., (in the order of amounts), Russia, Germany, Japan, Britain, France, U. S. A., Japan, Italy, came to just under thirty-two hundred million pounds. Huge new loans have been taken by the Governments of all, in the current year. Every day brings the Great Horror, the Doom of Armageddon, nearer. Spain has just finished its terrible civil war, and begun executions of those suspected to be against the new régime. Japan and China have been already engaged in a deadly struggle for more than two years now. 'Clashes' and 'incidents', on frontiers, in other countries, are of daily occurrence. This week's papers (second week of August, 1939) report that "Events are moving fast in Europe", the "Powers are busy testing their fighting forces in mock battles", "Army, navy, and air force manoeuvres are taking place on a stupendous scale", in the several countries. The general conflagration may burst forth any day, and reduce 'modern' civilisation to ashes, in Europe; out of which that wondrous Phoenix, Humanity, may take hundreds of years perhaps, to rise again, there.

should build up a strong and good character in the educand, than impart lots of information and develop mere intellectual cleverness or even

It is all so utterly senseless. Everyone feels and says so. Yet, some inexorable Fate, Nemesis, clutches the necks of all the leaders of all the countries(—and none is free from mortal crime, though some may be more guilty—) in its overpowering paralysing grip, and is dragging them all, together with their hypnotised and helpless peoples, towards the mouth of Purgatory.

If only this vast human energy of fifty-five million men, prepared for slaughter of combatants and butchery of non-combatants, and the energy of the many millions more, engaged in manufacturing munitions and small and huge implements for carrying on war by land, sea, and air; if all the vast human labor represented by thirty-five hundred million pounds a year; if all this were spent on promoting general human welfare scientifically, instead of general massacre; the whole surface of the earth could be made to bloom and blossom and fruit, like one vast corn-field and orchard, garden and park. The madness of 'original sin', Māyā, a - v i ḍ y ā, glamour, takabbur, hirs, blind greed and pride, lust and hate, prevents. Each 'Great Power' is trying to increase its 'man-power', by offering inducements to its people to 'increase and multiply'. What for? That there may be more 'fodder for cannon'! What more horrible blindness and Satan-worship can there be!

The great teachers and lovers of mankind cry in vain: 'Love one another', 'Do unto each other as ye would be done unto.' The forces of Darkness are again steadily gaining on the forces of Light. All these vast armies cannot be supported by the nations much longer. The earth is groaning in agony under the talent. And this can be done much better by example than by precept; indeed, only by example. The words of those who do not themselves follow their own advice are not believed, because it is felt that they do not believe themselves. The true educationist, brāhmaṇa, maulavī, 'divine,' is he who possesses both vidyā and t̥apas, ilm and zohd, knowledge and self-denial. Wisdom is science plus philanthropy.

Consoling, ennobling, all-uniting, spiritual religion has everywhere degenerated into selfish, superstition-breeding, deceiving, dividing priestcraft; protective and promotive administration has become grabbing and tyrannising statecraft; benevolent adjudication has turned into rapacious lawyercraft; healing medication behaves as avaricious leechcraft; all-nourishing trade and commerce has been metamorphosed into all-ruining 'frenzied finance,' stock-jobbing, share-gambling, currency-juggling, 'demonetising' and 'devaluating' of current coin at governmental will, utterly artificial forced inflating and deflating of prices, 'combines,' 'corners,' 'associations' and 'companies' for wholesale swindling, brazenly false 'puffing' and 'booming,' reckless pennywise intolerable burden, moral and material, of Hate-Fear and Economic Drain. The great Disarmament must come before long, either by mutual slaughter or by mutual agreement. Only a Divine Miracle of the most gigantic proportions, a psychic cataclysm, can now bring about disarmament by mutual agreement. May that Miracle happen !

pound-foolish speculation-craft; and life-sweetening, life-creating, life-fostering conjugal domesticity has been converted into lust-craft; all because all-guiding Education has itself become greatly mis-guided; because the Educator has forgotten his true mission, gone astray, lost the compelling moral force and spiritual power of ascetic self-denial; has begun to submit to the militarist and the capitalist, instead of directing and correcting them; has degraded his great function into herd-teaching, mechanical, bureaucratic, indirectly and not unoften directly cruel pedagogue-craft. A vicious circle has been set up. From bad seed, bad fruit; thence worse seed, worse fruit; until the end in Armageddon.

The whole life of the most civilised human communities is pervaded by excess of egoism, appurtenant individualistic desire for high and fast living, indulgence of lusts, and the unavoidably consequent hates.¹ Modern Civilization has indeed become a veritable and most reckless "Rake's Progress" in every department of life, individual, social, national, domestic, financial, economic, political. States have been piling up national debts and armaments, with an extravagant thriftlessness and utter disregard of consequences, ¹See pp. 147-150, supra. The 'six internal enemies,' when they go beyond all bounds, turn into the six main kinds of mania, respectively, eroto-, cido-, avaritio- (or klepto-), phobo-, megalo-, and zelo-mania. In mass-form, they become sensualism, militarism, capitalism, (mutual) terrorism, imperialism, nationalist diplomatism, which would be considered stark suicidal and homicidal madness in an individual. A more and more excessively large proportion of the available human energy and labor is being forced into occupations which produce and distribute, not the primal necessities and comforts of life for all, but (1) luxuries, things of sport, pastime, amusement (often obscene), and sensuous enjoyment for the few, or even for many; and, far worse, (2) vast quantities of implements of war by land, sea, and air, whose one insane object is the destruction of human life, labor, and property; while, no one can gainsay, the only sane purpose of government is the promotion of these same for general human welfare. Such is the awful waste, turmoil, agony, caused by the statesmen of to-day, who think themselves so clever and so practical.¹

¹'PRACTICALITY.' Of the many false ideals, mischievous catchwords, and ruinous ways of living, which, together with many great and good things also, undoubtedly, (especially such applications of physical science as are really benevolent), have been created by western civilisation, few are more deceptive and dangerous than the catchwords 'practical' and 'practicality'.

Most of us are enamoured of these words and use them frequently, especially when it suits us, in order to describe ourselves as 'practical' and the opponent as 'unpractical'. Formerly, when Religion was in power, it used to be: 'My doxy is orthodoxy, your doxy is heterodoxy.' To-day, when Politics is all-absorbing, all-

And the educationist-scientist, careless of his duty, does nothing to check it. Instead, devouring, it is : 'My view, my opinion, my suggestion, my scheme, is practical, yours is impractical.' In other words, 'What suits me is practical, what suits you is impractical'. Though we see daily that what was wholly impractical, chimerical, yesterday, is very practical, nay, utterly familiar, to-day : steam, gas, electricity, radio, aeroplane, submarine, Soviet Russia, Fascist Italy, Nazist Germany, Saṭyāgraha, etc. But 'by their fruits shall they be judged'. Behold the results of the great 'practicality' of the very clever and very 'practical' statesmen and politicians of the west, in all the main concerns of life, Religion, Education, Domesticity, Economics, Politics. Will makes practicality.

Religion, of which Good Morals are the fruit, has been 'practically' abolished from the life of the 'advanced' nations, and 'Morals have been revolutionised,' in various ways ; and licensed Sensualism and Free Love, on the one side, and Self-control and Family Life, on the other, are at death-grips.

In Politics, the 'practical' Legislatures, where not abolished, have become the homes of rapacious personal and sectional selfishness, bitter quarrels, endless intrigues, smart self-display, clap-trap orations, instead of earnest philanthropic consultation for the good of all. The seeds of class war and civil war within each nation are being sown and nourished by vicious, haphazard, short-sighted, hand-to-mouth legislation. The armies of the Powers, which totalled about twenty million men, costing about five hundred million pounds annually, before the World-War, 'the war to end war,' to-day, after that Butchery of eight to thirteen million men and destruction of some fifty thousand million pounds

he truckles to Satan and his agents. 'Eat, drink, and be merry to-day—those few who worth of human labor mis-spent on the production of devilish war-material, and the consequent mortgaging and enslaving, for long generations, of the labor of whole nations of the weaker and the poorer peoples—to-day, these armies are three times as large in number and six times as heavy in cost. Fangs, claws, beaks, talons, and sharks' teeth, for fighting and murdering on land, in air, in water, and the hates, greeds, lusts, prides, fears, and distrusts, which are the motive power behind these weapons, are sharper and fiercer than ever.

In Economics, these 'practical' wise persons have brought about World-Bankruptcy after the World-War, and have raised the armies of the Un-employed to a total of some thirty millions in the west, (those in the east, uncounted, being probably five times as many), side by side with the above-mentioned army of those Mis-employed in preparing for the Devil's own infernal work of world-wide butchery—all because they find that the old maxims, 'Honesty is the best Policy' and 'No trading on Credit unbacked by equal Cash Deposit,' are no longer 'practical'; that 'Trading on reputation only, on Credit without Cash or Kind', is much more 'practical'; and that such ideas as that of the best and wisest and genuinely philanthropic representatives of the nations, consulting together and co-operating, to spend a half or even a fourth of the vast sums now being spent annually on the Mis-employed and the Un-employed, on settling these millions of the two kinds, gradually, year by year, on the immense unoccupied reclaimable and cultivable areas of Canada, Australia, South America, Africa, and thereby solving can; tomorrow will take care of itself; why should the present generation stint itself for the

the problems of Disarmament and Unemployment both, at once, are 'unpractical' and 'impossibly idealistic'.

In 'Domestics', western 'practicality' has so arranged matters that the number of divorces has, in some of the big towns of the west, come to be quite half that of the marriages, annually, and the period between marriage and divorce is shortening down from years to months and even weeks. 'Morals have been revolutionised' by contraceptives, and yet the population is multiplying unmanageably, embittering the struggle for bread, and making wars inevitable in the absence of systematic colonisation. The percentage of births outside of wedlock is increasing immensely also. And so too is increasing the percentage of the insane and the venereally diseased. We have noted before, the insane rivalry, between the national governments of the west, for the increase of 'man-power'. All the while, that very uncommon commodity, 'common sense', keeps crying, in vain, 'Cut your coat according to your cloth', 'Balance your family budget', 'Live within your means', 'All the Heads of the Great Families called Nations—conspire and concert together rationally, to make your populations self-sufficient for necessities, to keep them within the capacity of your respective lands, (or, of the total surface of the earth, co-operatively and scientifically managed), to feed and clothe and house'.

In Education, 'High and Fast Living', 'the Thrills of perpetual Rushing,' 'Civilisation is the multiplication of wants and of means to satisfy them', is the ideal inculcated; in place of the 'unpractical' old 'goody-goody' 'Plain Living, High Thinking,' and 'the peaceful Joys of Repose'. Science has outrun Philanthropy by far; is sake of the next? Let us leave them debts instead of assets.' Such seem to be the current being prostituted to personal and national vices and hatreds; and is perfecting gases which, rained by aeroplanes, will asphyxiate in a few hours the whole of the vast populations of huge capitals like London, New York, Paris, Berlin. Vivisectional experiments on human infants and adults are now and then reported in the papers. The press has become the extensive and intensive means, on a vast scale, of false propaganda, lying advertisements, and public deception, instead of enlightenment. The view of life, viz., that it is, and ought to be, an incessant struggle for existence, holds the field, and the opposite view, viz., that life is made possible only by alliance for existence, and the perpetual self-sacrifice of the older generation for the younger, (instead of leaving them vast national debts to repay or repudiate as they can), is vainly struggling to make itself seen and heard. The results are visible in all the other departments of life.

In Art and Recreation, 'meals, movies, motors,' the 'night-side' of the huge capital towns, 'wine, women, wealth', have become, and are becoming more and more, the sole ends of life; and the finer and more delicate ethereal spiritual forms of enjoyment, and 'communion with Nature', are being forgotten.

Such are the consequences, in its own home, of the cleverness of the modern west, whose greatest 'practicality' is the endeavour to maintain its 'glorious civilisation' by the ruthless economic and political exploitation of weaker classes and peoples.

It may be that the condition of mankind was, on the whole, no better in the past, at any time; has indeed, been much worse, very often, almost philosophy of life and the moral atmosphere, which govern and pervade the politics, economics, and certainly; during the four or five thousand years of 'civilisation' of which the history is now known. It may be that the present times are the best, at least in some important respects, that Humanity has known so far. But that is all the more reason why greater effort should be made, to combat and eradicate the great evils that are patent, with the help of Universal Scientific (1) Religion, and (2) Social Organisation.

The duty of publicists to-day is to be, not only nationalist, but also humanist, and to think out and place before the public, diligently, such balanced ideals, outlooks, 'long' views, comprehensive and consistent schemes, based on human psychology, for social reorganisation and reconstruction, dealing with all the main concerns of human life, individual and collective, as will enable the Peoples of the World to avoid deceptive catch-words, blind imitation, short-viewed temporising patchwork and opportunism; will help them to find the virtuous golden mean between the two vicious excesses and extremes of eastern degeneracy and western non-regeneracy; will show them how to avoid the evil and secure the good in each of the two, ancient east and modern west, to the utmost extent possible; and will thereby prove that the action of Providence in bringing East and West together was not wholly a mistake, not a devil's work but an angel's. The only true Practicality is that which is based on a sound, far-sighted, comprehensive Theory, and constantly bears in mind, and strives to approximate, a high Ideal. All other patchwork and snatch-work 'practicality' is supremely unpractical.

'domestics' of this vast Rake's Progress called Western Civilisation—or, at least, of that class

Rail, steam-ship, aeroplane having abolished all artificial political boundaries, the best minds of all the nations, see, and say, that a World-organisation is the only way of escape from the present imminent disaster, and is, indeed, inevitable. Thus: "Separate sovereignty has become impossible": (H. G. Wells, A Short History of the World, p. 309). Yet the men in power seem determined to have a bout of universal war, first.

To illustrate how the human world is increasingly recognising the need for the True Practicality of a World-wide Organisation, under the new name of 'Planning', the following extracts are taken from the address of Dean Curtis W. Reese, D. D., given to the assemblage of the World Fellowship of Faiths, at Chicago, in 1933. The address is titled "Introduction to a Planned Society", and is printed on pp. 97—102 of World Fellowship, edited by Charles F. Weller, (pub. 1935). The volume is a full report of the Proceedings of the Sessions (extending over 83 meetings) of the Fellowship, and includes "242 addresses, significant statements, by 199 leading spokesmen of practically All Faiths, Races, and Countries." Dean Reese says:

"The idea of planning on a nation-wide and long-run basis has made great headway alike in the theory of monarchical, democratic, and communistic countries." Then the speaker goes on to illustrate how it has been working in Japan, Germany, France, Russia, England, Italy, Spain, America. "Russia, of course, is the outstanding example of national planning—The plan involves—what to produce, how much, when, where, and at what price... It is not surprising that Russia is making great headway, for with a philosophy of social control, in it which has power in its hands, the powers of the purse and the sword. Signs of reaction are, no doubt, appearing, here, there, everywhere. A vast unrest is shaking the whole human world. In Russia, a tremendous revolution has been effected; whether wholly for good, or wholly for bad, or partly for both, it is not yet possible to say. The psychological defects of it have been mentioned before. Excess naturally defeats itself. But the reaction seems likely to involve a worse Armageddon before it completes itself. And more. There is the danger that when it has successfully asserted itself, humanity may swing round from one extreme to another; from autocratic and tyrannous despotism, through aristocratic feudalism and militarism, and plutocratic capitalism and mammonism, and misconceived

...a general plan,...and detailed planning,...success...is practically assured. It is not too much to say that in Russia national planning takes on religious significance." The speaker, expressing his own view, says, towards the close, "The social goal is a classless society...The goal of a classless world is far more powerful than the bitterness of class struggle."

We may add: 'Classless' yes, if you are thinking of only the two classes, 'Rich and Poor', or of 'rigid birth-castes'; and not of the four natural Types, which cannot be abolished; the non-recognition of which, and of corollaries, is the serious flaw in the Russian Experiment, and is inevitably causing mistakes, disturbances, bloody 'purges', and, fortunately, also great modifications in the whole policy.

and mishandled socialism and communism, back to mobocratic anarchism and the law of the jungle ; and thence, over again to the autocratic, 'mon-archic', despotic rule of the strongest jaw and maw, the sharpest fang and claw, the cunningest and most ruthless dictator-brain—the old, old, vicious circle of past history.

Obviously this is not desirable. And it is possible to avoid, only if the Educationist will do his duty resolutely, combining scientist and priest in himself. From the long past instinctive group-life and primitive communism of 'uncivilised' tribes, through the present phase of intensely competitive, separative, egoist individualism, back to deliberate, conscious, scientifically planned co-operative socialism on a higher level ; not the unnatural, mechanical or 'machinist', equalitarian', 'authoritarian', and therefore necessarily unstable, 'communism', now being experimented with in the west ; but a natural 'socialism', based on psychological laws and facts, a 'socialism' of individuo-social organization by temperamental aptitudes and vocations and equitable partition of the means of livelihood and of the prizes of life, as outlined before ; such seems to be the desirable course of human progress.¹ The artificial, ineffective, or rather positively harmful, and very expensive current system of education; which inculcates wrong ideals and views and aims of life; swamps the end under the means; suffocates the vital principles under loads of showy but essentially paltry details; requires costly buildings, heavy salaries, great quantities of furniture and apparatus of many kinds, all utterly disproportionate to the resources of the (at least eastern) people; which, withal, neglects nature, and artificialises even so-called nature-study; prepares mostly only for the learned proand progress. Similarly it is the goal of religion to inspire one faith :” J. Estlin Carpenter, The Place of Christianity among the Religions of the World, p. 113.

¹ "It is the goal of commerce to organise all the resources of the earth for the supply of the wants of mankind ; it is the goal of science to diffuse one system of knowledge ; it is the goal of politics to combine all countries in one harmony of justice, peace,

If we add to the above: “It is the goal of labor to give the help indispensably needed for the achievement of the other goals”; and that “These goals can be respectively achieved by the organised co-operation of the vaishyas, vājirs, men of acquisitive desire and wealth-management, of the brāhmaṇas, ā’lins, men of knowledge, of the kṣhāṭṭriyas, ā’mils, men of action, and of the shūdras, masdūrs, men of labor, of all countries, races, nations”; also that “Faith and Knowledge go together, being but aspects of one another, unshakeably founded on the One Science of the Infinite which includes and supports and synthesises all the sciences of the Finite”—if we add this, then we would see that that which Mr. J. E. Carpenter visualises, is just what the Varṇa-Aśhrama-Dharma of Manu endeavours to realise. Be it noted that that scheme does not conflict with the right and reasonable use of machinery; instead, it will help greatly to make such, and only such, use possible.

fessions, and does not test, ascertain, develope, and train the various vocational aptitudes and temperaments—such education needs, cryingly, to be replaced by a more natural, useful, and comparatively inexpensive system, which would educate each person for an appropriate specific occupation¹; would inculcate right ideals; and would thereby change the whole moral and spiritual atmosphere of all civilisation before long.

A great modern educationist, Edouard Seguin, after a whole lifetime of work, came to the conclusion that “The common things of daily life have even greater educational value when the hands can use them....In such matters, the means and instruments are more easily remembered than the philosophy of their application; whilst that philosophy is the very thing which is above all not to be forgotten”.² This non-comprehension or forgetting of the philosophy, the principles, is the consequence either of self-seeking or of intellectual incapacity, and leads to the prevalence of catchwords and the degenerations into the “crafts” mentioned above.

The same educationist says, again,³ that “The great agency for socialising all pupils is love. To develop their sense of affection, as were developed their senses of sight, of hearing, and others, does not demand new instruments or new teachers, but the extension of the same action upon their feelings. To make the child feel that he is loved, and to make him eager to love in his turn, is the end of our teaching as it has been its beginning . . . For our pupils, science, literature, medicine, philosophy, each may do something; but love alone can truly socialise them; those who love them are their true rescuers". Such love, together with certain psychological principles, constitutes the only basis of true socialism. And therefore the greatest educationists are those greatest lovers of mankind, the Founders of the Religions which bind the hearts of human beings into One and give birth to new civilizations.

¹ Western educationists have begun to give attention to this, now. ² See Fynne, Montessori and her Inspirers, pp. 162, 169, (pub. 1924). ³ Ibid., p. 208.

Trust all to love, it is a God

That knows the outlets of the sky. (EMERSON.)

Civilization is justified of its name only when it is permeated by good-will, nay, loving active sympathy, self-restraint, moderation, courage, forbearance, strong sense of duty; when these preponderate definitely over sensuality, arrogance, hate, greed, jealousy, selfish fear. Only the former qualities of heart can establish the longed-for millennium of true socialism, as distinguished from artificial and forced communism, on the one hand; and, on the other, from the oppressive individualism, manifesting as heartless capitalism and ruthless militarism, which the vast masses of men are now suffering from, because of the permeation of society by the latter evil qualities. No mere cleverness of metallic machinery or official machinery, no 'technocracy' or any other 'cracy', no administrative 'efficiency' or diplomatic skill in coining oily or pompous phrases with shifty meaning, will avail. The heart must be filled with the 'religious' emotion of 'benevolence', 'sympathy', first. True Socialism can be founded only upon the sense of the Oneness of all Life, which means the realization of the Supreme Self. To be able to help humanity to such civilization, the teacher should obviously have realized that Oneness in himself; should have assimilated all the body of right thought and right feeling which flows from it; and should diligently give education accordingly, 'leading the younger generation to the same realization.'¹ Then only will the educationist be able to justly and truly socialise civilization. Such is the great significance and value of Religious Education; or, let us say, Spiritual Instruction; since the word religion repels many, to-day, because of its associations of priestcraft. Rightly understood, the R' of Religion is, indeed, the greatest and most important of the four R's of Education.

The Scriptures speak of the kingdom of heaven on earth. This kingdom is obviously a Self-government wherein the Higher Self reigns ¹This is the etymological and the philosophical significance of upa-nayana, the Védic ceremony corresponding to the modern 'taking of a child to, and his admission in, a school.'

and legislates. The Higher Self lives in the souls which have realized their oneness with all other selves, and are therefore (lower-) self-denying and wise, philanthropic as well as experienced. In this simple fact is to be found the only key to all human problems. If the Higher Self brood over the family, the domestic life will be happy; for then joy will be duty and love will be law. If it govern the field of economics, the distribution of necessities and comforts will be equitable, for there will be no accumulation of wealth for greedy selfish purposes, but only for the promotion of public welfare, through proprietors who will regard themselves as trustees, and will find their heart-nourishment and ample recompense and satisfaction in the mere fact of being the channels of public good and the recipients of public appreciation. If it regulate politics, none will be for the 'party', and all will be for the State; because the administration of all affairs will be just, upright, benevolent, promotive and protective of all right interests; and therefore no 'parties' will be needed or formed at all, on lines of conflicting religious creeds or clashing economic interests. If it reign in shop, market-place, factory, business-concern, police-station, army-organisation, law-court, town council, hospital, ship, railway train, wherever human beings have to deal with each other, there all duties will be discharged honestly, promptly, courteously, sympathetically, ministering to the happiness of all concerned. If it inspire legislation, the laws will be good and wise, far-sighted and beneficent to all sections of the people, of all temperaments and vocations, and the just interests of all will be duly secured and promoted. If it guide education, all the affairs of the people will be righted through the rightly-educated new generation. Wherever the Higher Self, as embodied and manifest in the wise, selfless, philanthropic man and woman, trusted and honored, select and 'elect', of the people, 'representative' of all that is best in the people, reigns, rules, legislates, directs, guides, advises—there is the kingdom of heaven, for there is the reign and rule and influence of righteousness. Most of all is it necessary that the Higher Self should reign in the Home of Education and the Hall of Legislation. To inculcate this noble meaning of Sva-rāj, Self-government, (i.e., the Rāj of the Higher Sva, government by the Higher Self, of the people), in the collective and the individual intelligence of mankind, to fill the hearts of all, men and women, young and old, with this great truth, is the only way to achieve, and then to maintain, true Self-government. Such inculcation can be most effectively done in the 'Home of Education', which should be the noblest 'House of God.' In the next degree, it can be done by an enlightened, spiritual, genuinely 'religious' Press.

The person to be entrusted with the very responsible task of education, (of the young in a school or a college, and of the general public by means of a journal) should therefore be a 'man of God',¹ by apt temperament, and not by birth; he should be full of ṭa p a s, zohd, pietas, self-denial, and of vi d y ā, p r a - j ñ a n a, irfān, gnosis, the all-including, 'spiritual' knowledge, as well as of vi - j ñ ā n a, ilm, the detailed 'material' knowledge. Himself having realized true 'spiritual' equality, fraternity, and liberty, he will be able to give the education which will necessarily give rise to the civilization of true (and not false, forced, unstable) 'material' equality, i.e., equitability; of loving fraternity, and paternity and filicity also; and ordered liberty. This is not the place to enter into the details thereof; they have been dealt with elsewhere.²

¹See p. 568, supra.

²"The Supreme produces all things. Its virtue nourishes them. Its nature gives them form. Its force perfects them. The Supreme, engendering all things, nourishes, developes, fosters, perfects, ripens, tends, and protects them. Production without possession, action without self-assertion, developement without domination—this is Its mysterious operation. It loves and nourishes all things, but does not act as master." (Tao Teh King.)

In this brief extract from the writing of the sage, Laotse, may be found the quintessence of the spirit of the expression of the Higher Self in all types of dutiful men. 'Production without possession' is for the wealth-making 'man of desire'; 'action without self-assertion' is for the 'man of action'; 'developement without domination' is for the benevolent man of wisdom, the patriarchal educator.

Briefly, the educationist must be a self-dependent, independent, yet humble-hearted and all-loving missionary, whose example and whose moral force, soul-force, may daunt and deter wrong-doers however high-placed, and whose very presence may spread benevolence. He must not take any help, even honoraria, from the evil-minded. The scriptures utter strong warning against this.

Arthasya purusho dāsah,
 n-ārtho dāsas-tu kasya-chiṭ. (Mbh.)
 Sarvēśhām éva shauchānām artha-shaucham vishishyaṭé.
 Y-orṭhé shuchih sa hi shuchih,
 na mrḍ-vāri-shuchih shuchih. (M.)

(Slave of his economic interest
 Is man; and not his interest his slave.
 Of all the purities, the purity
 Of means of livelihood is the most high.
 Whose gains are gotten without taint of sin,
 He only is pure truly—not the man
 Who washes hands with earth and water oft.)

Chūn gharaz āmaḍ hunar poshīḍah शुद्ध,
 Chūn khudī āmaḍ Khudā poshīḍah शुद्ध,
 Saḍ hijāb az dīl ba sū-é dīḍah शुद्ध. (S.)

(Where greed comes forth, there probity retires;
 When the small self unveils, the Great Self veils;
 And hundred veils the heart flings o'er the eye.)

In terms of the Védānta, Māyā-Desire has two principal powers or functions; (1) āvarana, which 'veils' the eye of reason, 'blinds' it to all but the immediate object of the particular desire, shuts it off from all sense of proportion, of balance, of 'the truth in the mean'; (2) vikshépa, which 'flings', 'drives', 'pushes', the whole soul in pursuit of the desired object, to the neglect of all duties. The counteracting, neutralising, opponents of these two forces are, respectively, the force of vai-rāgya, 'dis-illusion-ment', 'dis-passionate desirelessness', 'dis-taste', 'dis-gust' with the world, mujānibaṭ, born of sensitive experience of one's own and, much more, of other's miseries; and abhy-āsa, 'perseverent pursuit,' munāzilaṭ, of the Truth.¹

Therefore let the revered and loved 'preceptor' 'teacher', 'master', the guru, āchārya, upādhyāya, the pīr-i-murshid, mua'llim, aṭāliq, diligently preserve his disinterested benevolence, his dispassionate yet compassionate desirelessness, his perseverent and 'independent' gaze upon the Truth, at all costs. The economic bias is all-vitiating. A person cannot but side with, and wish well, and give support to, what nourishes him, however evil it may be. The quality of the intellectual fruit is determined by the quality of the economic root.² Therefore :

Yo rājñah praṭi-grhṇāṭi lubdhasy-och-chhāstra-varṭinah,

¹ See pp 326-327, supra.

² The Educational System of a State should never be fed with revenues from any such sinful sources as Excise Duties on intoxicating drugs and drinks. Manu condemns very strongly the rulers who draw any revenue from any such vicious and sinful trades.

Sa paryāyeṇa yāt-īmān
narakān éka-vimshaṭim. (M.)

Chūṇ dīhaḍ qāzī ba ḍil rishwaṭ qarār,
Kai shināsaḍ zālīm az mazlūm-ī-zār. (S.)

(The educationist who doth accept
Money from evil, greedy, lawless kings,
Can no more reprimand and chastise them,
But will support them in their evil deeds;
And must pass with them through hell after hell.)
(The judge who findeth room within his heart
For bribes, no longer can discriminate
The tyrant from the victim of his crime.)

By promotion of such evil-doing, he vitiates the education of the whole younger generation, and thereby ruins the whole civilisation and the whole State. Let him do nothing which will lead insidiously to the selling of his independence, his conscience, his soul. His responsibility is the greatest in the whole of the body politic. He is in charge of the new generation. He makes or mars the whole State, the whole civilisation, the whole people, by the way in which he brings up the new generation.

Ezā fasaḍ al-ā'lim, fasaḍ al-ālam. (H.)

Zallaṭ al-ā'lim, zallaṭ al-ālam. (Q.)

(Yea, when the learned and intelligent Err from the right path, all the world goes wrong.)

Yad yaḍ ācharaṭi shréshthas ṭaṭ-ṭaḍ-év-étaro janah.

Sa yaṭ pramāṇam kuruté,
lokas-ṭaḍ anu-varṭate. (G.)

(As doth conduct himself the honored man
So will behave the others, copying him.)

Can the blind lead the blind? Shall they not both fall into the ditch? (B.)

Avidyāyām anṭarē varṭa-mānāh,
 Svayam-ḍhīrāh paṇḍitam-manya-mānāh,
 Janghanya-mānāh pari-yaṇṭi mūḍhāh,
 anḍhēn-aiva nīya-mānā yaṭh-āndhāh. (U.)
 (Wise in their own conceit, sunk deep in error,
 Stumbling into pit after pit, they go,
 The luckless ones, blind followers of the blind.)

Annāso a'lā ḍīn-e-mulūkehim. (H.)
 (Men imitate the faith and ways of kings.)
 Yaṭhā rājā ṭaṭhā prajāh. (Skt. proverb.)
 (As the king is, such are the people too.)

'Knowledge is power.' The educationist has knowledge. He has power to influence the soul, the mind, for good or for evil. The soldier, who has only the sword, can at most compel only the body. The priest is more powerful than the king. Priestcraft is more disastrous than kingcraft. Without its help, more or less, direct or indirect, kingcraft is not possible. Church and State in alliance for human welfare, can make a heaven of earth; in alliance for human enslavement and exploitation, they make a hell of it. And spiritual power can control and curb temporal power.

Viḍyā ha vai brāhmaṇam ājagāma :
 Gopāya mām ; śhévaḍhis-ṭé-(a)ham asmi ;
 Asūyakāy-ān-rjavé-(a)yaṭāya,
 Mām mā ḍāh ; vīrya-vaṭi ṭaṭhā syām ! (V.)
 (Science came to the 'Man of Knowledge' ; said :
 Take me and guard me as a sacred trust ;
 And give me not unto the crooked ones,

Impure, evil of mind, un-Self-controlled,
 Jealous, proud, cruel, full of greed and lust.
 Impart me only to the good and pure,
 The gentle-minded and benevolent ;
 Then shall I grow in power to help the world.)

Nā-brahma kshaṭṭram ıdhnoṭı, nā-kshaṭṭram brahma varḍhaṭé ;
 Kshaṭṭrasy-āṭı-pra-vrḍḍhasya
 Brāhmaṇān praṭı sarvashah,
 Brahm-aiva san-niyanṭr syāṭ ;
 kshaṭṭram hi Brahma-sambhavam. (M.)

(The spiritual and the temporal powers,
 Both need each other ; neither can maintain
 Itself and prosper, if not helped by th' other.
 But should the Militarist grow perverse,
 And try to overbear the Scientist,
 It is the latter's duty to restrain
 And curb the former ; and he can do so ;
 For Science is the parent of the Sword ; Knowledge, which makes, can break the things of war.)

Brāhmaṇam ṭu sva-dharma-sṭham
 ḍrshtvā bibhyaṭı ch-étaré,
 N-ānyathā kshaṭṭriy-āḍyās-ṭu,
 vipras-ṭasmāt ṭapash-charé. (Shukra-nīṭı.)

(When kshaṭṭriyas, entrusted with the sword,
 Behold the brāhmaṇa deviating not
 From virtuous duty, then are they afraid,
 Not otherwise, and stray not from their own.
 The man of God should, then, deny himself,
 To keep the balance of the human world.)

A western poet has described such a person :

And prophet-like the lone one stood
 With dauntless words and high,

That shook the sere leaves from the wood
As if a storm passed by.

Western history tells us that the Church, when manned by good and genuine priests, has often checked the tyranny of despots and saved the people from cruel oppression. On the other hand, when manned by devils incarnate in human shape, like the Inquisitors, it has allied itself with cruel despots and made the earth groan, and the cry of agony of whole nations has risen to Heaven to bring down the avenging sword of God upon the heads of the tyrant priests and kings. In ancient Indian tradition, ṛshis have directly punished and blasted wicked kings. In the history of Islām also, saintly and learned men have often checked the oppression of rulers, sultāns and pādishāhs. Christianity also has had many heroic reformers and martyrs who faced the wrath of the mighty. Judaism has nourished great prophets like Jeremiah who strongly reprovèd the iniquitous of their day.

Let the educationist rise then to the height of his mission. Let him not hanker after money and sense-enjoyments. The price of benevolent wisdom, of philanthropic learning, is not money, but loving honor, reverence. Are parents to be paid with cash for cherishing their children and making perpetual sacrifices for them ?

Inna akrama-kum ind-Allāhā atqā-kum. (Q.)
(Give highest place of reverence unto those -
Who are God-fearing and God-loving men ;
For the most good are nearest unto God.)

Let him be content with the bare necessities of life. Let him live in voluntary poverty. So the fire of his tapas, zohd, soul-force, will grow ever greater, brighter, mightier. All good men will love and revere him. All evil men will stand in awe of him, and, seeing him stand steadfast in virtue, will gradually turn to good ways. Greedy sense-seekers will be shamed into self-restraint, beholding him so reverend, so talented, so able to seize, yet refraining. All will request him to make good and wise laws, which others will execute under his guidance. The good and wise alone can make good and wise laws; and good and wise laws alone can promote the general welfare. Indeed, when men of God are abroad, men of law need be but few. Moral laws, implanted in the heart, make legal laws, imposed from without, unnecessary. Impulsion from within is far better, far more effective, than compulsion from without. As prevention is better than cure, so education is better than legislation. Thus high is the value and the purpose of Education. Thus high is the mission of the Educationist. Only the man of Brahma, of Maulā, of Rabb, of God, (not by birth, but by worth, by high qualification), the man who has realized that the Great Self lives in all selves, should be entrusted with the high task of Education, and of Legislation.

The people are happy who produce amidst themselves a fair number of such brāhmaṇas, maulavis, 'divines,' rabbis, true educators of the people in the best and largest sense, by precept and by example; not professional religion-mongers, sowers of hatreds and dissensions, or pedagogues, pedants, spreaders of false and vicious ideals and useless and misleading knowledge. Such a people will be sure to possess a justly socialized civilization, where the golden mean will reign, and which will give the greatest happiness to the greatest number. Realising that “No man liveth unto himself . . . we are all parts of one another,” that God “hath made of one blood all nations that dwell upon the face of the earth,” (B), that “Human beings (of different types and classes) are as head, arms, trunk, and legs unto one another,” (V.), that “All creatures are members of the one family of God” (Q.), that “The children of Adam are members and limbs of one another,” (Sā’dī), they will reconcile Individualism and Socialism, (known to the ancient philosophers of China as the principles of Yang Chu, “each for him-self,” and Mih Teih, “loving all equally,”) in a rational Social Organisation. They will build the strongest and surest, nay the only, foundations for World-Peace on earth, by, and because of, Good-Will among men. Their ‘men of God’ will be able to create such Good-Will among men, by (1) establishing Peace between the Creeds, through the exposition of the Unity, as well as the philosophical and scientific rationality, of them all in Essence, and by (2) explaining to them, as part of that Essence, the principles of a complete Social Organisation which will fulfil the just, reasonable, and natural requirements of each and all ; which will provide every person with suitable work-and-'wage,' and every work-and-'wage' with the right person ; and will ensure that 'machinery', metallic as well as official, is so used that, while human drudgery is steadily reduced more and more, human starvation is not increased, and that there is a real and wide spread of general welfare.

SCIENTISTS OF THE WORLD ! THE HEAVIEST RESPONSIBILITY RESTS UPON YOU ! FOR YOU DISCOVER AND SPREAD THE KNOWLEDGE, WHICH OUGHT TO BE USED FOR GOOD, BUT IS BEING USED FOR EVIL ! THEREFORE, ILLUMINATE MATERIAL SCIENCE WITH SPIRITUAL SCIENCE ! ADD DETERMINED PHILANTHROPY TO YOUR SCIENCE ! AND UNITE ! AND SHOW TO MANKIND THE RIGHT WAY OF ORGANISATION. FOR HUMANITY HAS EVERYTHING TO LOSE, IT PERISHES, IF YOU DON'T ! WHEREAS, IF YOU DO, IT IS SAVED, IT LIVES, IT FINDS PEACE AND HAPPINESS FOR ALL !

CHAPTER VII

Conclusion

Let us conclude with two very small but very beautiful stories, illustrative of the Essential Unity of all Religions; one from Védic, one from Islāmic, writings.

Once upon a time, six blind men happened to come near a standing elephant. They felt, with their hands, different parts of the huge animal, and began disputing about its nature. One caught the end of the tail, and said it was a broom or brush. Another felt the trunk, and declared it was a huge python. A third found an ear, and affirmed that it was a large winnowing-fan. A fourth found the abdomen, and maintained it was a vast drum. A fifth stroked a leg, and asserted it was a thick column. A sixth grasped a tusk, and was sure it was a very large pestle. A seventh person happened to pass, and saw them disputing. He had eyes, was a man of vision, a man of wisdom. He explained to them what it was; a compound of all their 'opinions'; and not a mechanical but a living compound; and owner and user of them all. Each one of the different material sciences, views one facet of the Universe of Matter; each one of the several religions emphasises one aspect of the Spirit; the Science of Religion, the Religion of Science, Meta-physic, Tasawwuf, Gnosis, Védānta, synthesises them all.

Once upon another time, a Rūmī, an Arab, a Persian, and a Turk, happened to become fellow-travellers on the road of Life. Long trudging on the dusty, sandy, stony, thorny, now ice-cold, now burning-hot, tracks, made them hungry and thirsty for the nourishment that brings Strength and Peace. They did not know one another's mother-tongues. By signs they communicated, and brought out all the coins they had, to purchase food. What should they buy? The Arab said, Enab; the Turk growled, Uzam; the Persian shouted, Angūr; the Rūmī roared, Astāfil. Faces frowned; eyes reddened; fists clenched; blows began. An itinerant Fruit-Vendor passed along. Such Vendors of Vital Nourishment generally know the few all-important life-preserving words of many tongues. They have to deal with many customers of many sorts. He rushed in between, and placed before them his basket full of the Fruit of Life. Fists unclenched, voices sweetened, eyes softened, faces smiled. Each one found the Self-Same object of his Heart's Desire in that basket. Arabic enab, Turkish uzam, Irānī angūr, Rūmī astāfil, Pahlavī ḍākḥ, Samskr̥t ḍrākshā, English grape, all mean one and the same fruit, and very sweet fruit.

Each drew a circle to shut others out,
As heretics, rebels, things to flout;

But Loving Wisdom knew the way to win,
It drew a Circle that took all in !

Faqaṭ ṭafāwaṭ hai nāma hī kā,
Dar asl sab éka hī haiñ, yāro !
Jo āb-i-sāfi ke mauj méñ hai,
Usī kā jalwā habāb méñ hai ! (S.)

(Only names differ, Beloved !
All forsooth are but the same.
Both the ocean and the dew-drop
But one living liquid frame !)

Dear brothers and sisters ! we have met here on the Road of Life, coming from far and near, and all are hungry and thirsty for the Bread and the Water of Life, which is Love born of the sense of the all-Pervading Unity of the Supreme Spirit. We have begged, from the abounding vineyards, of the large-hearted, most generous, most charitable, growers of the Fruit of Life, the great authors of the Sacred Scriptures, who brood anxiously and lovingly over mankind, as mothers over their little children, a little of their Fruit, that we may share it equally here ; and that, when we wander out to other places, or back to our respective homes, we may bear its sweet taste in our mouths, and carry its good seeds of Unity and Love, for planting there and everywhere.

So many castes, so many creeds,
So many paths that wind and wind,
When just the art of being kind,
Is all the sad world needs ! (ELLA W. WILCOX.)

And the one and only sure art of being kind, is to bear diligently in mind the Great Truth of the Unity of our-self with the One Eternal,
Infinite, Universal Self, and with all selves.
God is Love, Love is God, because God is the Universal Self, and the sensing, the feeling, of this Unity, is the Love Divine, B h a k t i, Ishq-i-Haqīqī.

Shād bāsh, ai Ishq-i-khush-saudā-ī-mā !
Ai dawā-é jumla illat-hā-i-mā !
Ai ilāj-é nakhwaṭ o nāmūs-i-mā !
Ai tu Aflātūn o Jālīnūs-i-mā ! (S.)
Véd', Avestā, al-Qurān, Injīl nīz,
Kā'ba o Buṭ-khāna o Aṭash-kaḍā,
Qalb-i-man maqbūl karḍa jumla chīz,
Chūn ma-rā juz Ishq nai ḍigar Khudā ! (S.)

(Thrive, thrive, O Love Divine !
thy happy madness,
Sole remedy of all life's ills and sadness,
Prime antidote of pride and prudery,
Art, Science, Scripture—all art thou to me !
Véda, Avestā, Bible, Al-Qurān,
Temple, Pagoda, Church, and Kā'ba-Stone,
All these and more my heart doth close embrace,
Since my Religion now is Love alone.

Tā bi-āmokhtém abjad-e-ishq,
Raḡamé ḡhair az īn na mīn dāném,
Ke ba chashmāni ḡl ma bīn juz Doṣṭ,
Har che bīnī be-dān ke mazhar-i-Ū-sṭ.
Chūn ke wāqif shudém ze parḍa-e-Rāz,
Ḍam ba ḍam īn ṭarāna mī goyéṃ,

Ke ba chashmān-i-dīl ma bīn juz Dost,
Har che bīnī be-dān ke mazhar-ī-Ū-sṭ !

(S., SĀ'DI, Mā Muqīmān.)

(Since we have learnt the Alphabet of Love,
None other text than this can we repeat :
With the heart's eyes, wide-opened now, behold,
Whate'er thou see-est, as but form of His !
Since we have seen the Secret past the Screen,
With every breath the song springs to our lips :
Whate'er thou see-est now with the heart's eyes,
Thou know'st is but a form of the Loved One.)

One Cosmic Brotherhood,

One Universal Good,

One Source, One Sway,

One Law be-holding Us,

One Purpose moulding Us,

One Life en-folding Us,

In Love alway.

Lust, Greed, Fear, Pride, and Hate,

Long made us Desolate,

Their reign is done.

Race, Color, Creed, and Caste,

Fade with the Nightmare Past,

Man wakes to learn at last,

All Life is One !

("The Anthem of the Universal", World-Fellowship.)

May Peace and Prosperity return among Men,

May Co-operation unite them, Love bind them,

Brotherhood enfold them, Patience possess them,

Self-control strengthen them,

The Past be forgiven them,

The Future be sanctified for them,

May Peace and Prosperity return to them !

(Fellowship of Faiths' Prayer for Peace.)

Ehḍin-as-Sirāṭ-ul-mustaqim. (Q.)

(May we be taught the Righteous way to Peace !)

Sarvas-ṭaraṭu ḍurgāṇi,

Sarvo bhaḍrāṇi paśhyaṭu,

Sarvah saḍ-buddhim āpnoṭu

Sarvah sarvaṭra naṇḍaṭu. (Mbh.)

(May all attain the Mind of Righteousness,
May all cross safe beyond th' abysms of Life,
May all see loving eyes, good days, good nights,
May all behold the Face of Happiness !)

AUM ! ĀMĪN ! AMEN !

ADDENDA

Page

- 61 In line 9, after '3', add : 'SBE., xxxi, 255, 256'.
- 62 After line 6, insert, the following :
 Évam param-parā-prāp̄tam
 imam rājarshayo viḍuh,
 Sa év-āyam mayā té-(a)ḍya
 yogah prok̄tah purā-ṭanah. (G.)
- (This ancient inner teaching has come down,
 Age after age, from royal sage to sage ;
 This same have I declared to thee today.)
- 88 After line 6, insert :
 (To those who think good, speak good, and do good,
 And not to those who think ill, speak ill, and do ill,
 Do I belong—saith Ahura Mazdā.)
 (Z., Yasna, 10. 16, THR., p. 98.)
- 108 To the foot-note, add :
 Gangā Prasāḍa, The Fountain-head of Religion,
 p. 12, says that Zoroastrianism has a formula,
 "Nést ezed magar yazdān", which means exactly the same as the Islāmic "Lā ilāh ill-allāh"
- 123 In lines 24-25, after 'summum individuum', add :
 'or parvum, or parvulum, or minutum individuum'.
- 141 Put in, as foot-note to sentence ending with
 'all', in line 10 :
 See foot-note to p. 265, infra, (Addenda).
- 162 In l. 29, after 'Phylogenesis', add :
 'Palingenesis',

- 164 As footnote to the sentence ending with 'irṭiqā', in line 16, put in the following :

Jainism knows this descent and re-ascent of the Spirit as sa miṭi and guṭṭi, saṇḥara and praṭi-saṇḥara, ava-sarpiṇī and uṭ-sarpiṇī; Christianity as Fall and Redemption, Sin and Salvation, Death and Resurrection; Sūfism as safar-ul-Haq and safar-ul-abḍ, qaus-i-nuṣūl and qaus-i-urūj, fiṣāl and wisāl; the Védist systems of philosophy as bandha and moksha, īhā and upa-rāma, a-vidyā and vidyā, vyuṭ-ṭhāna and nirōḍha, abhy-udaya and nis-shrēyasa, sarga and apavarga, klésha and sva-rūpa-praṭishthā, pra-sava and praṭi-pra-sava, līlā and kaivalya; Buddhism uses many terms in common with Védism; western ethics and psychology might call the pair, 'pursuit and renunciation' or 'retirement'; and science, 'involution and evolution (of Spirit into and out of Matter)', or 'integration and disintegration or dissolution (of material form)'. A Chinese proverb says: "Heaven's way always goes round"; (Lin Yutang, My Country and my People, p. 189).

- 166 After line 12, insert :

How will the resurrection of the dead take place? To this answered Ahura Mazadā:—When I have created each and all of these things, would it be harder for me to bring about the resurrection?; (Z., Bundehesh, ch. 31, quoted by Gangā Prasāda, The Fountain-head of Religion, pp. 70-71).

169 After l. 28, add :

Asya brahm-āndasya samantataḥ sthītāni an-anta-koti-brahmāndāni....mahā-jal-augha-maṭṣya-budbud-ānanta-sanghavaḍ-bhramanti. (Tri-pāṇḍvibhūṭi-Mahā-Nārayaṇa-Ūpaniṣat, ch. 6.)

Sankhyā chéḍ rajasām aṣṭi vishvānām na kaḍā-chana.

(Dévā Bhāgavata, ix. iii. 7, 8.)

(Worlds beyond count, 'eggs of the Infinite',
'Of boundless Space', orbs like this earth of ours,
Each with its own peculiar forms of life,
Revolve and wander endlessly in space,
On all sides of this earth, above, below,
Like bubbles or like fishes in the sea ;
Dust-atoms may be counted, not these orbs.)

Oshaḍhi-vanas-paṭayah yach-cha kin-cha prāṇa-bhr̥ṣa sa Aṭmānam āvis-ṭarām véda...Chitṭam prāṇa-bhr̥ṣu...(ṭēshu) āvis-ṭarām Aṭmā...Purushé ṭv-āvis-ṭarām Aṭmā. Sa hi pra-jñānēna sampanna-ṭamah ;...vijñāṭam pashyaṭi ; véda lokālokau ;...Martyén-Āmr̥ṭam īpsaṭi. (Aiṭārēya Āraṇyaka, II. iii. 2.)

(Herbs, trees, beasts, men—all are garbs of the Self;
And each successive form displays It more.
Man, who has mind, shows It forth most of all ;
He has the introspective consciousness ;
He knows, and also knows that he so knows ;
He thinks of yesterday and of tomorrow ;
He reaches out from Death to the Immortal.)

Taḍ yathā péshas-kārī péshaso māṭrām upāḍāya anyan-nava-ṭaram kalyāṇa-ṭaram rūpam ṭanutē, évam év-āyam Aṭmā idam sharīram ni-haṭya

a-vidyām gamayitvā anyan-nava-ṭaram kalyāṇa-ṭaram rūpam kurutē. (Bṛhad Āraṇyaka Upaniṣad, IV. iv. 4.)

(Ev'n as a goldsmith takes a piece of gold,
And makes an ornament ; and then breaks it,
And makes a finer one with it ; e'en thus
The Spirit makes a body for It-Self,
Then breaks it, and shapes out a finer one.)

Vāsāmsi jīrṇāni yaṭhā vihāya,
Navāni grhṇāti naro-(a)parāṇi,
Taṭhā sharīrāṇi vihāya jīrṇāni,
Anyāni samyāṭi navāni dēhī. (G.)

(As a man puts away his worn-out clothes,
And takes up new ones ; even so the soul,
Puts off old bodies and puts on new ones.)¹

170 After line 17, insert :

In the first period heaven was created ; in the second, the waters ; in the third, the earth ; in the fourth, the trees ; in the fifth, the animals ; and in the sixth, man. (Z., Haug's Essays on the Religion of the Parsis, p. 192, quoted by Gangā Prasāda, The Fountain-Head of Religion, p. 65).

182 After line 26, insert :

I, the Lord thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children and the children, unto the third and to the fourth generation. (B., Exodus, chs. 20 and 34.)

¹“Like the doctrine of evolution itself, that of transmigration has its roots in the world of reality ; and it may claim such support as the great argument from analogy is capable of supplying” : Prof. Huxley, Evolution and Ethics, p. 16.

- 193 In the last line, after 'rest', insert :

See Manu-smṛti, ch. xii, especially verses 71-73 ; these verses indicate that by 'births' into low, gross, animal and other forms, are meant post mortem states of the erring and sinning soul, imprisoned painfully in such forms, made of tenuous invisible matter, shaped by its own mentality. Some Sūfī sects also interpret the Qurānic verses, ré 'apes' and 'swine', (see p. 175, supra), in a similar sense.

- 207 In the third line from bottom, after 'wise', add :
'teacher'.

- 227 After line 10, insert :

Aham bhavān, na ch-ānyas tvam,
Tvam év-Aham, vi-chakshva, bhoh !
Na nau pashyanṭi kavayash-
Chhīḍram jātu manāg-api. (Bh.)

(Thou art I, verily ; None Else art Thou ;
And I am thou, know well, deep in thy heart.
There is no difference 'twixt Thee and Me.
The Seers, who can see, have seen this Truth.)

- 257 After line 6, insert :

From the supernal hymns and harmonies
Of the celestial choirs of cherubim,
Divinity felt urge and surge for change.
It made It-Self the shape of mortal man,
To taste the joyous pain, the sweet heartache,
Of Father, Mother, Brother, Sister, Child,
Friend, Foe also, alas !, Misery and Bliss—
Till, tired of these, It pass to Peace again.

260 After line 26, insert :

Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth ; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind. (B., Isaiah 65.).

261 After line 6, insert :

The breath of Heaven passed o'er the still seas,
And countless bubbling waves rose with the breeze ;
The smile of God flashed on the far-flung skies,
They flashed back answer in a million dyes.

261 After line 12 insert :

Loka-vaṣ ṭu Līlā-Kaivalyam.

(Brahma-Sūtra.)

(As man, so God enacts gladness and sadness,
In Play and Pastime ; then, when tired of this,
He goes again into Sleep's Loneliness.)

261 In line 22, after 'Hū', add : 'Lā ilāhā illa Anā,'.

265 Put in, as foot-note to sentence ending with 'Tri-Unity', the following :

In Zrwanism...the dualistic view of the world was superseded by setting up endless Time, (Zrwan, Arabic ḍahr) as the paramount principle, and identifying it with Fate, the outermost heavenly sphere, or the movement of the heavens ...Zrwanism came to be publicly recognised under the Sasanid Yezdegerd II, 438-459 A. C. ; (Dr. T. J. de Boer, The History of Philosophy in Islam, p. 8.)

274 After line 5, insert :

Who hath woe ? Who hath sorrow ? Who hath contentions ? Who hath babbling ? Who hath wounds without cause ? Who hath redness of eyes ? They that tarry long at wine ; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth his color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright. At the last, it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. (B., Prov., 23 : 29-32.)

295 After line 8, insert :

The unbelieving husband is sanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified by the husband. (B., Paul, I Cor.).

324 After kufṛ, in l. 11, add: 'error, ne-science, male-science, and multiplicity, belief in other than Self,'.

326 In line 21, after 'chief', add: 'powers'.

348 In line 8, after 'R shis', add: 'M a h a r s h i s, Ḍ é v a r s h i s, P a r a m a r s h i s'.

360 After line 26, insert:

Pathemata Mathemata. (Greek saying.)

(Sufferings bring knowledge.)

Ḍ u h k h a - t r a y - ā b h i - g h ā ṭ ā j - j i j ñ ā s ā ṭ a ḍ - a p a - g h ā ṭ a k é h é ṭ a u .

(Sāṅkhyā-kārikā.)

(When sorrows come, then search for knowledge grows—

Knowledge of cause of sorrows, and their cure.)

Ḍ u k k h a m , ḍ u k k h a - s a m - u p - p ā ḍ a m ,

ḍ u k k h a s s a c h a a ṭ i - k k a m a m ,

A r i y a m c h - a t t h - a n g i k a m m a g g a m ,

ḍ u k k h - ū p a - s a m a - g ā m i n a m . (Dh.)

(Pain, cause of pain, crossing beyond all pain,
The eight-fold way of crossing—these four Truths, Noble, beneficent, the Buddha taught.)

411 After l. 23, insert :

Āchāryah sarva-chéshtāsu
 loka éva hi dhī-maṭah.
 Kṛtsno hi loko buḍḍhi-matām
 āchāryah ; shatrush-ch-ā-buḍḍhi-matām.
 (Īharaka.)

(To the wise man, who can observe the world,
 The finest teacher of how to behave,
 Most friendly counsellor, is the whole world ;
 To the unwise, it is a ruthless foe.)

428 After line 3 insert :

A-dīnāh syāma sharaḍah shaṭam, bhūyash-cha sharaḍah shaṭāt. (Yajur-Véda, 36. 24.)
 Bhāḍram jivanto jaraṇām ashīmahi.
 (Rg-Véda, 10. 37. 6.)

Pashyéma sharaḍah shaṭam, rohéma sharaḍah shaṭam, pushyéma sharaḍah shaṭam, bhavéma sharaḍah shaṭam, bhūshéma sharaḍah shaṭam, bhūyasīh sharaḍah shaṭāt. (Atharva-Véda, 19.
 67. 1-8.)

(May we live, un-depressed, a hundred years ;
 And even more ; and living sumptuously ;
 A hundred autumn-glories may we see ;
 And for a hundred autumns may we grow
 In health and strength, and decorate ourselves ;
 And e'en beyond the term of hundred years !)

478 Put in, as footnote to sentence ending with 'all',
in line 25 :

Kalā bahaṭṭar purusha kī ; vā mén ḍo sarḍār,
 Éka jīva kī jīvikā, Éka jīva uḍḍhār.
 (Jaina saying.)

(Full two and seventy are human arts,
But two of these do hold the two chief parts :
One is, to feed and keep the Body Whole ;
The other is, to find Peace for the Soul.)

- 480 Add, as foot-note to sentence ending with 'Meaning', in l. 25, the following :

From such exceedingly limited study and feeble thinking and public work as he has been able to do in seventy-one years, the present writer has derived the conviction that (I) The Secret Doctrine, by H. P. Blavatsky, studied together with five or six of the most important and best recognised Purāṇi-s, in the light, and with the help, of modern evolutionist science, and of Vēdānta, Sāṅkhya, and Yoga philosophy, is the best available exposition, in broad outlines, of what the Divine Will or Plan is, on the vast scale, for our solar system in general, and this earth and the human race in particular ; and that (II) Manu's Scheme of Individuo-Social Organisation is the best available scheme of Human Planning.

- 485 In line 5, after 'money-stakes', add 'within strict limits'.
- 489 To line 25, add : 'e. g., four kinds of pathological temperaments (or 'personal idiosyncracies') and four corresponding kinds of treatments ; four types of crimes and criminals and four corresponding kinds of punishments ; and so on. But it must always be remembered that these quartettes do not and cannot imply any hard and fast divisions, but that only the predominant feature or quality makes a type.'

- 489 Add, to para ending with 'Life-stages', in line 31, the following foot-note :

If the reader will kindly peruse, e.g., chapter 59, (which Mr. Wells himself calls "the most cardinal," in ch. 69), of that most interesting, luminous, and valuable work, H. G. Wells' A Short History of the World, side by side with pp. 478-489 of this book, he will probably be better able to appreciate the contacts and contrasts between the Védist 'individuo-socialism', and the trends of modern western thought in respect of 'individualism' and 'socialism'. In the last 100 pages of his 'eutopian' work, The Shape of Things to Come, Mr. Wells rightly stresses repeatedly the need of "educational revolution" for "remoulding mankind"; says that "social psychology" should "become, so to speak, the whole literature, philosophy, and general thought of the world"; and suggests that "the world which had once been divided among territorial Great Powers" should become "divided among functional Great Powers", which, in co-ordination, will constitute the "World-State" or "World-Organisation". He also suggests the desirability of "a scientific classification of types". His "functional Great Powers" would seem to be, in other words, world-wide 'Guilds'. He does not scientifically classify the 'functions', but those which he indicates could all be readily classified under the four great varṇa-s, 'vocational guilds', manned by the four temperamental 'types'. (See the present writer's Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism, pp. 69-73, 132-140, 165-209). What Mr. Wells says about 'types', shows that he is thinking of only physical types, suited for different climatic and other natural conditions; not of temperamental vocational types. And he concerns himself almost exclusively with the outer machinery of the World-State, and does not say anything about the different psychical types of persons, indispensably needed to discharge successfully the different (may we say, 'types of' ?) functions of the several 'functional Great Powers.' The Védist scheme supplements the scheme of the 'outer machinery' with a scheme of corresponding appropriate 'inner machinery', without which the 'outer machinery' can never work successfully; and thereby makes it possible to provide, without any competitive waste of vitality, for every social work, the right kind of worker, who is best fitted to perform it efficiently.

There is much that seems plausible, even feasible, in this latest 'eu-topia' of Mr. Wells. His picturing of the 'things to come' may be said to illustrate concretely, how 'all things else can be added, if men achieve righteousness first,' as the Bible says. The flaw in his scheme, (as in most other 'utopias,' including Marx's and the Russian Soviet's, as the latter seems to have discovered in the actual working), is that, (even allowing full effect to the education which he very rightly stresses as all-important), he assumes righteousness achieved too facilely; does not take sufficient account of the metaphysical Law of Duality, which works as indefeasibly in human psychology as in any other department of Nature; reduces too easily to a negligible minimum, even if he does not quite abolish, the egoistic urges and passions; and makes all human life, too readily, one round of picnics and scientific research, to occupy the vast amount of leisure which he creates, by the magic of his pen. One gets the impression that he believes that 'pairs of opposites' are neither inevitable nor needed; that the universe can be re-manufactured, with the help of clever machinery, in terms of one only of each such pair; of pleasures only, without pains; of lights only, without shadows; of loves only, without hates; of comforts only, without bothers. Then, he provides no spiritual foundations for his material super-structure of pleasant physical sensuous life. He does not say anything about the finer spiritual domestic affections, maternal, paternal, fraternal, filial; nor about the Meaning of Life, or the soul, or 'after-life'. All the current religions are duly suppressed by his new-world-makers; but no substitute, satisfactory or even unsatisfactory, is provided; nor does he say that his new humanity has so entirely changed its psychology that it does not care for any such trifles, any more. The Védic Scheme, on the other hand, makes due provision for the egoistic as well as the altruistic instincts, man's 'this-worldly' as well as 'other-worldly' needs, for spiritual as well as material bread; tells us what the Meaning of Life is; and assures us of after-life, endless evolution, Immortality. Be it observed that there is no radical irreconcilable antagonism between the Védic Scheme and Mr. Wells'. On the contrary, the latter would improve greatly in balance, and therefore practicability, (as would the Russian Soviet's), if it were duly corrected and rationalised in the light of the psychological principles of the former.

- 590 Put in, as foot-note to the sentence ending with 'experience', in line 5, the following :

Sarva-bhūṭeṣhu ch-Ātmānam,
sarva-bhūṭāni ch-Ātmani,
Samam pashyan Aṭma-yāji,
Svā-rājyam aḍhi-gachchhaṭi. (M.)

(Who sees the Self in all, and all in Self,
His life is one long sacrifice to Self ;
With just eyes he sees all impartially ;
He finds the inner true Self-government
First ; then the outer, for himself and all.)

- 605 After line 8, insert :

Yaḍā charma-vaḍ ākāśham
véshtayishyanṭi mānavāh,
Taḍā Dévam a-vijñāya,
duhkhasy-āṇṭo bhavishyaṭi. (U.)

(Yea, men shall roll the sky up like a mat,
Sooner, than put an end to suffering
Without the Vision of the Self in All.)

CORRIGENDA

Page	Line
4	1	For 'ḍaryo', read 'darégo'.
33	1-16	Read the first sixteen lines as continuation of the foot-note on p. 32.
79	16	For 'Sah', read 'Saha',
98	13-14	Read ' Mahā-vākya ' as 'M a h ā - v ā k y a'.
121	8	For 'Amṛit-oja', read 'Amṛit-oja'.
,,	13	For 'kathai', read 'kaṭhai'.
,,	14	For 'karama', read 'karma'.
146	1	For 'av-ékshya-māṇo', read 'av-éksha-māṇo'.
152	22	For 'as', read 'az'.
180	20	For 'Ta', read 'T.,'.
204	10	Omit 'states'.
224	12	For 'an-Other,', read 'an-Other ; is'.
236	22	For 'go the', read 'go to the'.
266	13	For 'cataclysms', read 'iridescent dew-drops and humming-birds'.
294	29	For 'Mother', read 'Holy Ghost'.
323	13	For 'once', read 'one-'.
327	4	For ' Tasawwur ', read ' Tasawwur '.
334	29	For 'Self', read 'self'.
336	29	For 'Jnbbatīn', read 'Jubbatīn'.
349	4-5	Read the italicised words as romanised.
366	29	For 'pinious', read 'pinions'.
378	8	Read ' Kṛtya ' as 'K ṛ ṭ y a'.
417	11-13	Omit 'with compassion...his lips', and substitute ; 'a song'.
437	14	After 'religions', add 'may be noted ;'.
437	18	For 'may be noted', substitute 'everywhere'.

- 458 11 For 'are', read 'art'.
- 517 15 For 'Formalism and Catchwords', read
 'The Great Truth masked by the Great Error.'
- 520 1 After 'Danger' add '; Formalism and Catchwords'.
- 542 19 For line 19, substitute:
 'Naught else is worth while—they indeed know naught.'

APPENDIX A

(to pp. 482-489).

Sanskṛt and Arabic-Persian equivalents for the tetrads of the Védic Social Organisation.

Sanskṛt and Arabic-Persian equivalents for the terms of the tetrads mentioned on pp. 482-489, are given below. This book is intended, among other purposes, to be of service to workers who may have occasion to address public audiences, in India, of Hindū-s as well as Muslims, in order to draw their attention to thoughts already common to the two religions, and such more as can be adopted by followers of both, to the benefit of all, without in any way hurting any cherished belief of either.' To be readily understood by members of the two denominations and cultures, the speaker should, obviously, be able to use words which are familiar to, and will, therefore, readily 'come home' to them. Hence, Sanskṛt and Arabic-Persian equivalents have been given throughout the book, side by side with corresponding English words. But the following could not be conveniently incorporated in the text. Hence they are gathered here. The value of seeing the same thought through the medium of several languages, of recognising the same truth in different garbs, has been dwelt on before, at pp. 65-70 and 526.

Such equivalents, in the following, as are not established by traditional usage, but are offered newly, are, of course, tentative, and ought to be replaced by better ones, as necessary, by those who may have occasion to use them.

(1) Skt. Four prakṛti-s: (a) Shikshaka; (b) Rakshaka; (c) Poshaka; (d) Sahāyaka; or, (a) Vidyān; (b) Vīra; (c) Pālaka; (d) Dhāraka; or, (a) Jñān-ādhika; (b) Kṛiy-ādhika; (c) Ichchh-ādhika; (d) Avyanjita.

(The well-known traditional words are, of course, (a) brāhmaṇa; (b) kṣhatṛiya; (c) vaiśya; (d) śūdra. But they have now completely lost their very vital functional, occupational, or vocational (which is also their etymological) significance; have become irredeemably permeated by the notion of 'hereditary caste'; and hence are, now, much more misleading than useful, where the problems of effective social organisation, the rational division of the social labor, the training for and the choosing or assigning to temperamentally suitable occupations and means of living, and the efficient exercise-and-discharge of corresponding rights-and-duties, are concerned. Therefore the use of one or more new sets of terms has become necessary, which will bring out the functional import unmistakably. There is no such difficulty involved in the Arabic-Persian equivalents. A number of other sets of terms, Skt. and also A.-P., are suggested on pp. 104-106 of the present writer's book, Ancient vs. Modern Scientific Socialism.)

Arab.-Per. Four fiṭrat-s: (a) Ā'lim; (b) Ā'mil; (c) Tājir; (d) Mazdūr.

(2) S. Four vṛtti-s: (a) vidyā-vṛtti; (b) śāśana-vṛtti; (c) vārtā-vṛtti; (d) vrāta-vṛtti or śrama-vṛtti.

A.-P. Four péshā-s: (a) ilmī; (b) a'malī; (c) tijāratī; (d) mazdūrī.

(3) S. Four jīvikā-s: (a) dakṣhiṇā, praṭi-graha; (b) kara, vētana, bhāga; (c) vṛddhi, kusīda; (d) karmanyā, bhṛtī.

A.-P. Four mā'sh-es: (a) nazr, pésh-kash; (b) khīrāj, mushāhīrā; (c) munāfa'; (d) mazdūrī, ṭankhwāh.

(4) S. Four āshramas: (a) brahma-chārī, or vidyārthī; (b) grha-sṭha; (c) vāna-prasṭha, or vana-sṭha; (d) san-nyāsī.

A.-P. Four manāzil-i-umr, or, briefly, manzīl-s, (staging-places of life): (a) muṭa'llim; (b) khāna-dār; (c) gosha-nashīn; (d) faqīr, ḍurwēsh.

(5) S. Four shārīra-éshaṇā-s: (a) āhār-échchhā; (b) dhan-échchhā; (c) dāmpaty-échchhā, or raṭi-ichchhā; (d) vinod-échchhā, vishrām-échchhā, svāsthy-échchhā.

A.-P. Four jismānī-khwāhish-es: (a) khwāhish-i-ghizā, or ishtihā; (b) khwāhish-i-māl; (c) khwāhish-i-zaujiyaṭ, or khwāhish-i-aulād; (d) khwāhish-i-ṭafrīh, or khwāhish-i-arām, or khwāhish-i-ṭan-ḍurustī.

(6) S. Four mānasa éshaṇā-s: (a) loka-ishāṇā, or sammān-échchhā; (b) viṭṭ-aishaṇā, or sampad-ichchhā; (c) aishvary-aishaṇā, or adhi-kār-échchhā, or īshīṭv-échchā, or prabhutv-échchhā; (d) moksh(a)-échchhā.

A.-P. Four zehnī or nafasī khwāhish-es or hirs-es: (a) hirs-i-izzaṭ; (b) hirs-i-daulaṭ; (c) hirs-i-hukūmaṭ; (d) ārzu-i-najāṭ.

(7) S. Four purush-ārtha-s: (a) dharma; (b) artha; (c) kāma; (d) moksha, or Brahm-ānanda.

A.-P. Four maqāsad-i-zindagī, or maqsad-s: (a) ḍayānaṭ, or dīn; (b) ḍaulaṭ; (c) lazzaṭ-i-ḍunyā; (d) najā'ṭ, or lazzaṭ-i-ilāhiyā.

(8) S. Four maryādā-s, viḍhi-s, or samsthā-s.
 (a) upā-sanā; (b) pari-graha, or sva-tva, or rikṭha;
 (c) kula, or dāmpatya, or gārhaṣṭhya, or vivāha-paḍdhaṭi; (d) rāshtra, or rājya, or shāsana-paḍdhaṭi.

A.-P. Four daṣṭūr-s, or zābiṭā-s: (a) mazhab;
 (b) milkiyaṭ; (c) khānah-dārī, or khān-dān, or kunbā;
 (d) siyāsaṭ, nizāmaṭ, salṭanaṭ, nazm-i-mulk.

(9) S. Four bala-s: (a) shāstra-bala, or vidyā-bala, or jñāna-bala; (b) shastra-bala, or āyudha-bala, or shaurya bala, or vīrya-bala; (c) dhana-dhānya-bala, or anna-bala, or artha-bala; (d) shrama-bala.

A.-P. Four qūwaṭ-s or tāqats: (a) qūwaṭ-i-ilmī;
 (b) quwaṭ-i-aslahā, or qūwaṭ-i-dilrī; (c) qūwaṭ-i-mālī;
quwaṭ-i-mashaqqat.

(10) S. Four sets of (duties-and-rights) kartavya-s- and-aḍhi-kāra-s: (a) saṭ-jñāna-sangraha-and-prachāra, and sammāna-prāpti; (b) rakshā-shakti-sangraha-and- rakshā-prasāra, and īshvara-bhāva-prāpti or īṣṭva- lābha or ajñā-shakti-lābha; (c) jīvana-sāmagrī-utpādana- and-prasāraṇa, and vr̥ddhi-yukṭa-mūlya-lābha; (d) séwā, and bhr̥ti-and-vinoḍa-prāpti.

A.-P. Four sets of farz-es-and-haq-s: (a) ṭālīf-wa- taqsim-i-ulūm-i-nék, and izzat; (b) ṭahsīl-i-zarāya'-i- hifāzaṭ wa hifāzaṭ-i-awām, and hukūmaṭ; (c) paidā- kardān-wa-taqsim-kardān-i-sāmān-i-zindagī, and munā- fa'; khidmaṭ, and mazdūrī wa ṭafrīh.

(11) S. Four kartavya-s of vr̥ddha-s, and of the rāshtra: (a) shikshā; (b) rakshā; (c) poshā; (d) séwā.

A.-P. Four farāyaz of the buzurg-s, and of the siyāsaṭ: (a) ṭā'līm; (b) ṭahaffuz; (c) ṭā'm; (d) khidmaṭ or imḍāḍ.

(12) S. Four vyūhas: (a) shikshā-vyūha; (b) rak- shā-vyūha; (c) vārṭā-vyūha; (d) séwā-vyūha.

A.-P. Four ṭanzīm-s : (a) ṭanzīm-i-ṭā'lim ; (b) ṭanzīm-i-ṭahaffuz ; (c) ṭanzīm-i-tā'm (or rızq) ; ṭanzīm-i-khiḍmaṭ.

S. Four rṇa-s : (a) dēva-rṇa ; (b) īshī-rṇa ; (c) pītr-rṇa ; (d) Aṭma-rṇa.

A.-P. Four qarz-es : (a) qarz-i-malāyak (or anā-sir) ; (b) qarz-i-anbīā (or ā'rīfān, or ā'limān) ; (c) qarz-i-mūrisān ; (d) qarz-i-Allāh, (or -Ruh-ul-arwāh, or -Rūh-i-Ā'zam).

(14) S. Four rṇa-nir-mochana-s (or nir-yāṭana-s, or nis-ṭāraṇa-s) : (a) ijyā (or yajña, or isht-āpūrṭa) ; (b) apaṭya-pālana ; (c) aḍhyāpana ; (d) san-nyāsa (or nir-vāṇa, or Brahma-laya).

A.-P. Four aḍā-i-qarz ; (a) zakāṭ (or khairāt) ; (b) parwarish-i-aulād ; (c) ṭā'lim ; (d) ṭark-i-ḍunyā (or fuqr, or sukn, or fanā-f-illāh).

(a) Necessaries, (b) comforts, (c) luxuries may be equated with : S., (a) āvashyakīya-s ; (b) ni-kāmīya-s ; (c) ānandanīya-s (or vilāsīya-s) ; and A.-P., (a) zurūrīyāt, (b) āsāishāt, (c) ishraṭīyāt. Social organisation : S., samāja-vyavasthā ; A.-P., ṭanzīm-i-jamā'a't.

INDEX OF BOOKS AND WRITINGS REFERRED TO

- Advanced Text-Book of Hinduism*, (originally published by the Board of Trustees of the Central Hindu College, Benares), 332.
- Agni Purāṇa*, 447, 540.
- Analects, The*, of Confucius, 289, 299, 302, 303, 312, 536.
- Ancient Solutions of Modern Problems*, by Bhagavan Das, 30.
- Ancient versus Modern Scientific Socialism*, by Bhagavan Das, 30, 80, 317, 334, 483, 625.
- Apocalypse Unveiled, The*, by J. M. Pryse, 101.
- Article*, by Prof: H. E. Armstrong, in Nature, 570.
- Article*, by Dr. I. J. S. Taraporewala, in the Bombay Theosophical Bulletin, 432.
- Aṭharva-Vēda*, 395, 394.
- Bhāgavata Purāṇa*, (Bh.) Throughout.
- Bhāgavata-Māhātmya*, 367.
- Bhakti-Shāstra*, 396.
- Bhāva-Prakāsha*, (a work on Medicine), by Bhāva Mishra, 42.
- Bhaviṣya-Purāṇa*, 511.
- Bible*. (B.). Throughout.
- Bible Apocrypha*, 180.
- Bible of Bibles*, (BB.), by Dr. F. L. Riley, 120, 121, 213.
- Book of the Dead, The Egyptian*, 110, 203, 529, 547.
- Book of the Dead, The Tibetan*, by Evans-Wentz, 208.
- Bṛhad-Īranyaka Upaniṣad*, 237, 388, 395, 400.
- Bṛhad-Vishnu Purāṇa*, 172.
- Buddha's Last Words*, 549.
- Chandi-Charitra*, by Guru Govinda Sinha, 436.
- Charaka*, (a work on Medicine), 127.
- Chhāṇḍogya Upaniṣad*, 287.
- Chhāṇḍogya-Upaniṣad-Bhāṣya*, by Shankar-āchārya, 351.
- Chinese Philosophy, History of*, by Suzuki, 48, 146, 264, 336.
- Chinese Philosophy, History of*, by Y. L. Fung, 312.
- Chips from a German Workshop*, by Max Muller, 477.
- Classic of Filial Piety*, by Confucius, 296.

- Confucian writings*, (C.) Throughout.
- Creative Evolution*, by H. Bergson, 214.
- Crito*, by Plato, 311.
- Dasa-veyaliya*, 309.
- De Bello Judaico*, by Josephus, 192.
- Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire*, by Gibbon, 192.
- Dv Bhāgavata Purāna*, 140.
- D h a m m a - p a d a*, (Dh.) Throughout.
- Dictionary of Philosophy*, by Baldwin, 384.
- Digging up the Past*, by Sir Leonard Woolley, 490.
- Digha-Nikāya*, 143.
- Durgā-saptā-shatī*, 141, 216.
- Education, On*, by Bertrand Russell, 113.
- Egyptian Book of the Dead, The*, 110, 203, 529, 547.
- Encyclopedia Britannica*, 72, 77, 98, 159, 190, 193, 493.
- Encyclopedia of Islam*, 197.
- Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics. (E.R.E.)* 95, 197.
- Essays*, by Huxley, 222.
- Essays on the Parsis*, by Dr. Haug, 110, 468, 492.
- Ethical Conceptions of the Gatha, The*, by J. M. Chatterjee, 137, 431-432.
- Faust*, by Goethe, 49.
- First Principles*, by Herbert Spencer, 22.
- Fountain-head of Religion, The*, by Ganga Prasada, 110, 468, 492, 510.
- Garuda Purāna*, 177.
- Gāthā*. Throughout.
- Gāthā, or the Hymns of Atharvan Zarathustra*. edited, with translations in Sanskrit, English, and Gujarātī, by J. M. Chatterjee and A. N. Bilimoria, 45, 377.
- Gāthā Ahunavarī, First three Chapters of*, (Article by Dr. I. J. S. Taraporewala, in the Bombay Theosophical Bulletin), 431-432.
- Gāthā, The Ethical Conceptions of the*, by J. M. Chatterjee, 137, 431-432.
- Gīā. (G)*. Throughout.
- Gīā*, Persian translation of, by Faizī, 216.
- Grantha, or Gurn Grantha Sahab*, 4, 5, 462.
- Great Design, The*, edited by F. Mason, 21, 22, 24.
- Great Learning*, by Confucius, 303.
- Gulshan-i-Rāz*, 86, 190, 320.
- Guptavari Tikā on Durgā-saptā-shatī*, 141.
- Guru Gīā*, 161, 400.

- Hadis, or the Sayings of Muhammadi. (H.)*. Throughout.
- Hadis*, collected by Abu Dāūd, 217.
- Hadis*, collected by Dailamī, 217.
- Hadis*, collected by Tirmizī, 74.
- History of Chinese Philosophy*, by Suzukī, 48, 146, 264, 336.
- History of Chinese Philosophy*, by Y. L. Fung, 312.
- Hikopulsha*, 301, 390.
- Hsiao King (Classic of Filial Piety)*, by Confucius, 296.
- Ibra Nabba*, 161.
- Imperial Peace Crusade, The*, by Genl. F. P. Crozier, 28.
- Indian Census Report*, 496.
- Indian Theosophist, The*, (a monthly, of Benares), 25.
- ishu Upanishat*, 192.
- Isis Unveiled*, by H. P. Blavatsky, 47, 77, 101, 141, 145, 162, 192, 210, 215, 230, 407, 425, 431, 529.
- Jaina Dharmakā Mahatva*, 509.
- Jān*, by Guru Govinḍa Sinha, 121.
- Japan*, by Dr. Inazo Nitobe, 10, 37, 43, 48, 72, 159, 378.
- Japanese Philosophy*, by Tetsujiro Inoué, 148.
- Jewish Mysticism*, by J. Abelson, 97, 193, 201, 212, 247.
- Jñān-ārṇava*, by Shubha Chandra, 230, 273.
- Kāma-Sūtra*, by Vātsyāyana, 381.
- Katha Upanishat*, 385.
- Kivaddha Sutta*, 143.
- Kishna, a Study in the Theory of Avatāras*, by Bhagavan Das, 222.
- Leader, The*, (daily, of Allahabad), 25.
- Lecture*, by Prof. Crew, 570.
- „ Genl. F. P. Crozier, 28.
- „ Sir James Jeans, 187.
- „ Miss Muriel Lester, 28.
- „ Sir Oliver Lodge, 19.
- „ Sir William Robertson, 27.
- „ Viscount H. Samuel, 32.
- Light of Asia, The*, by Sir Edwin Arnold, 272, 470.
- Light on the Path*, 133, 281.
- Lī-ki*, 37, 180, 442, 536.
- Lives*, by Plutarch, 393.
- Māḍhyamika-Kārikā*, by Nāgārjuna, 119.

- Ma h ā-b h ā r a t a.* (Mbh.). Throughout.
- Mahā-maṅgala-Sutta*, 293.
- Mahā-Purāṇa*, (Jaina), 273.
- Mahātmā Letters, The*, 24, 347.
- Mahā-vagga*, 180.
- Mā Muqīmān*, by Sā'dī, 128, 230, 259, 606.
- Man-lagan*, by Bahrī, 356.
- Manu-Smṛiti.* (M.). throughout.
- Masnawī*, by M a u l ā n ā Jalāluddīn Rūmī, 167, 168, 563-564.
- Maxim*, Nyāya, 114.
- „ Scholastic, 114.
- „ Arabian Philosophical, 106.
- „ Persian Philosophical, 49.
- „ Latin Philosophical, 49, 116.
- „ of Solon, 235.
- „ Egyptian, 247.
- „ Chinese, 257.
- „ Vēdānta, 330.
- „ Sanskr̥t, 411, 596.
- Metaphysics*, by Sir William Hamilton, 257.
- Midrash Rabba*, 97.
- Mishna Aboth*, 538.
- Modern Man in Search of a Soul*, by C. G. Jung, 576.
- Modern Review, The*, (monthly, of Calcutta), 23, 187.
- Montessori and her Inspirers*, by R.J. Fynne, 589.
- Mourer in China*, 493.
- Mukṭika Upaniṣad*, 335.
- My Country and My People*, by Lin Yutang, 297, 493, 514.
- Mysterious Universe, The*, by Sir James Jeans, 21.
- New Background of Science, The*, by Sir James Jeans, 20.
- Nirukṭa*, by Yāska, 211, 530.
- On Education*, by Bertrand Russell, 113.
- Ode to Immortality*, by Wordsworth, 113.
- Parā-Pājā*, 456.
- Patet Pashēmānī*, 541.
- Philosophy of Islām*, by Khājā Khān, 210, 211, 239, 243, 265.
- Poem*, by William Blake, 42.
- „ Bhartṛ-hari, 255.
- „ Browning, 297.
- „ Muṇnuḍḍīn Chishtī, 415.
- „ George Herbert, 258.
- „ St. John of the Cross, 389.
- „ Omar Khayyām, 184.
- „ Mirā, 389.
- „ Nazir, 232, 233.
- „ Cardinal Newman, 388, 438.

- Poem*, Proclus, 438.
 „ James Rhodes, 458.
 „ Sarmad, 417-419.
 „ Scheffler, 339.
 „ Sir Walter Scott, 354.
 „ Shelley, 353.
 „ Sūr Dās, 354, 355.
 „ Shams Tabrēz, 111, 415.
 „ Tennyson, 72, 326, 329, 447.
 „ Francis Thompson, 367.
 „ Unknown, 146, 178, 344, 364, 440, 441, 598, 604.
 „ Ella Wheeler Wilcox, 604.
Place of Christianity in the Religions of the World, The, by J. E. Carpenter, 65, 71, 72, 215, 586.
Pluralistic Universe, A, by William James, 212.
Prayer for Peace, 606.
Principles of Sanātana Vaidika Dharma, The, by Bhagavan Das, 80, 510.
Psychological Types, by C. G. Jung, 49, 84, 105, 148.
Purānas, 76, 113, 169, 210, 337, 376, 538, 539.
Qabbālāh (or Kabbala), 170.
Quantitative Study of Trance-Personalities, by W. Carrington, 187.
Quest for God in China, The, by F. W. S. O'Neill, 455.
Qur'an. (Q.) Throughout.
Rāmāyana, by Tulasī Dās, 161.
Rāmāyana, by Vālmīki, 359.
Religions of Ancient China, The, by H. D. Gibbs, 159.
Religions of the World, The, 85, 458.
Rg-Vēda, 116, 118, 227, 395, 494.
Rubāiyāt, by Omar Khayyām, 184.
Sacred Books of the East. (SBE) 121.
Samādhi-shataka, 460.
Samanvaya, by Bhagavan Das, 261.
Sāma Vēda, 310.
Sāmyāyika Pātha, by Amitagati, 146, 207.
Sanātana Vaidika Dharma, The Principles of, by Bhagavan Das, 80, 510.
Sāṅkhya-yoga, 189.
Sankshēpa-Shārīraka, by Sarvajña Muni, 116.
Sayings of Ali, 26, 107, 411, 473.
Science and Society, Address on, by Prof. Crew, 57.
Science of the Emotions, The, by Bhagavan Das, 326, 332.

- Science of Peace, The*, by Bhagavan Das, 50, 96, 210, 246, 249, 261, 503.
- Science of the Sacred Word, or Pranava-vāda of Gārgyana*, by Bhagavan Das, 261.
- Science of the Self, The*, by Bhagavan Das, 21, 50, 80, 82, 96, 209, 224, 246, 259, 261, 304, 317, 326, 483, 503.
- Science of Social Organisation, or The Laws of Manu, The*, by Bhagavan Das, 30, 59, 80, 90, 224, 317, 439, 483.
- Secret Doctrine, The*, by H. P. Blavatsky, 101, 201, 210, 431.
- Secret of An-ul-Haq*, by Khājā Khān, 319, 320.
- Secret of the Golden Flower, a Chinese Book of Life*, by Wilhelm and Jung, 48, 208.
- Shakuntalā*, by Kālīdās, 104.
- Shao Yung*, 159.
- Shārīraka-Bhāṣhya*, (on the Brahma-Sūtra of Bādarāyana), by Shankar-āchārya, 160.
- Shata-paṭha Brāhmaṇa*, 109, 358.
- Shat-paṭī*, by Shankar-āchārya, 160.
- Shi-King*, by Confucius, 37, 139, 358.
- Shinto Ninju*, by Hayashi Razan, 159.
- Shintoist writings. (Sh.)* Throughout.
- Shiva-Mahima-Stuti*, 149.
- Shiva Purāna*, 111.
- Short History of the World, A*, by H. G. Wells, 515, 583.
- Short Studies in Great Subjects*, by Froude, 9.
- Shu-King*, by Confucius, 65, 104, 180, 333, 376, 442.
- Shukra-Niṣi*, 597.
- Shvet-āshvatar Upanishad*, 563.
- Sikh Writings. (Si.)* Throughout.
- Smritis*, 210.
- Social Environment and Moral Progress*, by A. R. Wallace, 22.
- Sohar*, (see Zohar).
- Story of the Human Race, The*, by Henry Thomas, 521.
- Story of the Bible, The*, by M. Yearsbey, 110.
- Stotra*, 388.
- Studies in Islāmic Mysticism*, by R. A. Nicholson, 204.
- Studies in Tasawwuf*, by Khājā Khān, 174, 239, 243.
- Sūfī Writings. (S.)* Throughout.
- Sutta Nipāṭa, Vusala-sutta*, 508.
- Syād-vāda*, 119.

- T'ai Shang Kun Ying Pien*, 180, 302, 442.
Taittiriya Brāhmaṇa, 395.
Talismān, The, by Sir Walter Scott, 354.
Talmūd, 212, 213.
Tantra, 145.
Tā o i s t Writings. (T.). Throughout.
Tao-Teh-King, 36, 49, 83, 93, 120, 230, 358, 362, 528, 532, 592.
Tārīkh-i-Hamdalām, by Ḥailāmī, 217.
Tattvārtha Sūtra, by Umā-Swāmī, 86.
Theosophist, The, (monthly, of Adyar, Madras), 187, 193.
Thibetan Book of the Dead, The, by Evans-Wentz, 208.
Three Essays on Consciousness, by W. Carrington, 187.
Travels in Thibet, by Abbé Huc, 477.
Treasure-House of Living Religions, by R. E. Hume, 296, 303, 309, 313, 362. (THER.). Throughout.
Udāna-vagga, 108, 305.
Universal Text-Book of Religion and Morals, The, by Annie Besant, 171, 192, 332.
Upanishats. (U.). Throughout.
- Uttar-ādhyayana Sūtra*, 510.
Vaisheshika-Sūtra, by Kaṇāda, 54, 429.
Vāsishtha Smṛiti, 530.
Vāyu Purāṇa, 213.
Vājas. (V.). Throughout.
Venditāil, 467.
Vilura Nīti, 308.
Vichitra Nāṭaka, by Guru Govinda Sinha, 436.
Vinaya-Pārikā, by Tulasī Dās, 161.
Vishnu Purāṇa, 355.
Vishvasp, 350.
Vusala-Sūtra, 508.
- We Europeans*, by Julian Huxley, 503.
World-Fellowship, Edited by Charles F. Weller, 583, 606.
Writings of Amiṭa-gati, 146.
 „ Amṛta-chandra Sūri, 37.
 „ Asanga, 118.
 „ Farīduḍḍīn Atṭār, 65.
 „ St. Augustine, 116.
 „ Ausonias, 141.
 „ Bhāga-chandra, 155.
 „ Bhūḍhara, 120.
 „ Faizī, 216.
 „ St. Francis of Assisi, 360.
 „ Heraclitus, 49.

Writings of Kabīr, 340, 472, 529.

„ Kwang (or Chwang or Chuang) Tze (or Tsu, or Tse, or Tzu), 180, 305, 309, 311, 539.

„ K w a n - y i n - t s e, 146.

„ Mencius, 305, 312, 313, 378.

„ Nakae Tajū, 148.

„ Sā'dī, 95, 176, 220, 259, 424, 606.

„ S a m a n ṭ a-Chandra, 272.

„ of Shankar-āchārya, 52, 154, 236, 239, 279, 289, 351, 358, 414, 563.

„ Soma-dēva, 273.

„ Tulasī Dās, 161.

Writings of Wang-Yang-Ming, 105.

„ Dr. Westcott, 412.

Yajur-Vēda, 494.

Yashṭ, Ormuzd (or Hur-muzd), 109, 110, 265.

Yasna, 61, 365.

Yoga-Sūtra, by Patanjali, 130, 148, 207, 208, 249, 276, 279, 525, 554, 556.

Yoga-Sūtra-Bhāshya, by Vyāsa, 39, 249, 457.

Yoga-Vāsishṭha, 111, 153, 237, 260, 411.

Zenḍ-Avestā. (Z.). Throughout.

Zoroastrian Writings. (Z.). Throughout.

Zohar (or Sohar), 161, 170, 193, 211, 230, 246.

INDEX OF SAMSKṚT WORDS.

(English equivalents will be found beside the words on the pages referred to. The hyphen indicates the junction-point between a prefix and the main word, or between two words in a compound word. See also Appendix A, for words not included here.)

- Ā-BHĪSA, 243, 327, 350, 594.
 A-bhaya-dāna, 277, 317.
 Abhi-ni-vēsha, 148, 352.
 Abhi-tanya, 47.
 Abhyu-daya, 223.
 Āchārya, 398, 594.
 Ādhi-bhautika, 205, 211, 469.
 Aḍhi- aivika, 211.
 Adho-mārga, 281, 357.
 Adhy-āropa, 245, 250.
 Adhyāsa-vāda, 243, 256.
 Ādhy-ātṃika, 100, 211, 469.
 Adhyāya, 445.
 Adhy-ayana, 529.
 Ādi, 45.
 Aḍiṭi, 201, 351.
 Ādiṭya, 201, 351.
 A-ḍvaiṭa, 242, 256, 545.
 A-ḍviṭiyam, 111, 116.
 Agha, 353.
 Agni, 227, 265.
 Agni-āgāra, 448.
 Agni-hotra, 448.
 Agni-shomīyam jagat, 48.
 Aham, 107, 145, 261.
 Aham-Ēṭaṭ-Na, 108, 261.
 Aham-kāra, 137, 319, 321, 334, 351, 383, 559.
 Āhāra-ichchā, 322.
 Āhāra-sanjñā, 322.
 A-himsā, 315, 325, 369.
 Aho-Aham, 109.
 Aishvarya, 46, 66, 396.
 Aiṭi-hāsika, 211.
 Ajapā-gāyatrī, 424, 439.
 Akāraṇam, 141.
 Ākāra-nirā-karana, 245.
 Ākāsha, 144.
 Āmara-vārunī, 417. (A.-P., Āb-i-hayāt).
 Amīṭ-ābha, 264.
 Amsha, 75, 214.
 Amsh-āvatāra, 198, 241.
 An-āhaṭa nāda, 142, 417. (A.-P., Sauṭ-i-sarmadī).
 An-amīvasya, 285.
 Ānanda, 148, 264.
 Ānanda-maya-kosha, 195.
 Ananta, 246.
 An-ēka, 558.
 An-ēk-ānta, 334.
 An-ēk-ānta-vāda, 37.
 An-ēka-tā, 506. 538.
 Anna-dānam, 529.
 Anna-maya-kosha, 195.
 Anna-paṭē, 285.
 Anta, 45.
 Antah-prakāsha, 544.

- Antar-lṛshti, 157, 330.
 Antar-hṛdaye, 107.
 Antar-yāmī, 104, 203, 545.
 Anu, 123.
 Anu-graha, 298, 363, 406.
 Anu-māna, 544.
 Anyat, 116, 261.
 Aparā-vidyā, 100.
 A-pari-graha, 277, 325, 370.
 Apa-vāḍa, 245, 251.
 Apsarā, 199.
 Ārambha-vāḍa, 243.
 Arhat, 6, 214, 348.
 Āroha, 92, 164, 250, 356.
 -patha, 261, 281.
 Arṭha, 100, 223, 396, 397, 525.
 Arṭha-charyā, 300.
 Ārya, 73.
 Āsana, 476, 553.
 A-saṭ, 67, 247, 251, 319.
 A-sattvam, 92.
 A-sa-varṇa, 498.
 Asht-āṅga-Ārya-Mārga, 82.
 Āshaya, 322.
 Asmi, 109, 110.
 Asmitā, 137, 148, 319, 352.
 -niroḍha, 468.
 -tyāga, 82.
 Asu-rah, 47.
 Āṭi-vāhika, 205, 207.
 Ātmā, 83, 107, 163, 195, 387,
 558, 559.
 Ātm-ānanda, 228.
 -ādvaita-saṭṭā, 68.
 -lābha, 228.
 -raṭi, 228.
 -ṭṛpti, 228.
 -ṭushti, 446.
 Aṭy-ant-āi-īta, 245.
 Aum, 1, 143, +31, +34.
 Āvarana, 326.
 Av-āroha, 92, 164, 250, 357.
 Avasīya, 69, 544.
 Avaṭāra, 6, 100, 126, 198,
 214, 221, 222, 240, 267, 406,
 480, 507.
 Āvēsha, 241.
 A-vidyā, 319, 321, 324, 352,
 508.
 A-vyakta, 45.
 Āyur-vēḍa, 504.
 BAHUṬVA, 558.
 Bandha, 559.
 Baḍḍha, 321.
 Bahu syām, 321,
 Bahu-ḍhā syām, 321.
 Baudḍha-dharma, 82.
 Bhagavaḍ-bhakti, 270.
 Bhaga-vān, 66.
 Bhakṭa, 101.
 Bhakti, 86, 326, 348, 391,
 392, 396, 397, 605.
 Bhakti-mārga, 85.
 Bhāshya, 445.
 Bhauṭika-ḍḍha, 207.
 Bhava, 45.
 Bhāva, 554.
 Bhāv-ā-ḍvaitam, 545.
 Bhava-ṭiṣhuā, 321.
 Bhakṭa, 101.
 Bhēḍa, 320.
 -buddhi, 128, 334.
 Bhikshu, 100, 274, 275, 399.
 Bhoja, 475.
 Bhūh, 204.

- Bhūmā, 228.
 Bhūmi, 202.
 Bhuvah, 204.
 Bhuvana, 199, 204.
 Bodhi-sattva, 214.
 Brahma, 83, 84, 107, 163, 226, 261, 264, 285, 292, 295, 320, 381, 387, 519, 568.
 Brahmā, 285, 546.
 Brahma-bhūta, 336.
 -bhūya, 334.
 -charya, 325, 369, 512.
 -līna-tā, 228.
 Brāhmaṇa, 101, 116, 491, 505, 508, 509, 510, 511, 568, 568, 569, 575, 598.
 Brahm-ānanda, 270.
 Brahm-ānda, 203, 396.
 Brahma-nirvāṇa, 559.
 -nishthā, 220.
 -purī, 451.
 -randhra, 392.
 -(a) smi, 109.
 -vākya, 445.
 -vidyā, 33.
 -vit, 398.
 Buddha, 6, 214.
 Buddhi, 82, 195, 387.

 CHAITANYA-SĀMĀNYA, 226.
 Chakra, 393.
 Chāritrya, 86.
 Chatur-dhāma, 451.
 Chit, 47, 128, 226, 264, 545.
 Chitra-gupta, 545.
 Chitta, 226, 349.
 Chitta-parikarma, 356, 553.
 -prasādanam, 356, 553.

 DATTYA, 199, 351, 558.
 Daiva, 183.
 Daivī, 320.
 Dama, 318.
 Dāna, 126, 300, 323, 529.
 Danda, 316.
 Dāra-suta-ishauā, 321, 370.
 Dārshana, 242.
 Dāsa, 66.
 Dasha-shīla, 275.
 Dayā, 395.
 Dayālu, 46.
 Dēha, 107.
 Dēva, 1, 3, 66, 76, 134, 199, 266, 351, 406, 469, 558.
 Dēv-ālaya, 475.
 Dēvatā, 76.
 Dēya, 377.
 Dhana-ichchā, 322.
 Dhāraṇā, 553.
 Dharma, 54, 74, 81, 82, 83, 84, 223, 396, 397, 558.
 Dharm-āchāra, 294.
 Dharm-kāya, 203.
 Dharm-rakshā, 126.
 Dharm-shālā, 562.
 Dharm-shūratā, 410.
 Dharm-ātmā, 239.
 Dharmī, 558.
 Dhātā, 47, 395.
 Dhautī, 454.
 Dhotī, 454.
 Dhyāna, 553, 554.
 Dik-pāla, 200.
 Dikshita, 100.
 Dishta, 133.
 Dīpi, 351.
 Divā-nisham, 431.

Divya-jñāna, 101.
 Divya-purusha, 240
 -īśhti, 543, 544.
 -shakṭi, 199.

Dosha, 50, 334.

Drākshā, 603.

Āroha, 137.

Āvaita, 242, 320.

Dvaita-mithyā-tva, 68.

Dvām-dvām, 39, 40, 157, 371,

Dvāsha, 137, 148, 352.

Dvīṭiya, 320.

Dvīṭiya-janma, 467.

Dyaur-nishā, 431.

ĒKĀ-DASHĪ, 126, 465.

Ēkam, 111, 558.

Ēk-ānta, 334.

Ēka-tā, 506, 558.

Ēka-varna-tā, 60.

Ēkī-bhāva, 228.

Ēshaṇā, 321.

Ētaṭ, 108.

GAṆA, 199.

Gandharvas, 199.

Gaurī, 264.

Gaurī-Kālī, 260.

Gāyatrī, 143.

Ghantā, 475.

Ghora, 46.

Go-mēḍha, 469.

Go-pura, 475.

Gīha-sṭha, 100.

Guhya, 100.

Guṇa, 46, 50, 199, 210, 245,
 263, 334, 503, 558.

Gupṭa-chiṭra, 545.

Gupṭa-vidyā, 101.

Guru, 207, 393, 405, 475.

-kṛpā, 363, 594.

HARA, 45

Hatha-yogī, 98.

Hāyi-Hāyi, 144.

Huvā-hāyi, 144.

Huvā-hoyi, 144.

Himsā, 316.

Hiranya-garbha, 203.

Hitam, 553.

Hṛday-ābhy-anu-jñā, 446.

Hṛdaya-granthi, 322.

Hṛdayam, 107.

ICHCHHĪ, 43, 86, 87, 137, 420.

Idam, 109.

Ijyā, 529.

Indra, 265.

Indriya-nigraha, 468.

Ishta, 377.

Ishta-dēva, 424, 406.

Īshvara, 44, 46, 49, 66, 203,
 292, 343.

-prasāda, 363.

-pranī-dhāna, 369.

Itarāt, 116, 226, 320, 558.

Itara-tā, 226.

Itar-ābhāsa, 68.

JAGAD-ĀTMĀ, 176.

Jagat, 39, 251, 292.

Jāgrat, 204.

Janah, 204.

Japa, 468.

Jīva, 92, 211, 292, 320, 343,
 381, 387, 519.

Jiv-ātmā, 92, 136, 148, 160,
226, 321.

Jivan-mukta, 240, 250, 256.

Jñāna, 53, 87, 268, 525, 554.

Jñānī, 101.

KAIVALYA, 228, 260.

Kāla-kshēpa, 464. ('Pass-time'; religious dramatic recitation).

Kālā, 214.

Kalasha, 475.

Kālā-vatāra, 241.

Kāma, 134, 223, 318, 325.
327, 348, 370 391, 394,
396, 397.

Kāma-jatā, 322.

-rūpa, 195.

-sankalpa, 92, 253.

-tishū, 323.

Kāmya, 74.

Kanda, 392.

Kānta, 46

Kāraṇa, 196, 203.

Karma, 86, 174, 190.

Karma-kānda, 422.

Karma-mārga, 85, 420.

Kārmaṇa-sharīra, 203.

Karunā, 130, 326, 395.

Kashyapa, 351.

Kāthā, 464. (Recitation and expounding of scriptural legends).

Kévalah, 103.

Khé-chara, 205.

Kīrti, 233.

Klēsha, 247, 249, 352, 353.

Kosha, 204.

Kratu, 47.

Kṛidā, 68, 252.

Kriyā, 86, 87, 420.

-(a)-dvaitam, 545.

Kroḍha, 318, 325, 370.

Kṛpana, 404.

Kṛshna-līlā, 464.

Kṛtya, 378.

Kṛurātā, 130,

Kshamā-vān, 46.

Kshapana, 399.

Kshattriya, 491, 505, 510,
511, 569.

Kshiṭi, 265.

Kshudra-virāt, 203, 209.

Kumāra, 214.

LĀBHA, 383.

Lakshmi, 264.

Līlā, 249, 251, 252, 324, 327.

Linga-sharāra, 195.

Lobha, 318, 370.

Loka, 199, 204.

Loka-īshanā, 321, 370.

Loka-mātā, 292.

Loka-pāla, 200.

MAṆA, 318.

Maṇhu, 46.

Madhura, 46.

Mādhurya, 46, 266, 395.

Mahā-bhāva, 228.

Mahā-dēva, 66.

Mahah, 204.

Mahā-karunā, 129, 132, 349.

Mahat, 546.

-buddhi, 546.

Mahā-vākya, 98, 107, 108, 243.

- Mahā-virāt, 203, 209.
 Mahyam, 109.
 Maithuna-sanjñā, 322.
 Mala, 320.
 Mālā, 467.
 Māmsa-varjana, 468.
 Manah, 44, 64, 195, 349, 387.
 Mānasa-putra, 211, 351.
 Mānava-dharma, 82.
 Mānava-prēma, 270.
 Mandira, 475.
 Manju-shrī, 264.
 Mano-maya-kosha, 195.
 Mano-vāk-karma, 87.
 Mantra, 445.
 -darshana, 544.
 Manu, 214.
 Manushya, 292.
 Manushya-tā, 564.
 Mārga, 82, 86.
 Maru-marīchikā, 252.
 Matha, 299, 367.
 Maṣsara, 318.
 Māyā, 122, 208, 247, 249, 251,
 260, 292, 295, 320, 326, 522.
 Māyāvi, 157.
 Māyī, 45, 122, 152.
 Mīmāṃsā, 445.
 Miṭhyā-iṭaratā, 92.
 Mlēccha, 517.
 Moha, 318.
 Moksha, 84, 134, 396, 397,
 488, 559.
 Mukta, 84, 208.
 Mukti, 224, 225.
 Mūlā, 321.
 Mūla-prakṛti, 320, 321.
 Muni, 214.
 NA, 108, 261.
 Naishthika - brahma - charya, 299.
 Nāma, 406, 554.
 Namah, 344.
 Na-mama, 80.
 Nāma-rūpa, 250.
 -apa-lāpa, 245.
 Namas-kāra, 80.
 Nānā-tva, 558.
 Naraka, 199.
 Nāram, 134.
 Nashvara, 252.
 Nāstika-tā, 519.
 Nir-aham-kāra, 131, 369.
 Nir-aham-kāri-tā, 326.
 Nirā-karaṇa, 251.
 Nir-anjana, 163, 245.
 Nir-ava-chchhinna, 118.
 Nir-guṇa, 118, 245.
 Nir-mala, 245.
 Nir-māṇa-kāya, 203, 207.
 Ni-rodha, 349.
 Nir-vāna, 224, 225.
 Nir-vēda, 129, 132.
 Nir-vishesha, 118, 245.
 Nishēdha, 239, 349.
 Nish-kinchana-tā, 365.
 Nis-shrēyas, 224, 390.
 Nis-svārtha-tā, 131.
 Nitya, 74.
 Niṭya-nārakī, 374.
 Niṭya-svargī, 374.
 Ni-vṛtti, 92, 386.
 Ni-yama, 274, 276, 325, 553.
 Ni-yanṭā, 396.
 O-HAU-HAU, 144.

PAÑCHA-SHĪLA, 271, 300.

Pandit, 524.

Pan̥ṭh, 477.

Parā-jāṭi, 123.

Param, 66.

Param-ānu, 58, 123.

Param-ārtha, 334, 383.

Parama-Ṭaṭṭva, 558.

Param-Ātmā, 92, 136, 160,
163, 226, 251, 320.

Param-avyakta, 245.

Param-śhvara, 66.

Param-jyotiḥ, 264.

Par-ārtha, 334.

Para-ṭantra, 183.

Parā-vidyā, 100.

Para-vishésha, 123.

Pari-graha, 365.

Pari-graha-sanjñā, 322.

Pari-karma, 454.

Pari-nāma-vāda, 243.

Pari-purṇa, 261.

Pārshada, 199.

Pashchāt-ṭāpa, 441.

Pashyaka, 351.

Pāṭāla, 204.

Pātrō-dānam, 529.

Paushtika, 298.

Paviṭra-purī, 451.

Pind-ānda, 203.

Pishācha, 201.

Piṭri-paksha, 465. (The lunar fortnight, in September-October, devoted to the ceremonial offerings of oblations to the departed ancestors).

Pra-bhu, 46, 396.

Pra-ḍhāna, 75.

Prajā-paṭi, 201, 211.

Pra-jñāna, 264, 592.

Pra-khyāpana, 441.

Pra-kṛti, 292, 295, 321, 524.

Prāna, 195, 203.

Prāna-maya-kosha, 195.

Prān-āyāma, 553.

Pra-ṇi-ḍhāna, 80.

Pra-kṛti, 84, 243.

Pra-paṭi, 80.

Pra-shama, 349.

Pra-tāpa, 396.

Praṭi-bhā, 106, 349, 543.

Prāṭibha-Jñāna, 106.

Praty-āhāra, 553.

Pratyak-chétanā, 330.

Praty-aksha, 105, 106.

Praty-ōka-Buddha, 214.

Pra-vṛtti, 92, 384.

Prāyash-chiṭṭa, 441.

Prēma, 348, 391, 406.

Prēta, 201.

Prēyas, 383.

Prīti, 406.

Priyam, 553.

Priya-vachana, 300.

Punar-janma, 164.

Pūrṇa, 226.

Pūrṇa-purusha, 240.

Pūrṇ-āvaṭāra, 242.

Purusha, 148, 226, 242, 292,
295, 320.

Purusha-kāra, 183.

Purush-oṭṭama, 320.

RĀGA, 137, 148, 348, 352.

Rahasya, 100, 445.

- Rajas, 503, 511.
 Rakshas, 199.
 Rāja-yogī, 98.
 Rājanya, 491.
 Rāma-līlā, 68.
 Rāsa-līlā, 68.
 Rati-ichchhā, 322.
 Rshi, 100, 134, 207, 214, 424, 469, 480, 598.
 Rta, 83, 84.
 Sadā, 103.
 Sad-āchāra, 446.
 Sādharana-jñāna, 106.
 Sakr̥ṣṭ, 103.
 Sālokya, 241.
 Sama-darshi-tā, 208.
 Sam-ā-dhāna, 318.
 Sam-ā-dhi, 106, 108, 553.
 Samān-ātma-tā, 229, 300.
 Sūmāsika-dharma, 211.
 Sama-tā, 188, 212.
 Sambhoga-kāya, 203.
 Sam-hartā, 45.
 Sāmpya, 241.
 Sam-pra-dāya ; 477.
 Sam-sāra, 49.
 Sam-sāra-chakra, 164.
 Sams-kāra, 466.
 Sam-vit, 546.
 Samyak-dṛṣhti, 86.
 Samyak-san-kalpa, 86.
 Samyak-vyāyāma, 86.
 Sandhyā, 126.
 Sandhyā-upāsana, 422, 475, 553.
 San-kalpa, 327.
 Sankara, 320.
 San-nyāsa, 299.
 San-nyāsī, 98, 100, 274, 277, 313, 316.
 San-tosha, 277.
 Sā-rāgya, 130.
 Sāram, 141.
 Sāranga-nāṭha, 452.
 Sāranga-vana, 452.
 Sarasvatī, 264.
 Sārūpya, 241.
 Sarva-bhūta-hita, 327.
 Sarva-dā, 212.
 Sarva-jñā, 203. (Intellectus Mundi).
 Sarvam, 109, 141, 212.
 Sarvam-idaṁ Brahma, 554.
 Sarva-ṭra, 212.
 S a r v a - virudḍha - dharm-āshraya, 116.
 Sat, 112, 264, 558.
 Sat-sanga, 290.
 Sattā-sāmānya, 123, 226.
 Sattva, 503, 511.
 Satyam, 84, 325, 369, 553.
 Saṭya-loka, 204.
 Saṭya-yuga, 132, 198, 351.
 Sa-varṇa, 498.
 Saviṭā, 292.
 Sāyujya, 228, 241.
 Shabdā, 105, 525.
 Shad-ripu, 318.
 Shakti, 266, 320.
 Shakṭi-Dēvi, 265.
 Shama, 318.
 Sharīra, 203, 205.
 Shāta-pata, 69.
 Shat-sādhanā, 318.
 Shikhara, 475.

- Shīla, 278, 325.
 Shiva, 45, 66, 260, 264, 265.
 Shraddhā, 475.
 Shramaya, 275, 399.
 Shrāvaka, 100.
 Shrēyas, 383, 390.
 Shruṭi, 446.
 Shubh-ānu-dhyāna, 363.
 Shuddha, 118, 245.
 Shuddh-ā-ḍvaitam, 592.
 Shuddha-saṭ, 245.
 Shuddhi, 521.
 Shūdra, 491, 510, 511.
 Shūnya, 67, 163.
 Shushminah, 285.
 Shvēta, 353.
 Siddha, 199, 348.
 Skandha, 204.
 Smṛti, 446, 546.
 So-ham, 424.
 Sprhā, 261.
 Srashtā, 45.
 Sṛshti, 327.
 Sṭhūla, 203, 278.
 -dēha, 205.
 -sharīra, 195, 196, 207.
 Sṭūpa, 562.
 Sukham, 203.
 Sūkshma-sharīra, 196.
 Sundara, 46.
 Sura, 558.
 Su-shruṭi, 240.
 Sūtr-ātmā, 176, 186, 203. (See Svah, 204. [Tabīyat-i-kul.
 Sva-chiṭṭa-parīkshā, 396.
 Svā-rājya, 349, 591.
 Sv-ārṭha, 334, 383.
 Svasya priyam, 446.
 Sva-tantra, 183.
 TAIJASA, 203.
 Tamas, 247, 503, 511.
 Tāntrika, 202.
 Tapas, 18, 67, 398, 553, 575, 592, 599.
 Tapo-loka, 204.
 Tāraka, 45.
 Tarka, 543.
 Tat, 527.
 Tatṭvam, 92, 107.
 Tatṭva-mātra, 245.
 Tējas, 153.
 Tīrtha-yātrā, 126.
 Tīrthan-kara, 6, 214, 348, 461.
 Tīṭikshā, 318.
 Trāṭā, 47.
 Tṛshṇā, 228, 253, 349, 468.
 Tulā, 321.
 Turiya, 204.
 Tury-ātīta, 204.
 Tvam, 527.
 Tyāga, 327, 369, 370.
 UCHIṬA, 377.
 Udāna, 108.
 Uḍyoga, 183.
 Upa-dēva, 199.
 Upādhi, 247.
 Up-ādhyāya, 594.
 Upa-nayana, 467.
 Upa-raṭi, 318.
 Upāsaka, 57, 100, 603.
 Upa-vāsa, 468.
 Ūrdhva-mārga, 281, 356.

- Uṭṭama, 320.
 Uṭṭariya, 69, 454.
 VAIḌIKA-DHARMA, 82, 85.
 Vaidika-mārga, 86.
 Vaiḍya, 524.
 Vai-rāgya, 129, 130, 132, 249, 327, 360, 594.
 Vaishya, 491, 510, 511, 569.
 Varuṇa, 265.
 Varna, 498.
 Vāsanā, 253, 322.
 Vēda-mantra, 84.
 Vēd-ānta, 110.
 Vēd-ānta-yoga, 8.
 Vi-bhava-ṭrshṇā, 322.
 Vi-bhūṭis, 46, 214.
 Vi-chāra, 421.
 Vi-dhātā, 396.
 Vi-dhi, 239.
 Vidyā, 398, 575, 590.
 Viḍyā-dānam, 529.
 Viḍyā-dhara, 199.
 Viḍyā-pītha, 451.
 Vi-hāra, 299.
 Vi-jñāna-maya-kosha, 195.
 Vi-kshēpa, 326, 594.
 Viṇā, 416, 449.
 Virāt, 203.
 Vi-shāda, 109, 132.
 Vi-shay-ānanda, 225, 396.
 Vi-shēshaṇa, 558.
 Vi-sheshana-apa-vāraṇa, 245.
 Vi-shēshya, 558.
 Vi-shishta-chaitanya, 226.
 Vi-shishta-ā-ḍvaita, 242.
 Vi-shishta-saṭṭā, 226.
 Vishnu, 264, 265.
 Vishv-ātmā, 176.
 Vishvā-nara, 203. Corpus Mundi. (See Jism-i-kul).
 Vishva-prēma, 220.
 Viṭṭa-ēshanā, 321.
 Vi-vēki, 353.
 Vraṭa-upa-vāsa, 126.
 Vyakti, 266.
 Vyutṭhāna, 349.
 YAJÑIKA, 211.
 Yajñ-opaviṭa, 474.
 Yaksha, 199.
 Yama, 46, 157, 271, 274, 278, 529, 546.
 Yantra, 474.
 Yashah, 323.
 Yas-tvam-asi so-(a)ham asmi, 109.
 Yaṭi, 399.
 Yātrā, 454.
 Yātu, 516.
 Yoga, 106, 202, 207, 271, 277, 298, 349, 397, 553.
 Yoga-ja-jñāna, 106, 129, 543.
 Yogī, 134, 313, 207, 274, 278.
 Yog-ārūdh-okti, 108.
 Yoga-siddhi, 199.

INDEX OF ARABIC-PERSIAN WORDS.

(English and Samskr̥t equivalents will be found, beside the word, on the pages referred to. Some words, not used in the text, have also been included here, with their English and Samskr̥t equivalents. See also Appendix A.)

- ANĀ, 69.
 Ābad, unending; endlessness;
 (S., an-anṭa)
 Ābāi-Ulavī, 295.
 Abbā, 292.
 A'bd, 66.
 A'bdiyaṭ, 378.
 A'bd-ul-Qādir, 66.
 Āb-i-hayāt, 'the water of life' 'the elixir of life';
 (S., amara-vāruṇī, amṛta).
 Abrār, 215.
 Abu-l-waqt, 'the father of a time', 'the maker of an epoch'; (S. yuga-pravarṭaka, yuga-kāraka).
 A'dam, 251.
 Āḍab, submission, (S. prapatṭi).
 Ādam-i-Qadīm, 161.
 Ahad, 118, 141.
 Ahl-i-daul, 100.
 Ahl-i-dil, 100.
 Ahurā-Mazada, (Passim ; Z.).
 A'iniyaṭ, (a'yniyaṭ or a'iniyaṭ), 334; (S. ṭaṭ-tva, 'that-ness', essence).
 Akbar, 66.
 Akhyār, 215.
 Akmal, 348.
 Al-Akḥīr, 45.
 Al-A'lim, 221, 264.
 Ālam-i-hāhūt, 204.
 Ālam-i-jabrūt, 204.
 Ālam-i-Kabīr, 203, 209.
 Ālam-i-lāhūt, 204.
 Ālam-i-mā'nī, 204.
 Ālam-i-misāl, 204.
 Ālam-i-malakūt, 204.
 Ālam-i-shahāḍa (or -mulk or
 -nāsūt), 204.
 Ālam-i-sagḥīr, 203, 208.
 Al-Awwal, 45.
 Al-Bādi, 45, 221.
 Al-Bāṭin, 45.
 Al-Gḥaffār, 46, 290.
 Al-Gḥazzāb, 46.
 Al-Hādī, 45.
 Al-Hāfiz, God the 'Protector' or 'Preserver'.
 Al-Haq, God the 'True'.
 Al-Hayy, God the 'Living' or 'Life-giving'.
 Ā'lim, 491.
 Allāh, Al-ilāh, 'the to-be-worshipped'; Lā ilāh ill(ā)
 Al-(i)lāh; 'there is no one worthy of worship excepting

- the One who is worthy of worship'; briefly 'there is no god but the One 'God'. Throughout. (See f.n. on p. 252). 66, 92, 157, 163.
- Al-Jabbār, 46, 157.
- Al-Jalīl, 46.
- Al-Jāmī, 45.
- Al-Jamīl, 45.
- Al-Karīm, 46.
- Al-Laṭīf, the Super-subtle.
- Allāh-Akbar, 66.
- Allāh-ar-Rahmān-ar-Rahīm, 141.
- Al-Mālik, 264.
- Al-Muhiyy, 45.
- Al-Muhsiy, 128, 529, 545.
- Al-Mumīt, 45, 157.
- Al-Muzīl, 45, 152, 157.
- Al-Qābiz, 128, 529, 545.
- Al-Qādir, 66.
- Al-Qādim, the Ancient.
- Al-Qahhār, 45.
- A'mal, 87.
- Amesha-spenṭas, (Z.), 199.
- A'mil, 491.
- Amīr, 491.
- Anā, 99, 107, 261 (614), 559.
- An-al-Haq, 107.
- Anāniyat-i-aḍnā, 226.
- Anāniyat-i-ā'lā, 226.
- Angra, 136, (Z.)
- Angūr, 603.
- Aqāyaḍ, 85.
- A'ql-i-a'shara, the ten primal Intelligences; (S., ḍasha mānasa-putra-s, prajāpati-s, ādi-mahā-rshi-s).
- A'ql-i-awwal, the First Intelligence, Primal Mind, (Skt., Ādi-ṭaṭṭva, Buddhī-ṭaṭṭva).
- A'ql-i-kul, 203-204, 546. Omniscience; Intellectus Mundi; (S., Sarva-jñā, Jñān-ātmā, Īsha, or Jñāna-samashti).
- A'ql-i-ma'āsh, ordinary reason (S., vyakṣa-buddhi, vyashti-buddhi).
- Ard, 199.
- Ā'rf, 87.
- Ā'rif, 398.
- Ar-Rahmān, 90.
- Ar-Razzāq, 45, 264, 285.
- Arsh, 199.
- Arzū, 253.
- Ārzū-i-tawallud, 370.
- Āsēb, 201.
- Āshghāl, 554.
- Asīr, 321.
- Asl, 75.
- As-Shakūr, 545.
- Asṭāfil, 60.
- Aṭāliq, 594.
- Auliya, 424, 476.
- Ayān, manifest, (S., vyakṣa).
- A'yān-i-sābiṭa, 'things manifest'.
- Āyāt, 445.
- A'yaniyat (or a'iniyat)-i-haqiqī, 68, 92.
- Āzād, 321.
- Azal, beginningless; (S. an-ādi). (See Abaḍ).
- Ā'zama, 109.
- Azān, 475.

Azkār, 468.
Az-Zāhir, 45.

BADAL, 215.
Bādī, 292.
Bahisht, 199.
Baiṭ-ullāh, 475.
Banda, (same as a'bd, servant).
Baiṭ-ur-Rahmān, 107.
Baqā, persisting; remaining behind; (S, sh'eshī, a-vi-nāshī); opposite of fanā, extinction, (S., laya).
Bāṭila, 252.
Bāṭin, 423.
Bāṭinī, 445.
Bé-gharazī, 334.
Bé-khudī, 131, 326.
Bé-zārī, 129.
Burūz, 242.
Buṭ, 458.

CHASHM-i-BASĪRAṭ, 158.
Chashm-i-bāṭinī, 544.
Chehlum, 475.
Choghā, 69.

DĀD, 377.
Dahr, Time, Emptiness, (S., Kāla, Shūnya).
Daqāyaq, 91, 100.
Dahriya, one who believes in emptiness, i. e. nothing, (S. shūnya-vādī, nāstika).
Dargāh, 476.
Darvand, 199. (Z.)
Ḍaulaṭ, 223, 323.

Dayānaṭ, 223.
Dēv, 199.
Didah, 335.
Dīdār, 554.
Dīl, 203.
Dīl-bar-dāshṭagī, 129.
Dīn, 323.
Dīzakh, 199.
Duniyā, 323.
Durrat-ul-baizah, (see Yāqut-ul-baizah.)
Ḍurv'esh, 100, 476.

EHRĀM, 454.
Enab, 603.
Īṭabār, 327.
Īṭarāf, 441.

FAIZ, 'grace', 'kindness', (S. prasāda, anu-graha).
Fa'l, 87, 420.
Falak, 'heaven', 'space', (S., ākāsha, loka).
Fanā-f-illāh, 225, 559.
Faqir, 100, 316, 476.
Farishṭa, 199, 266.
Farq, 'separateness', (S., bhēda-bhāva).
Farshār, 199. (Z.)
Farz, 378, 383.
Faskh, 174.
Fasl, or fesāl or infesāl, 'distance', 'separateness', the opposite of wasl (q. v.) or wesāl; (S. bhēda).
Fāṭiha, 475.
Fazāel, 334.
Fikr, 554.

Fiqah, 445.
 Firqah, 477.
 Fisāna, 252, 260.
 Fitna, 252.
 Frāvarshi, 199. (Z.)
 Fuqr, 299, 365, 370.

GHAFFĀR, 260.
 Ghaib-ul-ghuyūb, 245.
 Ghaib-i-Muṭlaq, 245.
 Ghair, 559.
 Ghair-az-Khudā, 116.
 Ghairiyat, 128, 226, 334.
 Ghairiyat-i-étabārī, 68, 92.
 Gharrah, 130.
 Ghaus, 215.
 Ghazzāb, 260.
 Gumbad, 475.

HABS-I-DAM, 554.
 Hādī, 'guide', 'teacher', 'preceptor'; (S, nētā ; guru).
 Hādīs, 446.
 Hādīsūn, 252.
 Hāfizā, 128, 546.
 Hajj, 126, 453, 454.
 Hajr-ul-aswad, 453, 454.
 Hajr-ul-yamān, 453, 454.
 Hakīm, 524.
 Hāl, 554.
 Hālikun, 252.
 Hama-andar-Ūst, or hama-ba-Ūst, 243.
 Hama-az-Ūst, 243.
 Hama-Ūst, 243, 554.
 Haq, 112, 325, 527.
 Haqāyaq, 91.
 Haqīqaṭ, 53, 85.

Haq-shinās, 398.
 Haq-'Tu-i, 107.
 Haṣṭī-i-muṭlaq, 123.
 Hawas, 253.
 Hawas-i-zindagī, 370.
 Helāl, 474.
 Hijāb, veil, screen ; (S., āvarana).
 Hilm, 130.
 Hirs, 228, 253, 321.
 Hirs-i-duniyā, 370.
 Hulūl, 242.

IBĀDAT, 85, 274.
 Iblīs, 199.
 Ibn-ul-waqt, 'son of the time', 'creature of circumstances', 'product of the times'; (S., yuga-kāriṭa, yuga-janita).
 Īd-ul-fitr, 126.
 Īd-uz-zohā, 126.
 Ījād, 242.
 Ījādiyah, 242.
 Ijmā', 446.
 Ikhtiyār, 327.
 Ilhām, 544.
 I'lm, 264, 575, 592.
 I'lm-i-husulī, 544.
 I'lm-i-huzūrī, 543.
 I'lm-i-ikṭisābī, 106.
 I'lm-i-ilhāmī, 106.
 I'lm-i-ishrāqī, 106.
 I'lm-i-istidlālī, 106.
 Ilm-i-kasabī, 106.
 Ilm-i-kashfā, 106.
 Ilm-i-laḍunni, 106.
 I'lm-i-mashhāyī, 106.
 I'lm-i-nazārī, 106.

I'lm-i-rūhānī, 101. (S., Adhyātma-vidyā).
 I'lm-i-safinā, 100.
 I'lm-i-sīnah, 96, 100, 101.
 I'lm-i-wahbī, 106.
 I'lm-i-wajdānī, 106.
 I'lm-kḥwāhish-fa'l, 87, 420.
 Imām, 399, 476.
 Īmān, faith; (S., shraḍdhā).
 Imḍādī, 298.
 Indirāj-i-kul-f-il-kul, 213.
 Infisāl, 334.
 Inkār, 519.
 Inkisār, 130.
 Inqita-ul-ashkāl, 245.
 Insān, 73.
 Insāniyat, 564.
 Insān-ul-haiwānī, 'brutish man'; (S., pashu-purushah).
 Insān-ul-kāmil, 221, 240, 250, 336, 406; (S., ḍivyapurushah).
 Insidādī, 297.
 Iqbāl-mandī, 223.
 Irāḍa, 87, 327.
 I'rfān, 66, 268, 327, 398,
 592.
 Irtiqā, 164, 174.
 Īsār, 406.
 Isbāt-ul-ishāraṭ, 250.
 Isqāt-ul-ishāraṭ, 245, 251.
 I'shq-bāzī, 68.
 I'shq-i-haḡiqī, 270, 326, 348,
 391, 605.
 I'shq-i-majāzī, 270, 348, 391,
 406.
 Ism, 406.
 Ittisāl, 334.

Īzāl, 164.

JABR, 183

Jālū, 516.

Jahān, 'the moving', 'the rushing', 'the world-process',
 the 'whirling', the 'whirled';
 (S., jagat, samsāra).

Jahannum, 199.

Jā'l, 122.

Jalālī, 46, 153, 396.

Jamālī, 46, 395.

Jannaṭ, 199.

Jazbā, 242.

Jehād, 126.

Jins-i-ālā, 123.

Jism-i-kasīf, 204, 207.

Jism-i-kul, 203. Omni-presence, Corpus Mundī; (S.,
 Vaishvā-nara, Sarva-vyāpī,
 Dēha-samashtī, Jagat-ātmā).

Jism-i-latīf, 204, 207.

Jism-i-misāl, 207.

Jism-i-shahādā, 207.

KĀ'BA, 453.

Kaffārā, 441.

Kāfir, 517.

Kalām-Ullāh, 445.

Kalemā, 98, 99, 107, 243.

Kamāl, 199.

Kāmil, 348.

Kāmi-no-michi, 83. (Sh., Jap.)

Kanḡūrī, 475.

Karāmāt, 199.

Kasf, 320.

Kashf, 543.

Kasrat, 506, 558.

- Kasrat-dar-sifāt, 558.
 Kasrat-dar-Wahdat, multiplicity-in-Unity.
 Kāyanāt, 266.
 Khair-i-mahz, 390.
 Khālifa, 398, 476.
 Khāliq, 292.
 Khālī-uz-zehn, 554.
 Khalq, 327.
 Khāneqāh, 367, 476.
 Khashm, 325, 370.
 Khatrah, 554; 'fear', 'danger',
 'anxiety', 'heart-experience',
 'psychical experience'; (S., kshobha, vi-kshépa, ābhya-ntar-ānu-bhava).
 Khayāl, 87, 252, 253, 260.
 Khidmat-i-khalq, 327.
 Khūbī, 125.
 Khud, 226, 326.
 Khudā, 136, 163, 226, 320,
 334, 348, 519.
 Khudā-i-mua'yyan, 92.
 Khud-gharzi, 334.
 Khud-hisābī, ('keeping account of one-self'), 396.
 Khudī, 136, 137, 226, 319,
 320, 321, 334, 348, 383,
 519, 559.
 Khwāb, 260.
 Khwāb-i-Khudā, 252.
 Khwāhish, 87, 327, 420.
 Kitāb-ul-Mubīn, 'the open book'; the Lauh-i-mahfūz
 (q. v.) made plain, or in detailed manifestation.
 Kufr, 319, 320, 324.
 Kun, 239.
 Lā-BA-SHART-I-SHAY, 118, 245.
 Lā-haq, 319.
 Lahw, 68, 251, 252, 324.
 Lahwun, 252.
 Laīb, 68.
 Laībun, 252.
 Lā ilāh ill-Allāh, 98.
 Lā ilāhā illā Anā, 99, 107,
 261 (614).
 Lā-intihā, 246.
 Lā-mā'būdāh-illā-Hu, 243, 553.
 Lā-maqsūdāh-illā-Hū, 553.
 Lā-mashahūdāh-illā-Hū, 243.
 Lā-ma-siwā-Allāh, 261.
 Lā-maujūdāh-illā-Hū, 243, 261.
 Lā-sānī, 116.
 Lā-ta'iyyun, 245.
 Laṭāyaf-i-sitta, 'plexuses',
 'ganglia'; (S. chakra-s, kanda-s, pitha-s).
 Lauh, 199.
 Lauh-i-mahfūz, 128, 545, 546.
 Lazzat-ul-duniyā, 223, 225.
 Lazzat-ul-Ilāhiya, 225.
 Lutf, 320.
 MAINYU, 136. (Z.)
 Majhūl-un-nā't, 245. 'Indescribable'; (S., a-nir-vachanīya).
 Majbūr, 183.
 Malāyak, 199, 424.
 Mālik, 163.
 Mā'lūm-i-mā'dūm, 'the known
 (as) non-existent'; (S., nishédha-jñāta; a-bhāva-jñāta. See Aham-Etāt-Na).
 Mā'milāt, 85, 422.

- Mana', 239.
 Maṇqūlāt, 106.
 Maqāmāt, 202.
 Māqūlāt, 106.
 Mard-i-atamm, 240.
 Mā'rifaṭ, 53, 91, 268.
 Mashīyat, 544.
 Mā-siwā-Allah, 116, 319.
 Masjīd, 475.
 Maskh, 174.
 Masmū', 106.
 Masnawī, 75.
 Matbū', 106.
 Maulā, 163, 568.
 Maulavī, 524, 568, 575, 594.
 Maulūd, 464.
 Mazlūr, 491.
 Mazhar-i-aṭamm, 221, 240, 242.
 Méhr-i-sheikh, 363.
 Me'rāj, 'nearness' to God ; highest 'ascent' of soul to God ; (S., sāmīpya-mukṭi).
 Miskīn, 100, 476.
 Mizāj, 524.
 Mohkamāt, 74.
 Mo'jizah, 199.
 Mokammal, 348.
 Momin, 399.
 Mua'ilim, 594.
 Muā'yinā, 554.
 Mua'zzin, 463, 476.
 Muftī, 476.
 Muhabbat, 406.
 Muharram, 126, 464.
 Mujāhidā, 327, 554.
 Mujānibat, 129, 360, 594.
 Mujāwir, 476.
 Mukāshifā, 554.
 Mukhtār, 183.
 Mulk, 204.
 Mullā, 476.
 Mumkin-ul-wujūd, 'possible of existence'; (S. sam-bhāvya-saṭ)
 Munārā, 475.
 Munāzilāt, 327, 360, 594.
 Munqata-ul-ishārat, 118.
 Murāqibā, 554.
 Murīd, 'the orderable', 'pupil', 'disciple'; (S., shishya, 'the orderable', 'the teachable'). (See Pīr-murīd).
 Murshid, 207, 393, 398, 476.
 Mushābihāt, 74.
 Mushāhidā, 554.
 Mushrik, 'one who joins another with God,' (S., bhūṭa-larshī, dvaitī, bahu-dēva-vādī). (See Shirk).
 Mutawallī, 476.
 Mutrib, 416.
 Muwahhid, 'monist,' 'unitarian'. (S., a-dvaitī).
 Muzil-war, 491.
 NABī, 100, 215, 406, 476.
 Naḍm, 441.
 Nafs, 203, 204, 319.
 Nafs-i-ammārā, 204, 334, 348.
 Nafs-i-jārī, 204, 207.
 Nafs-i-kul, 203.
 Nafs-i-lawwāmā, 204, 348.
 Nafs-i-mulhimā, 204, 348.
 Nafs-i-muqīm, 204, 207.

- Nafs-i-mutmainnā, 204, 348.
 Nafs-i-rahmānī, 204, 334, 348.
 Nafs-i-nātiqā, 203.
 Nafs-kushī, 468, 553.
 Nā-haq, 319.
 Najāt, 208, 225, 268, 559.
 Namāz, 126, 422, 475, 553.
 Namūd, appearance'; phenomenon; (S., prati-bhāsa, ā-bhāsa); opposed to būd, noumenon, being, (S., param-ārtha, tātṭvika, sat).
 Nām-warī, 323.
 Nāriyān, 374.
 Naskh, 174.
 Nāsūt, 204.
 Nazūl, 384.
 Nefesh, 203. (Ju., Heb.)
 Né'mat-i-dunyawī, 223.
 Neschāmah, 203. (Ju., Heb.)
 Nihān, hidden, unmanifest, (S., a-vyakta, gūḍha, gupta).
 Nūr, 264.
 Nūr-i-Qāhir, 76, 264.
 Nūriyān, 374.
 Nūsmā, 203.

 ORMAZD (or Hurmuzd, i. e., Ahura Mazadā), 109. (Z.)

 PĀPISHĀH, 598.
 Paigham-bar, 62.
 Pāk-dāmanī, 370.
 Parhéz, 370, 553.
 Parī, 199.
 Pārsā, 553.
 Pīr, 393, 398, 424, 476.
 Pīr-i-mughān, 207.
 Pīr-murīd, 475.
 Pīr-i-murshīd, 594.

 QĀDIR, 66.
 Qabīlah, 194.
 Qadr, 183.
 Qahhār, 157.
 Qalb, heart, (S. hṛī, hṛdaya).
 Qalb-ul-insān, 107.
 Qaul, 87.
 Qaus-i-nazūl, 92, 131, 251, 281, 357.
 Qaus-i-urūj, 92, 131, 250, 251, 281, 357.
 Qayāmat, 'the static state'; 'the state of rest'; the Last Day; the Day of Judgment; (S., pralaya; 'the Sleep of God').
 Qayās, 446.
 Quḍrat, 326.
 Qurān, 446. (Passim.)
 Qurb-i-farāyaz, 242.
 Qurb-i-nawāfil, 242.
 Qutb, 215.

 RAHM, 66.
 Rahm, 129, 326.
 Rahmān, 66, 260, 470.
 Ramzān, 465.
 Raskh, 174.
 Rasūl, 62, 100, 215, 406, 476, 507.
 Raushan-zamīrī, 199, 544.
 Razāel, 334.
 Rijāṭ, 174.
 Riyāzat, 274, 554.

- Rizq, 285.
 Rozā, 126, 468.
 Rūh, 160, 204, 344, 381.
 Rūh-i-ālam, 176.
 Rūh-i-āzam, 176, 381.
 Rūh-i-jārī, (See nafs-i-jārī).
 Rūh-i-kul, 203.
 Rūh-i-muqīm, (See nafs-i-muqīm).
 Rūh-ul-quḍs, 'holy soul', 'holy spirit', 'Holy Ghost'. (S. pavitr-ātmā, livy-ātmā).
 Rūh-ul-rūh, (or Rūh-ul-arwāh) 176, 381.
- SAFĀ, 246.
 Safar-i-abl, 131.
 Safar-i-Haq, 131.
 Sair-i-āfāqī, extro-spection; 'travel in space', i. e. the outside world.
 Sair-i-nafa'i, 327, intro-spection; 'travel within the mind'.
 Sajjādā, 476.
 Sajjādā-nashīn, 476.
 Salāt, 126.
 Sālik, 278.
 Salīm, 239.
 Salm, 80.
 Sar-āb, 252.
 Saum, 126.
 Saut-i-sarmadī, 'the eternal and incessant voice without sound and direction'; 'the voice of the silence'; 'the word that was with God, and was God'; (S., an-āha-ṭa-nāḍa; AUM, OM).
- Sērī-az-duniyā, 129.
 Shab-bēdārī, 468.
 Shahādāt, 410.
 Shahwat, 325, 370.
 Shaidā, 393.
 Shaṭṭān, 199.
 Shakhsīyat-i-adnā, 226.
 Shān, potency, power; (pl. shuyūn, shuyūnāt; S., shakti, vībhūti).
 Shānī, 109.
 Shanīdah, 335.
 Shara'i-mullā, 101.
 Sharā'it, 85, 420, 422.
 Sheikh, 393, 398, 476.
 Shirk, 319, 320.
 Shohraṭ, 323.
 Shuhūd, 242, 263.
 Shuhūdiyah, 242, 243.
 Shuṭṭahiyāt, 108.
 Shuyūnāt, 266, 326.
 Sifāt, 245, 263, 296.
 Sitārā, 474.
 Spēṭa, 136. (Z.)
 Subhānī, 109.
 Sūf, 246.
 Sūfī (sects). 392.
 Sūfī, 246. (Throughout). (See Tasawwuf).
 Sūfī-auliya, 101.
 Sūfiṣṭa, 246.
 Sukn, 365, 370.
 Sūrah, 445.
 Surūr-i-Jāwēdānī, 390.
- TĀ'RUM, 475.
 Ta'iyun, limitation; (S., ava-ḥḥēda, pari-miṭi).

- Ṭabaq, 199.
 Ṭabīyaṭ-i-kul, 203. Omnipotence; Anīma Mundi; (S., Sūtra-ātmā, Prāṇa-samāshṭi, Hiraṇya-garbha, Sarva-shakṭi).
 Ṭabliḡh, 521.
 Ṭafraqā, 122, 334.
 Ṭafsīr, 445.
 Ṭahzīb-un-nafs, 553.
 Ṭājir, 491.
 Ṭajrīd, 325.
 Ṭakabbur, 130.
 Ṭakiyā, 476.
 Ṭakiyā-dār, 476.
 Ṭajalli, illumination; (S. prakāsha).
 Ṭ'ama', 228, 321.
 Ṭ'ama'-i-zar, 370.
 Ṭ'amannā, 252.
 Ṭanāsukh, 164.
 Ṭanazzulāt, 'descents', involution, d-e-volution; falling deeper and deeper into Matter; (S. av-āroha).
 Ṭanqīya-i-qalb, 554.
 Ṭanzīh, 245, 251.
 Ṭāo, 83. (T., Chin.)
 Ṭaqasshuf, 274.
 Ṭaraqīyāt, 'ascents', e-volution; rising more and more out of Matter. (S. ā-roha).
 Ṭ'aqālīs, 467.
 Ṭardīd-ul-hayākāl, 245.
 Ṭā'rīf, 323.
 Ṭarīqaṭ, 85, 420.
 Ṭark, 327.
 Ṭark-i-daulat, 325.
 Ṭark-i-duniyā, 337.
 Ṭark-i-haiwānāt, 463.
 Ṭark-i-izā-rasānī, 325.
 Ṭark-i-khudī, 82.
 Ṭark-i-Maulā, 337.
 Ṭark-i-shahwaṭ, 325.
 Ṭark-i-u'qbā, 337.
 Ṭark-i-sitam, 325.
 Ṭark-i-ṭark, 337.
 Ṭasalluf, 252.
 Ṭasawwuf, 57, 101, 110, 246, 356, 603.
 Ṭasbīh, 467.
 Ṭasfīya-i-dil, 356.
 Ṭashbīh, 245, 250.
 Ṭashrīh, 445.
 Ṭauhīd-i-afā'li, 545.
 Ṭauhīd-i-sifāṭi, 545.
 Ṭauhīd-i-zāti, 545.
 Ṭawajjuh-i-Ilāhī, 363.
 Ṭawajjuh-i-Ilqāi, 363.
 Ṭawakkul, 369.
 Ṭawallā, 370.
 Ṭawāf, 454.
 Ṭāwīz, 474.
 Ṭāziā, 465.
 U'LEMĀ, 476.
 Ul-ul-albāb, 491.
 Ul-ul-amr, 491.
 Ul-ul-i'lm, 491.
 Ummuhāt-i-sifī, 295.
 Umm-ul-kiṭāb, 'the mother of books'; Lauh-i-mahfūz (q. v.).
 Urūj, 384.
 Uzam, 603.

- WAHDAT, 2, 188, 260, 334, 506, 558.
 Wahdat-dar-Kasrat, Unity-in-multiplicity.
 Wahdat-dar-zāt, 558.
 Wahm, 319.
 Wajd, 242, 554.
 Wājib-ul-wujud, 380. 'Necessarily existent'; (S. atyanta-sat; kūtaṣṭha-sat).
 Walhum, 252.
 Wali, 215.
 Wasl or wesāl, or ittīsāl, 242; (the opposite of fasl or fesāl).
 Watad, 215.
 Wujūd, 242, 264.
 Wujūd-i-bahat, 245.
 Wujūd-i-mutlaq, 'pure Being', 'absolute existence'; (S. sattā-mātra, san-mātra, shuddha-sat, ékānta-saṭṭā, atyanta-saṭṭā).
 Wujūdiyyah, 242, 25.
 Wuzū, ablution before prayer; (S. prakṣhālana, snāna).
 YASHT, 109. (Z.)
 Yāqūt-ul-baizah, Ḍurraṭ-ul-baizah, the 'egg of chryso-lite', the 'egg-pearl'; (S. Brahm-ānda, Hiranya-garbha, Andam Haimam, 'the Golden Egg', Jyotir-lingam, the 'Pillar of Light,' primal nebula).
 Yazd, 199.
 ZABT-I-NAFS, 325.
 Zakāṭ, 126, 444.
 Zamīn, 321.
 Zan, 321.
 Zar, 321.
 Zarrā, 123.
 Zāt, 295.
 Zāt-i-lā-sifāt, 245.
 Zāt-i-mutlaq, 118.
 Zāt-i-sādiq, 118, 245.
 Zaujain, 157, 374.
 Ziddain, 157, 374.
 Zikr, 554.
 Zindīq, free thinker, sceptic, unbeliever, atheist; (S. n-āstika); (opposite of Siddiq).
 Zohd, 274, 398, 575, 592, 599.
 Zunnār, 474.
 Zurrā, 491.

VERIFICATION OF REFERENCES

The following, which should have been included in the Note on Texts (pp. xxvi-xlv), was not put in there, by inadvertence :

After the first edition was published, some friends wrote that textual references should have been given more precisely, by chapter and verse. The difficult conditions unfavorable to scholarly detail and exactitude under which this compilation has been made, have been mentioned before, (pp. xi, xii, xxxiii, supra). But the reader, who has the inclination and the leisure, will be able to verify most of the texts quoted, with the help of the following :

Jacob's Concordance to the Upanishats and the Bhagavad-Gītā.

Vishvēśhvar-ānand and Nity-ānand's Alphabetical Index of the Four Vedas.

Any good Concordance to the Bible.

Concordance to the Qurān (Mifṭā-ul-Qurān), by Rev. Ahmad Shah.

Manu-pāṭ-ānu-kramanī, a Concordance to the Manu-Smṛiti, (published by The Gyān-mandal, Benares).

J. M. Chatterjee's and A. N. Bilimoria's edition of the Gāthā.

Treasure-House of Living Religions, by R. E. Hume.

GENERAL INDEX OF SUBJECTS

- ABSOLUTE, Absoluteness, Absolution, 85, 118, 155, 157, 224, 245, 559; has no beginning or ending, xvii.
Accidents, historical, economic, geographic, physiographic, etc., why and how, xix.
Acquisitiveness, 322, 370, 484.
Action and Reaction, Law of, 48, 175-176, 189, 374.
Action reveals heart-conviction, 530.
Activism, 86.
Adam and Eve, 352.
A-dvaitism, 525.
Āgṛhā-kṣāṇism, 525.
Agreement, universal, test of the Essential and Universal Religion, xviii, 54; expands, 126; of all Religions, declared by all Founders themselves, 59-67; joy of, 67-73.
Ahl-i-Haḍīṣism, 525.
Ahmadiyanism, 525.
Allegories, 102.
Alliance for Existence, 323, 581.
All in All, 213-214.
Also, not Only but, 409-410.
Altruism, xv; 129, 131, 303, 336. (See Egoism and Universalism).
Ambivalence, 39-42, 45, 79, 223, 268, 330, 559. (See Duality).
Amen, Āmīn, AUM, the same, 434.
Analogy, Law of, 128, 208-214, 346, 612; between Sleep and Death, 347.
Anchorites, 476.
Angels, 133-134, 137, 241; meaning of names of, 199-201.
Anima Mundi, 143. (See Mundi.)
Animal-in-man, Sacrifice of, 468.
Animal sacrifice, disapproved by all religions, 468-473.
Answer, the Final, 386-387.
Appetites, of Eating, Mating, Speaking, and Hunger, Sex, Acquisitiveness, 286; egoistic root-, and their sublimated forms, 321-323; the altruistic or counter-, 325; three cures for three, 370; four physical and four psychical 484-485.
Arcs of Descent and Ascent of the Soul, 92, 131, 164, 250, 276, 281, 356-357, 384. (See Ascent).
Art, and Religion, 465; perverted, 581.

Arya, meaning of, 73 ; 104.

Āryanism, or Ārya-Samājism, 525.

Asiatic Thought, colored by Religion, 7.

Ascent, stages of, 240-244, 281. (See Arcs and Descent).

Asceticism, 278, 515.

Associations. (See Philanthropic).

Astrological Astronomy, 504.

Atheism, 519.

Atlantean Race, 202.

Atom, 213.

Attributes, and Substratum, 153 ; 210-211 ; of the Attributeless, 245.

Awful and Beautiful, 266, 395-396.

Azazel, fall of the archangel, 133 ; meaning of, 133-134.

BĀBISM, 525.

Bacchanalia, 473.

Bahā-ism, 525.

Balance, of mind, how achieved, 41 ; of Pleasure and Pain in life, 374-376.

Battle, internal, 330-331. (See Conflict).

Be, to be known is to, 139.

Beatitude, 225.

Beautiful, the 46, 266, 396.

Beauty, 31, 46, 518, 553 ; an aspect of God, 395 ; desires to be admired, 263. (See Truth).

Bene-ficence, Bene-science, Bene-volence, 271.

Being, and Non-Being, 112, 118 ; planes of, 191 ; types of, 170.

Beloved, the One, of all, 69-70.

Bhaktism, 525.

Blessed are the poor in heart, 359.

Blessedness, Bliss, Divine, 225 ; names of, 228 ; 258 ; 381 ; 390.

Birth-control, means to death-control, 512.

Births and deaths, freedom from involuntary, how gained, 208 ; 238.

Bodies, three, of man and God, 203.

Body, macrocosmic, 203 ; triple, 203 ; and soul, 203-208 ; how subtle, may be rightly developed, 347.

♣ Bread, Spiritual and Material, 16, 285-287, 332, 466, 478 ; sacredness of the daily, 287, 428.

Bridge, between Egoism and Altruism, hair's-breadth, 349 ; the Chinvaṭ, 350 ; the sword-edge, 350-351.

Brotherhood, 26, 27, 219 ; Universal, 7, 571.

♣ Buddhism, xxvi, xxviii-xxix, in China and Japan, 71, 83 ; identical with Vēdānta and Jainism ré Supreme

- Self, 108, 145; as reform within Védism, 525. (Throughout).
- CASTE, dissensions, 15; soul has no, 66; curse of hereditary, 135; true meaning of, 478-498; not by birth, but by worth, 509.
- Caste-system, as Social Organisation, 478-498; 513-514; degeneration of, 496-497.
- Catchwords, 523; 578.
- Cause and Effect, Law of, 175.
- Causation, 175-180: three views of, 243; 256.
- Chance, (is Unknown Cause), 146, 185.
- Change and Changelessness, 50, 112, 144, 189, 261-262.
- Chaos, Deep Sleep of, 260; Cosmos in, 261.
- Character and Occupation, 508; building of good and strong, 574; degeneration of, in all departments of life, 575-576.
- Charity, 32; to be discriminate, 445; 529.
- Child-mind, 51; not to be disturbed, 150-153; 158; 185; be tender to the, 448-450; 459.
- Christianity, xxvi. (Throughout).
- 'Christ liveth in me', 341-343.
- Circumstances. (See Accidents, and Duty).
- Civilisation, threefold, 88; relation of, to threefold education, 89-90; Védist, founded on three main factors, the Mother, the Educator, the Defender, 402; tetrad of, 490; Indian social organisation and 507; false and true, 576-592; Modern, a vast Rake's Progress, 576, 583.
- Cleanliness, triple, 88-90; next to godliness, 467; how mis-interpreted in Hinduism, 467.
- Comedy and Tragedy of the World-process, 260. (See Play, and World-process).
- Commandments, Five, 271-274; additional, 274-278; 502.
- Communism, 58, 376, 560, 584-586.
- Compassion, passionate, 129, 432, 360.
- Complexes, 322. (See Psychoanalysis).
- Conditions, accidental. (See Accidents).
- Confession, 345, 441-443.
- Conflict, 49, 330-333, 351, 560-567.
- Confucianism, xxvi, xxviii, 9, 71. (Throughout).
- Conscience, 104, 107, 184, 304, 331, 401.

- Consciousness Universal * Creations and destructions, countless repeated, 166 ; nature and cause of, 260-262.
 Principle of, 48 ; indefeasible Immortality of, 113 ; as partless, breakless, unique, Self-, 118-126 ; Spiritual, or Super-mind, 129 ; God's, the Universal Self's, all-pervading, all-including, 138, 139 ; the one Maintainer of the Universe, 158 ; the Ultimate Mystery, our very Self, 163 ; Continuum of, and Nature of, 186-187 ; Universality of 187-188 ; three states of, 204 ; All-Self-, 229 ; as Universal Mind, 546 ; of the Universal Self, i. e. the Principle of Consciousness, includes the human Conscious as well as Unconscious, 562. (See God and Self).
Consequences, reward and punishment, sure, of good deeds and sins, 177-188.
Continuum, Continuity, of Nature, due to Unity of Self, 186.
Continence, 369, 512.
Control, of tongue, secret of all, 281-287 ; of mind, for intro-spection, 329 ; of birth and death, 512.
Conversion, forced, in religion, 521-522.
Correspondences, 210.
Cosmic Mind, 211.
Cosmos, 213, 214, 261.
 Creed-marks, 474-482.
 Cyclicity, Law of, 133, 239.
 Danger, great, of self-deception, by believing one's own individual self to be the Supreme Self, 132-138 ; of mistaking personal love for Universal Love, 348 ; of eroticism, and of excessive dependence, in devotional cults, 391-397 ; of black magic, 576 ; of fanatic belief that one's own religion is the best for all, xiv, 517 ; of excessive clinging to outer forms and words, 520-526 ; of self-indulgence under pretence of God's Will, 557.
 Death, how conquered, by yoga-methods, in the super-physical sense, 208 ; how, in the metaphysical sense, 208, 223-237, 333-348, 517-519 ; flash of panoramic memory at, 346 ; preparation for, (euthanasia), 347 ; gateway to larger life, 419 ; judgment on soul after, 529, 547.
 Debts, four congenital, 390-391, social, 487, 489.
 Decay, periodic, 221.

- Deeds, good and dutiful, indispensable, 529; prove the real faith, 530; 550.
- Degeneration of religions, 9, 19, 559.
- Deism, 242.
- Deity in image and shrine, 446-447.
- Deliverance, 224.
- Democratism, 58.
- Democracy, method of, in religion, xiv, xviii, 18, 55, 60.
- Descent, 250-252; 289. (See Arcs and Ascent).
- Desire, one of the three Functions of the Mind, 85-7; corresponds to the Way of Devotion, 85, 270-333; Divine, 262; subtle self-deceiving, 280; the Primal Force or Energy, 345; men are what they, 344-345; and Desirelessness, proper time for each, 385; the Root-Cause of the Universe, 394; the Self-same Heart's, of All, 603-604.
- Destiny and Free-Will, 177-180; 183-186; 380-381, 551.
- Determinism. (See Destiny).
- Devil, 330. (See Satan, and God inverted).
- Devils, 199.
- Devotees, visions of, 448-450.
- Devotion, safest form of, 397; Way of, 270-420; one of three integral Constituents of Religion, 85-86; 270, 420; mutual, of each to all, all to each, 381; personal and impersonal, sterile without virtuous and dutiful acts, 529; dangers of excessive, (see Danger).
- Dharma, meaning of, 79, 81.
- "Die before you die", 206.
- Dietetics, 479.
- Difference, Discord, (See Agreement). 13-14, 65, 68, 79, 127, 140-142, 506, 558.
- Disarmament, moral, must come first, 30.
- Disciple and Master, 475.
- Disciplines. (See Virtues).
- Discord, spirit of, 15.
- Discourse, speechless, 161.
- Discovery, the Great, 232-234.
- Dis-gust with the world, disillusionment, dis-passion, dis-taste for life, 129-132, 249, 327, 329, 360, 594. (See World-weariness).
- Dissolution, 230.
- Diversity, 14. (See Difference).
- Divine, Bliss, (See Blessedness); Fire, periodic renewal of, 220; Heartache, 238; Union, 387; Will-and-Imagination, 412; Will, (see Will); Harp, the human body, 416-417.

"Doctors disagree", 12, 523-524.

Doctrine of the Eye, 101 ; of the Heart, 100 ; of the Page, 100.

'Domestics', 580.

Dreams, may be purified and beautified by prayer before sleep, 347.

Duality, of God's Nature, in all aspects of the World-Process, 35-50 ; how transcended, 42 ; of attributes and names of God, 44-49 ; of Sex, 47 ; of souls, minds, higher and lower, altruist and egoist, in each person, 49 ; Law of, 79 ; of the ends of life, 223, 268-269 ; 330-331 ; 353 ; 473 ; 558. (See Opposites).

Duty, varies with circumstance, 74, 308, 316-317 ; is neither sin nor merit, 184 ; the Whole, of Mah, in brief, 271 ; difference of, 278 ; to rear up virtuous progeny, 288 ; conflict of, 312 ; reconciliation, 313 ; general and special, 314 ; meaning of the word, 377 ; means to equability, 377 ; devotion to, 376-379 ; becomes Joy, 384 ; necessity to know what the exact duty is, in any given situation, 479 ; the only right, 541 ; active performance of, indispensable, 538-539 ; 552.

EAST and West, 8-14.

Economics, 579.

Ecstatic utterances of Mystics, 107-112.

Eden, Garden of, 221, 351.

Education, relation of, to civilisation, 89-90, 568 ; consequences of wrong, 569 ; wrong and right, 586-587.

Education and the Educationist, 568 602.

Educationists, duty of, 27-33 ; 54-55 ; to teach Universal Religion, 55-59 ; should combine austerity and wisdom, 592-593 ; pure livelihood necessary for, 595 ; make or mar State and Civilisation, 595 ; right and duty of, to guide, direct, correct, reprove, rulers and public servants, 595-597.

Ego, Universal, 344. (See Self).

Egoism. xiv ; and nationalism, vs. Humanism, xxiv ; 80, 84, 127, 130, 136, 225, 321, 326-327, 349, 383, 558 ; hardens the heart, 131 ; must be dissolved, to see God, 132 ; the real Satan, 137 ; and 'personality', 148 ; the measure of Altruism, 303 ; the single root of all sins, 319 ; and Altruism, the only two

- 'm o r a l' principles, 336 ;
 383. (See Altruism and Universalism).
 Egyptian religion, views ré'
 soul in, 203.
 Elephant, and six blind men,
 story of, 602.
 Elixir of Life, 417.
 Emotions, the chief, 317-318,
 331-332.
 Empires and Religion, 507.
 End, the Permanent and the temporary, xxiv-xxv.
 Ends of Life. (See Values).
 Energism, 86, 244.
 Enlightenment, meaning of,
 93.
 Epicureanism. (See Stoicism).
 Equality, 212; and Fraternity and Liberty, 592.
 Equilibrium, 41, 189, 314-376.
 Eros, as Love-Lust, 134 ; the Prime Creator, 395 ; unbridled, the worst enemy, 512.
 Erotic language of Mysticism,
 388-389. (See Danger).
 Error, always in the extremes,
 44 ; the Primal, 319 ; the five 'phalanges,' 'joints', successive stages of, 352.
 Esoteric teachings, 97-103 ;
 445.
 Essenes, the, 97, 98.
 Essence vs. Form, 57 ; 153.
 Essential and Non-Essential, xiii ; 9 ; 33 ; 73-77 ; religion,
 57, 301-303 ; in orthodox
 Islam and; in Védism, 126-128.
 Eternal, the, Miracle, 252 ;
 Now, 546 ; Peace, 2, 14, 26-
 28, 228, 248, 250, 280, 376,
 558-568.
 Ethics, 270.
 Eugenics, 497.
 European thought, colored by Science, 8.
 Evil, 50, 136, 156, 247-248 ;
 is No-Thing, 248 ; of nationalism, 29, 577. (See Good).
 Evolution, psychical, and physical, xvi, xvii ; 25 ; 162 ;
 174 ; the ladder of, 167,
 555-556, 222 ; 224.
 Excess, the one Sin, 34-36 ;
 38 ; 44.
 Experiences, all, must be passed through by all souls,
 374-375 ; 406.
 Expiation, 441-444.
 Explosives, psychical, the most terrible, xx.
 Extremes, 34-36, 38-44.
 FACULTY, Extensions of, 199.
 Faith, blind, 392 ; without
 Works is dead, 535.
 Fall and Rise, arcs of, 92.
 Falsehood; the Primal, 319.
 Familiarity breeds Contempt,
 135.
 Family, life of, an End, 223 ;
 the Divine Happy, 294 ; the whole world, God's, 295.

Fascism, 58.

Fasts, 468.

Fate, 185.

Father-hood. (See Paternity).

Faults, see your own, more than others', 305-306.

Female, duality of Male and, 47.

Final Judge, the, 404.

Food, far-reaching effects of pure and impure, 287 ; animal, disapproved by all religions, 471-473 ; four main types of, 484.

Forced conversion forbidden, 522.

Forms, ceremonials, dresses, similarity in, 477.

Fraternity, 219, 592.

Freedom, 84, 224.

Free-Will. (See Destiny).

Funerals, 475.

Fruit-vendor, the four strangers and the, story of, 603.

Fruit of Life, the, 603-605.

'GENES' 503-504.

Gentleman, meaning of, 73.

Ghosts, 201.

Glands. (See Plexuses).

Gnosis, Gnosticism, 85 ; 244 ; 592.

Goal of Life, 149 ; 223-269 ; 387 ; 486. (see Values).

God, (see Self) ; indefeasible need for, 28-29 ; Science, the Synthesis of all things, 33 ; the Universal, Infinite, Eternal, Immortal, Supreme Self, 81, 85, etc. ; in man, 35, 138, 148, 159-161, 333, 346, 565 ; Will of, 81, (see Will) ; very easy, also very difficult, to find, 95 ; forgets Himself into Man, 90 ; Nature, and Man, 91, 292-294, 564 ; the Universal I, the Supreme Self, No-Thing-Else, 116 ; and Satan both within us, 138 ; names of, 140-144, 265 ; creates both Good and Evil, 152, 156 ; and Son of God, 160 ; becoming like, merging into, becoming, 224-225, 268 ; kingdom of, 225 ; 361 ; the whole Universe, the family of, 294, 397 ; and Mammon, 93, 363 ; in victim and victimiser both, 368-369 ; inverted is Satan, 134, 368, 519, 576 ; kingdom of, taken by storm, 361 ; replaces Man, 340, 344 ; shows himself to the deserving, 362 ; the 'grace' of, 363 ; the broken heart, the true home of, 364, 366 ; give up all to find, 365 ; love of, the only Way, 367 ; submission to, 369, 378 ; is Love, Love is, 381 ; who knows not Love knows not, 382 ; Himself tastes and suffers all weals and woes, compassions and cruelties, beauties and horrors, 405-

- 406; Houses of, 413; all forms His, 414; the pure in heart see, 449; the word of, 445; living temples of, 457; desires mercy, not murder, 471; live and die for, 527; moveth all, yet Duty must be done, 551. (See Consciousness, I, Self).
- Gods and Titans, 351-354.
- Golden Age, the, 132.
- Golden Mean, the, 15; achieved by Right Social Organisation, 573.
- Golden Rule, the 15, 13, 297-317, 328, 479, 481, 513; negative and positive forms of, 297; origin of dual state-functions, 297-298; essence of all religion, 299; various forms of, xxix-xxx, 298-303; corollaries of, 304-306; reason for, 306-307; difficulties ré, 307-317; how difficulties ré, may be solved, 308, 313; Social Organisation indispreable for working, 479-481.
- Good, 31, 384-386, 553; (See Summum Bonum); like Evil, is No-Thing, 249; the, and the Pleasant reconciled, 383-385; and Evil, 50, 136; both created by God, 152; both in every one, 156, 157, 247-249, 350-352.
- Goodness, Truth, Beauty, 31. (See Truth).
- Grades of evolutionary types, 172.
- Greed, 28.
- Guru, the quality of the true, 594.
- Hair's-breadth line between Selfishness and Un-selfishness 349, 350.
- Happiness, here and hereafter, the One Way to, xix; 84; 360, 390, 487.
- Harmony, how secured, 409.
- Hate, 28; extinguished by Love, not by Hate, 304, 308-310; 328; as the Un-Truth of Separateness, 331.
- Heart, large and small 72 human, throne of God, 107; change of, needed to see God, 130-132; cleansing of the, 356; parental, more needed in teacher than clever head, 574-575.
- Heartache, the Divine, 238, 258.
- Heaven, the Way of, 180; 199; 349; kingdom of, on earth, its meaning and nature, 590-591.
- *Hebrew Védānta, 247.
- Hell, 199, 349.
- Helper needed by young Soul, 408.
- Here, the Infinite, 51.
- Heredity, 500-503, 506.
- Hierarchy, the Spiritual, 6, 214-222.

Hinduism, (See Védism.)

Holy of Holies, in the heart, 533.

Home, 297; return to, 230; the Treasury in the, 236.

Humanism, 30, 31, 82.

Humility, the crowning virtue, 356-373; a form of Truth and Non-Egoism, 369; feel, not show, always, 371; 404-405.

Hunger, 286, 322, 499.

Husband-Wife, the Primal, 295-296; make or mar one another, 295, 615.

'I', (See Self, God, Consciousness); the, is All, 109, 125; 'I am that I am', 109; alone is wholly True, Real, 112; senses the senses, 114; all the most baffling, elusive, contradictory, unintelligible descriptions of God, the Absolute, become suddenly lighted up and perfectly intelligible when applied to the 'I', 118, 122-129; contains all Good and all Evil, 157; the nearest and dearest name of God is the, 163; wears, bears, every name and form, and knows, desires, does every thing that is known, desired, done, 163; is the Ultimate Mystery, 163; the Universal, in All, the cause of the Law of Karma. and the reason for the Golden Rule, 306; the Religion of the, 517-518.

Identification of soul and God, the purpose of Love-Devotion, 343.

'Id-s', 503.

Illusion, (Māyā), 66, 92, 122, 252, 257, 324, 326.

Illumination, 85; 421; 527; grades of inner, 544.

Image-worship, 450.

Imagination, miracle of, 252.

Imagination and Will, 253. 412. (See Will).

Immortal, buy the, with the Mortal, 237, 342.

Immortality, meaning of, and how gained, 84, 342.

Impostors, 402-405.

Incarnation, 216-222, 267.

Indescribable, the, 122.

India, her mission, 562.

Individual, the not to be overvalued, xiv, xvi; becomes Universal, 226; liberty, 58-59, 226; and Society, 479-496.

Infinite, the, 223, 226, 324-325, 362. (See Self).

Initiates, 100.

Inner eye, the, 158.

Inquisition and Inquisitors, the 368, 521, 559.

Instincts, 322, 370, 484-5.

Institutions, four fundamental social, 486.

Intellect and Intuition, 104.

Inter-dependence of all, 489.
 Interpretation of Scriptures,
 many ways of, 210-211.
 Inter-nationalism, 31.
 Inter-religionism, 31.
 Introspection, 157, 159, 329,
 330.
 Intuition, 104.
 Invocation of the Spirit of
 Unity, 1-7.
 Involution-and-Evolution, 164.
 (See Evolution).
 Islām, xxvi, xxvii ; meaning of, 80, 83 ; 85. (Throughout.)

JAINISM, xxix, 108, 145.
 (Throughout).
 Jaina Temples, 461.
 Jealousy, racial, national,
 political, 15 ; 28, 394.
 Jen, (Ü.) the Higher Self, 336.
 Judaism (or Hebraism,
 the Jewish religion), xxvi.
 (Throughout).
 Justice, 184.

KAMI-NO-MICHI, (Sh.) 83.
 Kan-nagara, (Sh.), 10, 159.
 Karma, Law of, 175-186, 380.
 Kingdom of Heaven, 225,
 590-592.
 Kingdoms of Nature, 168.
 Kingcraft and priestcraft,
 596.
 Kings, tyrant, 400 ; punishment of, 403.

Knowledge, direct and indirect, 103-106 ; intellectual and intuitional, 104 ; guides to the goal, 269 ; Way of,
 85, 86, 90-270, 348.
Known, to be is to be, 139.

LANGUAGE, difference between religions, only of, 67-73.
 Laotsism. (See Taoism).
 Law of, Action and Reaction,
 175, 189.
 Ambivalence. (See Duality).
 Cause and Effect, 175,
 189.
 Conservation of Energy,
 189.
 Cyclicity, 239.
 Duality, 79. (See Ambivalence).
 Heredity, 503-505.
 Indestructibility of Matter, 189.
 Karma, 175-186, 380.
 Mutation or Spontaneous Variation, 503-505.
 Nature, God's Command-
 ment as, 502.
 Polarity. (See Duality).
 Sacrifice, 79.
 Unity, 79.

Law, Religion-inspired, an End of Life, 223.
 League of Nations, 7, 19, 26,
 of Religions needed, 7, 19 ;
 27 ; 515.

Legends, ré Founders and Reformers of Religions, exaggerated, 458.

Legislation, by only the Good and Wise, can establish the kingdom of heaven on earth, xxiii, 81, 591, 599. (See Self-government).

Letter vs. Spirit. (See Spirit).

Liberty, in non-essentials, 32; for the young, in education, how far desirable, 58-59; meaning of individual, 59; in changing from one religion to another, 59; the final, 224-225.

Liberty vs. Necessity, 183-186. (See Destiny).

Life, a perpetual choice between rival 'ills' and 'goods', 50; endless Evolutionary Chain of Life, 222; dual, sub-divided into quadruple, end, aim, goal, purpose, object, fundamental value, of Life, 223-224, 396-397, 486, (See Summum Bonum); three aspects of new regenerate, 227; Elixir of, 417; four stages of, 484; Meaning of, 514-516; repudiations of, 515.

Living beings, types of, xviii, 170, 190, 199-201, 475; vast fraternity of all, 219.

Litanies, 468.

Logion, Logia, Logos-words, (Great Sayings), of the religions, xii, 98-99, 107-112.

Love, the beneficent Fatherly Power, 20; and Hate, 41; Divine and Human, 270; as an aspect of the One Truth, 331; the one way to know God, 382; lower and higher, 383; personal precedes, 392; impersonal succeeds, 393; physical, superphysical, Spiritual, 393; perfect, casteth out fear, 547; is God, 605.

Love chase vs. love-capture, 257.

Lust, 28, 280; and Hate, 326.

MACRO-COSM, 203, 209-211, 494; Triple, as Intellectus Mundi, Anima Mundi, and Corpus Mundi, 203-204. (See Mundi).

Madness of the Nations, 577.

Magic, 202; black, 516.

Ma-gokoro, (Sh.), the Japanese doctrine of the Middle Course or Moderation, 37.

Male and Female, duality of, 47.

Mammon, 93, 363.

Manias, the six chief, 576.

Man, God in, 35, 138, 148, 333-345, 565; is Trinity-in-Unity, 57; remembers himself into God, 92; Satan

- in, 138; Consciousness of, 139; the crown of creation, why, 173; is, in essence, God, 159-162; becomes God, 226; part beast, part angel, 321, 330-331; the image of God, 565; the, of God, 568, 599; four types of, 483, 584; the, of godly science, 600
- Mankind, all one, like organs of the same organism, 536, 537.
- Marks, external, of religions, 474.
- Marriage, one righteous aim of, 297; the higher aim of, 298; as Wish-to-Multiply, 323; purpose of Love, 343; four kinds of, 484; between persons of parity of temperament, 497; right, promotive of racial health, 497.
- Material Bread. (See Bread).
- Maternity, 296. (See Motherhood).
- Matter, 22, 158, 164; and Spirit, 244, 285.
- Māyā, two glamour-powers of, and their counteractives, 252, 260, 320, 326, 593 594.
- Meaning, sameness of, beneath difference of words, 67-73; of Life, (see Life).
- Mean, the Golden, enjoined in all religions, 33-39; 82; 333.
- Mechanism vs. Vitalism, 183-186.
- Mediators, and Mediums, 393, 405-407; prayers to, 424.
- Meditation, aids to, 467-468.
- Mercy, 184.
- Merit, reward for, 178.
- Memory, omniscient, eternal, of God, 128; the source of all successive individual knowledge, 545, 546; panoramic, rapid, at death, 346;
- Metaphysic, xvii, xix; concepts of, at the roots of all sciences, 11; 373.
- Metempsychosis, 190-200.
- Method of concomitant variations, 184.
- Micro-cosm, 203, 210. (See Macro-cosm).
- Middle course, the. (See Mean, the Golden).
- Mind, creator and governor of Matter, 20-21; the first and most direct thing in our experience, 22; the Universal Reality, 24; the Supreme, 25; eminent physical scientists' views on, 20-25; three functions of the, 42; mind-force, 58; child- and sage-, (see Child-mind, and Sage-mind); good and bad, 137; triad of Mind-Force-Matter, 264; the Universal, 128, 163, 267, 546, (see Consciousness, and Macro-cosm).

- Miracle, psychic, 96; the eternal, 252.
- Mis-education, 569, 571, 586.
- Mis-employment, cause of Unemployment, 573, 574, 577, 579.
- Mismanagement, gross, in Religion, Politics, Economics, Domestic, Pedagogics, Art, Recreation, all departments of Life, 577-581.
- Missionary vs. Mercenary, 568.
- Moderation, the one virtue, 37, 82. (See Excess).
- Modern Science, and Religion, 26; and psychical research, 198-199.
- Monasteries, 476.
- Monism, 242.
- Monotony, 69.
- Moral disarmament 'must precede physical, 30.
- Moral Equivalent for War, 513.
- Moral Principles, only two basic, 336.
- Morals revolutioned, 578, 580.
- Motherhood, 288-297; mother-love is heaven, 289; mother-image is guardian-angel, 290; mother greater than father or teacher, 291; woman created to be mother, 296; is educator's function, while father-justice is ruler's, 377-378; is Beauty-aspect of God. and Ministrant function of State, while father-justice is Majesty-aspect of God and Constituent function of State, 396; paradox of mother-love, 384; 394-395, 397; worship of mother and babe, in all religions, 455-456.
- Multiplicity, 13-14, 68, 79, 127, 140-142, 146, 187, 506, 558. (See Unity, and Diversity).
- Multi-teny, 69.
- Mundi, anima, (intellectus, and corpus), xix; 203-204.
- Music in the Soul, 231.
- Mutation, law of, 503; cause of, 504.
- Mystery clears, when lower self is subdued, 416; the Ultimate, 147, 163.
- Mysteries in every religion, 76-77, 97-103; Eleusinian, 77.
- Mysticism, 86, 160, 188, 244, 318, 393, 418, 457; Kabir's, 525; 554.
- Mystics, the Spiritual Race of, 418.
- NAMES, of God, dual, 45-49; in many Scriptures, 138-157, 163-164; the Un-Uttered Name, 143; indicate powers and attributes, 265; the sweetest, 292-294.

- Nationalism, 28, 29, 577, 590.
 Nations, rise and fall of, 332-333.
 Nature, is God's Nature, 53, 91; as compeller, 185; a continuity, 186; kingdoms of, 168; three attributes of God's, 503.
 Necessity vs. Liberty, (See Destiny).
 Negation, 246.
 New Dawn and New Eve, 234.
 Night and Day, the true, 549.
 Nihilism, 519.
 Non-extremism, 37.
 Non-essentials change, 75.
 Non-resistance, 277.
 Not-Self, 109, 245.
 Not-This, 121.
 Numbers, 171.
- OBJECTIONS, some, to teaching of Religion, 55-59.
 Object-World, 109.
 Obligatory and optional duties, 74.
 Occupation, 58, 483, 508; perverted into 'hereditary caste', 498.
 Omni-potence, 264, 324.
 Omni-presence, 51, 264, 324-325.
 Omni-science, 264, 324, 546.
 One, the, 1-5. (See Self).
 Oneness, otherless, secondless, in thought, feeling, action, 545.
- Opposites, pairs of, 48, 49, 137, 154-156, 157, 164, 374; how transcended, 154-155. (See Duality).
 Optional actions, 74.
 Organisation, (See Social Organisation); for Peace, the Permanent Problem, xxv, 466, 481, 511; for War, passing problems, xxiv, 466, 512.
 Orgic tendencies, 473.
 Originality, craving for, xiv.
 Original sin, 352.
 Other-worldliness, of India, how far exaggerated, 12.
 Oversoul, the, 18.
- PAIN, 374-376. (See Pleasure).
 Pairs of Opposites. (See Opposites.)
 Palingensis, (162), 609.
 Pantheism, 242.
 Parables, 102.
 Parents, Teachers, Elders, reverence due to, 288-297.
 Paternity, 296.
 Pastime, the World-Drama, 327.
 Path, 4, 82-86; eightfold, 82, 85; the Middle, 36, 82; the Threefold, 82, 271, 420-421; the Left-hand, 516.
 Peace, 14, 26-28, 41-42, 228, 248, 250, 280, 376, 558, 568; the Eternal Fount of, 228; beyond both Joy and Woe, 250; the One Way to, 558;

- Organisation for, xxv, 466, 481-482, 511.
 Perfect, the de-fect-ive be-comes, 240; Men, 240.
 Perfections, 275, 325.
 Person, Logion in third, 98; realisation in first, 99; change from third to first, 136, 158
 Personality, meaning of, and how formed, 148.
 Perversion of Hunger and Sex, 499; of Motive, in all aspects of life, 575-576; of Occupation into Caste, 498.
 Philanthropic Associations, 6.
 Philanthropy, 7, 80, 244, 421.
 Philosophy, 57, 58, 95.
 Phylo-genesis, 162.
 Pietism, 86.
 Piety, 534.
 Pilgrimage, Places of, as means of promoting Unity, 15, 451-456, 464, 458; real purpose of, 463-464; symbolism of, 464-465; the True, 548.
 Planes, 190, 195, 204.
 Plan, the Divine Eonic, xix.
 Planning of the Individual Life, 480-481.
 Planning, World-Wide, the Only Cure, 582-583.
 Play, the World-Drama, 68, 117, 157, 158, 252, 327.
 Pleasure, 374-376, 406; and Pain, inseparable, 41, 42, 353, 375; and pain, balancing of, 374-376; and Duty, 383.
 Plexuses, and yoga-disciplines, 392-393; 416-417.
 Politics, 578.
 Polity, democratic and socialist, 479.
 Powers, higher, or superphysical, 198-199, 278-279, 347; of God, indicated by names, 265; psychic, not to be coveted, 279; Four main, of Science, of Arms, of Bread-and-Money, of Labor, 287.
 Practicalism, 86.
 Practicality, false and true, 577-584.
 Prayer, meaning of, 423-425; opens up spiritual sight, 424; congregational and solitary, 425; the Un uttered, 424; self-displaying, 425; benefits of, 439-441; for the departed, 475; ritualistic; 475; for Right Will and Wisdom, in all religions, 1-5, 423-440, 475; calls to, 475.
 Pride goeth before destruction, 358.
 Priests, corrupt, 400-402, 476, 496.
 Priestcraft, 18; and kingcraft, 596.
 Priesthoods, merits and demerits of organised, 398-399.

Problem, the One, xxv, 478.

Property, an End of Life, 223 ; focus of egoistic separatism, 277, 286, 323, 484.

Prophets, 267; false, 401-403; judge over all, the man in the street, 404-405 ; true, must curb rulers, 598.

Psychic, Miracle, 96, 279 ; Research, 26.

Psycho-analysis, 322, 393, 443-444.

Psychology, principles of, indispensable, for scientific Social Organisation, 382.

Punishment, righteous, distinguished from Violence, 315. (See Sin).

Purity. (See Cleanliness).

QUESTION, the Final, 386-387.

R', the fourth, of Universal Religion, 54.

Rage, 310.

Real, the, 112. (See Unreal).

Rebirth, 162-200 ; voluntary, 208 ; involuntary, 238.

Reconciliation of all views by Philosophy, 14 ; the principle of, 313.

Record, the Hidden Eternal, 545-546.

Recreation, 581.

Re education, 444.

Reform movements in every religion, 525.

Regeneration, 444.

Reincarnation, 162-200 ; Islamic views re, 174-175 ; kinds of, 174.

Relations, all possible, between Spirit and Matter, 245.

Religion, governing all life, in all communities, 8-9 ; why, degenerates, 9, 465, 559 ; and Civilisation, 17 ; is one, 17-18 ; and Science are one ; 19 ; well-planned instruction in, potent instrument for Peace, 31 ; indispensable, 34 ; excess of, suicidal, 35 ; Perfect Religion transcends, 51-52, ineradicable need for, 50-54 ; in fullness is the whole of Science, 53-54 ; Universal, nature of, xxi-xxii, 54-55 ; imperative Duty to teach, 55 ; indefeasible power of soul to judge any, and change from it to any other, 56 ; Agreement of all religions, proclaimed by all Founders of all 59-67 ; Meaning of, 57, 78 ; All Founders only re-form and re-proclaim, say nothing new, 62-63 ; 66 ; Nature of, 77-85 ; threefold character, three interests, aspects, constituents, of, xiii, xxv, xli, 85-89, 420 ; an End of Life, 223 ; is that which secures Happiness, here and hereafter, 429 ; and the Arts,

- 465; Democratic and Socialist, 479; Revolts and Reforms in, 525; Righteous Action the end and aim of, 550; Essential, 32, 411, 505; Evils of, 517-523; need for graded series of text-books of Universal, ix; comparative study of, xvii, xviii; superphysical or occult side of, xliii-xliv.
- Religions, Eleven Living, xxvi, 8, 9; Parliaments of, 6; Founders of, the greatest Educators, 31; different, as root, stem, branches, foliage, flowers, fruits, of one tree, 71; various, emphasise various aspects of the One Truth, 89; and Temperaments, 90; horrors perpetrated in the name of, 368; explanation of such horrors, 369; four-fold source of religious law, 446; a Disastrous Error common to all, 516-517; distinguishing peculiarities of, 519-520; have religions copied from one another?, vii, xvii; uniqueness of each, insisted on by some, xv-xviii, 409, 519-520; degenerate, why, 9, 559; all, gathered and represented in India, 560-562.
- Religiosity, easy, is sin, 540.
- Religious, Law, fourfold source of, in all religions, 446; Science, 8, 17; Wars, 521-523, 559-560.
- Renunciants, the, additional duties of, 274-281.
- Renunciation, 249, complete, of individualised existence, 278; purpose of 299; 337-348, 365, 391; four stages of, 337.
- Repentance, 441.
- Rest, 258
- Resumé, 163, 270, 420, 478.
- Revelation, 445.
- Revolution, Cyclic, 164
- Reverence, 288.
- Right Action, 270, 550.
- Right Knowledge, 85-270.
- Right Knowledge-Desire-Action, all indispensable, 270-271.
- Right Love, 270-420.
- Right Path, 6, 249.
- Right Thought - Word-Act, 87.
- Riots, communal, xxxiii, 565-566.
- Rites and Ceremonies, 475.
- Rshis, 6.
- Rule, (see Golden Rule); simple, needs comment, 372.
- Rule of Three, the 91.
- Russia, the Great Experiment in, its merits, and its great all-vitiating de-merit, xxi-xxii; religion in, 429; 483-484, 584, 619-620.

SACRAMENTS, 466-467.

Sacred Cities and Universities, 451.

Sacrifice, Law of, 79-80; of the smaller, lower self, 79; 468-470; of animals, 468-469; all scriptures disapprove of animal; 470-473; all life, one long, of the Perfected Men and Women, 526 529; 528.

Safeguard, the One, 352.

Sage-mind, 51, 187. (See Child-mind).

Saints and Disciples, 575.

Saints and Sinners, 506-507.

Salvation, 81, 224-270; kinds and grades of, 241-242.

Same-sightedness, 209.

Sarmad, the swan-song of, 417-418.

Satan, God-ordained function, and joys and sorrows, of, 133-134; 137-138, 351, 519, 526.

Sayings, Great, xii; (See Logion).

Science, 13, 17, 53, 570-573, 602-603; odium theologicum in, 13; is one, 17; and Religion, reconciled in Philosophy, 13-14, 19, 26; and Religion are one, 19, 562; physical, is partial and imperfect religion, 53; Spirituo-Material, 479-480.

Scientific Materialism is dead, 138.

Scientific Religion, 17, 18, 27, 50, 81, 562.

Scientists, views of, re Spirit and Mind governing Matter, 19-26; conscience of, awakening, 569; Disastrous Error of, 570, 573; confessions of, 569-572; the heaviest Responsibility rests upon, 601.

Scriptures, in all religions, described by words having the same meaning, 445.

Season, a, for everything, 74, 514.

Sects, multifarious in each religion, 477, 516.

Seek, many, few find, 93-94.

Seeking, the Joyous Ache of, 256-259.

"Seek the Seeker", 462.

Self, or God, the Universal, Eternal, Infinite, Supreme, All-pervading, All-binding, All-uniting One, 5, 605-607; the Mysterious Something behind everything, 16; the Science of the, the Final Synthesis of Philosophy, Science, Religion, 33; the Larger, 79, 80; Identity of the Individual with the Universal, 84, 92, 161, 386-387; distinction between them, 160; the 'I Al(l)-One', 103; Self-luminous and also all-other-illuminating, 106, 114; as God in the heart,

107 ; basis of 'This', 'Not-Self', 109 ; One, Not-a-Second, 111 ; Changeless, Beginningless, Endless, 112-113, and Ever-Full, 189 ; Sensor of the Senses, Unknown to knower, 114-115, yet most Knowable and Known, 115 ; Known to the Ignorant, 116 ; First and Last, 117, 145 ; Not Being, nor Non-Being, nor Both, nor free from Both, 118-129 ; 'Not-This', 'Not-This', 121 ; Indescribable, but indefeasibly Self-known, 123 ; as Universal Being and also minutest indivisible Individual, 123 ; Unique, Vaster than Vastest, Smaller than Smallest, 123 ; All-Enveloping, 'I is All', 'All is I', 125 ; Dual Names of, 45-46 ; many names of the Self-Same, 139-147 ; un-uttered Name of, 143, 417 ; the Living Breath, the Great Ultimate, 144-145 ; the Supreme, the Ultimate, Mystery, 147, 163, 459 ; the Greatest Gain, the Summum Bonum, the Heart's Desire of All, 149 ; Most Beautiful, Most Terrible too, 150-159 ; all moods belong to the, 154 ; creates Good and also Evil, 156-157 ; impossible to doubt, 158 ; 'the Supreme and Final Judge, 162, 183, 185 ; between religions, prophets, teachers, 404-405, 477-478 ; the 'I' in all, 163 ; the Friend, also the Enemy, 181-182 ; the Inner, the Inescapable Witness and Judge, 184-185 ; the One Sole Wearer of Countless Dresses, 190 ; the Eternal Fount of Peace ; 228 ; the One Goal, 232 ; Nature of the, described by countless Negations, 245, 246 ; Changelessness of the, simultaneously including and negating all possible Changes, 261 ; Desire arose in, 262 ; Trinity of Aspects in the Unity of the Self, 263-265 ; the One Sure Guide, 334 ; the Higher, 330, 333-336, 363, 591 ; the Friend in All, 355 ; lower and Higher, xxiii, 415 ; the One Lord and Master, 460 ; the Small and the Great, 519 ; Alone True-Beautiful-Good, 553. (Sec Consciousness, God, I).

Self-Consciousness, 229-230 ; -control, 281, 329, 512 ; -deception, 133 ; -denial, 391 ; -effacement, 276 ; -Government, the true, xxiii, xiii, 81, 591 ; -Realisation, 85, 92, 99, 115-117, 173, 224-270,

- 327, 562; -sacrifice, 79, 276, 469-470.
- Selfishness, 28, 327, 391 ; and self-less-ness or self-denial, 391.
- Seng-Jen, (C.), 336.
- Separatism, egoist, 277.
- Sex, 65, 286, 322 ; absence of, 351 ; double 351 ; 499 ; horrors of, 499 ; Punishment by Nature for Sins of, generation after generation, 183, 501.
- Sheaths, 195, 205 ; dense and subtle, 205.
- Shīa-ism, 525.
- Shintoism, xxvi, xxviii, 9, 71, 83-85. (Throughout).
- Sikhism, xxvi, xxx-xxxi ; 525. (Throughout).
- Silence, Song of the, 416-417.
- Simplexes, 322. (See Complexes).
- Sinners-Saints, 506-507.
- Sin, Original, 351-352 ; punishment for, 176-186 ; sexual, punished generation after generation, 183, 501 ; 500-501, 551.
- Sins, 154, 317-319, 500-501, the Seven 'Deadly', 317 ; single seed of two root, 319.
- Sleeping, the real Spiritual, 251, 549.
- Slaves, self-sold, the Perfected Souls, 241, 267.
- Socialism, 58, 376, 560, 584-590.
- Social Organisation, xxii-xxv, 16, 317, 398, 479-498, 506, 511, 513, 516, 566-600 ; necessary to work Golden Rule, 316-317, 372, 572 ; indispensable for Moral War, 513.
- Society and Individual, 479-480.
- Son of God, God and, 160, 226, 366.
- Soul, three stages in the progress of the, 155 ; how separable from Body during Life, 206-208 ; a piece of Divinity, 563.
- Souls, two in each person, 49 ; have no creed, caste, color, race, sex, 66, 563-566 ; all, desire 'mirrors', 68 ; soul-education, 463 ; -force, compels sword-force, 599 ; -repose, 280.
- Speechless Discourse, 161.
- Speed-lust vs. Soul-repose, 280.
- Spenta and Angra, (Z). 354.
- Spirit-Matter, 22, 158, 244, 245, 517.
- Spirits, good and evil, of many types, planes, worlds, 199-202.
- Spirit versus Letter, 56, 526, 542-544.
- Spiritual, Bread, xxi, 16, (see Bread) ; Entity, the universe

- a, 20, 23; Consciousness, 129; 285, 466, 478-479; Education, 463; Hierarchy, 6, 214-222; relationship, 475; Science, 81, 505, 560; Will, 133; Fire, 447.
- Stages, in each life, four successive, 392, 484.
- State, dual functions of, arising from the Golden Rule, 297-299.
- States of Consciousness or moods of soul, 204.
- Stoicism, 383, 384.
- Strife, religious and politico-economic, 560-561; the only Remedy for, 566-567.
- Struggle for Existence, 323, 581.
- Sūfī, kalema, logion, the real, 107; meaning of the word, 246.
- Sūfism, as reform in Islam, 525. (Throughout).
- Summum, Bonum*, 148, 223-270, 390; genus, 123; or parvum, or parvulum or minutum individuum, 123, 609.
- Sunnism, 525.[¶]
- Super-Men, 215-218, 237, 240.
- Super-Mind, 129.
- Supra-Conscious, the, 176.
- Surrender, of the small self to the Great Self or God, 80, 381.
- Sva-raj, (Swa-rāj), 591. (See Self-government).
- Sympathy, meaning of, 129.
- Synthesis, the Final, of Philosophy, Science, Law, Art, Religion, by God-Science, xix-xxi, 33.
- Tao, (T), 83, 84, 215, 336.
- Taoism, xxvi, xxviii, 8. (Throughout).
- Tasawwuf, 9, 210, 246. (See Sūfism).
- Teachers, the Great, given to all races, 6, 215-217, 288-297.
- Teachings, 'regard the, not the Teachers', 411.
- Temperaments, Different, and Different kinds of Education and of Religious Practices for, 90; 421, 422, 483; Testing of, 499; and Vocational Classes, 135.
- Temples, living, of God, 457.
- Temple-towns, 451, 461.
- Tests of intelligence devised in the west, not yet of temperaments, 90.
- Tetrads, 483-494; of human types, vocations, livelihoods; 483; of stages of life, physical appetites, kinds of food, special possessions, marriages; 484; of recreations, psychical appetites, 485; of ends of life, social institutions, powers of state, sets of rights-and-duties, 486; of

- duties, subordinate organisations, social debts, 487; of repayments, 488; of pathological temperaments, treatments, crimes and criminals, punishments, 617.
- Texts, used in this book, Note on, xxvi-xlv; of Védism, xxvi-xxvii; Zoroastrianism, (xxvii), xlv; Islam, xxvii; Shintoism, Taoism, and Confucianism, xxviii; Buddhism, xxviii-xxix; Jainism, xxix; Sikhism, xxx; Treasure-House of Living Religions by R. E. Hume; other works, xxxi-xlv.
- Theo-pathy, Theo-pneusty, Theo-phany, 218.
- Theosophical Society, the, 571.
- 'This', 'Other-than-I', the Object-World, 109.
- This-worldliness, in India also, as well as the west, 10-11.
- Thought, this World is, 94.
- Three, Rule of, 91.
- Tongue, control of, secret of all, 281-287; what goeth in at and out from, the, 283-284.
- Theism, 242.
- Total Body, Intelligence, Vitality, 203-204, 546.
- Tragedy and Comedy, of the Universe, 260, 412.
- Tranquillity, 376.
- Transmigration, 162-198; views of, in Islam, 197.
- Trinity in Unity, 91, 203-204, 263-264.
- Triple Civilisation, 88-90.
- Triplicity, 88-90, 227.
- True, only the Changeless is the, 112, 553.
- Truth, Impersonal, All-personal, 19; always in the Mean between Extremes, 43; all-co-ordinating, 53; 92; not easy to put in words, 160; four noble Truths of Buddhism, 293; of the One Self, Source of all Virtues, 326; of the Oneness of all selves, 369; helpful though harsh, 360. hidden in Error, 517-519; as Love, 331; as non egoism, 369.
- Truth-Beauty-Goodness, 31, 265, 518, 553.
- Two souls in each person, 49.
- Types, of living beings, xviii; 170, 196; or temperaments, four, recognised in different religions, 390, 483, 490-495.
- ULTIMATE FACT, 145, 246, 263; Mystery, 147, 163.
- Unconscious, the, 176; may become consious by prayer, 423; 550.
- Understanding is partial realisation, 335.

- Unemployment, 580.
- Unity, Invocation of the Supreme Spirit of, 1-5; Spirit of, 6, 13-16; in Multiplicity, 146; in Trinity, 263.
- Union, Divine, the One Cure for all sorrows, 387.
- U n i q u e, individually vs. universally, xiv.
- Universalism, 27, 80, 129, 132, 137, 334; 538.
- Universe, 5, 21-23-25, 48; meaning of the word, 163; 213-214, 294.
- Universal Mind, xix, 44, 128, 267, 546.
- U n i v e r s a l Religion, Test of, 60. (Throughout).
- Universal Self. (See Self.)
- Universal, the, not to be undervalued, xiv, xvi.
- Universities, should compile text-books of, and teach, Universal Religion, ix-x, xliii.
- Unreal, the, 112, 326.
- Unrest vs. Rest, 258.
- Untruth, the First, 319; as Hate, 331.
- Urge, inner, to know the Self, 235.
- VALUES of life, 223, 386-387, 396-397, 486.
- Vanity of Vanities, 251, 253, 260.
- Variation. (See Mutation).
- Védānta-Ṭasawwuf, 57, 110.
- Védism (or Hinduism), xxvi, 8; many names of, and their meanings, 82; systematises all life, 390; 396. (Throughout).
- Views, hasty and one-sided, regarding East and West, 12; of Scientists ré Mind and Matter, 19-26.
- Vigils, 468.
- Violence distinguished from righteous Punishment, 315.
- Virtues, 37, 271-310, 317-319, 325-333, 356-357; five principal, 271-272; farther-reaching, of hermits, 274; the practicality of, 373; the single seed of all, 326.
- Vision, 76, 450; of God, the dazing glory of the, 76; the Great, 413; beautiful visions of sincere devotees, 448-450.
- Vitalism vs. Mechanism, 183-186.
- Vocation, 58, 483, 508-514.
- WAHĀBISM, 525.
- Waking, the true Spiritual, 254, 549.
- War, xx-xxi, 15, 27, 28, 30, 332, 513, 521, 559, 569, 573; unbearable burden of Expenditure on Preparation for, 573.
- Way of Devotion, 85, 270-420; of Heaven, 180; of

- Knowledge, 85-270, 348, 421; of Works, 85, 270, 420-558.
- Way, Truth, Life, 133, 264; Three-fold, 420-421.
- West and East, 8-14.
- Wheel of Joy and Sorrow, 188.
- Whisper, Sacred Knowledge conveyed in a, 96-97.
- Will-and-Imagination, xix, 92, 251, 253-254, 256, 267, 327, 412.
- Will-Life-Intelligence, 226.
- Will, the Divine, of God, i. e., the Universal Self, how ascertain, 81, 389-390, 479-481, 617.
- Wisdom, the Sun of Scriptural, ever shining, xxiv; the Ancient, 99, 101; is choosing the lesser evil, 399; is Science plus Philanthropy, 575; must guide Valour, 597.
- Word and Meaning, to be distinguished, 523-526.
- World-Fellowship of Faiths, 6, 571.
- World-process, 5, 41, 68, 109, 157, 163, 164, 249, 252, 368, 412; an Interplay of Opposites, 157; a Tragic-Comic Drama, 158.
- Worlds, other than the physical, 191-208; universal belief in, 192-193; the soul's journey through many planes or, 194-195.
- World-weariness, 129. (See Disgust).
- Worship, Places of, 446, 475; of Mother and Babe, 456.
- Wrongs have ultimately to be righted by the People themselves, 400.
- YEARNING, sweetness of, 259.
- Yoga, or Sulūk, 203, 277, 392-393, 416-417, 421, 553-557.
- ZOROASTRIANISM, xxvi, lv, 8. (Throughout).

(All the works of Dr. Bhagavan Das can be had from The Manager, Indian Book Shop, Benares City.)

OPINIONS ON SOME OF THE OTHER WORKS OF DR. BHAGAVAN DAS.

THE SCIENCE OF THE SELF, (pub : 1938).

A perusal of this book will be of immense benefit, not only to the philosophers, but also to the present-day reformers and politicians who have placed upon themselves the heavy responsibility of leading humanity from ignorance to knowledge, from serfdom to freedom, from miseries to peace and prosperity : PROF A C MUKERJI, Professor of Philosophy, Allahabad University, (in the Leader).

One of the most scholarly and suggestive works that I have read on the subject of "The Self" in English. There is considerable freshness and originality in the presentation of the different aspects of the subject, particularly those bearing on action and ethics : Prof V SUBRAMANYA IYER, President of the Board of Sanskrit Studies and Examinations, Mysore.

Illuminating presentation of Vedanta-Yoga, not merely as a Metaphysic of the Self, but also in its concrete application to the ordering of human life in both its individual and social aspects . . . The reader will be struck by the author's erudition as also by the architectonic skill and masterly grasp with which he handles a bewildering mass of scientific facts and theories. Particularly noteworthy is his criticism of the psycho-analytical school in psychology, and of communism and socialism in political theory, the merits as well as weaknesses whereof are noted with great accuracy and penetration . . . The work is unique in a way, expounding as it does, Vedantic principles in their concrete operation. In this respect, it will compare favourably with Hegel's writings, though illustrative of a fundamentally different conception of the Self. The author's observations on the essentials of Social Organisation deserve serious consideration by workers in the social and political field : DR. S K. MAMBA, Professor of Philosophy, Calcutta University, (in the Calcutta Review).

The searching and fundamental little book, on "The Science of the Self", goes directly to the centre of all metaphysical thought. I think it is important for our time to have the philosophy of India kept alive for us by such vital and living statements . . . It is a valuable addition to the article in Muirhead's book : DR. W. E. HOOKING, Professor of Philosophy, Harvard University.

Dr. Bhagavan Das may well be regarded as the leading authority on Hindu Psychology. Thus in writing on 'Atma-Vidya, or the Science of the Self,' he is dealing with a subject concerning which he is unusually well informed. From the standpoint of that particular character of its contents, the whole essay needs to be studied : Dr. A. G. WIDEMAN, (reviewing in The Philosophical Review, January, 1938, the volume on Contemporary Indian Philosophy, in which an outline of the ideas of the book first appeared).

Dr. Bhagavan Das' essay on 'Atma-Vidya or the Science of the Self' is longer and more technical, but his account of Hindu social ideas is extremely interesting: Dr. A. T. SHILLINGLAW, (reviewing the same work in Mind, vol. 46).

THE SCIENCE OF THE EMOTIONS.

(3rd edn., 1924; translations, of the earlier editions, of 1900 and 1908, have appeared in Dutch, French, Spanish, Norwegian; an epitome, of the 3rd enlarged edn., has been published by Miss K. Browning, M. A.).

Has for the first time introduced order into this confused region of consciousness..A lucid treatise which reduces the chaos of the Emotions into a cosmos, and shapes therein an ordered morality: Dr. ANNIE BESANT, (in her book, A Study in Consciousness, 1st edn., p 352).

The correspondence and transmutation of the Emotions, and the method of practical application .come as a revelation...A pathway in the formerly trackless region of our intimate feelings, and a practical help in many familiar and difficult situations in life" - ERNEST WOOD, (The Theosophist, April, 1909).

Marks an era in the history of thought and of book making in modern India .Has helped to lay the foundation of a modern philosophical literature in India: Dr. SATIS CHANDRA BANERJI, M A., LL D., (Kityastha Samachar, Sep—Oct., 1901).

Indicates considerable originality of thought..Its most pleasing feature is the attempt to reconcile western conceptions with eastern thought .A very thoughtful contribution to the study of the Emotions from an oriental point of view: (The Educational Review, Madras, Sep., 1901).

The most original contribution which Bhagavan Das makes to the psychology of the Emotions is his attempt to classify them on a simple psychological principle ..Deserves a prominent place in contemporary psychological speculation: (The Indian Review, Madras, July, 1901).

THE SCIENCE OF PEACE. (2nd edn., 1921).

The student should carefully study Bhagavan Das' Science of Peace, in which the metaphysical questions involved are expounded with rare acumen and felicity: ANNIE BESANT (A Study in Consciousness, p. 6)

In her Foreword to her booklet, An Introduction to the Science of Peace, (1912), Dr. Annie Besant says: One of the most valuabl books issued under the inspiration of Theosophy (Brahma-Vidyā) is The Science of Peace, by Bhagavan Das. Those who seek a lasting intellectual foundation for their thinking will find much help from this valuable and original work

"The gifted author of The Science of Peace". EDWARD CARPENTER, (in his book, The Drama of Love and Death).

"The view that is here indicated seems to approximate rather closely to the views that have been more or less definitely suggested by some of the Oriental philosophers. See, for instance, The Science of Peace, by Bhagavan Das". Professor J. S. MACKENZIE, LL. D., Litt. D., Co-editor of International Journal of Ethics, (in the Theosophist for May, 1914).

THE SCIENCE OF SOCIAL ORGANISATION; OR THE LAWS OF MANU.

A rare combination of deep learning and felicitous phrasing.: ANNIE BESANT, (Theosophy in India, 1910)

"This book, like others from the same pen, has the indefinable quality of distinction: subtlety and precision of thought, scholarly culture and urbanity of expression, all mingling to produce something eminently readable and provocative of reflection. A great subject has been presented in a clear and pleasant way...We are shown, with admirable skill and lucidity, what Dharma meant to the age in which it was given. For those who look forward to a great revival of Indian spirituality, The Science of Social Organisation by Bhagavan Das is rich in instruction. An admirable organon of the new idealism, which, though new in its hopes and aspirations, is yet conion in its sources, and which, through the cyclic process of the Aryan race, must eventually bring back all the scattered members of that race to the level of thought and aspiration from which many thousands of years ago, they started on their long journey. A book of the highest excellence and value...which is clearly the outcome of long years of thought and study, but which has also, just as clearly, been a labor of love: Prof: E. A. WODEHOUSE, M.A., (Oxon.), (The C. H. C. Magazine, October, 1910.)

Among the most illuminative contributions to the study and understanding of the all-important subject it treats of: Dr. Sir S. SUBRAMANYA IYER, ex-Chief Justice of the Madras High Court.

It is a marvellous book...Deserves to be placed with the classics on social polity, and should find a place in every home which has any pretence to Hindu culture: Prabuddha Bharata, August, 1933, (chief organ of the Ramakrishna Mission, Calcutta), in a review of Vol I of the new edn.

A revelation of the scientific principles which underlie our old social organisation...It has been a delight and an instruction to read the work : Maha-mahopadhyaya Pandit ADITYARAM BHATTACHARYA, M. A., F. A. U., Vice-Principal, Central Hindu College, Benares, ex-Prof : of Sanskrit, Muir College, Allahabad.

The Manu is simply grand : Rai Bahadur Lala BAJNATH, (ex-Judge.)

THE PRANAVA-VADA; OR, THE SCIENCE OF THE SACRED WORD.

A summarised reproduction in English of the original Sanskrit work of Gārgyaśaṣṇa, 3 Vols.

The author's labors of many years are yielding fruit by the rendering into English of the very technical and abstruse contents of this unique treatise. His elucidation of the many statements in the text, by ample and interesting annotations full of research, surpass in their value his work which gave to the world two highly important works—The Science of the Emotions and The Science of Peace. A perusal of this translation has enhanced my admiration for the translator's ability, learning, and grasp of philosophic principles : SRI S. SUBRAMANIAM IYER, Chief Justice of the Madras High Court.)

THE SCIENCE OF RELIGION, OR SANATANA VAIDIKA DHARMA.

(New edition in preparation.)

"Worthy of careful study by the younger generation of Hindus" Sir Gooroo Dass Banerjee, ex-Judge of the Calcutta High Court "I have again read it with great profit and pleasure, with admiration for the learning, earnestness of spirit, and elevated enthusiasm of the author..The presentation of the principles is very attractive to the English-educated mind"; Sir P. S. SRIVASWAMY Aiyar, ex-Executive Councillor of the Madras Government, and ex-Vice-Chancellor of the Madras and the Hindu Universities. "Has given me much pleasure..Ancient learning formally presented in a way intelligible and attractive to modern modes of thinking"; Sir John G. Woodroffe, (then) Judge of the Calcutta High Court, author of many publications on Tantra Shastra. "A production of striking excellence...The fine poetic language is as noteworthy as the profound learning, the clear analysis, the vigorous logic, and the broad humanity of the book...I am astonished at the felicity of expression and beautiful turn of phrasing in some places"; Prof. P. Seshadri, M.A., (then) Professor of English, Central Hindu College, Benares "I have read your articles and book with interest and deep respect. They remind me strongly of Ruskin's views on social and national organisation...I feel deep sympathy with the purpose which you and Ruskin had in view in your writings"; Sir Michael E. Sadler, (1918), Vice-Chancellor of the University of Manchester, ex-President of the Calcutta University Commission.